I mention this possibility because determining prevailing wage rates within the state is a job we perform each year in order to perform our function of setting pay rates for the classified service, and the wage comparison can be accomplished without great difficulty.

In the State of Michigan Civil Service the Civil Service Commission initiates all pay adjustments and they become effective subject to a restricted form of legislative veto.

Pay rates are not initiated nor determined by the Legislature. The Legislature has 60 days after our plan is transmitted to rescind or reduce any pay increases, but a two-thirds vote of both houses is required. Any reduction must apply uniformly to all classes of positions affected by the increases, and may not adjust pay differentials already established. This means we must have up-to-date data in depth before we act.

The survey compares 96 classes of positions, representing almost two-thirds of our work force, with other cities in Michigan, a few counties, other states, and the federal service. The private survey compares 42 classes of positions representing almost half our work force with about 400 private employers of all sizes in various geographic areas of Michigan.

We have been doing this for over 20 years.

It seems to me rather than going through identical motions in 50 or 100 or more local negotiations in cities within a state over jobs that are common to all these local units involved, reliance could be placed on the state public wage board to publish its study results and perhaps recommend prevailing rates for jobs common to the communities or school boards involved. The wage board could or could not be a part of the state public employee relations board.

The local negotiations could concentrate on jobs or issues peculiar to the community. Argument at the local level on pay and fringes for jobs common to all by either side would then be limited to variance from the wage pegged for that fiscal year by the state wage board.

In other words, fact finding would be done in advance for everybody, including the affected parties and the public to see and recognize before bargaining begins. It seems to me this could eliminate a lot of wasted motion at the local level.

From our experience, it is clear that a factual finding of the type described could be obtained and with little imagination a prevailing wage or a recommended wage formula be devised.

The findings of the survey would amount to a compilation by a staff with the final recommendations coming from a supervising commission, with membership balanced to represent the public, the employees, and public managers.

To a person with a background in industrial labor relations this idea of a government in some way recommending or controlling wage rates probably is repugnant, with the inclination to reject it at the outset.

Yet honesty will require the admission that agreements in the public sector can never be free from governmental interference of some form. At whatever level, you're not negotiating with a private employer who derives his power from company owners, pitting your economic power against his with your membership's livelihood or the employer's business at stake! You are negotiating with the government -- local, state, or national -- which derives its power directly from every citizen.

This may represent some unique or peculiar thinking in your estimation, but I would like to conclude that changes in approach and exploration of what may appear unique or peculiar are needed.

Comparison of 1966-67 and 1967-68 negotiation survey data ..... Data and Statistics: B-1

Eight pages of detailed tabular comparisons of the two years' data, showing increases in number of school systems with agreements, numbers of personnel employed in school systems with and without agreements, plus regional and enrollment stratum trends.

Text: C-3

Regardless of whether an agreement has been signed, teachers are subject to the "no strike" provision in the Michigan negotiation statute. However, the courts need not issue an injunction against a teacher strike. It was suggested that before issuing an injunction, the courts determine whether the school districts have refused to bargain in good faith.

Listing of 1967-68 Agreements ..... Special Item: E-1

Over 2,100 systems with an agreement for 1967-68 in the NEA Research Division depository are listed, along with the recognized organization, its national affiliation, and the number of personnel represented.

Text: C-6

An impasse between the Rochester (New York) Board of Education and the Rochester Teachers Association (NEA) over beginning salaries led to a tripartite fact-finding panel being established. The panel recommended a 1968-69 minimum salary of $6,800; the stated reasons for the recommendation are noteworthy.

Text: C-1

On May 7, 1968, Governor Spiro Agnew signed into law HB 374 which provides for negotiation in good faith between certificated public-school employees and boards of education through elected exclusive representatives of the employees.

One School System, Separate Agreements for Teachers and Administrators D-1

Under the Massachusetts negotiation statute, teachers and administrative personnel may have separate bargaining units; the Framingham Teachers Association (NEA) and the Framingham School Committee have two agreements: Unit A: Teachers, and Unit B: Administrators.

Description and Analysis

MARYLAND ENACTS NEGOTIATION STATUTE FOR CERTIFICATED SCHOOL EMPLOYEES

When Maryland's new negotiation statute for certificated school employees was signed into law in May, Maryland became the sixteenth state with a negotiation statute (in addition, one state has a State Board of Education resolution).

The statute (text of which begins on page C-1) provides for:

- Exclusive representation; determination by election, if necessary
- Election for the exclusive representative(s), or none, by June 15, 1968, except in Baltimore
- No more than two units in any school system; determination of unit(s) to be made by school board.
- Prohibition of strikes, with specified penalties if a strike is called
- Tripartite impasse resolution panel
- Detailed recognition and/or election procedures.

MICHIGAN SUPREME COURT RULES ON HOLLAND STRIKE

If a school system has not executed a collective bargaining agreement with its majority employee bargaining representative, are the teachers employees of the school system? Yes, said the Michigan Supreme Court, the teachers are employees of the school system and subject to the no-strike provision of the state statute.

Should a court be expected to automatically issue an injunction against a teacher strike? No, not necessarily. The court stated:

> . . . the legislature intended that injunctive relief could be granted, but that courts are not required to grant it in every case involving a strike by public employees. To attempt to compel legislatively, a court of equity in every instance of a public employee strike to enjoin it would be to destroy the independence of the judicial branch of government.

The court continued by saying that a strike by public employees is not, in and of itself, sufficient to cause issuance of an injunction.

> . . . because it is basically contrary to public policy in this State to issue injunctions in labor disputes absent a showing of violence, irreparable injury, or break of the peace.

The court then suggested that when in the future such injunctions are sought, the courts establish whether, in fact, the school district has refused to bargain in good faith. On the basis of this finding, the court would have to determine whether the injunction should be issued, on what terms, and for how long.

In the specific case considered (Holland School District v. Holland Education Association), the court indicated that there was a lack of proof to support the issuance of a temporary injunction, dissolved the injunction, and returned the case to the circuit court for further proceeding.

ROCHESTER FACT-FINDER'S REPORT AND RECOMMENDATIONS

With the Rochester, New York, agreement between the Rochester Teachers Association (NEA) and the Rochester Board of Education expiring on June 30, 1968, the sole unresolved issue late in March was the beginning teachers' salary for 1968-69. The two groups were $800 apart, with the Board of Education indicating that according to city officials, funds to pay even their initial, and only, offer were lacking.

In considering the need for comparability of salaries between public and private employment the report stated:

> Employees in the private sector who are aggrieved by the inadequacy of their compensation are permitted by law to engage in self-help through concerted activities--most especially the strike--to improve their lot. This right is denied to public employees in the State of New York (as elsewhere) by the Public Employees Fair Employment Act (The "Taylor Act"), which superseded the Condin-Wadlin Act on September 1, 1967. If the procedures of the new "Taylor Act" for the strikeless resolution of negotiating impasses in public employment are to achieve their goal, they must make available to aggrieved public employees an alternative means of bringing proper pressure to bear upon public officials. If public employees cannot obtain fair remuneration for their services through the impasse procedures provided by law, then strikes by public employees may become the rule, rather than the exception.
> Accordingly, the Committee, while recognizing the plight of the City of Rochester, is not willing to impose the burden of that plight upon the teachers of the Rochester school system nor upon the students who will suffer if Rochester is unable to attract and retain qualified teachers.

The report went on to list four reasons for its recommendation for exceeding by $300 the amount the Board of Education said it could not finance. These reasons included turnover rates, and beginning salaries of other Monroe County school systems.

The report also strongly indicted the City of Rochester's fiscal condition by quoting the study made by a similar committee in 1966, to which the current Committee added only "Amen."

The text of the report begins on page C-6.

COMPARISON OF 1966-67 AND 1967-68 NEGOTIATION SURVEY DATA

The eight pages of tables which follow provide comprehensive data for comparison of the two national surveys of teacher/school board written negotiation agreements conducted in 1966-67 and 1967-68. Both surveys were sent to all school systems with an enrollment of 1,000 or more; data for the two years are completely comparable.

In order to be counted as having a written negotiation agreement (or procedure) a copy of the agreement had to be sent to the NEA Research Division and meet established minimum criteria for an agreement. Further, each agreement from last year's survey had to receive positive validation for the current year by the school system as being unchanged, or be replaced by a copy of the new agreement. Thus, some school systems counted in last year's survey as having agreements are not counted in the 1967-68 survey for one of the following reasons: positive validation of last year's agreement was not received, a copy of the new agreement was not filed, no response was received from the school system on any communication sent to ascertain the status of a negotiation agreement in the system, or the agreement was rescinded. The NEA Research Division has made every effort to make the current study as complete and as accurate as possible.

Four state statutes, two mandatory (Minnesota and New York) and two permissive (Nebraska and Texas), were enacted during 1967, influencing in some degree the negotiation trends in these states.

Some of the highlights of the comparison of data from the two surveys are:

- Number of school systems with agreements increased to 2,212 from 1,531 in 1966-67, up 44.5 percent.
- Instructional personnel employed in school systems with agreements raised to 909,976 from 648,322 last year, a gain of 40.4 percent.
- 34.8 percent of responding school systems in 1967-68 have negotiation agreements as compared to 25.0 percent in 1966-67.
- While 41.5 percent of the instructional staff in 1966-67 were employed in school systems with agreements, the comparable 1967-68 figure is 52.1 percent.
- The survey response rate increased from 85.4 percent last year to 88.8 percent this year.
- In the realm of national affiliation of local teacher organizations, the teacher representation by the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) increased by 38,433, while the teacher representation of the National Education Association increased by 201,844; the NEA increase was sufficiently large to raise its share of the total national teacher representation to 79.3 percent, from 77.7 percent.
- The Far West (California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Alaska, and Hawaii) continued as the geographical region with the largest share of instructional personnel employed in school systems with agreements at 87.1 percent, an increase from 81.7 percent last year, on a 1967-68 base of 256,262 personnel.

When comparing percents for the two years, one should be sure to take into account the fact that the base, e.g., personnel in systems with negotiation, for 1967-68 is considerably larger than that for 1966-67; in each table the base for computation of percents is indicated. Thus, a larger figure for 1967-68 may have a smaller percent than for 1966-67 because of the considerably larger base for the 1967-68 computations.

Data from the 1966-67 survey, reproduced here for comparison purposes, was originally published as follows:

Tables 6B and 7B provide data on the basis of geographical regions as established by the U.S. Bureau of the Census. The states comprising the eight regions are:

Northeast: Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont.

Mideast: Delaware, District of Columbia, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania.

Southeast: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia.

Great Lakes: Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin.

Plains: Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota.

Southwest: Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas.

Rocky Mountains: Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Wyoming.

Far West: Alaska, California, Hawaii, Nevada, Oregon, Washington.

Judicial Decisions, Opinions, and Statutes

STATE NEGOTIATION STATUTES

The new negotiation statute for Maryland, below, is in addition to those published in the April, May, and September, 1967, issues.

MARYLAND

AN ACT to repeal Section 175 of Article 77 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1965 Replacement Volume), title "Public Education," subtitle "Chapter 15, Teachers' Associations," regarding the promotion of teachers' associations by the county examiners, and to enact new Section 175 in lieu thereof, said new section to stand in the place of the section so repealed, providing for the designation of an employee organization as the exclusive representative of public school employees in a specified unit or units in the counties and in Baltimore City, where qualifying provisions are met, and for such representative to serve as negotiating agent for such employees; to provide for procedures in the event of impasse in negotiations between such agent and a public school employer; to prohibit strikes by employee organizations; and providing for the duties of certain state and local officials and agencies in relation to this act.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, that Section 175 of Article 77 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1965 Replacement Volume), title "Public Education," subtitle "Chapter 15, Teachers' Associations," be and it is hereby repealed, and that new Section 175 be and it is hereby enacted in lieu of the section so repealed and to read as follows:

(a) As used herein:

(1) "Employee organization" means any organization which includes certificated employees of a public school employer, and persons of equivalent status in Baltimore City, and which has as one of its primary purposes the representation of such employees in their relations with that public school employer.

(2) "Public school employer" means a county board of education or the Board of School Commissioners of Baltimore City.

(3) "Public school employees" means any certificated professional person employed by a public school employer, or any person of equivalent status in Baltimore City so employed, except the superintendent of schools and persons designated by the public school employer to act in a negotiating capacity as specified in subsection (h) (1) of this section.

(b) Public school employees shall have the right to form, join, and participate in the activities of employee organizations of their own choosing for the purpose of being represented as to all matters relating to salaries, wages, hours and other working conditions. An employee organization may establish reasonable restrictions regarding who may join and may make reasonable provisions for the dismissal of individuals from membership.

(c) Public school employees shall also have the right to refuse to join or participate in the activities of employee organizations.

(d) No later than June 15, 1968 in each county, and no later than June 15, 1969 in Baltimore City, the public school employer shall designate, as hereinafter provided, which, if any, employee organization shall be the exclusive representative of all public school employees in a specified unit in such county or Baltimore City. The determination of the composition of the unit shall be made by the public school employer in negotiation with those employee organizations which request negotiation thereon; provided, however, that in no event shall there be more than two units in any county or Baltimore City; and provided further that all public school employees shall be included in one of said units and shall be permitted all the rights granted herein.

(e) The designation of an exclusive representative shall be made upon the following bases:

(1) Where an employee organization certifies to the public school employer that it has a membership enrollment of at least thirty percent (30%) of the total number of public school employees in a specified unit in a county or Baltimore City, as of June 1 of the year in which certification is made, such certification shall constitute a request for recognition as exclusive representative of all public school employees in said unit in such county or Baltimore City.

(2) Thereafter, if any other employee organization certifies that it has a membership enrollment of at least ten percent (10%) of the total number of public school employees in such unit, as of said June 1, then, in such event, an election shall be held, in which the public school employees in such unit shall be offered a choice among each of said employee organizations as the exclusive representative of all public school employees in said unit or of no exclusive representation.

(3) If no other employee organization certifies that it has a membership enrollment of at least ten percent (10%) of the total number of public school employees in such unit, then, upon request by said employee organization described in subsection (1) hereof, an election shall be held wherein the ballot shall offer a choice between exclusive representation by such organization and no exclusive representation.

(4) If no other employee organization certifies that it has a membership enrollment of at least ten percent (10%) of the total number of public school employees in such unit, and no request for election is made as provided for in subsection (3) hereof, then, upon further certification by said employee organization described in subsection (1) hereof that it has a membership enrollment of the majority of the public school employees in such unit in said county or Baltimore City, in such event the public school employer shall designate said employee organization as the exclusive representative of all public school employees in said unit in such county or Baltimore City.

(5) The state board of education shall adopt reasonable rules and regulations for verifying the number of certificated employees (or persons of equivalent status in Baltimore City) of the public school employer who are members in good standing of an employee organization on the date of such certification or who may have signed a petition provided for herein. The state board of education shall adopt reasonable rules and regulations for the conduct of elections held hereunder and the certification of the results thereof, and it shall provide supervision of such elections. Such elections shall be conducted in each school facility where public school employees are assigned on a regularly scheduled school day, in a manner assuring the secrecy of the ballot, and all such elections shall be held on a regular working day for public school employees, between June 1 and June 15 inclusive, except that such an election shall not be held in Baltimore City in the year 1968. In all elections held hereunder, the employee organization receiving the largest number of votes cast in a unit shall be declared to be the exclusive representative of all public school employees in such unit; provided, however, that if the largest number of votes in said election is cast for no exclusive representation, then there shall be no representative designated for such unit. The public school employer shall provide such assistance as may be required in conducting said elections.

(f) The designation of an exclusive representative shall be for a minimum period of two years. Thereafter, such organization shall continue to serve as such exclusive representative until such time as another election is conducted. Subsequent elections may be held only after the expiration of the two-year period, upon petition, signed by more than twenty percent (20%) of the public school employees in said unit of said county or Baltimore City. All such elections shall be conducted in the same manner as provided heretofore, in Section (e) hereof. All signatures to a petition requesting subsequent elections must be obtained within ninety (90) days prior to said election date.

(g) An employee organization designated as an exclusive representative shall serve as the negotiating agent of all public school employees in the unit in such county or Baltimore City. An employee organization designated as exclusive representative of the employees in a unit must represent fairly and without discrimination all employees in the unit without regard to whether such employees are members of such employee organization.

(h) (1) A public school employer, or such representatives as it may designate, who shall not be less than two in number, shall meet and negotiate with two or more representatives of the employee organization so designated as the exclusive negotiating agent for the public school employees in a unit of said county or Baltimore City, upon request, with regard to all matters relating to salaries, wages, hours and other working conditions.

(2) The term "negotiate" as used herein shall include the duty to confer in good faith, at all reasonable times, and to reduce to writing the matters agreed upon as the result of such negotiations.

(3) The designation of such representatives by the employer as provided herein shall not preclude such employee organization from appearing before, or making proposals to the public school employer at any public meeting or hearing.

(i) If upon the request of either party the state superintendent of schools determines from the facts that an impasse is reached in negotiations between a public school employer and an employee organization designated as an exclusive negotiating agent, the assistance and advice of the State Board of Education may be requested, with the consent of both parties. In the absence of such consent, upon the request of either party, a panel shall be named to aid in the resolution of differences. Such panel shall contain three persons, one to be appointed by each party within three (3) days, and the third to be selected by the other two within ten (10) days from the date of said request. The State Board of Education, or the panel selected, shall meet with the parties to aid in the resolution of differences, and, if the matter is not otherwise resolved, shall make a written report and recommendation within thirty (30) days from the date of said request. Copies of such report shall be sent to representatives of both the public school employer and the employee organization. All costs of mediation shall be shared by the public school employer and the employee organization.

(j) Public school employers and employee organizations shall not interfere with, intimidate, restrain, coerce or discriminate against public school employees because of the exercise of their rights under subsections (b) and (c) hereof.

(k) Nothing contained herein shall be deemed to supersede other provisions of this Code and the rules and regulations of public school employers which may establish and regulate tenure. Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this section, the public school employer shall render the final determination as to all matters which have been the subject of negotiation, but this final determination shall still be subject to other provisions of this article concerning the fiscal relationship between the public school employer and the county commissioners, county council, or the mayor and council of Baltimore City.

(l) Employee organizations shall be prohibited from calling or directing a strike. If an employee organization designated as exclusive representative shall violate the provisions hereof, its designation as exclusive representative shall be revoked by the public school employer; and said employee organization and any other employee organization which violates any of the provisions hereof, shall be ineligible to be designated as exclusive representative for a period of two (2) years thereafter. If any employee organization violates the provisions hereof, the public school employer shall refrain from making payroll deductions for that organization's dues for a period of one (1) year thereafter.

(m) The enactment of this section shall not be construed so as to make the provisions of the Maryland Labor Laws contained in Articles 89 and 100 of this Code applicable to public school employment.

(n) If any provision of this section or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of the section which can be given effect without the invalid provisions or application; and to this end the provisions of this section are severable.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, that this Act shall take effect June 1, 1968.

STATE OF MICHIGAN

SUPREME COURT

SCHOOL DISTRICT FOR THE CITY OF HOLLAND, OTTAWA AND ALLEGAN COUNTIES, MICHIGAN, Plaintiff-Appellee,

v.

HOLLAND EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, WINONA PENNA, TED BOEVE, MARGARET DEPREE, DOROTHY BRADISH, BARBARA LAMPEN, DELLA BOWMAN, JOHN DOE AND MARY ROE,

Defendants-Appellants.

BEFORE THE ENTIRE BENCH

O'HARA, J.

Leave to appeal was granted in this case to review an order of the Court of Appeals.[1] The order denied a stay of proceedings previously granted and denied the prayer of the appellants to dissolve a temporary injunction. The order remanded the cause to the circuit court for hearing on the merits.

This is a chancery case. The constitutional provision (Const 1963, art 6, §5) abolishes the distinctions between law and equity proceedings. It did not abolish the historic difference between law and equity. We note this because it is as a Court of Equity we sit in the case at bar. In this, as in all other cases clearly in equity, we hear appeals de novo. The reason for this restatement of principle will appear decisionally later in our opinion.

In 1947, the legislature enacted what is generally referred to as the Hutchinson Act. CL 1948, §423.201 et seq., as amended by PA 1965, No 379 (Stat Ann 1960 Rev and Stat Ann 1968 Cum Supp §17.455 [1] et seq.).

We herewith set forth the title to the act as amended by PA 1965, No 379:

> An act to prohibit strikes by certain public employees; to provide review from disciplinary action with respect thereto; to provide for the mediation of grievances and the holding of elections; to declare and protect the rights and privileges of public employees; and to prescribe means of enforcement and penalties for the violation of the provisions of this act.

Its first section, as amended by PA 1965, No 379, defines a strike:

> As used in this act the word "strike" shall mean the concerted failure to report for duty, the wilful absence from one's position, the stoppage of work, or the abstinence in whole or in part from the full, faithful and proper performance of the duties of employment, for the purpose of inducing, influencing or coercing a change in the conditions, or compensation, or the rights, privileges or obligations of employment.

The second section specifies the employees affected:

> No person holding a position by appointment or employment in the government of the state of Michigan, or in the government of any 1 or more of the political subdivisions thereof, or in the public school service, or in any public or special district, or in the service of any authority, commission, or board, or in any other branch of the public service, hereinafter called a "public employee," shall strike.

In the late summer of 1967 the teachers in the School District for the City of Holland, Ottawa and Allegan Counties, acting through their duly certified collective bargaining agency, did not resume their teaching duties on the day set by the board of education. If they were employees within the meaning of the statute they were on strike as that term is defined in the statute.

The school district sought an injunction restraining the teachers from withholding their services. A hearing was held and the trial chancellor issued a temporary injunction. The Court of Appeals denied continuation of a stay order previously granted and the prayer to dissolve the injunction. We likewise denied a stay order and declined to dissolve the injunction but granted leave to appeal. The case is before us in that posture. Regrettably, we have a meager record, the pleadings, transcribed colloquies between court and counsel, and oral argument. To the extent possible, in order that our decision be precedentially meaningful, we will discuss those basic issues which relate to the legal concepts which we consider must govern, and will not limit ourselves to the narrow question of the propriety of the issuance of the temporary injunction.

We acknowledge the very thorough and helpful briefs of the parties and those filed amicus curiae.

The first argument to which we must address ourselves is the challenge to the constitutionality of the statute. Appellants contend it violates guarantees in both our Federal and the State constitutions. The constitutional rights claimed to be violated are those guaranteeing freedom of speech, assembly, freedom from involuntary servitude, and denial of equal protection of law. Appellants concede that the act has once been judicially declared free from constitutional infirmity. This Court so held in City of Detroit v. Division 26 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway & Motor Coach Employees of America (1952), 332 Mich 237. Appellants argue, however, that in the intervening years Federal Supreme Court decisions, notably Garrity v. New Jersey, 385 US 493, decided in 1967, have eroded the basis of this Court's decision in the Detroit public employees case.

We cannot agree. We are indeed mindful of the argument so vigorously advanced that public employees generally, and particularly teachers, are denied rights enjoyed by those in private employment to their prejudice. The wisdom and philosophy of the act in question is not ours to question. We do not hold here that limitations upon the right to strike by public employees could not be exercised by a legislature in an unconstitutional manner. We are concerned with our act and it alone. We do not read Garrity, supra, either directly or by implication to have overruled Detroit v. Association of Employees hereinbefore cited. Garrity concerned itself with the privilege against self-incrimination as against job forfeiture, a principle not involved herein. To hold our act flatly unconstitutional we would have to disregard our own precedent and the overwhelming weight of nationwide authority. We reaffirm the principle that within limitations not here relevant the sovereignty may deny to its employees the right to strike.

Next, it is argued that if the act be constitutional, as we have here held, it is inapplicable to appellants for 2 reasons; first, because appellants are not "employees" within the meaning of the act, and second, that as to teachers, injunctive relief may not be granted because an alternative exclusive remedy is to be found in the act.

We consider the first. The principal thrust of this argument is that, because no contracts of employment were in force between appellants and appellee school district at the time the injunction issued, the involved teachers cannot be employees as a matter of law. It is contended that the school code, specifically CLS 1961, §340.569, as amended by PA 1965, No 14 (Stat Ann 1968 Rev §15.3569), mandates such conclusion. Appellants refer to this argument as the "keystone issue." This position is supported by the Attorney General, a party hereto by our invitation. The issue divided us in disposing of the question of the dissolution of the temporary injunction and the continuance of a previously granted stay order thereof. It has been the subject of the most extensive briefing of any issue in the case, and was the focal point of appellants' forceful presentation on oral argument. We note all of the foregoing in order that the parties may be fully aware that we have given to it the fullest and most careful consideration. In finality, we have come to the conclusion that Garden City School District v. Labor Mediation Board, 358 Mich 258, of necessity must control. In that case the positions of the parties herein were reversed. In Garden City, the school board sought injunctive restraint against the State labor mediation board in its attempted mediation between teachers and the board. The school board challenged that jurisdiction, in part, on the ground that the school code required written contracts, and that the mediation board had no jurisdiction over the terms thereof. This Court said (pp 262, 263):

> Public school teachers are certainly persons "holding a position by appointment or employment * * * in the public school service."
> Appellant school board contends, however, that the provisions of the school code of 1955 (CLS 1956, §340.569 [Stat Ann 1959 Rev §15.3659]), by providing that teachers shall be hired by written contract, denies jurisdiction to the labor mediation board for mediation as to any terms which might be included in such contracts.
> The written contract provision was first adopted in 1927, and the legislature was certainly familiar with its requirements when it adopted PA 1947, No 336, which we have quoted. We read these 2 acts together as allowing mediation of salary disputes in advance of the determination of the salary provisions of individual teacher contracts. (Emphasis supplied.)

Since this Court concluded that there is jurisdiction to mediate grievances "in advance of the determination of salary provisions," it follows that such jurisdiction would necessarily attach in advance of the executing of the written contracts themselves, which are required in the case of teachers, by the School Code.

If teachers as we have held are subject to the provision of the Hutchinson Act dealing with the mediation grievances in advance of signing written contracts, we can hardly hold with consistency that they are not subject to the no-strike provision of the same act for the same reason. We are constrained to hold that appellants were "employees" within the terms of the act.

We next turn to the exclusivity of remedy argument. It is based on §6 of the act,2/ which provides:

> Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, any person holding such a position who, by concerted action with others, and without the lawful approval of his superior, wilfully absents himself from his position, or abstains in whole or in part from the full, faithful and proper performance of his duties for the purpose of inducing, influencing or coercing a change in the conditions or compensation, or the rights, privileges or obligations of employment shall be deemed to be on strike but the person, upon request, shall be entitled to a determination as to whether he did violate the provisions of this act. The request shall be filed in writing, with the officer or body having power to remove or discipline such employee, within 10 days after regular compensation of such employee has ceased or other discipline has been imposed. In the event of such request the officer or body shall within 10 days commence a proceeding for the determination of whether the provisions of this act have been violated by the public employee, in accordance with the law and regulations appropriate to a proceeding to remove the public employee. The proceedings shall be undertaken without unnecessary delay. The decision of the proceeding shall be made within 10 days. If the employee involved is held to have violated this law and his employment terminated or other discipline imposed, he shall have the right of review to the circuit court having jurisdiction of the parties, within 30 days from such decision, for determination whether such decision is supported by competent, material and substantial evidence on the whole record.

In this regard we find ourselves in harmony with the holding of the Court of Appeals:3/

> The claim of the defendants that §6 of the public employees relations act is the only remedy available to the school board cannot be accepted by this Court. Its provisions for discipline of striking public employees and review procedure for them cannot be interpreted to imply removing the historic power of courts to enjoin strikes by public employees. See 31 ALR 2d 1142 and the cases cited therein.

Additionally, we deem it necessary to observe that the whole section deals with after-the-fact remedies by the employee. The withholding of services and the cessation of compensation for services has had to have taken place before the section can operate. It must be said that appellants' position is eminently, indeed inexorably logical in this regard. The section cannot operate within a situation where injunctive restraint of the withholding of such service has already been granted. We would find ourselves in a complete logical self-contradiction if we were to hold as we have here that courts retain their jurisdiction to issue a restraining order against withholding of services by public employees, and at the same time hold §6 to be an exclusive remedy. The section seems to us to support the conclusion that the legislature intended that injunctive relief could be granted, but that courts are not required to grant it in every case involving a strike by public employees. To attempt to compel legislatively, a court of equity in every instance of a public employee strike to enjoin it would be to destroy the independence of the judicial branch of government.

3/ 7 Mich App 569, 574.

Having held that the Hutchinson act is without constitutional infirmity, that appellants are public employees and as such subject to its no-strike provisions, and that the courts have jurisdiction to restrain prohibited strikes by public employees, but are not required to do so in every case, we turn to the question of whether in the case at bar the chancellor had before him that quantum of proof or uncontradicted allegations of fact which would justify the issuance of an injunction in a labor dispute case.

We here hold it is insufficient merely to show that a concert of prohibited action by public employees has taken place and that ipso facto such a showing justifies injunctive relief. We so hold because it is basically contrary to public policy in this State to issue injunctions in labor disputes absent a showing of violence, irreparable injury, or breach of the peace. For a recent discussion of this question, see Cross Company v. UAW Local No. 155 (AFL-CIO), 371 Mich 184. We further so hold because such an interpretation of the act would as before noted raise a serious constitutional question.

We indicated earlier that we deal with a meager record. No testimony was taken on the hearing upon the application for the temporary injunction. Simply put, the only showing made to the chancellor was that if an injunction did not issue, the district's schools would not open, staffed by teachers on the date scheduled for such opening. We hold such showing insufficient to have justified the exercise of the plenary power of equity by the force of injunction. We are mindful of the exemplary conduct of the teachers when the writ, valid on its face, was issued. We are mindful, too, that the appellee district has cooperated by the maintenance of the previous year's schedule of payments to the teachers as was conceded in oral argument.

We recognize that great discretion is allowed the trial chancellor in the granting or withholding of injunctive relief. We do not, in ordinary circumstances, substitute our judgment for his. We hold here, however, that there was a lack of proof which would support the issuance of a temporary injunction.

The order of the Court of Appeals, affirming the circuit court is reversed. Hearing the matter as we do de novo, we dissolve the temporary injunction hereinbefore issued, and remand to the circuit court for further proceedings. We suggest that such proceedings inquire into whether, as charged by the defendants, the plaintiff school district has refused to bargain in good faith, whether an injunction should issue at all, and if so, on what terms and for what period in light of the whole record to be adduced. No costs, a public question.

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE AD HOC COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO RESOLVE THE IMPASSE IN NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN THE ROCHESTER BOARD OF EDUCATION AND THE ROCHESTER TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

Introduction

The current contract between the Rochester Board of Education and the Rochester Teachers Association expires on June 30, 1968. Negotiations for a renewal of the contract are currently at an impasse. Pursuant to the provisions of the existing contract, the Board and the RTA mutually selected the undersigned to serve as an "Ad Hoc Committee," empowered "to take whatever steps it deems necessary in order to assist the parties to resolve their differences."

On March 22, 1968, the Committee met with representatives of the Board and of the RTA to ascertain what role it could play in helping to resolve the impasse in negotiations. The Committee was then advised that the sole issue before it was the starting salary for teachers of the Rochester School District for the year 1968-69.

The Committee was informed that the opening demand of the RTA in the present negotiations was a starting salary of $7,500; that the only counter-offer of the Board was $6,500; and that the RTA subsequently responded to the Board's counter-offer by reducing its demand from $7,500 to $7,300. The Board representatives asserted that they had been advised by city officials that the city lacked sufficient funds from tax revenues and other sources to finance even the initial proposal of the Board--to wit $6,500--and that, accordingly, there was no alternative for the Board except to stand fast at its original figure.

With the sole issue of the starting salary before it, the Committee proceeded to hold a series of hearings and conferences during which it heard from the Board, the Superintendent of Schools, members of the negotiating teams of the Board and of the RTA, the City Manager, and other officials and knowledgeable Rochester citizens. In the course of these proceedings, the Committee was informed in considerable detail of the financial condition of the City and School District of Rochester. The Committee was also apprised of the problems of recruitment and retention of teachers, and of the trend of teacher salaries in Monroe County, in other areas of the State of New York, in the interstate geographic region which constitutes the "labor market" for the Rochester School District, and in other large cities across the country.

Findings and Recommendations

The Committee is confronted at the outset by the question of the criteria to be applied in determining and recommending a starting salary for the teachers of Rochester. If the "ability to pay" standard were to be accepted as the sole, or even primary, test, the consequences would be: (1) either Rochester would be unable to recruit and retain competent teachers or the teachers would be subsidizing, through the inadequacy of their salaries, a substantial part of the costs of public education in the Rochester School District; (2) the public officials responsible for the funding of public education in Rochester, including the School Board, the City Council, and county and state legislators, would be relieved of the political pressures they ought to bear.

Employees in the private sector who are aggrieved by the inadequacy of their compensation are permitted by law to engage in self-help through concerted activities--most especially the strike--to improve their lot. This right is denied to public employees in the State of New York (as elsewhere) by the Public Employees Fair Employment Act (the "Taylor Act"), which superseded the Condon-Wadlin Act on September 1, 1967. If the procedures of the new "Taylor Act" for the strikeless resolution of negotiating impasses in public employment are to achieve their goal, they must make available to aggrieved public employees an alternative means of bringing proper pressure to bear upon public officials. If public employees cannot obtain fair remuneration for their services through the impasse procedures provided by law, then strikes by public employees may become the rule, rather than the exception.

Accordingly, the Committee, while recognizing the fiscal plight of the City of Rochester, is not willing to impose the burden of that plight upon the teachers of the Rochester school system nor upon the students who will suffer if Rochester is unable to attract and retain qualified teachers.

The criterion which the Committee deems centrally relevant in making its recommendations as to the starting salary for Rochester teachers in the year 1968-69 is provided by the appropriate labor market. This labor market may be variously defined. In its narrowest definition it encompasses the 18 school districts of Monroe County. A bit more broadly defined, it encompasses the school districts of the State of New York. More broadly defined, it encompasses the school districts of the entire interstate geographic region in which Rochester is located.

Employing these market criteria the Committee finds that the starting salary for teachers in the Rochester School District for 1968-69 should be $6,800. The Committee so recommends.

The Committee makes this recommendation for the following reasons:

1. In the most immediately relevant labor market for school teachers--i.e., Monroe County--the Committee finds that a beginning salary of $6,800 is necessary to enable the Rochester School Board to compete successfully for a competent staff. In the Committee's judgment, Rochester should pay the top salaries for teachers in Monroe County. The reason for this is that teaching in an urban, as opposed to a suburban, school district is a more demanding and challenging responsibility. The $6,800 starting figure for Rochester teachers affords, in the Committee's judgment, a level which will permit Rochester to recruit the quality and quantity of teachers it needs.

2. Looking to a broader labor market--that of the State of New York generally--the Committee notes that the school board of the neighboring city of Buffalo has recently executed a contract with its teachers providing for a beginning salary of $6,800. Eastern portions of the state are reporting settlements at the same general level.

3. The current salary of $5,900 for beginning teachers in Rochester is $300 below the top two school districts in Monroe County and places Rochester currently 15th out of the 18 Monroe County districts in starting salary.

4. The "turnover" rate of teachers in the Rochester School District has increased from 15.5 percent in 1962-63 to 22.3 percent in 1966-67. This means that the District must recruit more than 500 teachers each year. As late as July of the past year 117 teaching positions remained unfilled for the school year beginning two months thereafter. Moreover, the percentage of males among the new teachers hired decreased from 27.2 percent in 1963-64 to 24.3 percent in 1967-68. The Committee believes that a beginning salary scale of $6,800 will reduce the high percentage of teachers who leave the school system each year, and help to attract more male teachers, who are needed particularly in the inner city schools.

An argument can be made, and indeed has been forcefully made by RTA representatives in the proceedings before the Committee, for a higher starting salary than $6,800. The Committee, however, has concluded that the latter figure will render Rochester competitive in the relevant labor market, without unduly worsening the city's already acute dilemma concerning the financial resources to provide necessary services.

The Fiscal Condition of the City of Rochester

The Committee has concluded that it would be remiss in discharging its responsibilities were it not to comment upon the fiscal dilemma of the City of Rochester. Two years ago, a similar Committee confronted by the same task as the present Committee made reference to the "dire straits of the City and of its dependent school district concerning revenue for essential public services." The 1966 Committee observed:

> It is no exaggeration to say that the Committee is appalled by what it has learned. In brief, the lesson is this: Rochester, a city with few peers in the matter of per capita income, is close to the point of inability to provide essential public services. This may come as a shock to those who have not had occasion to examine the fiscal facts of life in this community. The constitutional ceiling has been about reached with respect to real estate taxes. The City's share of the county sales tax has been dwindling because of the shift of population from city to other communities in the county and because of the population basis for the allocation of sales tax revenues among the municipalities of the county.
> The upshot of the foregoing developments has been to create an inequitable distribution of burden between city residents and out-county residents with respect to the services provided by the city. While the city remains the economic heartland of the county, the place where many non-city residents come daily to earn their livelihood, the city has lost a substantial amount of revenue by reason of the aforesaid population shift. The effect of this shift has been to create a double squeeze on city revenues. First, the loss of residents to the suburbs has adversely affected real estate values in the city, thus limiting the city's revenues from real estate taxes. Second, the loss of population to the suburbs has decreased the city's share of the county sales tax revenue under the present inequitable scheme of distribution of such revenue on a population basis.

The 1966 Committee closed its report by reiterating:

> In concluding, the Committee wishes to emphasize again the distressing fiscal crisis in which the city of Rochester finds itself. New revenues must be produced in order to permit the city to meet its mounting responsibilities, not only with respect to its schools, but also in the provision of other essential public services. The inequities in distribution of tax burden between residents of the city and of the surrounding suburbs, all of whom benefit from city services, must be confronted if decay of the city is not to proceed apace--a consequence of concern to all residents of Monroe County. It is ironic that in the midst of private affluence such public poverty should prevail.
> Lest it be misunderstood, the Committee wishes to make clear that it does not mean to attribute blame for the fiscal dilemma of Rochester to any public officials or agencies. The problems of Rochester are not peculiar to it, but are indeed shared by many other large metropolitan centers. These problems, however, can no longer be safely ignored.
> To the extent they are not dealt with, future blame will indeed be attributable to those possessed of the authority and responsibility for dealing with such matters.

The most charitable addendum the present Committee can add to the foregoing excerpts from the 1966 Committee reports is "Amen!" A more accurate addendum would note that the most significant change which the intervening two years have brought is that the situation is now considerably worse. The "future blame" referred to in the 1966 Committee's report is now present blame, and it must be shared by those public officials "possessed of the authority and responsibility for dealing with such matters."

The present Committee's investigation leads it to conclude that public officials at all levels of government must work to find new solutions to the fiscal problems of cities whose diminishing populations are called upon to provide expanding services to surrounding communities which depend upon the urban core for their livelihood and prosperity and which should therefore bear their fair share of the costs of maintaining the economic health of the parent city. This challenge is especially relevant to Monroe County which has long been proud of Rochester's reputation as the "Quality City." Since local industry depends so heavily upon a supply of highly skilled labor, the importance of a well-educated work force highlights the need for skilled and dedicated teachers in the urban center. The County of Monroe therefore has an obligation to adopt either a new formula for distribution of county sales tax revenue, or provide other forms of assistance for the revenue-starved city. Rochester similarly needs the support of state legislators in opening up new sources of tax revenue or other state aid. Rochester similarly needs, along with the other large cities of the nation, federal support and assistance.

It is not within the province of this Committee to detail the potential sources of financial plasma for this sick patient. The Committee calls attention, however, to the impending report of the Citizens Advisory Panel on Financing Public Education, a body of public-spirited citizens of Rochester who have been studying the possible sources of additional revenue for the Rochester School District at a depth and with a scope not available to this Committee, operating as it has under the pressures of an emergency impasse in collective negotiations and an April 15 deadline for the School Board's budget to be presented to the City Council.

Negotiation Agreements

AGREEMENT

BETWEEN THE

FRAMINGHAM (MASSACHUSETS) SCHOOL COMMITTEE

AND

FRAMINGHAM TEACHERS ASSOCIATION (NEA):

UNIT A - TEACHERS

UNIT B - ADMINISTRATORS

AGREEMENT

This AGREEMENT is made and entered into on this 14th day of February, 1967, by and between the FRAMINGHAM SCHOOL COMMITTEE (hereinafter referred to as the "Committee") and the FRAMINGHAM TEACHERS ASSOCIATION (hereinafter referred to as the "Association").

PREAMBLE

The Framingham School Committee and the Framingham Teachers' Association recognize that, in a democratic society, education must be a continuous evaluation and active promotion of all universal truths; that each child is entitled to an educational program designed to meet his specific educational needs; that each child is entitled to instruction by personnel professionally qualified and adequate in number in order that education of the highest quality may be the effective result; that more attention should be devoted to the constructive guidance of leisure-time and in-school time activities of students; that commensurate with quality education is the need for good morale within the teaching staff; that both the Committee and the Association view the consideration of matters of mutual concern as a joint responsibility.

ARTICLE I

RECOGNITION

A. The Committee recognizes the Association for the purpose of collective bargaining as the exclusive representative of a unit consisting of all professional teaching employees of the Framingham School System falling into any one of the following categories:

All classroom teachers or teachers of remedial or special education, including all department heads, professional guidance personnel serving pupils directly in a counseling capacity, work study program personnel, computer service personnel, the Art, Audio-Visual, Home Economics, Industrial Arts, Music, Physical Education Directors and Assistant Directors, school librarian and all Administrative Interns, but excluding substitute teachers and all other employees of the school department.

ARTICLE II

NEGOTIATION PROCEDURE

A. Not later than November 1 of the calendar year in the calendar year in which this Agreement expires, the Committee agrees to enter into negotiations with the Association over a successor agreement.

B. Any agreement reached with the Committee, will be reduced to writing, will be signed by the Committee and the Association, and will become an addendum to this Agreement.

ARTICLE III

GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE

A. A "grievance" is hereby defined to mean a dispute involving the meaning, interpretation, or application of this contract.

B. Failure at any step of this procedure to communicate the decision of a grievance within the specified time limits to the aggrieved employee and to the President of the Association shall permit the aggrieved party or parties to proceed to the next step.

C. Failure at any step of this procedure to appeal the grievance to the next step within the specified time limits shall be deemed to be acceptance of the decision rendered at that step.

D. No reprisals of any kind shall be taken by any party of this Contract against any party in interest, any witness, any member of the Personnel Committee of the Association, or any other participant in the grievance procedure by reason of such participation.

E. A grievance that affects a group or class of teachers from a different building or department, or is of a general nature, may be submitted in writing by the Association to the Superintendent directly and the processing of such grievance shall be commenced at Level Two.

F. If any employee covered by this contract shall present any grievance without representation by the Association, the disposition, if any, of the grievance shall be consistent with the provisions of this Contract. The Association shall be permitted to be heard at each level of the procedure under which the grievance shall be considered.

When a grievance arises, the grievance must be filed within ten (10) school days (or when school is not in session, fourteen (14) calendar days) from the day of the event upon which the grievance is based or from the date when the teacher had or should have had knowledge of the event.

Level One

A teacher with a grievance, shall with or without a building representative of the Association, present it to his immediate supervisor and/or the principal within (10) school days of the event on which the grievance is based. Any meeting with reference to the above shall be held during non-school hours.

Level Two

A. In the event that the grievance shall not have been disposed of to the satisfaction of the aggrieved employee at Level One, or in the event that no decision has been reached within ten (10) school days after presentation of the grievance to the immediate supervisor and/or principal, the grievance shall be reduced to writing and referred to the Superintendent of Schools within five (5) school days of the disposition under Level One.

B. The Superintendent shall represent the School Committee at this level of the grievance procedure. Within (10) school days after receipt of the written grievance by the Superintendent, he or his designee shall meet with the aggrieved employee and said President or his designee in an effort to settle the grievance.

Level Three

In the event that the grievance shall not have been disposed of at Level Two, or in the event that no decision has been rendered within ten (10) school days after the Level Two meeting, the grievance shall be referred in writing to the School Committee. At its next regular School Committee meeting or at a special meeting called for the purpose of considering the grievance, the School Committee shall meet with the Association in an effort to settle the grievance.

Level Four

A. In the event that the grievance shall not have been satisfactorily disposed of at Level Three, or in the event that no decision has been rendered within ten (10) school days after the Level Three meeting, the Association may refer in writing within ten (10) school days of the disposition under Level Three the unsettled grievance to arbitration. The Arbitrator shall be selected by agreement between the parties. If the parties are unable to agree upon an arbitrator, the selection shall be made by the American Arbitration Association, in accordance with its rules and regulations.

B. The arbitrator shall be without power or authority to modify or alter the terms of this contract.

C. The decision of the arbitrator shall be in writing and shall be rendered within thirty (30) days after the hearing is declared closed. This decision shall be final and binding on both parties.

D. The costs for the services of the arbitrator shall be borne equally by the School Committee and the Association.

ARTICLE IV

SALARIES

A. The salaries of all persons covered by this Agreement are set forth in Appendix "A" which is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

B. Definition of Degrees and Advanced Graduate Study:

1. Bachelor's Degree is defined as a baccalaureate degree earned at a college or university accredited by the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

2. Master's Degree is defined as a graduate degree earned at a college or university accredited by the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

3. Advanced Credit is defined as credits earned subsequent to receiving a master's degree at a college or university accredited by the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

ARTICLE V

SPECIALISTS AND SPECIAL PROGRAMS

A. The Committee and the Association recognize the fact that an adequate number of competent specialists is essential to the operation of an effective educational program. To this end, where practical and possible, the School Committee will strive not to reduce the number of specialists employed in the school system and where circumstances warrant, will strive to increase their number.

B. Where practical and possible the Junior and Senior High School Guidance Counsellors workload shall include the responsibility of not more than 300 students.

C. Where practical and possible, the workload of the Head Guidance Counsellors in the Secondary School shall not exceed sixty percent of that of the other members of the Guidance Department.

D. A joint Committee-Association subcommittee will be established as soon as practical to consider means of clarifying the assignments of specialists within the Framingham School System. The report of said subcommittee will be presented not later than April 1, 1967 for school committee consideration looking toward possible implementation for the 1967-68 school year.

ARTICLE VI

NON-TEACHING DUTIES

The Committee and the Association acknowledge that a teacher's primary responsibility is the total education of the children in his care.

A. 1. Assignment of teachers for non-teaching duties shall be on a reasonable basis.

2. Although teachers may be required to collect and transmit money to be used for educational purposes, they will not be held responsible for the loss of any money collected where such loss is not the fault of the teacher.

B. Teachers will not be required to drive pupils to activities which take place away from the school building. Teachers may do so voluntarily, however, with the advance approval of their principal or immediate supervisor. In such event, the teacher will be relieved of all personal liability for any accident which may occur in connection with said trip when such accident is not the result of negligence on the part of the teacher.

C. Volunteers will be solicited for the positions of class advisors, student council advisors, yearbook and newspaper business managers, and school treasurers. If there is no qualified volunteer for any of the above positions, a teacher may be appointed by the Superintendent or his designee to fill the position.

ARTICLE VII

TEACHER EMPLOYMENT

A. The Framingham School Committee reserves the right to grant salary credit for experience or specialized abilities other than actual teaching experience.

B. The granting of such credit must be recommended by the administration and must be voted by the Framingham School Committee.

C. A prospective teacher who has spent one (1) year or more in the service of his country and has an honorable discharge, may apply for extra salary credits. No more than two (2) salary credits shall be granted for military service. This shall not apply to anyone entering the System prior to the execution of this Agreement.

D. A prospective teacher who has had experience related to teaching or who possesses specialized abilities needed by the School System may apply for extra salary credit. No more than five (5) salary credits shall be granted under this classification and no more than one (1) year's credit shall be granted for each year's experience. Furthermore, C and D are exclusive. No candidate shall receive salary credits under both classifications.

E. Any teacher who receives extra salary credits under Section C and D above, must receive his teaching certificate within two (2) school years of his date of employment.

F. The granting of salary credits under C and D shall not place an individual above Step 10 on the salary schedule.

G. This policy shall become effective on the execution date of this Agreement, and shall not be applied retroactively. Any situations not following strictly the above regulations shall be reviewed by the Administration, and upon its recommendation brought to the School Committee for action.

ARTICLE VIII

CLASS SIZE

The School Committee and the Association recognize that class size is an important factor in good education and will whenever possible, subject to space availability and all other educational consideration, insure that class size is of the most effective nature for both teacher and pupil. However, the final decision as to class size will be made by the School Committee in the best interest of all.

ARTICLE IX

TEACHER ASSIGNMENT

A. Teachers will be notified in writing of their programs for the coming school year, including the schools to which they will be assigned, the grades and/or subjects that they will teach, and any special or unusual classes that they will have, as soon as practicable.

B. In order to assure that pupils are taught by teachers working within their areas of competence, teachers will not be assigned, except temporarily and for good cause, outside the scope of their teaching certificates and/or their major or minor fields of study.

C. To the extent possible, changes in grade assignment in the elementary schools and in subject assignment in the secondary schools, will be voluntary.

D. In arranging schedules for teachers who are assigned to more than one school, an effort will be made to limit the amount of inter-school travel. Such teachers will be notified of any changes in their schedules as soon as practicable. Teachers who are assigned to more than one school in any one school day will receive ten cents (10¢) per mile for all inter-school driving done by them, subject to the regulation currently in existence.

ARTICLE X

VACANCIES AND PROMOTIONS

A. Whenever any vacancy in a professional position occurs, including those outside the bargaining unit during the school year (September to June), it will be adequately publicized by the Superintendent by means of a notice placed on the Association bulletin board in every school as far in advance of the appointment as possible. During the months of July and August, written notice of any such vacancy will be given to the Association. In both situations, the qualifications for the position, its duties, and rate of compensation, will be clearly set forth.

B. All teachers will be given adequate opportunity to make application for such positions, and the committee agrees to give consideration to the professional background and other attainments of all applicants.

ARTICLE XI

POSITIONS IN SUMMER SCHOOL, EVENING SCHOOL AND UNDER FEDERAL PROGRAMS

A. All openings for summer school and evening school positions and for positions under Federal programs will be adequately publicized by the Superintendent in each school building as early as possible and teachers who have applied for such positions will be notified of the action taken regarding their applications as early as possible.

B. Positions in the Framingham summer school and evening school and positions under Federal programs will be to the extent possible, filled first by regularly appointed teachers in the Framingham School System where those teachers possess qualifications equal to those of candidates outside the school system.

C. All teachers will be given adequate opportunity to made application for these positions in summer school, evening school and under Federal programs. The Committee shall give consideration to the professional background and other attainments of all applicants.

ARTICLE XII

TEACHER EVALUATION

A. Supervision of teachers will be conducted professionally, openly and with full knowledge of the teacher. Teachers will be given a copy of any evaluation report prepared by their superiors and will have the right to discuss such report with their superiors.

B. 1. Teachers will have the right, upon written request to review the contents of their personnel file.

2. No material derogatory to a teacher's conduct, service, character or personality will be placed in his personnel file unless the teacher has had an opportunity to review the material. The teacher will acknowledge that he has had the opportunity to review the material by affixing his signature to the copy to be filed with the express understanding that such signature in no way indicates agreement with the contents thereof. The teacher will also have the right to submit a written answer to such material and his answer shall be reviewed by the Superintendent and attached to the file copy.

C. Any serious complaints regarding a teacher made to any member of the Administration by any parent, student, or other person will be promptly called to the attention of the teacher.

D. The Association recognizes the authority and responsibility of the principal for disciplining or reprimanding a teacher for delinquency of professional performance. If a teacher is to be disciplined or reprimanded by a member of the Administration above the level of the principal, however, he may request to have a representative of the Association present.

E. No teacher will be disciplined, reprimanded, reduced in rank or compensation or deprived of any professional advantage without just cause. Provided, however, that the right to discharge a nontenure teacher because of unsatisfactory work performance will be within the sole discretion of the Administration as will the determination as to what constitutes unsatisfactory work performance. Unsatisfactory work performance as used in this Article refers to those matters included in the teacher's personnel file.

F. The Committee reserves the right to set reasonable standards of behavior for teachers.

G. A joint Committee-Association subcommittee (consisting of three (3) members appointed by the Committee and three (3) members appointed by the Association, of which at least one must be a teacher and one an Administrator), will be established as soon as practicable to consider means of improving the procedures for the evaluation of teachers. The report of said subcommittee will be presented to the Committee and the Association not later than April 1, 1967.

ARTICLE XIII

TEACHER FACILITIES

Where practical and possible each school will have the following facilities:

1. Space in each classroom in which teachers may safely store instructional materials and supplies.

2. A teacher work area containing adequate equipment and supplies to aid in the preparation of instructional materials.

3. An appropriately furnished room, which will include a telephone, to be reserved for the exclusive use of the teachers as a faculty lounge. Said room will be in addition to the aforementioned teacher work area.

4. A serviceable desk and chair for the teacher in each classroom.

5. A communication system so that teachers can communicate with the main building office from their classroom.

6. A well-lighted and clean male teacher rest room and a well-lighted and clean female teacher rest room.

7. A separate, private dining area for the exclusive use of the professional staff.

8. An adequate portion of the parking lot reserved for teacher parking.

ARTICLE XIV

USE OF SCHOOL FACILITIES

A. 1. Upon making arrangements with the Director of Buildings and Grounds, the Association will have the right to use school buildings without cost at reasonable times for meetings. The Principal of the building in question will be notified in advance of the time and place of all such meetings.

2. Upon making arrangements with the Director of Buildings and Grounds, the Association will have the right to use the gymnasium and other athletic facilities and equipment at the high school without cost one (1) evening each week. The Principal of the building in question will be notified in advance of the time and place of all such meetings.

B. Where practical and possible, there will be one (1) bulletin board in each school building, which will be placed in the faculty lounge, for the purpose of displaying official Association notices, circulars and other material of a non-controversial nature. Copies of all such material will be given to the building principal, but his advance approval will not be required. If the principal objects to a particular bulletin, he will take the matter up with the Association.

C. Use of school facilities and equipment for Association use shall be freely granted within reasonable limits. The cost of any materials used will be borne by the Association.

D. No teacher will be prevented from wearing pins or other identification of membership in the Association or any other teacher organization.

ARTICLE XV

SICK LEAVE

The present sick leave policy will remain in effect.

ARTICLE XVI

TEMPORARY LEAVES OF ABSENCE

A. Death in the Immediate Family -- Full time employees shall be allowed a period of three (3) days absence without loss of pay each time there is a death in his immediate family. The immediate family is defined to include mother, father, sister, brother, child, spouse, mother-in-law and father-in-law.

B. Personal Reasons -- A full time employee may be allowed a total of three (3) days absence each calendar year without loss of pay for reasons approved by his principal. Said approval shall not be unreasonably withheld. Application for personal leave must be made at least twenty-four (24) hours before the taking of such leave except in the case of an emergency. The benefits of this paragraph shall not be utilized so as to extend a holiday or a vacation period.

ARTICLE XVII

EXTENDED LEAVES OF ABSENCE

A. The Committee agrees that up to three (3) teachers designated by the Association may, upon individual request to the school committee, be granted a leave of absence for up to two (2) years without pay for the purpose of engaging in Association (local, state or national) activities. The exercise of this discretion by the School Committee will be reasonable. Upon return from such leave a teacher will be considered as if he were actively employed by the Committee during the leave and will be placed on the salary schedule at the level he would have achieved if he had not been absent. An employee may be granted only one leave during his lifetime.

B. A leave of absence without pay of up to two (2) years will be granted to any teacher who joins the Peace Corps or serves as an exchange teacher, and is a full time participant in either of such programs. Upon return from such leave a teacher will be considered as if he were actively employed by the Committee during the leave and will be placed on the salary schedule at the level he would have achieved if he had not been absent.

C. Military leave will be granted to any teacher who is inducted or enlists in any branch of the armed forces of the United States. Upon return from such leave, a teacher will be placed on the salary schedule at the level which he would have achieved had he remained actively employed in the system during the period of his absence up to a maximum of two (2) years.

D. A leave of absence without pay or increment of up to one (1) year may be granted at the discretion of the School Committee for the purpose of caring for a sick member of the teacher's immediate family. The exercise of such discretion will be reasonable. Additional leave may be granted at the sole discretion of the Committee.

E. The Committee may grant a leave of absence without pay or increment to any teacher to campaign for, or serve in a public office. The exercise of this discretion will be reasonable.

F. After five (5) years continuous employment in the Framingham School System, a teacher may be granted a leave of absence, without pay, for up to one (1) year for health reasons. Requests for such leave will be supported by appropriate medical evidence. The exercise of this discretion will be reasonable.

G. Any teacher whose personal illness extends beyond the period compensated will be granted a leave of absence for such time as is necessary for complete recovery from such illness.

H. Other leaves of absence without pay may be granted by the Committee.

I. All benefits to which a teacher was entitled at the time his leave of absence commenced, including unused accumulated sick leave, will be restored to him upon his return, and he will be assigned to the same position, or one substantially equivalent to one he held at the time said leave commenced.

J. All requests for extensions or renewals of leaves will be applied for and granted in writing.

ARTICLE XVIII

SABBATICAL LEAVES

The present policy with respect to sabbatical leaves will remain in effect, except that no more than one percent (1%) of the teachers will be permitted to be on sabbatical leave at one time.

ARTICLE XIX

PROTECTION

A. Teachers will immediately report all cases of abusive conduct and/or torts suffered by them in connection with their employment to the Superintendent of Schools in writing.

B. This report will be forwarded to the Committee which will comply with any reasonable request from the teacher for information in its possession relating to the incident or the persons involved, and will act in appropriate ways as liaison between the teacher, the police and the courts. In addition any student involved in such an assault will be promptly and properly disciplined after the responsibility has been established.

C. If criminal or civil proceedings are brought against a teacher alleging that he committed an assault in connection with his employment, the Committee may furnish legal counsel to defend him in such proceedings if he requests such assistance. If the Committee does not provide such counsel and the teacher is exonerated, then the Committee will reimburse the teacher for reasonable counsel fees incurred by him.

ARTICLE XX

CURRICULUM REVISION

There may be a voluntary curriculum revision program each summer under the direction of the Superintendent, the purpose of the program to study needed curriculum revision.

ARTICLE XXI

DUES DEDUCTION

A. The Committee agrees to deduct from the salaries of its employees dues for the Framingham Teachers Association - Massachusetts Teachers Association or the National Education Association, or any one of such Associations as said teachers individually and voluntarily authorize the Committee to deduct, and to transmit the monies promptly to such Association or Associations. Teacher authorizations will be in writing in the form set forth below:

DUES AUTHORIZATION CARD

Name .....

Address .....

I hereby request and authorize the ..... School Committee to deduct from my earnings and transmit to the Associations checked below an amount sufficient to provide for regular payment of the membership dues as certified by such Association in equal monthly payments over the remainder of the school year and for succeeding school years. I understand that the Committee will discontinue such deductions for any school year only if I notify the Committee in writing to do so not later than thirty (30) days prior to the commencement of the school year. I hereby waive all right and claim for said monies so deducted and transmitted in accordance with this authorization, and relieve the School Committee and all its officers from any liability therefor.

Teacher Organization:

Framingham Teachers Association .....

Massachusetts Teachers Association .....

National Education Association .....

Dated: .....

Signature of teacher .....

B. Each of the Associations named in Section A above will certify to the Committee in writing the current rate of its membership dues. Any Association which will change the rate of its membership dues will give the Committee thirty (30) days written notice prior to the effective date of such change.

C. No later than September 30 of each year, the Committee will provide the Association with a list of those employees who have voluntarily authorized the Committee to deduct dues for any of the Associations named in Section A above. The Committee will notify the Association four times a year of any changes in said list.

D. The Association shall indemnify and save the Committee and/or the town harmless against all claims, demands, suits, or other forms of liability, which may arise by reason of any action taken in making deductions and remitting the same to the Association pursuant to this Article.

ARTICLE XXII

WORKLOAD

A. The current practice with respect to work year, vacation periods, hours and workload for teachers will remain in effect during the life of this Agreement unless there is good justification for a change; provided that nothing in this Article shall be construed to limit the right of the School Committee to determine the length of the school year or the school day.

B. A committee composed of two members appointed by the Association and two members appointed by the School Committee, shall be established to study special workload problems and to recommend appropriate changes, if any, to the School Committee for its consideration.

ARTICLE XXIII

LUNCH BREAK

Wherever practical and possible teachers will be given a duty free luncheon break of thirty (30) minutes.

ARTICLE XXIV

ON THE JOB INJURY

All teachers will be covered by workmen's compensation. A teacher who is collecting workmen's compensation may use accumulated sick leave to make up the difference, if any, between the teacher's regular pay and the workmen's compensation payments allocated to lost time.

ARTICLE XXV

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

The Association in consultation with the Administration will propose the implementation of a special educational program for students, such proposal to be made to the School Committee by September 15, 1967.

ARTICLE XXVI

GENERAL

A. There will be no reprisals of any kind taken against any teacher by reason of his membership or non-membership in the Association or participation or lack of participation in its activities.

B. The Committee agrees to deduct from teachers' salaries money for NEA and/or MTA services and programs as said teachers individually and voluntarily authorize the Committee to deduct and to transmit the monies promptly to such Association or Associations. It is expressly understood that any deductions which a teacher may authorize the Committee to make from his earnings will be deducted in monthly installments.

C. There shall be a Faculty Advisory Committee established in each building where internal problems may be discussed. The recommendation of the Faculty Advisory Committee must be given serious consideration by the respective principals.

D. The Committee will, upon request, provide the Association with any documents which will assist the Association in developing intelligent, accurate, informed and constructive programs on behalf of the teachers and their students.

E. A copy of the official agenda of School Committee meetings will be given to the Association in advance of the meeting and a record of all actions taken will be given to the Association after that record has been approved.

F. If any provision of this Agreement or any application of the Agreement to any employee or group of employees shall be found contrary to law, then such provision or application shall not be deemed valid and subsisting, except to the extent permitted by law, but all other provisions or applications will continue in full force and effect.

ARTICLE XXVII

NO STRIKE

The Association agrees that they will not cause, condone, or sanction or take part in any strike, walkout, slowdown or work stoppage.

The Association and its members, individually and collectively agree that if there is a violation of this clause any or all teachers violating this clause will at the discretion of the Committee be subject to disciplinary action, including discharge, suspension or complete loss of seniority, and the matter shall not be arbitrable.

ARTICLE XXVIII

TRANSFERS

Although the Committee and Association recognize that some transfer of teachers from one school to another is unavoidable, they also recognize that frequent transfer of teachers is disruptive of the educational process and interferes with optimum teacher performance. Therefore, they agree as follows:

A. When a reduction in the number of teachers in a school is necessary, volunteers will be transferred first.

B. When involuntary transfers are necessary, a teacher's area of competence, major and/or minor field of study, quality of teaching performance, and length of service in the Framingham School System will be considered in determining which teacher is to be transferred. Teachers being involuntarily transferred will be transferred only to a comparable position.

An involuntary transfer will be made only after a meeting between the teacher involved and the Superintendent (or his designee), at which time the teacher will be notified of the reasons for the transfer.

C. A list of open positions in other schools will be made available to all teachers being transferred. The School Committee in making involuntary transfers will give consideration to the professional background and other attainments of the teacher.

D. Notice of transfer will be given to teachers as soon as practicable and under normal circumstances not later than June 1.

E. Teachers desiring a transfer will submit a written request to the Superintendent stating the assignment preferred. Such requests must be submitted between September 1 and June 1 of each school year to be considered for next school year. Requests must be renewed each year. All requests will be acknowledged in writing.

F. Before a teacher is assigned or transferred to a particular school, the principal of the school in question will be consulted regarding said assignment or transfer.

ARTICLE XXIX

SCHOOL COMMITTEE RIGHTS

Nothing in this Agreement shall be deemed to derogate from or impair any power, right or duty heretofore possessed by the School Committee except where such right, power or duty is specifically limited by this contract.

ARTICLE XXX

The Association and the Committee agree that each has had a right to bargain for any provision that they wished in this contract and each expressly waives the right to reopen the contract for any further demands or proposals and that the present contract constitutes a complete agreement on all matters and that if other proposals have been made, they have been withdrawn in consideration of the Agreement.

ARTICLE XXXI

DURATION

The provisions of this Agreement will be effective as of February 14, 1967 and will continue and remain in full force and effect through December 31, 1967, and shall be automatically renewed from year to year thereafter unless at least sixty (60) days prior to the expiration date either party notifies the other in writing of its desire to terminate this Agreement.

SALARY REQUIREMENTS

1. Teachers who accumulate in accordance with Committee regulations from an accredited institution 15 semester hours beyond an earned Master's degree shall be paid an additional $200 which shall be added to any step on the Master's schedule.

2. Teachers who accumulate in accordance with Committee regulations from an accredited institution 30 semester hours beyond an earned Master's degree shall be paid an additional $400 which shall be added to any step on the Master's schedule.

3. Teachers who have an earned doctorate from an accredited institution shall be paid an additional $900 which shall be added to any step on the Master's schedule.

4. The Committee reserves the right to withhold increments and adjustments for those teachers who do not receive from their superiors favorable recommendations for such increases.

SPECIFIC REQUIREMENTS

1. All degrees recognized for salary credit on this schedule shall be obtained from an accredited institution.

2. In order to progress from Level I to Level II, a teacher must receive a favorable recommendation from his superiors.

3. In order to progress from Level II to Level III, a teacher must present evidence of the successful completion of six semester credits for courses previously approved by the Associate Superintendent of Schools. Three credits must be in the teacher's subject matter area; three credits may be in the field of general education. These courses must have been taken as the teacher progressed through the steps of Level II of the salary schedule. The only exception to the subject matter course requirements shall be for those people who have been accepted in an advanced degree program.

4. In order to progress from Level III to Level IV, a teacher must present evidence of the successful completion of six semester credits for courses previously approved by the Associate Superintendent of Schools. Three credits must be in the teacher's subject matter area; three credits may be in the field of general education. These courses must have been taken as the teacher progressed through the steps of Level III of the salary schedule. The only exception to the subject matter course requirements shall be for those people who have been accepted in an advanced degree program.

5. Step 10 on the Master's scale has three parts: The master's maximum shall be $10,400. For those people who have a master's plus 15 hours, their maximum shall be $10,600. For those people who have a master's degree plus 30 semester hours, their maximum shall be $10,800. The $200 for 15 semester hours beyond the master's, and the $400 for the 30 semester hours beyond the master's may be applied at any step on the master's salary schedule. For people who expect to be re-rated to these levels, 9 out of 15, and 18 out of 30 of the semester hours at the respective levels must be in the subject matter area of the teacher concerned. These courses must have the previous approval of the Associate Superintendent of Schools.

6. In order to be eligible to move to Level V a teacher must have achieved a master's degree plus thirty hours and have reached the tenth step in the master's schedule. In order to move to Level V a teacher must present evidence of the successful completion of six semester credits for courses taken within a three-year period after having reached the tenth step on the master's schedule plus thirty hours. These courses must have been previously approved by the Associate Superintendent of Schools. Three credits must be in the teacher's subject matter area; and three credits may be in the field of general education. The only exception to the subject matter course requirements shall be for those people who have been accepted in a doctorate program.

AGREEMENT

BETWEEN THE

FRAMINGHAM (MASSACHUSETTS) SCHOOL COMMITTEE

AND

FRAMINGHAM TEACHERS ASSOCIATION (NEA):

UNIT A: TEACHERS

UNIT B - ADMINISTRATORS

AGREEMENT

This AGREEMENT is made and entered into on this third day of March, 1967, by and between the FRAMINGHAM SCHOOL COMMITTEE (hereinafter referred to as the "Committee") and the FRAMINGHAM TEACHERS ASSOCIATION, UNIT "B" (hereinafter referred to as the "Administrators").

PREAMBLE

The School Committee of the Town of Framingham and Unit "B" of the Framingham Teachers Association recognize that the development of educational programs of the highest quality, for the benefit of the students and the town, is a common responsibility which can be best attained when each group utilizes the ability, experience, creativity and judgment of the other.

It is hoped that the consultation begun through professional negotiations will continue throughout the school year and that such dialogue will contribute to the betterment of public education in the Town of Framingham.

ARTICLE I

RECOGNITION

The Framingham School Committee recognizes Unit "B" of the Framingham Teachers Association as the exclusive representative of a unit consisting of:

All principals, vice principals and those directors and assistant directors, not included in Unit "A" excluding all other employees of the school department.

ARTICLE II

NEGOTIATION PROCEDURE

Section A. Not later than November 1 of the calendar year in which this Agreement expires, the Committee agrees to enter into negotiations with the Administrators over a successor Agreement.

Section B. The Committee agrees not to negotiate with any Administrators' organization other than Unit "B" of the Framingham Teachers' Association, so designated as the exclusive bargaining agent pursuant to Chapter 763. The Committee further agrees not to negotiate with any teachers' organization other than the Association in regard to changes in wages, hours or other conditions of employment to become effective during the term of this Agreement.

GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE

Section A. A "grievance" is hereby defined to mean a complaint by an Administrator or a group of Administrators based on an alleged violation of this Agreement, or a dispute involving the meaning, interpretation or application thereof.

Section B. Failure at any step of this procedure to communicate the decisions of a grievance within the specified time limits to the aggrieved employee and to the Chairman of the Professional Negotiation Committee shall permit the aggrieved party or parties to proceed to the next step.

Section C. Failure at any step of this procedure to appeal the grievance to the next step within the specified time limits shall be deemed to be acceptance of the decision rendered at that step.

Section D. A grievance that affects a group or class of administrators or is of a general nature, may be submitted in writing to the superintendent directly and the processing of such grievance shall be commenced at Level Two.

Section E. If any employee covered by this Agreement shall present any grievance without representation by the Administrators, the disposition, if any, of the grievance shall be consistent with the provision of this Agreement. The Administrators shall be permitted, if they so request, to be heard at each level of the procedure under which the grievance shall be considered.

Section F.

Level One

An informal settlement between the Administrator and his immediate superior will be attempted.

Level Two

An Administrator with a grievance, with or without the Chairman of the Professional Negotiation Committee, shall present the grievance to his immediate superior in writing within ten (10) school days of the occurrence of the event upon which the grievance is based.

Level Three

A. In the event that the grievance shall not have been disposed of to the satisfaction of the aggrieved employee at Level Two, or in the event that no decision has been reached within ten (10) school days after presentation of the grievance to the immediate superior, the grievance shall within ten (10) school days be referred to the Superintendent of Schools.

B. The Superintendent or his designee shall represent the Committee at this Level of the grievance procedure. Within ten (10) school days after receipt of the written grievance by the Superintendent, he shall meet with the aggrieved employee and the said Chairman in an effort to settle the grievance.

Level Four

In the event that the grievance shall not have been disposed of at Level Three or in the event that the grievance shall not have been rendered within ten (10) school days after the Level Three meeting, the grievance shall be referred in writing to the Committee. Within ten (10) school days thereafter, the Committee shall meet with the Professional Negotiating Committee in an effort to settle the grievance.

Level Five

In the event that the grievance shall not have been satisfactorily disposed of at Level Four, or in the event that no decision has been rendered within ten (10) school days after the Level Four meeting, the Administrators may within ten (10) school days refer the unsettled grievance to arbitration. The Arbitrator shall be selected by agreement between the parties. If the parties are unable to agree upon an Arbitrator, the selection shall be made by the American Arbitration Association, in accordance with its rules and regulations.

The Arbitrator shall be without power or authority to make any decisions either prohibited by law or to add to, alter or modify this Agreement.

The decision of the Arbitrator shall be in writing and shall set forth his findings of fact, reasoning and conclusions of the issues submitted. This decision shall be final and binding on the parties.

The costs for the services of the Arbitrator shall be borne equally by the Committee and the Administrators.

Section G. All grievance meetings excluding arbitration hearings shall be held when school is not in session.

ARTICLE IV

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

It is recognized that the proper performance of administrative duties will normally require Administrators to work longer than the school day and longer than the normal school year as established by the school committee.

The current policy in regard to service or days when school is not in session will continue, unless there is good justification for a change.

ARTICLE V

VACANCIES, PROMOTIONS AND TRANSFERS

Where practical and possible, known administrative vacancies, such as those caused by retirement, by the creation of a new position or by the building of a new school, should be published widely. Qualifications, duties and compensation should be clearly stated in the published material. Except in cases of emergency, appointments to these positions will be made a minimum of thirty (30) days previous to the date that the appointment is to become effective.

The Committee agrees to give consideration to the professional background and qualifications when Administrators from within the system apply for another administrative opening.

An Administrative Board to consist of one (1) Central Office Administrator, one (1) Elementary Administrator and one (1) Secondary Administrator shall be organized to advise and assist the Superintendent of Schools and the Committee in reviewing applications for Administrative vacancies, provided that the final decision shall be made by the Superintendent and the School Committee.

Transfers

Although the Committee and the Administrators recognize that some transfer of Administrators from one school to another is unavoidable, they also recognize that frequent transfer is disruptive of the educational process and interferes with optimum performance.

Therefore, they agree as follows:

A. When feasible, volunteers will be transferred first.

B. When involuntary transfers are necessary, an Administrator's professional background and other qualifications will be considered in determining which Administrator is to be transferred. Administrators being involuntarily transferred will be transferred where possible to a comparable position.

An involuntary transfer will be made only after a meeting between the Administrator involved and the Superintendent or his designee at which time the Administrator will be notified of the reasons for the transfer.

C. Notice of transfer will be given to Administrators as soon as practicable and under normal circumstances not later than June 1.

D. Administrators desiring a transfer will submit a written request to the Superintendent stating the assignment preferred. Such request must be submitted between September 1 and June 1 of each school year to be considered for the next school year.

SABBATICAL LEAVES

The present policy with respect to sabbatical leaves will remain in effect, except that no more than two Administrators will be permitted to be on sabbatical leave at one time.

ARTICLE VII

LEAVES OF ABSENCE
FOR NON-SABBATICAL PURPOSES

Section A. Death in Immediate Family:

1. A full time Administrator shall be allowed a period of three (3) days absence with full pay each time there is a death in his immediate family.

2. The immediate family is defined to include mother, father, sister, brother, child, wife, husband, mother-in-law and father-in-law, or members of the immediate household.

Section B. Each full time Administrator shall be allowed a total of three (3) days absence each calendar year with full pay for reasons approved by the Superintendent. Reasons for such leave are to be given and where possible, submitted at least forty-eight (48) hours in advance.

Section C. Administrators absent from duty with prior Committee approval for reasons other than those previously stated shall receive full pay during their absence.

Section D. Administrators absent due to quarantine by authorized persons shall not have such absence considered as sick leave, or as personal days, and shall receive full pay.

Section E. Administrators will be entitled to temporary leave of absence with pay for time necessary for appearance in legal proceedings connected with the Administrator's employment including arbitration hearings.

ARTICLE VIII

SALARY

The present salary and ratio structure (see Appendix A) will remain in effect pending the report of the study committee agreed upon in Article 13.

ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE

When a revision in the administrative structure such as the creation of a new position or a substantial change in duties of an existing position is contemplated by the school committee, a representative of the Administrators will be given the opportunity to advise the Superintendent relative to such revision, provided that the above shall not be subject to the grievance or arbitration procedure.

ARTICLE X

SICK LEAVE

1. An indefinite number of days may be accumulated.

2. Cumulation to begin as of the date of the Administrator's service in the School Department, and at the rate of one day per month of the Administrator's year until the beginning of the next calendar year. Thus, the number of days will vary from 10.5 to 11.

3. Beginning the first calendar year after the date of employment, 10.5 or 11 days will be added to any unused cumulation, and such a process will continue indefinitely.

4. Sick leave deductions will be made from the cumulation if payment has been made to the individual during his absence. Otherwise, no deduction will be made from the individual's cumulation.

5. The Committee has established a "borrowing" policy which involves the following conditions:

a. If an individual is out of service beyond his cumulation, at any period in his service, and wishes to petition the School Committee through the Superintendent for extra days, the School Committee reserves the right to grant such a petition up to 15 days, with the understanding that the individual shall repay by services the number of days that have been granted.

b. If an individual resigns from the Department and has on his record "borrowing" time, then a financial deduction will be taken before the final payment period.

6. The implementation of the indefinite accumulation shall start as of January 1, 1966.

7. In the event that illness of an employee extends beyond the period of five (5) consecutive school days, the Superintendent of Schools may require a doctor's certificate as to the nature of the illness, the condition of the employee, and the ability of the employee to resume work.

8. Except as provided above, sick leave provisions presently in effect will continue.

ARTICLE XI

PROTECTION

Section A. Administrators shall immediately report to their Superintendent in writing all cases involving abusive conduct and/or torts suffered by them in connection with their employment.

Section B. This report will be forwarded to the Committee which will comply with any reasonable request from the Administrator for information in its possession relating to the incident or the persons involved, and will act in appropriate ways as liaison between the Administrator, the police and the courts. In addition, any student involved in such an assault will be promptly disciplined after the responsibility has been established.

Section C. If criminal or civil proceedings are brought against an Administrator alleging that he committed an assault in connection with his employment, the Committee may furnish legal counsel to defend him in such proceedings if he requests such assistance. If the Committee does not provide such counsel and the Administrator is exonerated, then the Committee will reimburse the Administrator for reasonable counsel fees incurred by him.

Section D. All Administrators will be covered by workmen's compensation. An Administrator who is collecting workmen's compensation may use accumulated sick leave to make up the difference, if any, between the Administrator's regular pay and the workmen's compensation payments allocated to lost time.

Section E. Any Administrator whose personal illness extends beyond the period compensated will be granted a leave of absence for such time as is necessary for complete recovery up to one (1) year. The School Committee at its discretion may extend this period.

Section F. Although Administrators may be required to collect and transmit money to be used for educational purposes, they will not be held responsible for the loss of any money collected where such loss is not the fault of the Administrator.

ARTICLE XII

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT AND EDUCATIONAL IMPROVEMENT

Section A. The Committee will pay the reasonable expenses (including fees, meals, lodging and/or transportation) incurred by Administrators who attend local and out of town workshops, seminars, conferences or other professional improvement sessions at the request and/or with the advance approval of their immediate superior and the Superintendent of Schools.

Section B. Junior High School Principals will have the option of attending the National Principals Convention or the Long Group.

ARTICLE XIII

STUDY COMMITTEE

The ratio structure is based on job specifications and responsibilities. A committee of five (5) members will investigate the cost and feasibility of an in-depth assessment of the Framingham Administrative Organization by a professional evaluation agency or university. This Committee will be composed of two (2) members appointed by the School Committee, two (2) members of the Administrators and the Superintendent of Schools. Said five (5) members committee shall file a report on the cost and feasibility of such an in-depth assessment by June 1, 1967 for the School Committee's consideration.

GENERAL

Section A. Subject to the provisions of this Agreement, the wages, hours and other significant conditions of employment applicable on the effective date of this Agreement to the Administrators covered by this Agreement shall continue to be so applicable unless there is good justification for a change. Before any such change is made, it will be discussed with the Administrators.

Section B. Administrators will be allowed to live in a community of their choice.

Section C. If any provision of this Agreement is or shall at any time be contrary to law, then such provision shall not be applicable or performed or enforced, except to the extent permitted by law and substitute action shall be subject to appropriate consultation and negotiation. Even though one or more contract items are, or at any time become, contrary to law, all other provisions of this Agreement shall continue in effect.

Section D. No non-tenure Administrator will be disciplined without just cause, provided that the determination of what constitutes satisfactory work performance will be within the School Committee's sole discretion.

Section E. The determination of what constitutes satisfactory work performance for a non-tenure administrator will be within the sole discretion of the School Committee. The School Committee agrees that such discretion will not be unreasonably exercised.

ARTICLE XV

DUES DEDUCTION

Section A. The Committee agrees to deduct from the salaries of its employees dues for the Framingham Teachers Association - Massachusetts Teachers Association or the National Education Association, or any one of such Associations as said Administrators individually and voluntarily authorize the Committee to deduct, and to transmit the monies promptly to such Association or Associations. Administrator authorizations will be in writing in the form set forth below:

Name .....

Address .....

I hereby request and authorize the Framingham School Committee to deduct from my earnings and transmit to the Association checked below an amount sufficient to provide for regular payment of the membership dues as certified by such Association in equal monthly payments over the remainder of the school year and for succeeding school years. I understand that the Committee will discontinue such deduction for any school year only if I notify the Committee in writing to do so not later than thirty (30) days prior to the commencement of the school year. I hereby waive all right and claim for said monies so deducted and transmitted in accordance with this authorization, and relieve the School Committee and all of its officers from any liability therefor.

Teacher Organization:

Framingham Teachers Association .....

Massachusetts Teachers Association .....

National Education Association .....

Administrator's Signature .....

Dated: .....

Section B. Each of the Associations named in Section A above will certify to the Committee in writing the current rate of its membership dues. Any Association which will change the rate of its membership dues will give the Committee thirty (30) days written notice prior to the effective date of such change.

Section C. No later than September 30 of each year, the Committee will provide the Association with a list of those employees who have voluntarily authorized the Committee to deduct dues for any of the Associations named in Section A above. The Committee will notify the Association four times yearly of any changes in said list.

Section D. The Association shall indemnify and save the Committee and/or the town harmless against all claims, demands, suits, or other forms of liability, which may arise by reason of any action taken in making deductions and remitting the same to the Association pursuant to this Article.

ARTICLE XVI

NO STRIKE

The Association agrees that they will not cause, condone, sanction or take part in any strike, walkout, slowdown or work stoppage.

The Association and its members, individually and collectively agree that if there is a violation of this clause any or all Administrators violating this clause will at the discretion of the Committee, be subject to disciplinary action, including discharge, suspension or complete loss of seniority, and the matter shall not be arbitrable.

ARTICLE XVII

SCHOOL COMMITTEE RIGHTS

Nothing in this Agreement shall be deemed to derogate from or impair any power, right or duty heretofore possessed by the School Committee except where such right, power or duty is specifically limited by this contract.

ARTICLE XVIII

WAIVER

The Administrators and the Committee agree that each has had a right to bargain for any provision that they wished in this contract and each expressly waives the right to reopen the contract for any further demands or proposals and that the present contract constitutes a complete agreement on all matters and that if other proposals have been made, they have been withdrawn in consideration of this Agreement.

DURATION

The provisions of this Agreement will be effective as of March 3, 1967 and will continue and remain in full force and effect through December 31, 1967, and shall be automatically renewed from year to year thereafter unless at least sixty (60) days prior to the expiration date either party notifies the other in writing of its desire to terminate this Agreement.

LISTING OF 1967-68 AGREEMENTS

The listing of over 2,200 negotiation agreements on the pages which follow provides a very valuable compendium indicating those school systems where a teacher/school board negotiation agreement is known to exist for 1967-68. Each agreement listed received positive validation for the year, and is available (in copied form) from the NEA Research Division for the use of educators, researchers, and interested persons. (See below.)

Each school system listed is followed by its location, the recognized organization(s), number of instructional personnel in the system, national affiliation of the organization(s) listed, type of negotiation conducted where more than one organization is listed, and the year(s) for which the agreement has been on file. In the case of school systems having more than one recognized organization, the following rules have been applied:

1. Where two or more separate agreements are utilized by a school system for different units, a listing for the school system and each recognized organization is provided. In this case, it is understood that separate negotiation is conducted with each organization.

2. If two or more organizations are recognized under the same agreement, 2 ORGANZTNS RECOGNIZED (or the correct number) is listed in place of the organization name, followed by the number of instructional staff in the system, the affiliated national organization(s) representing the personnel in the system, and either JNP, JNE, or SN, plus the year of filing. Following the system identification line are lines listing each of the organizations recognized under the agreement, the number of personnel each represents, and its national affiliation.

The identification of the type of negotiation carried out with multiple organizations under one agreement is:

SN - Separate negotiation for each recognized organization.
JNE - Joint negotiating council with an equal number of representatives from each organization.
JNP - Joint negotiating council with representation proportional to the number of staff members represented by each recognized organization. Immediately below the JNP will be found the number of negotiating council members assigned to each recognized organization.

This listing does not differentiate between procedural and comprehensive agreements, or by type of procedural agreement. The analysis for such a differentiation and for almost 400 different content items is now in process and is expected to be completed about the end of the summer. The results of the analysis will be published and made available in two volumes as Negotiation Agreement Provisions, 1967-68 Edition. Announcement of the size, cost, and publication date of this publication will be made to Digest readers in September.

Copies of any of the agreements listed are available on the following basis: A minimum charge of $2 is made for each request for copies of agreements. The charge will provide up to 15 pages of xeroxed material; pages in excess of 15 will be charged at the rate of 10¢ per page. Each request for copies of agreements should include a check for $2 payable to National Education Association; any amount in excess of that will be billed.

School-Board Members and School Administrators as Negotiators ..... Data and Statistics: B-1

State-by-state data from NEA Research Division's 1967-68 survey of school systems with written negotiation procedures: report on the involvement of school-board members and school administrators in negotiation sessions with teacher representatives. Joint board member and school administrator negotiation teams are on the increase.

Grievant Reinstated with Back Pay ..... Description: A-1 Text: C-1

Arbitrator in Michigan awards reinstatement with back extracurricular pay for head football coach because school board did not follow established dismissal procedure. The grievance procedure in Warren Consolidated Schools agreement terminates in final and binding arbitration under the rules of the American Arbitration Association.

No Exceptions Found in Contract--Unilateral Determination of Individual Teacher's Salary Not Allowed ..... Description: A-1 Text: C-6

Massachusetts Board rules school committee cannot unilaterally set or change teacher's salary without negotiating with the Silver Lake Regional High School Teachers' Association.

Insufficient Interest Demonstrated for New Election and Petition for Decertification Untimely ..... Description: A-1 Text: C-9

Wisconsin Commission declares that the Wauwatosa School Board did not demonstrate that 30 percent of the employees involved favor an election and that the petition for decertification filed by the Board was not timely.

GRIEVANT REINSTATED WITH BACK PAY

Without warning of any dissatisfaction in his over-all performance or notification that he was in danger of losing his position, Warren High School's head football coach was told by a representative of the school board that if he did not resign from his coaching responsibilities he would be dismissed from them. Believing that the coach had been released "without just cause and due process," the Warren Education Association filed a grievance.

Although a number of charges were raised by the school board, the arbitrator found them to be largely the result of misunderstandings and misinterpretations. Besides, he indicated, dismissals must be conducted according to established procedures. The coach was found to be worthy of reinstatement to his former position and was awarded the back extracurricular pay due him for the year he was barred from coaching.

NO EXCEPTIONS FOUND IN CONTRACT--UNILATERAL DETERMINATION OF INDIVIDUAL TEACHER'S SALARY NOT ALLOWED

The teachers association is the exclusive bargaining agent for all the teachers in Silver Lake Regional High School. A teacher was being paid $6,450 per annum which was below his level on the salary schedule. This had been set exclusively for him by the school committee because it believed that he was not performing in an adequate manner for a man of his experience and background. No other teacher was singled out for such treatment. No teacher was excepted from the contract, and no discussion was ever held concerning this teacher.

The state conciliation board held that the school committee could not unilaterally set or change salaries. Since no evidence was presented to the effect that the teacher was not performing "in a satisfactory manner," and the parties had made no exception from the salary schedule, and they knew that the agreement set a schedule for all professional employees, the teacher was entitled to the salary that would be his according to the schedule ($8,800), retroactive to the date the negotiated salary schedule became effective.

Following an election conducted by the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, Local 1561 of District Council 48, AFSCME, AFL-CIO, was certified as the exclusive collective bargaining representative of "all custodial and maintenance employees of the Wauwatosa Board of Education," with the exception of the electricians and carpenters. Several years after this certification, the board of education entered a claim that because some employees who were in separate units were being represented without having so elected, and because it sensed some dissatisfaction, it had a good faith doubt that the majority of the employees presently desired representation by the union. The claim took the form of a petition requesting that another election be held among certain of the board's employees to determine whether those employees desired to continue their representation by the union.

The Commission reviewed the petition and then dismissed it. It concluded that "the petition was not timely filed," that the inclusion of certain departmental employees in the certified bargaining unit did not raise a question of representation in that unit, and that, therefore, a good faith doubt had not been established. In setting down its conclusion, the Commission established a new ploicy: (a) In order for action to be taken on a petition requesting the polling of employees to determine their certification in or decertification from a union, the petitioning group must demonstrate that 30 percent of the employees involved favor the election. (b) Petitions concerning collective bargaining agreements must be filed within the 60-day period prior to the date provided in the agreement or resolution for settlements.

SALARY SCHEDULE AND GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE IMPASSE RECOMMENDATIONS

The Jefferson Station Teachers' Association wanted $7,400 base pay ($1,100 over the current figure). Port Jefferson Station School District was willing to pay $6,615. Unable to reach an agreement, the parties submitted their arguments to the New York State Public Employment Relations Board. The fact-finder familiarized himself with the school tax revenues, compared the Port Jefferson Station salary schedule with those of other districts in the area, and recommended a $6,800 base. He declared that despite rising costs, the higher salary was needed to keep Port Jefferson Station on a par with the other area schools, thus allowing it to attract and hold its share of competent teachers.

The teachers association and the board had trouble agreeing on grievance settlement methods, too. Aware of the school board's fear that final and binding arbitration settled by an impartial third party might deny it its responsibility as representative of the people in establishing policy, the fact-finder said that such arbitration was legal and must be accepted on grievances involving "terms and conditions of employment."

The results of the collective negotiation, including the recommendations of the fact-finder, are reprinted in Section D.

Data and Statistics

SCHOOL-BOARD MEMBERS AND SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS AS NEGOTIATORS

For two consecutive years, the NEA Research Division has conducted a national survey of written negotiation agreements and procedures in school systems with 1,000 or more pupils enrolled. Both the 1966-67 survey and the 1967-68 survey attempted to obtain information on the involvement of school-board members and school administrators in the negotiation sessions with teacher representatives.

The two surveys asked similar questions: Who negotiates for the board? What is the role of the superintendent in negotiation sessions? For states which reported 50 or more school systems with negotiation agreements, tables were developed on these patterns in negotiation. In each table the responses on the role of the superintendent were distributed along the vertical axis while those relating to the negotiators for the school board were distributed along the horizontal axis.

These data for 1967-68 are presented in Table L, Role of Superintendent in Negotiation Sessions; Table M, Negotiator for the School Board; and the tables on Patterns in Negotiation. Corresponding tables for 1966-67 data were reported in the September 1967, December 1967, and January 1968 issues of the NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST.

Because some school systems did not respond to a particular question, there are variations in the total responses among the tables. Generally, those systems which did not respond were not included in the calculation of percentages.

Role of the Superintendent

Nationally, no significant change in the role of the superintendent from 1966-67 to 1967-68 was reported. California and Michigan still reported a modal response which indicates that the superintendent has full authority in negotiation. These superintendents who "negotiate with full authority" remained at almost two-fifths of the responses. (Not almost two-thirds as erroneously reported in the September 1967 issue of the DIGEST.)

Mandatory negotiation statutes which were passed in Minnesota and New York seem to have effected some change in their school systems' responses. In both states, the percentage of responses for the superintendent as advisor to both board and teacher negotiators showed a decrease. On the other hand, the percentage of responses for the superintendent as advisor to board negotiators only, showed an increase. Some of the change may have been effected somewhat by the greater number of systems with negotiation agreements.

The responses by enrollment strata still indicate that as the size of the system decreases, the superintendent's role shifts from that of negotiator with full authority to that of advisor to the negotiators for both the teachers and the school board.

Negotiators for the School Board

The percents of school systems which reported that in negotiation sessions the boards are represented by board members only, or by the superintendent only, decreased from 1966-67 to 1967-68; the percent reporting board representation jointly by board members and the superintendent or other school administrators increased slightly.

The data presented by enrollment strata show some shifting of representation for the board in negotiation sessions. Stratum 1 systems (100,000 pupils enrolled) predominantly reported that school administrators other than the superintendent represent the board. Most often Strata 2 through 4 systems (12,000-99,999 pupils enrolled) reported that superintendents together with other school administrators represent the board in negotiation sessions, but the smallest systems (1,000-11,999 pupils enrolled) reported most frequently that board members jointly with the superintendent represent the board.

Patterns in Negotiation

Thirteen states reported 50 or more school systems with written negotiation agreements in 1967-68. Data on the role of the superintendent in negotiation and on who negotiates for the school board were tabulated in separate contingency tables for each of these states and for the nation. When these data are considered together, many differences among the states appear.

The bottom portions of Tables L and M provide comparable data on the basis of school system enrollment. The eight enrollment strata utilized are:

Stratum	School system enrollment
1	100,000 or more
2	50,000-99,999
3	25,000-49,999
4	12,000-24,999
5	6,000-11,999
6	3,000- 5,999
7	1,200- 2,999
8	1,000- 1,199

Grievance No. 66-14

WARREN EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

Subject: Discipline: Removal of Head Football Coach

Statement of the Grievance: "On November 16, 1966 at a meeting in the Warren High School's principal's office with Mr. E. Eschenburg and Mr. R. James, Mr. Nowak was told that he was being relieved as head football coach of Warren High School. We hold that this violates all standards of just treatment and fair enforcement of discipline set forth in the Agreement.

"[Request] immediate termination of any and all proceedings to relieve Mr. Nowak as head football coach at Warren High School and reaffirmation of his good standing in that position."

--signed November 22, 1966

Contract Provisions Involved: Article II, Section 4; Article III, Section 2; Article VIII, Section 3; Article XIII, Section 1; and Schedule B of the September 14, 1966 Agreement.

Statement of the Award: The grievance is granted. Nowak should be returned to his position as Head Football Coach for the 1968-1969 school year and should be compensated for his loss of extra-curricular pay as Head Football Coach for the 1967-1968 school year. No further relief is appropriate.

BACKGROUND

This grievance protests the removal of S. Nowak as Head Football Coach at Warren High School. The Association maintains that the Agreement assures all teachers that "their employment status, wholly or in part, will not be altered to their detriment without just cause and due process." It believes that the procedures followed by the School Board in this case denied Nowak "due process" and that his dismissal was neither "fair" nor "for just cause."

Nowak has been a Physical Education Teacher at Warren High School since 1962. He was also Head Football Coach for five years, September 1962 through June 1967. His pay included a yearly salary for his teaching duties and additional compensation, approximately $800 in the 1966-1967 school year, for his extra-curricular duties as Head Football Coach.

A meeting was held at Warren High School on November 16, 1966. Present were the Director of Athletics (R. James), the Principal (E. Eschenburg) and Nowak. James explained he was dissatisfied with Nowak's coaching work, alleging (1) that the football program had gradually deteriorated, (2) that the football players had behaved badly at games, (3) that the football squad's lack of control had caused other high schools to question the advisability of scheduling games with Warren High School, and (4) that parents, players, coaches, officials and athletic directors were in general displeased with the squad. He said that, for these reasons, he was not going to recommend Nowak for reemployment as Head Football Coach the following year. He suggested that Nowak think about the matter and that if he chose to resign the School Board would accept his resignation.

Nowak's version of the conversation was substantially the same. He was called into this meeting without knowing what its purpose was. He was given various reasons why James felt his coaching performance was inadequate. He was told that he had a choice of either resigning or being dismissed and that he should go to another school district if he wished to continue coaching football. His impression was that James had previously reviewed his situation with "higher authorities" and that the matter had already been decided.

Nowak wrote to James the next day, November 17, 1966, requesting "a written copy of the charges you mentioned in the meeting yesterday . . ." He never received a copy of such charges. The Association filed a grievance in his behalf on November 22, 1966. The Superintendent of the Warren Consolidated Schools replied that "this grievance does not fall within the purview of the contract." And, after a Step 2 meeting was held on this grievance, the Superintendent stated to the Association:

> . . . I am concurring with and upholding the recommendation of Mr. Robert James, Director of Athletics, that Mr. Steve Nowak not be assigned to the position of head football coach at Warren High School for the 1967-1968 school year. Accordingly, the grievance is denied.

The School Board permitted Nowak to complete his work as Head Football Coach for the 1966-1967 school year. It decided, however, that he would not serve in that capacity for the 1967-1968 school year. Nowak is still a Physical Education Teacher at the Warren High School. He has only been relieved of his duties as a football coach.

The parties first submitted this case to me solely on the question of arbitrability. The School Board argued that Nowak's protest could not be deemed a "grievance" and was therefore not arbitrable. That argument was rejected by my decision on June 10, 1967. The award stated:

> To summarize, the Association complains (1) that Nowak's removal constitutes "disciplinary action less than specific and outright discharge [or] demotion" and that such discipline was unjustified and (2) that his removal was a "violation, misinterpretation or misapplication" of certain provisions of the Agreement. On either ground, Nowak's complaint qualifies as a "grievance." This dispute is therefore arbitrable . . .

The merits of Nowak's case were then heard. The School Board contends that a football coach is responsible for more than the instruction of young men in the fundamentals of the sport and the improvement of their physical fitness. It says a coach must also develop good sportsmanship, build morale within the team and student body, and maximize student participation in the sport. It believes Nowak failed to meet these latter responsibilities. It alleges, as proof of his failure, that he has been deficient in the following respects:

> (2) Conduct of players on field.
> (3) Sideline conduct of players.
> (4) Appearance and personal habits of players.
> (5) Conduct . . . at games where he was coach and at athletic contests where he was a spectator.
> (6) Harassment of boy playing for him to the extent the boy quit the squad.
> (7) Handling of a player in a vindictive and malicious manner.
> (8) Lack of control of squad to the extent other area high schools were dubious of scheduling Warren High School.
> (9) Permitting publication of derogatory article in school paper about athletic officials.
> (10) Allowing players under his charge to criticize officials.
> (11) Failure to follow orders regarding use of football field facilities.
> (12) Improper care of equipment and supplies.
> (13) Non-attendance at league meetings.
> (14) Conduct to the extent that team physician quit.
> (15) General dissatisfaction of parents, players, athletic officials, other coaches, and athletic directors with Mr. Nowak's Football Squad.

The School Board argues, in other words, that Nowak was removed from his coaching position because of "incompetence." The Association disagrees. It contends that the charges against Nowak have either not been proven or are "remote, trivial and unconvincing." It claims he was dismissed as Head Football Coach because of "organizational activities protected by" the Public Employment Relations Act and because of "personal spite and vindictiveness." It insists therefore that the dismissal was "arbitrary and capricious." It asserts too that he was denied "basic procedural rights," e.g., the School Board's failure to give him "written notice of the charges against him throughout the grievance procedure." It concludes that the discipline here was neither "fair" nor "for just cause" and that the School Board did not make a "good faith evaluation of all factors" in Nowak's case.

DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

The charges against Nowak can be divided into five general categories for purposes of discussion.

First, the School Board alleges that Nowak on several occasions failed to follow rules or instructions. This involves charges 9, 11, 12 and 13.

Charge 9. An article appeared in the October 30, 1964 school newspaper which was critical of the officiating in a game with Utica High School. James immediately wrote Nowak, citing the practice of having "the Sports Editor clear any articles or editorials with the Head Coach" and suggesting he follow that practice in the future. The evidence reveals that Nowak had no knowledge of this practice and had never been told to review student football articles prior to publication. Nowak did not see the October 30 article before it was published. He too felt that the criticism of officials in this article was completely improper. Written procedures regarding the Head Coach's responsibility for student articles were finally formulated and distributed on December 3, 1964. Under these circumstances, Nowak can in no way be blamed for the article in question.

Charge 11. James wrote to Nowak on September 14, 1966, that "the Reserve [JV] Football Game with Lincoln High School . . . October 13th will be played . . . on the field at the west end of the [Warren] High School." He did not want to use the varsity field for the game. However, a short time before the game, the coaches became concerned about "an excessive amount of glass on the playing field" and the bleachers being too close to the field. The matter was referred to the Warren High School Principal who decided, pursuant to the coaches' recommendation, to move the game to the varsity field. James complained that Nowak should have contacted his office for permission to use the varsity field. He does not claim -- given the coaches' concern for the players' safety -- that he would not have granted permission. Thus, the School Board's complaint against Nowak involves no more than a matter of procedure.

Charge 12. James went to the Warren High School stadium on Thursday, November 3, 1966, to check conditions for the game the following night. He found some "football [tackling] dummies and blocking shields" lying on the floor in a puddle of water. He wrote to Nowak, protesting this careless handling of equipment. Nowak explained that the dummies and shields had been left in a covered area on the floor of the stadium the night before. Student managers put the equipment away. It snowed that night. Because of a leak in the stadium, the melting snow created puddles on the floor and the equipment got wet. The damage was slight. There is no proof that this kind of damage had ever occurred before during Nowak's tenure as Head Football Coach. Although he is responsible for "the care and condition of the equipment," he surely cannot be considered to have been negligent in this situation.

1/ The first 15 allegations were set forth in the School Board's opening statement at the hearing; the 16th allegation was added during the course of the hearing.

Charge 13. James asserts that Nowak failed to attend a Bi-County League meeting on September 20, 1966. The Coaches Handbook states that coaches must "attend all rules, league, officials, etc. meetings pertinent to the sport you coach." Nowak's explanation for his absence was that he never received notice of the meeting. He knew in general when meetings were held but he had always been given a written reminder. Here, the Faculty Manager either misplaced or lost the notice. Nowak was not reminded and simply forgot about the meeting. There is no real evidence as to whether Nowak was absent on other occasions and, if so, whether such absences were justified. Nor has the School Board established that Nowak was any less diligent than other coaches in attending Bi-County League meetings. His absence on September 20, 1966, by itself, does not suggest any lack of responsibility in the performance of his job.

Second, the School Board alleges that there was a gradual deterioration in the football program during Nowak's tenure as Head Coach. This involves charges 1 and 16.

James emphasizes that although school enrollment has remained substantially the same for some years, the number of young men trying out for football decreased from 100 in 1962 to 60 in 1966. He attributes this decline in student interest to Nowak's failure to promote the sport through football banquets, team parties, dad's nights, etc. He stresses too that Nowak's "won-lost" record was not particularly good, winning just 52 percent of the games as contrasted to his predecessor who won 70 percent of the games.

These claims are extremely difficult to evaluate. Student interest in football could be affected by a variety of socio-economic factors which have no relationship to the effectiveness of a Head Coach. It may be that participation in all sports declined at Warren High School and that the number of students trying out for other teams is also lower. It may be that other high schools have experienced similar declines in student participation in the football program. It may be that less participation is simply a reflection of what some consider to be a national problem, a declining level of physical fitness in our youth. There is no evidence before me on any of these points. In view of such uncertainty, the decrease in student interest at Warren High School cannot fairly be attributed to Nowak. The fact is that new high schools constructed in the area may have reduced the number of athletes available to Warren High School. 2/ Nowak did arrange some special activities, although not as many as James would have liked. But this matter was never called to Nowak's attention. As for his "won-loss" record, I note that the team was 1-7 in 1961 before Nowak arrived and then 4-4 in 1962, and 7-1 in 1963 under Nowak. The best he could do in the next three years was 4-4. But I find it difficult to believe that a high school coach's worth can be measured in this way. His ability to mold character--to instill in his charges a sense of determination, team play, sportsmanship and self-discipline--is far more important. He can achieve these goals without winning games. For these reasons, charges 1 and 16 are not persuasive.

Third, the School Board alleges that Nowak treated two boys improperly, harassing one to the point that he quit the squad and handling the other in a vindictive and malicious manner. This involves charges 6 and 7.

There is absolutely no merit in these charges. The first string quarterback in the 1966 season was the son of the then President of the School Board. He started every game except one. He neither started nor played in the "homecoming day" game, his service being limited to holding the ball for the conversion attempt after a touchdown. His father testified that his son was crying when he came home for he had been given no explanation for being kept out of the game.3/ Nowak explained that the boy had several injuries (thumb, leg, back) and had been on crutches the Monday before the game. He stated that the boy had difficulty throwing the ball because of his injured thumb. Therefore, he planned early in the week to use someone else as quarterback. He could not recall whether he offered an explanation to the boy. But, given these circumstances, it should have been apparent to everyone (the boy included) why he did not play. Nowak showed good judgment in placing a higher value on the boy's health than on the team's need for its first string quarterback.

The center was unable to appear at all the practice sessions one week in October 1966 because of the death of a relative. He later quit the squad. When James asked him for an explanation, he said "the coaches made fun of him" for missing practice. James held Nowak responsible even though there are four coaches on the team. Nowak explained that the line coach told the linemen at a half-time "pep talk" that this boy had missed practice during the week, insinuating that "the boy hadn't done his job." The line coach apparently did not know the reason for the boy's absence. When Nowak discovered what had happened, he told the line coach he was "wrong" to speak as he did. Nowak cannot be blamed for the line coach's error in this kind of situation.

Fourth, the School Board alleges that the conduct and appearance of the players was sometimes poor. It believes Nowak should be held accountable for such deficiencies. This involves charges 2, 3, 4 and 8.

Charge 4. James complained to Nowak in September 1966 about "long hair" on some of the football players, a condition he regarded as "unhealthy" and in conflict with their image as "clean wholesome individuals." Nowak replied he would see what he could do to correct the situation. The record does not reveal what steps he took to eliminate "long hair." James did not notice any improvements during the rest of the season. There are, however, limits to Nowak's power. He can attempt to persuade boys to cut their hair. But, beyond that, there is little he could do. James suggested that a boy could not "legally" be removed from the team for this reason but that "there are other ways of eliminating him . . . such as not having him play in games." Nowak evidently did not take the latter course. His decision not to deny a boy the privilege of playing on account of a question of taste (i.e., hair style) seems sound to me.

2/ The Principal of Warren High School stated at the January 6, 1967 grievance meeting that "the quantity of Warren High School athletes had been affected by Cousino High and Mott draining some of these and by the opening of the Warren Woods High School . . . ."

3/ This young man was not called upon to testify at the hearing.

Charges 2, 3 & 8. James states that football players have misbehaved on the field and on the sidelines. He saw them slam their helmets on the ground, kick the sideline markers, and throw their parkas aside. He noted that players have occasionally been thrown out of a game for a personal foul. He emphasized that there have been two "free-for-alls," one in 1964 and another in 1966, in varsity games with Utica High School. Nowak concedes there has been some misconduct but insists it has been quite limited. The testimony indicates that even the most disciplined football squad has occasional lapses. A momentary loss of control in a game so full of emotion and body contact is understandable. It would be extremely difficult for a coach to anticipate such conduct. The dispute between James and Nowak really concerns the dimensions of this problem. If players had been guilty of continual misconduct, as James suggests, it seems to me that the matter would have been called to Nowak's attention. But, apart from conversations about the "free-for-alls" at Utica, James never spoke to Nowak about player conduct on the field or on the sidelines. James obviously felt free to criticize Nowak's performance as a coach, issuing memoranda to him about the care of equipment, the checking of student newspaper articles, the elimination of "long-haired" athletes, etc. His silence about player conduct suggests that this was not as serious a problem as he later made it out to be. Nowak was of course properly criticized for his squad being involved in "free-for-alls."4/

Fifth, the School Board alleges that Nowak's conduct at games as a coach or as a spectator was poor. It says his behavior caused the team physician to quit. It claims there was "general dissatisfaction" with Nowak among "parents, players, athletic officials, other coaches, and athletic directors." This involves charges 5, 10, 14 and 15.

Charge 5. Nowak was watching a JV game at Utica High School in October 1965. He and an assistant left their bleacher seats to walk to the other side of the field. According to the Utica coaches, Nowak was told to get off the field and away from the sidelines but he refused. Some unpleasant words followed. According to Nowak, he left the field and returned to the bleachers when asked to do so. He says this was just "a misunderstanding." He was instructed by James to apologize to the Utica coaching staff and he did so. His conduct evidently deserved censure.5/

A referee (also the Secretary of the School Board) at a game in early 1964 described Nowak's conduct as "boisterous and loud," assessed a 15-yard penalty against him for "unsportsmanlike conduct," and threatened to remove him from the game. Nowak explained that this occurred after the Warren punter had been knocked down three times without the officials calling a penalty for "roughing the kicker." He went on the field to protest, an act which calls for a penalty for "unsportsmanlike conduct." He should be censured. However, this does happen occasionally to football coaches. The former Head Football Coach at Cousino High School described an almost identical incident in which he received a 15-yard penalty for "unsportsmanlike conduct" in walking on the field to object to an official's ruling. He testified that he has seen this penalty imposed on other coaches as well. There is no evidence that Nowak was guilty of such misconduct more than once.6/

Charge 10. James asserts that Nowak "allowed" his players to criticize officials. However, nothing in the record suggests that Nowak ever condoned such behavior. As soon as he learned that the officiating was being criticized, he sought to stop it.

Charge 14. Dr. Messina was the team physician for five to seven years. He quit this position during the 1964 season or at the end of the 1965 season. James met him sometime later at a social function. He testified that the doctor told him he quit because "working with Nowak was impossible." Dr. Messina did not testify at the hearing. Nowak claimed the doctor was too busy to take care of the team and said they parted by "mutual understanding." He knew of no problem between them. The doctor's statement about Nowak was extremely vague; the School Board's charge against Nowak was pure hearsay. There is absolutely no proof of any wrongdoing on Nowak's part.

Charge 15. James contended that parents had complained to him about the players' conduct and the football program. He had no record of the number or the precise nature of these complaints. Nor is there any evidence as to whether the number of complaints was greater at Warren High School than elsewhere. In any event, it should be apparent that these complaints would probably be as unfounded as most of the charges in this case. The players showed their dissatisfaction by hanging Nowak in effigy on August 25, 1966. But that act was evidently prompted by the players' anger over the fact that the team did not start football practice as scheduled. The delay was the result of a contract dispute between the School Board and the Association. The players also sent a letter to James in November 1967, asking that Nowak's replacement for the 1967-1968 school year be retained as Head Football Coach. However, Nowak's rights under the Agreement are not dependent upon a vote of the football squad. The dissatisfaction of others has already been discussed in this opinion.

To summarize, most of the charges against Nowak are not supported by the evidence. The few charges which have been proven certainly do not justify his dismissal as Head Football Coach.

There is still another serious flaw in the School Board's case. James maintains that Nowak's performance as Head Football Coach grew progressively worse between 1964 and November 1966. He issued some memoranda to Nowak, complaining about his failure to take proper care of the equipment, his failure to attend league meetings, and so on. He spoke to him about some other matters. But not once in this entire period did he apprise Nowak that he was dissatisfied with his overall performance or warn Nowak that he would recommend his dismissal if no improvement took place. Nowak was never really put on notice that he was in danger of losing his coaching position. He was never made aware that he had to perform his work better in order to retain his coaching position. Such notice, such advance warning, is an essential ingredient in any fair disciplinary procedure.

The School Board concedes that the removal of Nowak as Head Football Coach was "disciplinary action."

4/ The former Head Football Coach at Cousino High School (now Executive Secretary of the Association) testified that his team was also occasionally involved in a "flareup" or "altercation" on the field.

5/ There was also an "incident" in a pre-season scrimmage with Avondale High School in 1963. James says he first learned that Avondale was critical of the Warren team in November 1966. It is not at all clear who was to blame for this "incident"--the Warren players, the Avondale players, all the players, or the fact that there were no referees present to handle the scrimmage.

6/ This referee was also critical of Nowak's actions at a basketball game in the spring of 1964. Both men were spectators. He contends Nowak stood up and booed an official in front of many Warren High School students. This kind of behavior is reprehensible even though it occurs while a teacher-coach is off duty.

Because most of the charges against him have not been borne out by the evidence and because the School Board failed to provide him with any notice of the need for improvement, I find that the discipline was neither "fair" nor "for just cause." His removal was a violation of Article III, Section 2. In reaching this conclusion, I have considered and rejected the Association claims that his removal was caused by "personal spite and vindictiveness" or by his "organizational activities."

Nowak should be returned to his position as Head Football Coach for the 1968-1969 school year and should be compensated for his loss of extra-curricular pay as Head Football Coach for the 1967-1968 school year. The Association asks for a substantial award of damages beyond mere back pay on the ground that the School Board acted "capriciously and recklessly" and that Nowak has suffered an "impairment of his reputation, loss of prestige in his profession, and psychological injury." I cannot grant this request. The School Board removed Nowak from his position in the mistaken but good faith belief that it had complete and unfettered discretion with respect to extra-curricular coaching appointments. It did not act "capriciously and recklessly." There is no indication of any "psychological injury." Any damage to his reputation should be repaired by this award which makes it perfectly clear that his dismissal was unjustified. No interest on the back pay is required. The Association's demand for "litigation costs" is denied.

AWARD

The grievance is granted. Nowak should be returned to his position as Head Football Coach for the 1968-1969 school year and should be compensated for his loss of extra-curricular pay as Head Football Coach for the 1967-1968 school year. No further relief is appropriate.

BOSTON April 22, 1968

In the matter of the joint application for arbitration of a controversy between

School Committee of the Silver Lake Regional School District
-and-
Silver Lake Regional High School Teachers' Association

The Board, having afforded the Employer and the Union full opportunity to present testimony, exhibits and arguments, and to examine and cross-examine witnesses at the hearing, has onsidered the issue(s) submitted by the parties, and having studied and weighed the evidence bearing on the issu (s), awards as follows:

John H. McCormick is not being properly paid under the basic salary schedule as outlined in the contract between the parties. His salary should be $8,800 per year. The School Committee shall make him whole for all his lost income resulting from its failure to pay him his proper salary.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND OPINION

This case was heard by the Board at Boston on February 13, 1968. The School Committee was represented by Philip S. Cronin, Esq., 4 South Russell Street, Plymouth. The Teachers' Association was represented by Haskell C. Freedman, Esq., 85 Devonshire Street, Boston.

The parties have jointly asked the Board to determine whether John H. McCormick, a teacher of English at the Silver Lake Regional High School, Kingston, Massachusetts, is being paid the salary to which he is entitled under the contract between the parties, and, if not, to determine what remedy should be applied.

Mr. McCormick has been continuously employed as an English teacher at the Silver Lake Regional High School since 1955. He received a bachelor's degree from Harvard in 1938 and a Master's degree from Boston State College in 1940.

In January, 1967, before the parties to this case entered into a collective bargaining agreement, Mr. McCormick was being paid at an annual salary of $6,200, which had been set specifically for him by name as the result of a vote of the School Committee. No other teacher in this school system which employs about 100 teachers was singled out for such treatment. All other teachers were paid in accordance with a salary schedule adopted by the School Committee which set different rates of pay depending upon a teacher's educational attainments and the number of years of teaching experience.

It was stated at this hearing that the School Committee had taken this unusual action in Mr. McCormick's case as a kind of disciplinary penalty because he was not performing in a manner which his superiors in the school system considered adequate for a man of Mr. McCormick's experience and background. No direct testimony to substantiate this was introduced, however.

Neither party to this case here disputes the absolute power of the School Committee to take action of this kind prior to the execution of a collective bargaining agreement. On January 30, 1967, the first such agreement covering teachers employed in the Silver Lake Regional School District was executed by the parties to this case. It is still in effect and has been changed only by the adoption of a salary schedule negotiated on November 9, 1967, pursuant to a wage reopener clause incorporated in Paragraph 8 of the contract. The contract binds the parties until its expiration date--June 30, 1969.

No teacher having been excepted from this contract by agreement of the parties, the contract therefore covers all teachers in the school system including Mr. McCormick. Paragraph 2 states that:

> ...the Committee recognizes the Association as the exclusive bargaining agent and representative of all professional employees... of the Committee....

Therefore, pursuant to the written agreement of both parties, the Committee voluntarily released its authority to deal directly with Mr. McCormick or any other teacher with respect to individual wages. It agreed to bargain on such matters collectively and exclusively with the Teachers' Association during the period from January 30, 1967 until June 30, 1969.

Agreements of this nature between school districts and their employees was authorized by the adoption on November 17, 1965, of General Laws, Chapter 149, Section 178H(1) which provides in part that:

> Employees shall have...the right to...bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing on questions of wages, hours and other conditions of employment....

There was no salary schedule included in the January 30, 1967, agreement between the parties. There was, however, a provision included in paragraph 3 that:

> ...the wages...applicable on the effective date of this Contract to the employees covered by this Contract shall continue to be so applicable.

By virtue of this provision, therefore, Mr. McCormick's salary on January 30, 1967 was established at $6,200 per annum. It is worth noting at this point that, although his salary was unchanged, the basis for its establishment changed. Prior to January 30 it was fixed by the School Committee by virtue of its unfettered authority to set teachers' salaries. On January 30, his salary was fixed by a joint agreement entered into between the School Committee and the Teachers' Association which had been granted exclusive authority to bargain collectively for Mr. McCormick and all other teachers in this school system.

The School Committee, of course, was not required to enter into the terms that were included in this contract with the Teachers' Association. It did so voluntarily. It could have attempted to come to an agreement with the Teachers' Association on Mr. McCormick's status but there was no evidence that negotiations of this nature took place.

The evidence indicates that on an undetermined date in March or April 1967, the School Committee voted to set the salary of Mr. McCormick separately from the adoption of the salary schedule and to establish his salary for the 1967-68 school year at $6,450 per annum. The superintendent of schools explained this action to Mr. McCormick in a letter dated May 18, 1967, by stating that:

> The reason for this exclusion is that your performance as a teacher was not considered to be of an adequate professional standard to qualify you for election to the standard teachers' schedule.

This action of the School Committee was a clear violation of its agreement to recognize the Teachers' Association as the exclusive bargaining agent for all teachers. Once having entered such an agreement, the Committee could not unilaterally change or establish any teacher's salary. To achieve the desired result, the School Committee was obligated to both consult with and reach an agreement with the Teachers' Association. The School Committee vote respecting Mr. McCormick's salary for the school year 1967-68, is consequently a nullity.

On November 9, 1967, the parties agreed upon a new salary schedule for all teachers. It provided for 12 steps, each step being defined as "the completion of a year's teaching in a satisfactory manner within the Silver Lake Regional School District, or its equivalent". Within each step five different salary categories were established depending upon the teacher's educational attainments, that is, whether the teacher had a Bachelor's Degree, a Bachelor's Degree plus 15 hours credit toward a Master's Degree, a Master's Degree, etc.

Neither the evidence nor the agreement revealed when this salary schedule became effective. The evidence did indicate however that all teachers were paid the rate specified for teachers of their years of service and educational attainment - except Mr. McCormick. He continued to be paid at the rate set by the vote of the School Committee in March or April, 1967.

There is no question but that Mr. McCormick must be considered a part of this salary schedule the same as every other teacher. The parties made no exceptions from the schedule. They knew that they were setting a schedule for "all professional employees" and they so stated in their agreement.

Step 12 is the highest step on the Schedule. It provides that a teacher with a Master's Degree shall be paid $8,800 per annum. When this salary schedule was adopted, Mr. McCormick had been teaching in this system for 12 years and held a Master's Degree. If he belongs at Step 12, therefore, his salary should be $8,800 per year.

There is only one reason why he would not belong at Step 12: because his teaching within the system had not been performed "in a satisfactory manner". There was very little competent evidence introduced on this point at the hearing. There was some hearsay testimony that a former principal of the high school considered McCormick's performance as a teacher to be sub-standard. But neither this man who, it was stated, is now with another school system, or any other person who had first-hand knowledge of McCormick's teaching performance was produced as a witness by the School Committee. On the other hand, the Teachers' Association introduced copies of 3 teacher evaluation forms which had been given to Mr. McCormick after periodic evaluations of his teaching on October 3, 4, and 5, 1967 by the co-head of the English Department - one of McCormick's immediate superiors. Although these forms had spaces for the evaluator to make suggestions for improvement in the five categories on which McCormick was rated (i.e. knowledge of Subject Matter, Personal Qualities, Professional Characteristics, Techniques and Effectiveness of Teaching, and Performance Within School other than Teaching), there were no such suggestions made. In fact, there was nothing on these evaluation forms derogatory to Mr. McCormick or from which a person could conclude that he was not an ordinary prudent teacher performing in a satisfactory manner.

The burden of proving that an employee is not performing his job in a satisfactory manner rests with the employer. It is logical that this be so. An employer has hired an employee and retained him in his employ. These are positive acts indicating satisfaction with the employee's ability to fill the job and his performance as an employee in the actual work situation. It is no argument that the procedures for disciplinary action are unworkable or weighted in favor of the employees. This is particularly true in the case of a teacher. The School Committee has a heavy responsibility for the education of children. Surely they would protect these children from an inadequate teacher if there was reason to do so. In this case, no attempt was ever made to discipline Mr. McCormick or to assign him to non-teaching duties and, in fact, the School Committee voluntarily elected him as a teacher in the system each and every year since 1955 and delivered to him a signed contract for each school year. The foregoing is inconsistent with the hearsay evidence and unsubstantiated assertions made at this hearing that Mr. McCormick's performance as a teacher was unsatisfactory.

The School Committee has not sustained its burden of proving that Mr. McCormick's performance was unsatisfactory. His proper place on the salary schedule of November 9, 1967, therefore, is at Step 12 and his proper salary under the contract is $8,800 per year.

Since he is being paid at a lower rate than that which the Board has here found to be proper, the School Committee is obligated to remedy this injustice by paying him the difference between his proper rate and the rate at which he has been paid. This will be retroactive to the date upon which the salary schedule of November 9, 1967, went into effect.

In the Matter of the Petition of WAUWATOSA BOARD OF EDUCATION Involving Employes of WAUWATOSA BOARD OF EDUCATION	Case IX No. 11699 Me-339 Decision No. 8300-A

MEMORANDUM ACCOMPANYING ORDER
DISMISSING PETITION FOR ELECTION

The instant proceeding was initiated by a petition filed on September 26, 1967, by the Wauwatosa Board of Education, hereinafter referred to as the School Board, requesting the Commission to conduct an election, pursuant to Section 111.70, Wisconsin Statutes, to determine whether its employes employed in a claimed appropriate collective bargaining unit, consisting of "all custodial and maintenance employes, excluding carpenter, plumber, electrician, electrician helper, cafeterial employes, clerical employes, supervisors, professional and executive employes," desired to be represented for the purposes of conferences and negotiations by Local 1561 and District Council 48, AFSCME, AFL-CIO, hereinafter referred to as the Union. In its petition the School Board claimed that > in the election held on February 20, 1963, the eligible employes inappropriately included certain craft and supervisory employes, as well as cafeteria employes who constitute a separate department or division and who have not had an opportunity to indicate whether they wish to be represented separately, the total of which employes if appropriately excluded might well change the results of the election.

The petition also stated that > the bargaining representative by recent statement(s) and activities has indicated a practice and intent to distinguish between "union" employes and "non-union" employes (i.e., employes who are members of the Union and employes who are not members of the Union) in its representation of employes currently in the bargaining unit.

On March 6, 1963, following an election conducted by it, the Commission certified the Union as the exclusive collective bargaining representative of "all custodial and maintenance employes of the Wauwatosa Board of Education, including the stock clerk, and all cooks, but excluding the electrician, carpenters, clerical employes and all other employes, supervisors, professional employes and executives." Said election had been conducted pursuant to a stipulation therefor executed by the parties, wherein they had stipulated to the appropriate unit. On or about December 12, 1966, the parties entered into a collective bargaining agreement covering the wages and working conditions of the employes in the certified unit. The agreement became effective on January 1, 1967, and was to remain in effect from year to year thereafter unless either party requested a change by June 1 of the year preceding the year in which its proposed changes were to become effective. The agreement also set forth that if changes were requested, bargaining thereon would commence in September.

On May 6, 1967, following a proceeding for the clarification of the bargaining unit, which involved a determination with respect to the supervisory status of certain classifications of employes, the Commission amended its Certification to reflect that the classifications of supervising custodian and supervising custodian and swimming pool operator were considered included in the appropriate bargaining unit.

Hearing on the instant petition was held on October 12, 1967. Subsequently the Union filed a motion requesting that the Commission reopen the hearing for the purpose of admitting evidence alleged to be relevant to the conduct of the School Board with respect to negotiations with the Union. The Commission on November 24, 1967, denied the motion on the basis that it pertained to matters affected by the pending petition. On February 5, 1968, the Union again filed a similar motion. The dismissal of the petition herein necessitates no ruling on the motion.

The primary issue raised by the petition, pleadings, and arguments and briefs of counsel is whether there presently exists a question of representation among the custodial and maintenance employes of the School Board.

The School Board contends that a question of representation presently exists for the following reasons:

1. The presently existing certified collective bargaining unit is inappropriate in that it includes certain craft employes.

2. The employes employed in the cafeterias constitute a separate department and employes therein should be given an opportunity to determine for themselves whether they desire to constitute a collective bargaining unit separate and apart from the other custodial and maintenance employes. Further, that regular part-time cafeteria employes, who were excluded from the certified unit by agreement, should have been properly included in the unit.

3. The Union in carrying out its representative status has distinguished between members and non-members.

4. The school board has a good faith doubt as to whether a majority of the employes presently desire representation by the Union.

FACTS WITH RESPECT TO CRAFT INCLUSION

Pursuant to the stipulation executed by the parties, the certified bargaining unit excludes the craft classifications of electrician and carpenters. No other craft classification was called to the attention of the Commission during the initial election proceeding. The School Board also employs a plumber, two painters as well as an electrician helper. During the course of the hearing on the instant petition, parties agreed that the plumbers and painters constitute craft employes within the meaning of Section 111.70(4)(d). The School Board contends that the electrician's helper is also a craft employe. The Union contends otherwise. The record discloses that for at least the past five years the electrician's helper has performed electrical maintenance work. The particular employe who is classified as "Custodian Assigned" has worked with the electrician for the past 11 years and has performed all of the duties performed by the electrician except for the maintenance and repair of the clock system. The helper performs such duties without the direct supervision of the electrician. On occasions the helper has performed some snow plowing and replaced custodial employes when the need has arisen.

The School Board asserts that the Custodian Assigned, as the electrician's helper, should be included in a craft unit with the electrician and therefore should not be in the unit with other employes. It cites in support thereof the Commission's decision in Winnebago County Hospital[1] where the Commission held that "helpers who are in line of progression in the craft will be included as part of the craft." The School Board contends that the evidence supports a finding that the helper has had on-the-job training equivalent to an electrician's apprenticeship program and that he only needs a license granted by the City of Wauwatosa to become a journeyman electrician. It contends that the classification "Custodian Assigned" should not be determinative of the employe's craft status for the reasons that the Commission should look beyond job titles to determine the status of the employe involved.[2]

The Union argues that since the Municipal Employer-Employe Labor Relations Law does not provide that it is a prohibited practice for a municipal employer and a labor organization representing its employes to agree to a collective bargaining unit which includes craft as well as non-craft employes and therefore there is no statutory prohibition preventing the parties from agreeing to such units. Accordingly, the Union contends that there is no reason for the Commission to disregard the stipulated appropriate bargaining unit and that the Commission should encourage the parties to "live up to their contractual commitments" reflected in the stipulated unit and in the collective bargaining unit subsequently executed by the parties.

CAFETERIA EMPLOYES

The School Board maintains a hot-lunch program for students in 12 schools. Lunches are prepared in seven of the schools, while food is transported to the remaining five schools. The food-service operation has been previously designated by the School Board as its cafeterias, and the employes therein as cafeteria employes. All the employes therein are under the primary supervision of the Supervisor of Cafeterias, who reports to the Director of the Business Services, who in turn reports to the Superintendent of Schools. At the time of the hearing the School Board employed 18 full-time and 35 part-time cafeteria employes. Cafeteria employes are employed only during the school term, they are hourly-paid, they receive no vacation nor holiday pay, they are separately supervised, and they perform duties separate and apart from other employes. The Custodial and Maintenance employes work the full year, are paid monthly, and receive vacation and holiday pay.

The regular part-time cafeteria employes work from two to five hours daily, do not earn sick leave or participate in the life and hospital surgical insurance plans. The nature of their duties and their rate of pay are similar to regular full-time cafeteria employes who are employed six hours a day and who receive sick leave and participate in life and hospital surgical plans.

With respect to the cafeteria employes, the stipulated bargaining unit includes all full-time cafeteria employes who were designated in the certification as "cooks". However, in negotiations which subsequently followed the certification, the cafeteria employes were broken down into three separate classifications, assistant cook manager, cooks and cook helpers. It would appear that the regular part-time employes have been designated by the Municipal Employer as cook helpers.

The position of the Municipal Employer is that the cafeteria employes and the custodial and maintenance employes are in reality separate departments. It points out that these two groups of employes have distinct duties, work in different locations, and have separate supervision. In addition, it is noted that the hours worked by each group of employes differs, their method of compensation differs in that custodial and maintenance employes are paid a monthly salary and cafeteria employes receive an hourly rate, and certain employe benefits differ, specifically vacation with pay, holiday pay, and sick leave. Therefore, it is argued that the criteria established by the Commission in distinguishing separate departments are present in this instance. In addition, the Municipal Employer argues that the original bargaining unit, established by stipulation and not by Commission determination, included some and not all of the cafeteria employes, and since the Municipal Employer believes that all cafeteria employes are entitled to a separate unit vote based on the fact that they constitute a separate department, it has petitioned the Commission to provide these employes with an opportunity to express their wishes with respect to inclusion or exclusion from the overall maintenance unit.

The Municipal Employer, therefore, asserts that the regular part-time cafeteria employes should be included in a unit, whether it be the overall custodial and maintenance unit or the separate cafeteria department unit if the employes choose to constitute themselves a separate unit. In support of its position the Municipal Employer argues that the Commission has consistently held that employes who are regularly employed on a part-time basis have an interest in wages, hours and conditions of employment and consequently are eligible to participate in an election involving full-time employes.3/ Therefore, it is argued that these employes have a sufficient interest in the wages, hours and working conditions of the bargaining unit employes to be included in the bargaining unit with the full-time cafeteria employes, and the Commission should accordingly conduct an election to determine the wishes of all cafeteria employes with respect to inclusion or exclusion from the overall custodial and maintenance unit and the selection of a bargaining representative.

The Union contends that since the collective bargaining agreement between the parties provides that any party seeking any unilateral changes in the practices and policies set forth in the collective bargaining agreement would request such changes "by June 1 of the year preceding the year in which the changes are to go into effect," and since the Municipal Employer did not make any request to change the status of any of the employes working in the cafeteria with respect to their inclusion in the bargaining unit, the Commission should not permit the Municpal Employer to violate its contractual promise to request such changes as set forth above.4/ In addition, the Union argues that there is nothing in the Statute which requires that the employes in the cafeteria department, even if they are found to constitute a separate department, must be given an opportunity to determine whether they wish to constitute themselves a separate bargaining unit, nor does the inclusion of those employes in the overall unit without their having been given a unit determination vote make the overall unit inappropriate.

ALLEGED DISPARITY OF TREATMENT OF NON-UNION EMPLOYES

In support of its contention that the Union, in representing its employes, distinguished between members and non-members of the Union, the only evidence was statements contained in newsletters distributed by the Union during April and May 1967, and produced by the School Board with respect to such contention. In the first letter the Union publicized the fact that it was, in accordance with the grievance and arbitration provisions of the collective bargaining agreement existing between the parties, submitting a grievance relating to the reclassification of a Mechanics Helper, the matter was characterized in the newsletter as follows:

> This case involves an employe (who happens to be non-union) who was given a raise above and beyond what the Union negotiated. A typical Union-busting technique, we expect to teach the School Board, through arbitration, that they must communicate and negotiate with the Union on all matters relating to wages, hours, and conditions of employment. Sooner or later, the Board is going to learn that it is much easier to work with us than against us.5/

The May newsletter contained the following reference to the arbitration case:

> On Friday, May 5 Local 1561 and the school board presented the cases to arbitrator Thomas P. Whalen. The case involves an additional pay increase unilaterally given by the school board to a non-union employe in the maintenance department.5/

The School Board argues that the above statements indicate that the Union distinguishes between members and non-members, or at least infers disparity of treatment, and thus, the School Board argues, that the employes who voted in the original election now believe that the Union will not provide equal representation to all employes, and therefore the employes should now be given an opportunity to express their desires with regard to representation.

3/ Portage Stop-N-Shop, Dec. No. 6803, 7/64 and City of South Milwaukee, Dec. No. 7202, 7/65.

4/ The Union put forth the same argument with respect to the School Board's desire to exclude the Electrician's Helper from the unit.

5/ Emphasis added.

The Union contends that the statements contained in the letters do not establish or infer any disparity of representation of members vis-a-vis non-members.

SCHOOL BOARD'S GOOD-FAITH DOUBTS AS TO UNION'S REPRESENTATIVE STATUS

The School Board asserts that it has a good faith doubt of the Union's majority status since it queried its supervisory staff as to whether they were, from day to day conversations with the employes, able to form an opinion as to whether a majority of the employes presently desire representation by the Union. It further asserts that as a result of these inquiries, in the opinion of the supervisory staff, specifically the school principals, there was a question as to whether a majority of the employes in the bargaining unit presently desire that the Union continue to represent them.

The record indicates that early in the summer of 1967, the School Board directed the Assistant to the School Superintendent to secure information relative to whether or not a majority of the employes in the bargaining unit desired to continue their representation by the Union. The Assistant to the Superintendent thereafter contacted the school principals to determine whether in their opinion a majority of the employes presently desire representation by the incumbent Union, and as a result of such inquiries, at a special meeting of the School Board held in July, the Assistant to the Superintendent reported to the School Board that the school principals were of the opinion that there was a reasonable doubt as to whether or not a majority of the employes in the bargaining unit still desired to be represented by the Union.

The School Board further argues that Section 111.70 (4)(d), Wisconsin Statutes, does not require a municipal employer to demonstrate that it has reasonable cause to believe that the certified union does not represent a majority of the employes in the bargaining unit in that Section 111.70 (4)(d) provides that "whenever a question arises between a municipal employer and a labor union as to the employes of the employer, either the union or the municipality may petition the board to conduct an election among said employes to determine whether they desire to be represented by a labor organization . . ." It further contends the Commission has clearly established a rule which does not require the petitioning union to demonstrate a showing of interest in a petition for a second election, and accordingly, there is no reason to require a municipal employer to demonstrate by objective evidence that there is a lack of interest by the employes in the union certified to represent them.

The School Board argues that since it could not conduct a private poll or interrogate employes concerning their union membership or sympathies, and since documentary evidence such as union dues or check-off authorizations were not available, in order to determine the sympathies and attitude of the employes with respect to union representation, it queried its supervisory staff as to whether, in their opinion, there was a question of representation. The School Board claims that although the evidence is "tenuous," under the circumstances it is the best evidence available. For all of the above reasons the Municipal Employer argues that a question concerning representation does exist in this instance and the Commission should direct an election.

The School Board further argues that it has a reasonable cause to believe that the Union does not presently represent a majority of the employes in the appropriate collective bargaining unit because of the improper inclusion of the craft employes, namely plumbers, painter and electrician's helper, in the original unit, and, also because of the exclusion of the regular part-time cafeteria employes from the original unit, and further, on the basis that the cafeteria employes, being a separate department, constitute a unit separate and apart from the custodial and maintenance employes, and therefore, since there is a question which has arisen concerning the appropriate unit, there also exists a question of representation.

With respect to this issue, the Union argues that Section 111.70(4)(d) does not either specifically grant or deny the Commission the discretion to dismiss employer petitions, and further argues that there is nothing in this section of the statute which contemplates the creation of a device which would "enable public employers 'to disrupt collective bargaining' and upset 'stable relations.'" The Union asserts that there is no reason for granting municipal employers the right to file election petitions where they have no good faith doubt of the union's majority status. The Union asserts that the facts demonstrate that the School Board's purpose in filing this petition was to postpone as long as possible its obligation to bargain in good faith with the Union. The Union argues that the evidence pertaining to the School Board's refusal to bargain subsequent to the election hearing is relevant to the Union's motion to dismiss the petition, and therefore, the Commission's denial of the Union's motion to reopen the hearing to allow evidence with respect to the Municipal Employer's refusal to bargain and dilatory tactics should be reconsidered and the motion granted.

DISCUSSION

The Municipal Employer-Employe Labor Relations Law, in Section 111.70(4)(d), contains the following language with respect to representation elections among municipal employes:

> (d) Collective bargaining units. Whenever a question arises between a municipal employer and a labor union as to whether the union represents the employes of the employer, either the union or the municipality may petition the board to conduct an election among said employes to determine whether they desire to be represented by a labor organization. Proceedings in representation cases shall be in accordance with ss. 111.02(6) and 111.05 insofar as applicable, except that where the board finds that a proposed unit includes a craft the board shall exclude such craft from the unit. The board shall not order an election among employes in a craft unit except on separate petition initiating representation proceedings in such craft unit.

The material portion of Section 111.02(6) of the Wisconsin Employment Peace Act provides as follows:

> (6) The term "collective bargaining unit" shall mean all of the employes of one employer (employed within the state), except that where a majority of such employes engaged in a single craft, division, department or plant shall have voted by secret ballot as provided in section 111.05(2) to constitute such group a separate bargaining unit they shall be so considered. . .

The material portions of Section 111.05 of the Wisconsin Employment Peace Act provide as follows:

> (2) Whenever a question arises concerning the determination of a collective bargaining unit as defined in section 111.02(6), it shall be determined by secret ballot, and the board, upon request, shall cause the ballot to be taken in such manner as to show separately the wishes of the employes in any craft, division, department or plant as to the determination of the collective bargaining unit.

(4) Questions concerning the determination of collective bargaining units or representation of employes may be raised by petition of any employe or his employer (or the representative of either of them) . . . The fact that one election has been held shall not prevent the holding of another election among the same group of employes, provided that it appears to the board that sufficient reason therefor exists.

Under the pertinent statutory provisions a question of representation must exist as a condition precedent to the processing of a petition for an election among employes. The Commission has not required any showing of interest to be demonstrated by any petitioner with respect to the processing of election petitions filed pursuant to the Wisconsin Employment Peace Act or the Municipal Employer-Employe Labor Relations Act. The Commission has considered the filing of the petition, whether it be to certify or decertify a representative, as a good-faith claim that the employes desire to be represented or not to be represented. This policy has been applied in initial and subsequent elections[6/] on the basis of our experience that the overwhelming number of petitions have been filed in good faith with the expectation of obtaining the results prompting the petition.

Under both statutes, the fact that the Commission processes the petition does not necessarily result in the conduct of an election. Even assuming no issue with respect to the appropriate unit, there are other factors considered by the Commission as to whether a question of representation presently exists. In private employment, the Commission has considered the presence or absence of a current collective bargaining agreement, the presence or absence or current and active negotiations and the length thereof, whether the current bargaining agent is certified or recognized, the period of time since the current bargaining agent was certified, and the employment relations history involved. Such considerations have led to the adoption of contract bar principles, as well as a policy with respect to the timely filing of petitions. In processing election petitions under Sec. 111.70, in addition to the above noted factors, the Commission has also considered the budgetary deadlines involved, as well as other pertinent statutes and ordinances affecting the collective bargaining relationship and the implementation of conditions of employment reached at the bargaining table.

The establishment of a policy which would now require labor organizations seeking representation to present a showing of interest or to require that an employer establish a good faith doubt that the employes desire to continue their representation by an incumbent union, requires a consideration of the rights of employes to select or change their bargaining representative, with the interest of preserving stability in existing collective bargaining relationships. We have considered the above-discussed factors in order to balance and achieve these objectives when confronted with issues involving the timely filing of petitions for elections.[7/]

Although the Commission has not in the past processed a substantial number of petitions which have not been filed in good faith, the results of recent elections seeking a change in the present representative status indicate that an increasing number of petitions have been filed where there was little likelihood of success by the petitioner. The processing of such election petitions has resulted in no change in the bargaining relationship and has had an adverse impact upon such existing relationship, in that such processing has interrupted and delayed negotiations, thus affecting the stability of the collective bargaining relationship. Such unwarranted delays create problems especially in municipal employment with respect to the effect of budgetary deadlines and other special deadlines which may be imposed by statute, and in both the private and public employment where such delays create additional issues for bargaining, such as effective dates of agreements, as well as their retroactive application.

The Commission concludes that there is now sufficient reason requiring parties requesting elections seeking a change in representation or the rejection of the present representative to furnish the Commission with objective data raising the question concerning representation before it will conduct such an election, which if otherwise held, might delay and frustrate the relationship between the recognized or certified labor organization and the employer. Inasmuch as election procedures with respect to representation and bargaining units are identical in the Wisconsin Employment Peace Act and in the Municipal Employer-Employe Labor Relations Law, the policies which we are herein adopting shall apply to election proceedings processed by this agency under both statutes.

Accordingly, where there is an existing collective bargaining relationship resulting from a good faith voluntary recognition of the labor organization, or where the labor organization has been certified in an election conducted by this agency, an organization filing a petition for an election among the employes involved at the time of filing must administratively demonstrate that at least 30 per cent of the employes in the claimed appropriate collective bargaining unit desire the petitioning organization to represent them for the purposes of collective bargaining. Where the petition is filed by an employe or employes seeking to terminate the representative status of the incumbent labor organization, the petitioning employe or employes must administratively demonstrate to this agency at the time of filing that at least 30 percent of the employes in the requested bargaining unit desire to terminate the representative status of the union. An employer petitioning for an election in an existing unit must demonstrate to this agency at the hearing, by objective considerations, that it has reasonable cause to believe that the incumbent organization has lost its majority status since its certification or the date of voluntary recognition. This objective evidence must not have been obtained by the employer through prohibited means.

Under both the private and municipal labor laws, all the employes of the employer generally constitute an appropriate unit. The Municipal law contains a specific statutory exception, and that is that craft employes can only be included in a unit consisting of the same craft.[8/] The Commission has applied the same provision to professional employes.[9/] In the private employment act, employes engaged in a separate craft, division, department or plant may determine for themselves whether they desire to constitute a separate unit.[10/] Under the municipal law, this option is also given to employes employed in a separate division, department or plant.[11/] In the past, where a request for such a separate unit has been made, and where it has been established that the unit desired constitutes a separate craft, division, department or plant, the Commission has conducted a unit determination election without any requirement of a showing of interest.

We are now changing our policy with respect to unit determination elections. Where a properly recognized or certified bargaining unit exists, and where a petition is filed by a labor organization seeking a severance from the existing unit on the claim that the unit sought constitutes a separate craft,[12] division, department or plant, the petitioner must administratively demonstrate to this agency at the time of filing that at least 30 percent of the employes in the proposed smaller unit desire to be represented by the petitioning organization in the smaller unit. Where the employes file a petition seeking merely to sever themselves from the existing unit without any representation, such petitioners must administratively demonstrate to the Commission at the time of filing that at least 30 percent of the employes in the claimed separate craft, [13] division, department or plant desire to constitute themselves a unit separate and apart from the employes in the existing unit. When such a petition is filed by an employer, the employer must demonstrate at the hearing by objective considerations that it has reasonable cause to believe that the employes in the claimed separate craft, department, division or plant desire to constitute themselves a separate collective bargaining unit. Of course, if the showing of interest is appropriate, the Commission must be satisfied that the unit sought constitutes a separate craft,[14] division, department or plant. The fact that the Commission directs an election which would permit employes to sever themselves from the existing unit does not in itself raise a question of representation among the remaining employes in the original unit. If a representation election is desired among the employes in the remaining unit, there must be a separate showing of interest for those employes or, in case the petition is filed by the employer, an establishment of a good faith doubt as to whether the employes in the remaining unit desire to continue their representation by the incumbent union.

In the instant proceeding the School Board asserts it has a good faith doubt that a majority of employes desire to continue their representation by the Union. One of the elements relied upon by the School Board in attempting to establish a good faith doubt as to the Union's representative status concerns the fact that the stipulated bargaining unit, which was subsequently certified by the Commission, includes certain craft employes, contrary to Section 111.70(4)(d), Wis. Stats.

The Commission agrees with the School Board that the certified unit should not include craft employes since the statute specifically prescribes that "the board shall not order an election among employes in a craft unit except on separate petition initiating representation proceedings in such craft unit."[15] However, the Commission is not of the opinion that the removal of the craft employes from the certified unit creates a question concerning representation. Instead, it is the Commission's opinion that the matter should be treated as a request for a clarification of the certified collective bargaining unit, rather than as a question concerning representation. Here the craft employes inappropriately included in the unit consisted of two painters, a plumber and the electrician's helper. In the original election, of 88 employes eligible to vote, 84 cast ballots, 51 of whom voted in favor of the Union as their representative while 33 opposed such representation. Assuming that said four "craft employes" had not voted in favor of the Union, the Union's majority would have remained substantial without their vote. Under such circumstances the exclusion of such craft employes from the unit does not raise a question of representation in the existing unit.

The School Board contends that its good faith doubt is further substantiated by the fact that the cafeteria employes, being in a separate division, are entitled to a separate unit vote, and further, that regular part-time cafeteria employes were not included in the original unit. The School Board presented no evidence to support a finding that any of the cafeteria employes, full or part-time, desired to constitute a unit separate and apart from any other employes, or that any regular part-time employes were interested in any representation.

The School Board asserts that the newsletters issued by the Union could be construed as discrimination against non-Union employes and that, therefore, the employes should have another opportunity to express their wishes with respect to representation by the Union. However, there was no evidence adduced which supports the School Board's contention that the employes themselves may have changed their attitude toward the Union or that the newsletters affected the desire of any employes to continue representation by the Union.

With respect to the School Board's reliance on the report made to it by the Assistant to the Superintendent concerning the attitude of the employes toward the Union, the Commission concludes that the evidence with regard thereto is insufficient to establish any reasonable cause to believe that the Union has lost its majority status or that any employes have changed their attitude in that regard. At the most, such evidence is compounded hearsay, and we are satisfied that it does not establish a good faith doubt with respect to the majority status of the Union. Therefore, we are dismissing the petition for the reasons stated herein.

Although an issue was not raised with respect to the timing of the filing of the petition herein, we feel obliged to comment thereon. An election hearing is not an adversary proceeding, but is in the form of an investigation conducted by the Commission for the purpose of determining, among other things, whether it will conduct a representation election among the employes involved.

The term of the agreement involved in this proceeding was to continue until at least December 31, 1967, and from year to year thereafter unless either party requested changes by June 1 of the year preceding the year in which changes are to go into effect. The agreement further provided that bargaining on such requested changes was to commence in September. Here the Union had made a timely request for changes for the 1968 agreement. The School Board did not file its petition until September 26, 1967, approximately four weeks after bargaining was to commence on the requested changes. Had not the Union nor the School Board reopened the agreement by June, the agreement would have continued in full force and effect for another year, and this agency would not have entertained any petition for an election during the remainder of 1967.

It appears to us that the timing of the filing of the petition, and the basis on which it was filed, indicates an attempt by the School Board to frustrate the rights of its employes and the collective bargaining process. If the School Board had had any good faith reasonable basis for questioning the Union's majority status, it should have raised such question prior to June 1, the date on which the agreement can be reopened. The entertainment of election petitions by the Commission after either one or both of the parties are formally preparing themselves for, or are in collective bargaining, after an agreement has been reopened, and especially during the period established for bargaining, would not effectuate the policies set forth in Section 111.70, since the device of filing petitions at such times would impede meaningful conferences and negotiations in public employment as contemplated in the Statute.

In a decision involving Whitewater Unified School District,16/ a labor organization filed a petition requesting the Commission to conduct an election among employes presently represented by another organization. The incumbent organization and the School Board were parties to an existing collective bargaining agreement, which contained no specific reopening date. The Commission dismissed the election petition as being untimely filed, since it was filed some nine months prior to the date on which negotiations would commence for a possible succeeding agreement. In its decision the Commission indicated that the immediate conduct of a second election would affect the stability of the existing collective bargaining relationship, and the Commission concluded that it would entertain a new petition filed any time within the 30-day period prior to the date on which negotiations would commence for a new agreement.

Where there exists a valid collective bargaining agreement which contains provisions for reopening same for the purpose of negotiating terms and conditions of a new agreement, the Commission will only process petitions seeking an election among the employes covered by said agreement if said petitions are filed within a sixty (60) day period preceding the date established for the reopening of the agreement.

In municipal employment, in the absence of a collective bargaining agreement, where the conditions of employment are reflected in a resolution or ordinance which was adopted after collective bargaining and where said resolution or ordinance establishes a date for the commencement of negotiations to seek changes in wages, hours and working conditions, the Commission will process petitions seeking an election only if said petitions are filed within the sixty (60) day period preceding the date established for the commencement of such negotiations.

The reason for the adoption of such time limitations is to promote stability in the collective bargaining relationship, and in municipal employment to insure the parties a reasonable period of time to engage in bargaining and to negotiate an agreement prior to the established budgetary deadlines, or if no representative is selected, to avoid useless bargaining.

In this particular proceeding, because of the accumulation of the reasons set forth for the change in Commission policy, we are dismissing the petition filed by the School Board, for the reasons (1) that the inclusion of craft employes in the certified bargaining unit does not raise a question of representation in said unit;17/ (2) that it has not established a good faith doubt that any of the employes desire to change their bargaining representative; (3) that it has not established that any of the cafeteria employes desire to constitute a separate unit, or that any regular part-time employes desire to be in any unit; and (4) that the petition was not timely filed.

In summary, the policies adopted by the Commission are as follows:

SHOWING OF INTEREST

Where there presently exists a recognized or certified bargaining representative:

(1) Any election petition filed by a rival labor organization or employes must be accompanied by applications for membership or some form of authorization to seek such election,18/ signed and currently dated, by at least 30 percent of the employes in the existing unit, or in the unit desired by the petitioner.

(2) Where the petition is filed by the employer, the employer at the hearing must demonstrate, by objective considerations, reasonable cause to believe that the incumbent organization has lost its majority status either in the existing unit or in a different claimed appropriate unit.

TIME FOR FILING PETITIONS

Where there presently exists a collective bargaining agreement covering the wages, hours and conditions of employment of employes in an appropriate collective bargaining unit, the petition must be filed within the sixty (60) day period prior to the date provided in said agreement for its reopening. Where the conditions of employment are reflected in an ordinance or resolution, the petition must be filed within the sixty (60) day period prior to the date reflected in the resolution or ordinance for the commencement of negotiations for changes in wages, hours and working conditions of the employes in the unit covered by said resolution or ordinance.

The Commission will continue its present policy of not requiring any showing of interest or time limitations on filing of petitions where there exists no certified or voluntarily recognized collective bargaining representative.

Recommendations

PORT JEFFERSON STATION TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

In accordance with the authority vested in the undersigned by the New York State Public Employment Relations Board with regard to a dispute between the parties hereto, and having duly heard the evidence and argument, I make the following recommendations for resolution of the dispute:

I. The Increase in Salary
Effective 1968-69:

(a) The base BA-1 shall become $6,800 in place of the present $6,300;

(b) The index on the BA base shall be graduated in place of the present 5% on the BA base across and down as follows:

(1) 5%, $340 on BA, BA 15 through step 10;
(2) 5-1/4%, $357 on BA, BA 15 beginning at step 11 on BA and BA 15 and applicable to all other steps across and down except as in (3);
(3) 5-1/2%, $374, beginning at step 7 on BA 45 MA through MA 60.

(c) The present separate BA 45 step shall be replaced by BA 45 MA.

II. The Provision for Grievance Arbitration
Effective 1968-69:

A "grievance" is defined as a complaint by a teacher or a group of teachers based upon an event or condition which arises under the terms and conditions of employment of a teacher or group of teachers and/or an alleged violation or dispute concerning the provisions of this Agreement or the meaning, interpretation or application thereof.

3. Level 3-(b) The Association and the Board may agree upon a mutually acceptable arbitrator. If they do not, the Association may appeal the decision of the Board to the Committee of Labor of Suffolk County for arbitration under its rules.

(c) The arbitrator so selected shall confer with representatives of the Board and the Association and hold hearings promptly and shall issue his decision not later than twenty school calendar days from the date of the close of hearings, or, if oral hearings have been waived, then from the date the final statements and proofs are submitted to him. The arbitrator's decision shall be in writing and shall set forth his findings of fact, reasonings and conclusions on the issues submitted. The arbitrator shall be without power or authority to make any decision which requires the commission of an act prohibited by law or mandated upon or within the sole discretion of the Board. Nor shall the arbitrator make any decision which is violative of the terms of this Agreement. The decision of the arbitrator made in conformance with his authority, shall be binding and final. The arbitrator shall have no power to alter, add to or detract from the provisions of this Agreement.

There is this 1st day of May, 1968, transmitted copy of the Findings of Fact and Recommendations for resolution of the dispute to the chief executive officer of the Union Free School District #3, Port Jefferson Station, N.Y. and the Jefferson Station Teachers Association. There is simultaneously herewith made public such Findings and Recommendations.

Pursuant to Section 209 and Section 205.5 (k) of the New York State Civil Service Law, the undersigned was appointed by the New York State Public Employment Relations Board for the purpose of inquiring into the causes and circumstance of the dispute involving the Port Jefferson Station School District and the Jefferson Station Teachers Association and to make findings of fact and recommendations for the resolution of the dispute. Acting under his authority as a Fact-Finder, the undersigned held hearings on April 23 and 25, 1968, at the John F. Kennedy Junior High School, Port Jefferson Station. Both parties appeared, gave testimony, submitted statistical and other evidence and offered argument in support of their respective contentions.

I. The Matters in Dispute

The Association regards as the major differences between itself and the Board*, the requests which it makes on behalf of the teachers in the bargaining unit for (1) a general increase in the 1968-69 salary schedule; and (2) a provision in the new agreement for final and binding arbitration of employee grievances. The Board agrees that the aforesaid are the major differences between the parties. Following the hearing the parties settled the remaining matters in dispute by further collective negotiations. Accordingly, consideration is given hereinafter solely to the issues of salary schedule and arbitration.

The School District

The Port Jefferson-Terryville School District has currently enrolled 3,414 students from K-1 through K-11. In 1968-69, it will have 3,834, and will add grade K-12 to its present Junior High School building. The necessity for sending students to another district at considerable cost will be eliminated with the opening of a new elementary school this Fall, making available facility for grade 6 now enrolled in the Junior High School. These changes and the increase in kindergarten children will require the addition of 40 teachers to the present staff of 169. Plans have been drawn for the construction of a senior high school which, if approved by the residents and taxpayers, will not be completed until 1971. Thus the District is experiencing rising school enrollment, crowded classrooms and inadequate physical plant. Taxwise the school tax rate at present is $14.23 per $100; and there is little industrial property. Despite these pressures of expansion and the resultant tug upon the taxpayer's pocket book, the District has maintained sound educational standards and a fair level of teacher salaries.

I. The Issue of an Increase in Salary

The Association requests that the Fact-Finder recommend that the present salary schedule be increased in 1968-69 as follows:

$1,100 over the current base of $6,300 for the entering teacher with a BA degree or $7,400, with retention of the existing 5% index on the BA base in educational credits increment and length of service increment or $370 in place of the current $315 increment; merge the BA 45 credits progression with the MA making a single BA 45 MA.

The Board requests that the Fact-Finder recommend that the present salary schedule be increased as follows:

$315 over the current base or $6,615 for the entering teacher with a BA degree with retention of the existing 5% index or $330 in place of the current $315; retain the separate BA + 45 progression.

A. The Arguments of the Parties

In support of its position the Association argues:

(1) Teacher negotiated increases in Nassau and Suffolk are currently averaging above 9% of total

*The term Board refers to the Board team, not the Board itself.

bargaining unit payroll when considering the general increase and the addition to existing increments, i. e., new money. When fringe benefits in money value are added, the percentage of new money is 10 percent.

(2) The increase in BA, step 1 is running to 15% above present levels.

(3) Port Jefferson Station ranks 41 out of 600 school districts measured by MA cumulative salary after 20 years or $1,000 ahead of Islip in 52nd place but Islip negotiated a base of $6,900 and a 5-1/2% index; Northport is 79th place, negotiated a $7,000 base; Hauppage, ranked about the same as Port Jefferson Station, negotiated a $6,800 base and indices of 5% across, 5-1/2% on step 4 down, 6% on step 8 down, and 6-1/2% on step 12 down.

(4) The $8,204.30 average salary of teachers in this District is achieved after 8 years at the BA; it is well below the $10,100, the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates a modest family budget requires at today's price level.

(5) Last year's increase of 5% was less than that obtained by teachers generally in other school districts and was accepted by the teachers on the representation that the tax increase would otherwise be extraordinary. In fact, the tax increase turned out to be far less than anticipated.

In support of its position, the Board argues:

(1) The increase which it proposes would cost $125,000 above the existing schedule not including additional social security, retirement, new positions. It represents an increase of 8.25% in existing payroll for unit personnel. (This figure excludes existing increments which come to $53,235).

(2) The existing school tax rate of $14.23 per $100 is fourth highest in the Town of Brookhaven and represents a heavy tax burden for the residents and taxpayers who have very modest incomes and have to provide for a senior high school in the District.

(3) Many school districts in Suffolk have negotiated increases which place their 1968-69 salary schedules well below that sought by the Association and, in some instances, below that offered by the Board.

B. The Findings of Fact

(1) According to data furnished to the Nassau-Suffolk School Boards Association based on 1967-68 salary schedules, the beginning BA teacher at $6,300, resulted in a rank for Port Jefferson Station of 18 below the top out of 43 Suffolk school districts. This ranking was on a par with Babylon, Brentwood, Central Islip, Center Moriches, and Patchogue, among others. The salary was slightly below the average county minimum of $6,331 for beginning teachers and behind Hauppage, Bayport-Blue Point and Bellport, among others.

(2) The maximum on the BA schedule of $10,080, placed this District 33rd in rank below the top and behind Hauppage, Bayport-Blue Point, Brentwood, Bellport and other districts. The salary was below the average county maximum of $10,451 on the BA step.

(3) Taking the teacher with five years preparation, Port Jefferson ranked in 14th place at a minimum of $6,930, a little above the county average minimum of $6,910. With respect to the related steps, the Port Jefferson Station Teacher (MA), reached $11,970 at the maximum or slightly below the county average maximum of $11,979, and the District ranked 19th.

(4) Further statistical measures from the same source (Nassau-Suffolk School Boards Association) show the same conclusion, i. e., that the District ranks closer to the middle countywide, better in some areas of salary than in others as compared with the county averages but not too far above or below averages.

(5) The NYSTA 1967-68 state salary schedule summary indicates that on the 20-year cumulative MA salary schedule, Port Jefferson Station ranks slightly below Hauppage and on a par with East Islip and Sayville in Suffolk and Freeport, Herricks and Lynbrook in Nassau.

(6) By far the preponderant number of school districts in Nassau and Suffolk (including Centereach, Smithtown, Brentwood, and Hauppage) have negotiated a $6,800 minimum 1968-69 for BA-1.

(7) The offer of the Board in terms of new salary would appropriate 4.9% of payroll of bargaining unit salaries which is substantially below the average increase in salary represented by new money (i.e., base increase plus add on to existing increments) in Nassau and Suffolk settlements currently. The latter figure appears to be approximately 9%.

(8) The level of salaries in the Long Island school district generally, the trend of negotiated increases, the ranking of Port Jefferson Station salary-wise in comparison with other districts with which it has kept pace in the past, are all relevant factors employed by the Fact-Finder in arriving at a recommendation. The Board is made aware of these factors in the effort to recruit new teachers; the teachers are aware of these factors in the consideration they give as to whether to accept a position in this or another District.

(9) The Fact-Finder also considers the extent to which the salary schedule allows for increases based on additional educational attainments and length of service in the District for the teacher who continues to serve the educational needs of the District in competent fashion should receive appropriate recognition in the increment structure.

(10) It is anticipated that the State Legislature will provide aid to the extent of the $760 factor. Whatever the precise final figure, the Fact-Finder recommends an appropriate increase in the present salary schedule reasonably consistent with the foregoing findings. Such increase is set forth in the Section, "Recommendations." It will maintain the level of salary schedule in this District relative to the upward changes in teacher salaries generally and the position of this District in relation to the position it now occupies with respect to other school districts as Long Island.

The Fact-Finder is mindful of the tax burden involved in funding the salary increases; he has taken particular note of the present high level of the school tax rate and the as yet unfulfilled need for a senior high school in determining a fair and equitable salary increase.

However, it should be clearly understood that the District cannot expect to attract and hold competent teachers while at the same time seeking to establish a new salary schedule which would be less than realistic in the light of all the aforementioned findings as to comparable teacher salary trends. Acceptable educational standards cost money to maintain. But are the children of this District to be denied the excellence of instruction and the quality of facilities that are necessary effectively to prepare them for the vocation, the college admission, the intelligent, informed participation in the affairs of a democratic society in which they will one day be an active citizen? Teacher salaries are an important element of school costs; they cannot be arbitrarily held down while text book publishers raise their prices, fuel and utility suppliers obtain increases in their product, school bus services move upward in price, custodians demand and receive increases, and builders and architects show no unbecoming modesty. The list could be expanded. It need not be for whatever the costs of running the schools, teacher salaries should be accorded a priority. This is so because in the learning process there is no substitute, not in the audio-visual aid, the closed circuit TV or the teaching machine, for the personal guidance given by the dedicated teacher to the marvel of creation that is the inquiring child. In the frightening race between education and catastrophe in which the foundations of our society are being severely tested, no school district can afford to fall behind with respect to the prevailing level of teacher salaries.

II. The Issue of Final and Binding Arbitration

The Association requests that the Fact-Finder recommend that teacher grievances remaining in dispute after discussion between the Administration or the Board and the Association, shall be submitted to arbitration before an impartial, third party whose decision would be final and binding upon the Association and the Board. The Association would include within the definition of a grievance subject to final and binding arbitration, statements of policy of the Board that affect terms and conditions of employment.

The Board is opposed to final and binding arbitration though it is not averse to advisory arbitration in which a third party would make recommendations as to the disposition of a grievance having to do only with violations of the agreements. Grievances arising out of statements of policy, however, in the Board's view, would not be subject to advisory arbitration.

The Association argues that binding arbitration is necessary in order to fairly decide employee grievances where both parties remain in disagreement and consequently the Board would be the final judge of its own action. Inasmuch as the teachers do not have the right to strike by way of correcting an alleged breach of terms and conditions of employment, they should be afforded instead orderly recourse to decision by an impartial arbitrator. The Association argues further that arbitrable grievances should include disputes over Board policy because many of the terms and conditions of employment are contained in or become the subject of Board policy and are not to be found in the collective agreement. The Association points to several recently negotiated agreements between school districts and teacher associations which provide for arbitration of grievances.

The Board argues that it is unable to accept binding arbitration because a third party would then make decisions affecting matters of policy which are the responsibility of the Board as the representative of the people of the community. The Board explains that it is neither required by law nor can it, practically speaking, await the approval of the Association before it adopts or implements policy which may in some way be said to affect terms and conditions of employment. On the other hand, the Board suggests, it is willing to attempt advisory arbitration with respect to alleged violations of contract provisions as a way of exploring this new and unchartered area of turning to a third party in the settlement of grievances.

A. Discussion and Finding of Fact

However time-consuming, involved and frustrating collective bargaining may become with respect to the wages, hours and conditions of public employees, agreement, finally achieved, brings with it a measure of definiteness and understanding as to the terms of employment over a fixed duration. However, the most skillful of negotiators cannot write the provisions of the agreement in such manner that all day to day questions relating to employment conditions will find ready answers by reference to agreement language. Despite the best effort of the Board and the Association to fairly administer the agreement, there will inevitably occur those differences in interpretation of its terms with regard to employee grievances that will not yield to persuasion.

The prospect of the existence of continuing grievances in the life of a collective agreement is a commonplace in the administration of bargaining contracts covering employees in private industry. There is no reason to expect that grievances will be uncommon in the public sector where, recognition of and collective negotiations with employee organizations has only recently come of age and, if anything, the agreement provisions are limited in substance and reach by the restraints of statute, administrative regulation, and the undelegable discretion of governmental bodies. If, therefore, an agreement such as the one presently being fashioned by the Association and the Board, is to be made to work in practice and thus fulfill the intention of the parties to afford meaningfully satisfactory working conditions, teacher grievances, in appropriately processed fashion, must become susceptible of final solution in the event Board and Association are unable to agree as to the outcome.

Faced with the problem of achieving speedy and judicious decision of unsettled grievances, management and union in private industry early recognized that terminal arbitration would furnish an adequate remedy. And, the Congress gave approval to terminal arbitration of grievances when, in 1947, it included in the Taft-Hartley Act, an expression of public policy in favor of grievance arbitration in private industry. Beginning a decade later, the U.S. Supreme Court, in a series of landmark decisions, judicially sanctioned the enforcement of collective bargaining contracts which provide for finally and binding arbitration of grievances. The Court noted, among other considerations, the use of arbitration as a substitute or quid pro quo for the contractual commitment of a union to a no-strike clause. In view of the prohibition against strikes by public employees under the New York State Public Employees' Fair Employment Act, the adoption of binding arbitration of grievances, within lawful limits, would likewise appear to be a quid pro quo for the declared employee disability.

Section 204 of the Taylor Law requires public employers to negotiate collectively with employee organizations "in the determination of, and administration of grievances arising under, the terms and conditions of employment of the public employees..." It also requires that public employers "negotiate and enter into written agreements with such employee organization in determining such conditions of employment." By the separate reference to the administration of grievances, the legislature showed the particular importance it attached to grievance handling and determination. Indeed, it is a declared public policy of the state and a purpose of the Act, among others, "to promote harmonious and cooperative relationships between government and its employees..." A grievance procedure which provides for terminal arbitration in a final and binding manner where otherwise there would remain the unilateral decision of the Board and/or Administration, contributes substantially to such declared legislative purpose.

Though the Governor's Committee on Public Employee Relations did not concern itself with methods of grievance settlement, it did state:

> We strongly encourage at all governmental levels that the representatives of the employing agency and the employees work out their own procedures for the handling of grievances including terminal arbitration on a case-by-case basis. We suggest this ad hoc basis because of the doubt expressed by some that a provision for binding arbitration applicable to all future disputes would be legal. p. 45

In singling out terminal arbitration as a desirable procedure for grievance disposition, the Committee refers to the doubt of some as to the legality of binding arbitration with respect to all future disputes. It is to be noted, in this connection, that a number of school districts on Long Island (including West Islip, Northport, Brentwood, Cold Spring Harbor, Southhold, Hicksville and Amityville), have to this date negotiated with teacher associations, provision for binding arbitration of grievances. It appears that appropriate safeguards have been written into these contracts relative to the legal problem of assuring to the school district that it will continue to exercise its statutory authority under the Education Law, as well as the rules and regulations of the Commissioner of Education. The undersigned received in evidence, the current agreements of West Islip (Long Island), Buffalo and Schenectady with teacher associations which contain provision for final and binding arbitration of grievances subject to legal safeguards.

It appears therefore that the problem of legality is not insurmountable and does not require the solution offered by the Board, i. e., advisory arbitration. The power of the arbitrator may be defined so as to prohibit unlawful incursions into the area mandated by statute, or reserved to the undelegable authority of the Board.

As for the Board's related concern that the definition of a grievance submissible to arbitration should not intrude on the Board's policy making function, the undersigned believes that such concern, while not without substance, need not remain unquieted. The Association's right to grieve is predicated on "grievances arising under, the terms and conditions of employment..." (Section 204) and "terms and conditions of employment means salaries, wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment" (Section 201, 5).

In the present state of collective negotiations between the Board and the Association, the forthcoming agreement will hardly define the "terms and conditions of employment" with completeness. The Board's statements of policy will continue to be referrable to "terms and conditions of employment" as at present. To the extent, therefore, that such statements of policy give rise to grievances because the claim is made that application of policy involves differences as to "terms and conditions of employment", the grievance would be no less a grievance than one arising solely under the collective agreement "terms and conditions." Such grievance should therefore be subject to the same procedure terminating in final and binding arbitration. However, it must be clearly understood that the grievance would be a complaint of a teacher or teachers who allege that they are prejudiced in some way by the application of the policy just as the grievance under the agreement would involve a claim of teacher or teachers that they are adversely affected by the application of a provision of the agreement.

In view of the foregoing, the Fact-Finder shall recommend that the parties include in the forthcoming agreement provision for final and binding arbitration of grievances in the critical sections of the grievance procedure in dispute, as set forth in the Section, "Recommendations".

PREAMBLE

In order to continue to encourage effective and harmonious working relations among the Board of Education of Union Free School District No. 3, the Executive Office of the District Principal and its professional staff so that the best educational interests of the children of Port Jefferson Station/Terryville may be served, this agreement is hereby entered into on the _____ day of _____, 1968 between the Board of Education and the Port Jefferson Station Teachers Association, Inc.

ARTICLE I

RECOGNITION

A. The Board of Education, Union Free School District No. 3, Port Jefferson Station, New York, having determined that the Port Jefferson Station Teachers Association, Inc., affiliated with the New York State Teachers Association and the National Education Association and incorporated by the Board of Regents in behalf of the University of the State of New York, is supported by a majority of the professional certified personnel in the district, hereby recognizes the Port Jefferson Station Teachers Association, Inc. as the exclusive negotiating agent for the professional certified personnel of this district. The negotiating unit shall include all professional certified personnel except the District Principal, the Assistant District Principal, Principals, Assistant Principals, Coordinators, and Directors. This recognition shall extend until one hundred and twenty (120) days prior to the annual meeting date in 1969 and shall be automatically renewed at that time for a successive period of one year, except as stated in "B" below. The Board agrees not to negotiate with any other individual or organization for members of the negotiating unit other than the Association for the duration of this Agreement.

B. Within 30 days of the end of the one (1) year period of recognition provided for in this Agreement, upon the written request of the Board or of at least thirty percent (30%) of the members of the negotiating unit, the Board may hold an election to determine what organization shall represent teachers in this district. If no such request is received within thirty (30) days of the termination of this Agreement, this Agreement shall automatically be renewed.

ARTICLE II

NEGOTIATION PROCEDURE

A. It is contemplated that the terms and conditions of employment provided in this Agreement shall remain in effect until altered by mutual agreement in writing between the parties or through other provisions provided for in the Agreement. Nevertheless, because of the special nature of the public educational process, it is likewise recognized that matters may from time to time arise of vital mutual concern to the parties. It is in the public interest that the opportunity for mutual discussion of such matters be provided. The parties accordingly agree to cooperate in arranging meetings, selecting representatives for discussion, furnishing necessary information and otherwise constructively considering and resolving any such matters. It is expressly understood that any reasonable requests for the sharing of information shall be honored and that reasonable requests for any meetings to negotiate matters of concern shall be honored. No conditions in the existing contract need be negotiated without the consent of both parties until the regularly scheduled negotiations meetings.

B. This Agreement shall remain in full force subject to Amendment for the duration of the recognition of PJSTA as the representative of professional certified personnel in the District. No later than January 15th each year, the parties agree to enter into good faith negotiations over Amendments to this Agreement. In case of impasse, either party may request the use of mediation. The parties shall seek to agree on a mutually acceptable mediator and will obtain a commitment from said mediator to serve. If the Board and the Association are unable to agree upon a mediator, or are unable to obtain such a commitment, the parties shall request the State Public Employment Relations Board to designate a mediator to assist the parties to reach an agreement. If the parties retain a private mediator but still remain at impasse for ten (10) calendar days, either party may request the State Public Employment Relations Board for further mediation and fact finding. Such mediation and fact finding will be governed by the provisions of Section 209 of the Civil Service Law.

C. Neither party in any negotiations shall have control over the selection of the negotiating representatives of the other party and each party may select its representatives from inside or outside the school district. While no final Agreement shall be executed without final ratification by the Association and the Board, the parties mutually pledge that their representatives will be clothed with all necessary power and authority to make proposals, consider proposals, and reach compromises in the course of negotiations.

D. The meetings of this Committee shall be open to members of the Committee except that competent professional and/or lay people may be invited to attend. Notifications must be sent to the other party prior to the meetings.

E. When used herein, the term "Teachers" refers to members of the negotiating unit. The terms "him" and "his" shall, when appropriate, also apply to "her" or "hers". The singular also shall apply, when appropriate, to the plural.

ARTICLE III

PRIOR SERVICE CREDIT

A. A maximum of eight (8) years acceptable experience is permissible for placement on the salary schedule, at the discretion of the District Principal. "Acceptable teaching experience" is defined as full time teaching in public and/or private schools. Additional credit for teaching may be allowed for a position on the salary schedule at the discretion of the Board of Education.

B. Credit for placement on the schedule for service in the United States Armed Forces and/or Peace Corps may be granted as follows: one year for each full year of service, not exceeding two years. Additional credit for service may be allowed at the discretion of the Board of Education.

C. Credit for service in the field of business may be granted as follows: one full year for each full year of related business experience not to exceed a total of four years.

D. Appointment notices for teaching staff in the following year will be returned to the District Principal no later than ten (10) days after receipt of the same from the District Principal. This appointment agreement is to indicate intent to return to the employ of the district under the employment contract agreed upon by the Board and the Association. This notification of intent to return is not binding beyond May 1st of the present year. The form to be used will be agreed upon by the District Principal and President of the Association.

TENURE

A. The probationary period under the Education Law of the State of New York, with respect to tenure, shall be three years.

B. In cases where non-tenure employees services are not required beyond June 30th of a particular year, they will be notified, in writing, no later than sixty (60) days in advance of that date as required by law. Failure to render such notification shall result in the granting of tenure by default. Every effort will be made by the District Principal to give greater notification when possible.

ARTICLE V

JURY DUTY

A. Teachers who are selected for jury duty shall suffer no loss of benefits.

B. Any remuneration received by a teacher over and above his expenses for transportation, meals and other incidentals shall be forwarded to the Board of Education.

ARTICLE VI

PHYSICAL EXAM

A. Each employee shall undergo a physical examination prior to the opening day of school of the first year of employment, and every third year thereafter. This examination shall include at least the following: a check of reflexes, heart, blood pressure, lungs, eyes, ears, and throat, a urine analysis, and an examination for the presence of hernia. The examination shall be reported to the District Principal on a form provided by the District.

B. Each employee shall undergo an X-Ray examination prior to the first class day of school each year, unless the employee's physician advises, in writing, against his having such an examination.

C. The Board shall assume the cost of the X-Ray (Suffolk County Health Department) and medical examination. If a non-school physician is used for the medical examination, the Board shall reimburse the teacher for the cost of the examination in an amount equal to the fee that would have been paid to the school physician.

ARTICLE VII

CURRICULUM

A. Recognizing that well developed curriculums contribute greatly to quality education, the Board agrees that every teacher shall receive a copy of the appropriate curriculum (s).

B. Further, the Board and the Association agree to establish a joint committee to study ways to develop the best curriculum possible for this district. This committee shall make a written report with recommendations to the District Principal and the President of the Association. The District Principal shall select the committee members with the assistance of the Association.

ARTICLE VIII

TEACHER EVALUATION

A. All monitoring or observation of the work performance of a teacher will be conducted openly and with full knowledge of the teacher. The use of eavesdropping, public address or audio systems, and similar surveilance devices shall be strictly prohibited. Teachers will be given a copy of the evaluation report prepared by their superiors before it is submitted to central administration or put in their personnel files.

B. 1. Observations for evaluation need not be announced.

2. Non-tenure teachers should be observed at least three (3) times per year, omitting September and June unless the individual teacher requests an observation during these months. The intent of observation shall be to evaluate, not to harass, nor to interfere with the instructional program.

3. Every effort shall be made to insure that all visits will be of a duration that will permit the observation of one full lesson.

C. Observations will be performed only by building administrators, qualified persons at the request of the building administrator, or the District Principal.

D. Written reports of observations will be discussed with the teacher, (no later than five days after the observation). Reports and conferences should be of a constructive nature, i.e.: suggestions for improvement.

E. Any complaints regarding a teacher made to the administration by any parent, student or other person will be promptly called to the teacher's attention. The teacher will have the opportunity to respond to such complaints. If a record of the complaint is filed in the teacher's record, his response will also be filed in the record.

F. No teacher will be disciplined, reprimanded, reduced in rank or compensation or deprived of any professional advantage without just cause. Whether just cause exists in any case shall be subject to the grievance procedure.

G. If a critical report of an observation of a teacher is made, the person making the criticism shall record his plan to correct the situation causing the criticism. The next observation report will explicitly, where possible, state what actual steps have been taken to correct the situation causing the criticism. Upon request, the teacher observed may be required to state, in writing, the steps he has taken to correct the cause of criticism.

ARTICLE IX

SALARY PAYMENT

A. One of the following options shall be elected yearly by each teacher concerning the manner in which he is to be paid:

1. Prorated over a ten (10) month period

2. Prorated over a twelve (12) month period with the added election of receiving one large paycheck for the summer on the last day of school or continuing to receive paychecks by mail on scheduled pay days for the summer months.

B. The District Principal shall yearly draw up a payday schedule (calendar) to indicate the dates for issuance of paychecks, and shall submit the schedule to the P.J.S.T.A. for approval.

ARTICLE X

DUES DEDUCTION

A. The Board agrees to deduct from the salaries of its teachers, dues for the Port Jefferson Station Teachers Association, the New York State Teachers Association and the National Education Association and the 2nd Supervisory District Teachers Association as said teachers individually and voluntarily authorize the Board to deduct, and to transmit the monies promptly to such Association or Associations. Teacher authorizations will be in writing in the form set forth on the following page.

"DUES AUTHORIZATION CARD"

Address _____

I hereby request and authorize the Board of Education of Union Free School District No. 3, Town of Brookhaven, Suffolk County, New York, to deduct from my earnings and transmit to the Association checked below, an amount sufficient to provide for regular payment of the membership dues as certified by such Associations in equal monthly payments over the remainder of the school year. I hereby waive all right and claim for said monies so deducted and transmitted in accordance with this authorization, and relieve the School Board and all of its officers from any liability therefore.

Teacher Organization

Port Jefferson Station Teachers Association _____

New York State Teachers Association _____

National Education Association _____

2nd Supervisory District Teachers Ass'n. _____

Dated: _____ Teacher's Signature _____

B. The Association will certify to the Board, in writing, the current rate of the membership dues of the Associations named in Section A above.

C. Deductions referred to in Section A above will be made from the 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th paychecks of the school year. The Board will not be required to honor for any month's deduction, any authorizations that are delivered to it later than October 15th.

D. No later than October 30th of each year, the Board will provide the Association with a list of those employees who have voluntarily authorized the Board to deduct dues for the Associations named in Section A above. The Board will notify the Association of any changes in said list. Any teacher desiring to have the Board discontinue deductions he has previously authorized must notify the Board and the Association concerned in writing by October 15th of each year for that school year's dues.

E. The Board agrees that it will not accord dues deduction or similar check-off rights to any other organizations, except other recognized bargaining units.

ARTICLE XI

SUBSTITUTES

A. Qualifications for substitute teachers shall conform to the regulations of the Commissioner of Education. However, it is the intention of the Board to give preference to persons who are certified and/or who hold a baccalaureate degree.

B. All substitutes will register with a central office administrator or someone designated by him, and that administrator will place the substitute's name on a master list for the district. Said list shall be kept on file and available in each principal's office.

C. Where possible, calls for substitutes will be made by one person (or answering service) for the district. Preference will be given to those who have served competently on previous occasions.

D. Substitutes will receive, on arrival at school, from the office:

1. Daily Plans

2. Assignments for day

3. Bell Schedule

4. A copy of General School Policy

ARTICLE XII

TEACHER PROGRAMS

A. Elementary School - No later than thirty (30) days before the end of the term, preference sheets shall be issued to teachers - to be used in making assignments for the coming year. These sheets shall indicate preference for grade level, and the type of class on that level, with the understanding that, where possible, such preferences shall be honored. Teachers shall be given the opportunity to discuss their assignment requests with their principal.

B. High School and Junior High -

1. No later than thirty (30) days prior to the end of the school year, programming preference sheets shall be distributed to all teachers. Program preference shall be honored where administratively possible. Every effort shall be made to insure that no later than ten (10) school days prior to the end of the school year, teachers shall be notified as to the following matters concerning their program for the following term:

(a) subjects to be taught

(b) grades of the subject to be taught

(c) any special or unusual classes that teachers will be required to teach

(d) the grade level and special nature, if any, of the official class.

(e) the session to which the teacher will be assigned if the school operates on more than one session.

2. Every effort shall be made to insure that, no later than the end of the next to the last school day of the term, teachers shall receive their building programs for the following term, including the periods and rooms where their teaching assignments occur.

3. Where possible, the following will apply: there shall be no more than three (3) consecutive assignments and no more than four (4) consecutive working assignments (including any building assignments). The number of different rooms in which assignments occur shall be held to the absolute minimum administratively possible. The number of lesson preparations shall be kept at the minimum possible. Enriched classes and modified classes shall be considered as separate preparations. Within a department, teachers with a full teaching program and a home room shall be given preference in the assignment of the number of preparations. A teacher will not change a room assignment without the approval of the building principal.

C. 1. Within the first two (2) weeks of the opening day of school, each building principal shall post, in the faculty room, a master sheet showing the complete schedule, including duties, of all teachers. This master sheet shall be kept up to date. Updating shall be the responsibility of the individual school principal.

2. Equitable standards, within a school, for exemptions from home rooms and building assignments shall be applied.

ARTICLE XIII

CONDITIONS OF INSTRUCTION

The Board and the Association agree that a teacher's primary function is to teach. Therefore: The Board, the District Principal and the Association shall strive to develop a policy to make this a reality.

ARTICLE XIV

INTER-SCHOOL TEACHER PROGRAM

In arranging schedules for teachers who are assigned to more than one school during a school day, the District Principal shall make an effort to limit the amount of inter-school travel. Such teachers shall be assigned no more than five (5) classes per day with no duty period. They shall be compensated for inter-school travel at the rate of one hundred dollars ($100) per year for the use of their cars if, in the course of their teaching duties, they travel between schools on a daily basis. If a teacher travels between schools on less than a daily basis, he shall be compensated for the use of his car which shall be pro-rated accordingly.

TEXTBOOKS AND MATERIALS

A. The Board shall make every effort to provide sufficient books, textbooks, and materials for each subject taught in the classroom so as to insure that each child in a classroom is supplied with books, textbooks, and materials for his own use at his own level.

B. The Board agrees that before a change in textbooks or reference texts is made, or a new textbook or reference text is selected, principals in the elementary schools will secure the recommendation of the appropriate teachers for the change or new selection of texts and reference materials. Before a change in textbook (s) and/or reference book (s) is made in the high school or junior high school, the department head and/or the principal will discuss the change with the teachers in the appropriate departments. The recommendations of the teachers in the Elementary, High and Junior High Schools shall guide the Principal and Administration in making the final decision.

C. The Board will provide sufficient teaching equipment and supplies as are reasonably needed in the school system.

ARTICLE XVI

PROMOTIONS, VACANCIES & TRANSFERS

A. All vacancies in positions, including specialists and/or special project teachers, shall be filled pursuant to the following procedure:

1. Such vacancies shall be adequately publicized, which shall mean, as a minimum, that a notice shall be posted in every school clearly setting forth a description of and the qualifications for the position, including the duties and salary range. During summer recess, notices shall be distributed to the staff by mail.

2. Such notices shall be posted as far in advance as possible, ordinarily at least thirty (30) days before the final date when applications must be submitted, and in no event less than two weeks before such date.

3. Teachers who desire to apply for such vacancies shall submit their applications in writing to the District Principal, or his authorized agent, within the time limit specified in the notice.

4. Such vacancies shall be filled on the basis of qualifications for the vacant post, provided, however, that where there are two or more applicants who are equally qualified, in the opinion of the District Principal, seniority in the Port Jefferson Station School System shall prevail.

B. All appointments to the aforesaid vacancies and openings shall be made without regard to age, race, creed, color, religion, nationality, sex, or marital status.

C. Voluntary Transfers and Assignments

1. No later than March 1st of each school year, the District Principal shall post in all school buildings, a list of the known vacancies which will occur during the following school year.

2. Teachers who desire a change in grade and/or subject assignment or who desire to transfer to another building, shall file a written statement of such desire with the District Principal not later than March 15th. Such statement shall include the grade and/or subject to which the teacher desires to be assigned and the school or schools to which he desires to be transferred, in order of preference.

3. No later than May 10th of each school year, the District Principal shall post in all school buildings, a supplemental list of known vacancies which will occur during the following school year.

4. No later than May 20th, teachers may file an application for reassignment or transfer to positions listed on the supplemental list of vacancies.

5. No assignments of new teachers in the school system shall be made until all pending requests for reassignment or transfer have been acted upon.

6. The District Principal shall discuss with the Association, information pertaining to individual reassignments and/or transfer.

7. In determination of requests for voluntary reassignment and/or transfer, the convenience and wishes of the individual teacher will be honored to the extent that they do not conflict with the instructional requirements and best interests of the school system. If more than one teacher has applied for the same position, the teacher best qualified for that position shall be appointed, and qualifications being substantially equal in the opinion of the District Principal, senority in the school system shall prevail. When a position is filled, the District Principal shall promptly advise all unsuccessful applicants for the position.

D. Involuntary Transfer and Assignments - The Port Jefferson Station Teachers Association recognizes that some involuntary transfer of teachers from one school to another or reassignment within a school is unavoidable. They also recognize that under normal circumstances, transfer or reassignment of teachers should be held to a minimum. Therefore:

1. Notice of an involuntary transfer or reassignment shall be given to teachers as soon as practicable and, under normal circumstances, no later than June 15th.

2. When involuntary transfer or reassignment is necessary, volunteers from among those affected will be transferred or reassigned first. A teacher's area of certification, major and/or minor field of study, quality of teaching performance, and length of service in the school system will be considered in determining which teacher is to be transferred or reassigned.

3. An involuntary transfer or reassignment will be made only after a meeting between the teacher involved and the District Principal, at which time the teacher will be notified of the reasons therefore. In the event that a teacher objects to the transfer or reassignment at this meeting, upon the request of the teacher, the Association will be notified and the District Principal will meet with the Association's representative to discuss the matter.

4. Openings in the school system will be discussed with the teachers being involuntarily transferred or reassigned. Such teachers may request the positions to which they desire to be transferred. Teachers being involuntarily transferred or reassigned shall have preference over those seeking voluntary transfer or reassignment. In consideration of involuntary transfers, those best qualified for a particular position shall receive priority, and, qualifications being substantially equal, seniority in the school system shall prevail.

5. The District Principal shall discuss with the Association, information pertaining to individual reassignments and/or transfers.

ARTICLE XVII

TEACHER AND ASSOCIATION RIGHTS

A. Every effort shall be made to provide the following facilities in each school:

1. Space in each classroom in which teachers may safely store instructional supplies and materials.

2. Well lighted, private, comfortable, properly equipped and clean rest areas and separate toilet facilities for men and women teachers.

3. A teacher's desk and teacher's chair for the teacher in each classroom.

4. Duplicating machines, calculating machines, typewriters, etc., in each school shall be made available for the reasonable use of teachers.

B. Insofar as reasonably practicable, and as expeditiously as possible, each school shall be provided with the following:

1. A teacher work area containing adequate equipment and supplies to aid in the preparation of instructional materials.

2. An appropriately furnished room to be used as a faculty lounge.

3. A special lunch area in each school for the exclusive use of teachers, and facilities for warming, refrigerating and storing food.

4. Each school shall have a pay phone.

C. An adequate portion of the parking lot at each school will be reserved for the teaching staff.

D. New construction will include adequate teacher facilities of the nature noted in A, B, and C above.

E. The Association will have the right to use school buildings without cost at reasonable times for meetings.

F. A faculty bulletin board will be installed and maintained in the faculty room in each school building. The Association will have the unrestricted right to place notices, circulars, and other material on faculty bulletin boards, in teachers' mail boxes, and by check-in sheets. It is expressly understood that no member of the Administration will assume responsibility for the posting or distribution of material for the Association or any other teacher organization.

G. If negotiation meetings are scheduled by the Board and agreed to by the Association, during school hours, teachers who are involved in negotiations will be relieved of their regular teaching duties during these hours with no loss of pay.

H. The District shall provide reasonably adequate and proper clerical assistance to teachers in order to assist them in the preparation of tests, instructional materials, etc..

I. The teachers shall have the right to install a cold and/or hot drink machine in their faculty room and/or lounge.

J. The Board shall make arrangements to have each class room cleaned at the end of each school day.

ARTICLE XVIII

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

A. Appointments to positions of summer employment shall be made, in writing, not later than June 15th each year by the District Principal. Additional teaching needs may be filled at a later date.

B. Appointments to such summer employment shall be made with preference being given to qualified teachers already employed within the District, if the District Principal deems this to be in the best interests of the District.

C. All openings for summer employment shall be adequately publicized by the District Principal in each school building, as soon as possible.

D. Once a teacher is contracted for summer employment, he shall be employed in an appropriate professional capacity for the period specified, at the agreed compensation, irrespective of the enrollment for summer school or other unforeseen circumstances.

E. Remuneration for a 6 weeks summer school shall be on the following basis:

1. $550 for one class taught
   $800 if two classes are taught
   $950 if three classes are taught

2. Elementary summer school - $900 each teacher.

3. Summer School Remedial Reading Program - $900.00 each teacher.

ARTICLE XIX

LEAVES

A. Sick Leave - Teachers shall receive ten (10) sick days each year without loss of any benefits. Unexpended sick leave shall accumulate to one hundred fifty (150) days. Sich leave is defined as leave for personal illness, or illness in the teacher's immediate family, or any person residing with the teacher, which requires the teacher's presence.

B. Death in the Family - In cases of death in the family, (defined as: parents, aunts, uncles, parents-in-law, guardians, grandparents, grandparents-in-law, brother, sister, brothers-in-law, sisters-in-law, wife, husband, child or relative living with or dependent upon the family) the employee will be allowed the number of days absence required, up to a maximum of five, each occurence, without deduction of salary.

C. Maternity Leave - Maternity leave shall be granted to a teacher who is a prospective mother, for a period of time to be determined in consultation with her principal and the District Principal. A teacher, when she is aware that she will require a maternity leave, will notify the District as soon as she has medical confirmation. Questions relating to how long a prospective mother may teach before the birth of her child, and how soon after the birth she may return to duties, shall be determined by the teacher concerned with the advice of her personal physician and the District Principal. A prospective mother may teach for five months from the date of conception.

D. General Leaves - The Board may grant leaves of absence for reasons other than previously specified. Reasonable requests shall be honored. Any requests for such leave shall be answered no later than four (4) weeks after submission of such request to the District Principal. Emergency leaves will be given immediate consideration and answered within two (2) weeks.

E. Personal Days - Teachers may be absent from duties, without loss of benefits, at least two (2) days during any school year. These days are in addition to religious holidays, as specified by the Commissioner of Education. A written report of intended absence, on a form to be agreed upon by the District and the P.J.S.T.A., for such personal days shall be submitted to the District Principal no later than one day prior to the expected absence. No reason for such personal day shall be required or solicited. It is expected that such absences shall not be contiguous to a school holiday, unless necessary. Additional personal days may be granted at the discretion of the District Principal.

F. Professional Days - Teachers shall be granted one day's absence from duties without loss or benefits for activities related, in the opinion of the District Principal, to the profession of teaching. Additional days may be granted at the discretion of the District Principal. A written report of intended absence, on a form agreed upon by the District and the P.J.S.T.A., will be submitted to the District no later than one (1) day prior to the expected absence. The District Principal may request a report summarizing the day's activity. An additional five (5) professional days will be allocated to the Association and shall be administered by the Association.

G. Catastrophic Sick Leave -

1. In the event that a teacher shall suffer an incapacitating illness or accident, catastrophic sick leave will commence subsequent to a waiting period of fifteen calendar days, catastrophic sick leave will commence when fifteen (15) days accumulated sick leave has been expended.

2. The duration of such sick leave will not extend past one-hundred and eighty (180) consecutive working days. Should disability carry over to the next school year, extended coverage would likewise carry over.

3. An incapacitating illness is one that is under treatment by a physician and which, by the school physician's recommendation, makes it inadvisable for the person afflicted to continue working.

4. A teacher on tenure shall receive the full benefit when deemed necessary by the school physician, of one-hundred and eighty (180) consecutive working days leave. However, in the case of a non-tenure teacher whose contract was not to be renewed, the extended sick benefit will not carry beyond the term of the existing contract.

5. Extended sick leave shall be granted when necessary to any person who has worked a minimum of ten (10) days as a regular member of the teaching staff. Where Workmens Compensation is involved, the Board reserves the right to use the formula of payment: salary minus Workmens Compensation payments. Extended sick leave shall be granted only once to any one person during a school year except where it seems reasonable to the Board of Education to grant futher time.

6. If a teacher is still unable to return to work at the expiration of sick leave and catastrophic leave benefits, he shall be granted an indefinite unpaid leave of absence. It is understood that the leave terminates if the teacher accepts employment elsewhere.

7. If the next school year takes place while the teacher is on catastrophic sick leave, he shall accumulate another ten (10) sick days.

ARTICLE XX

REQUIRED MEETINGS & CONFERENCES

Teachers may be required to attend no more than two meetings each month, unless they are held on school time. These meetings shall not extend more than forty (40) minutes past the end of the required working day. It is agreed that, in exceptional cases, a greater number of required meetings, or meetings longer than forth (40) minutes duration, may be held.

ARTICLE XXI

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

A. This Agreement shall constitute the full and complete commitments between both parties and may be altered, changed, added to, deleted from or modified only through the voluntary, mutual consent of the parties in a written and signed amendment to this Agreement. Before the Board adopts a change of policy which affects wages, hours, or any condition of employment which is not covered by the terms of this agreement and which has not been proposed by the Association, the Board will notify the Association in writing, that it is considering such a change. The Association will have the right to negotiate such items with the Board, provided that it files such a request with the Board, ten (10) school days after the receipt of said notice.

B. This Agreement shall supersede any rules, regulations or practices of the Board which shall be contrary to or inconsistent with its terms. The provisions of this Agreement shall be incorporated into and be considered part of the established policies of the Board.

C. Any individual agreement, arrangement or contract between the Board and an individual teacher, heretofore executed, shall be subject to and consistent with the terms and conditions of this or subsequent agreements to be executed by the parties. If an individual agreement, arrangement or contract contains any language inconsistent with this Agreement, this Agreement, during its duration, shall be controlling.

D. If any provisions of this Agreement or any application of the Agreement to any teacher or group of teachers shall be found contrary to law, then such provision or application shall not be deemed valid and subsisting except to the extent permitted by law, but all other provisions or applications shall continue in full force and effect.

E. Copies of this Agreement shall be printed at the expense of the Board and shall be distributed to all teachers now employed in this District at least twenty-four (24) hours prior to the Association meeting held to ratify this agreement. All new teachers employed after the adoption of this Agreement shall receive a copy of this Agreement no later than the date upon which they are employed by the district.

F. It is expressly understood that teacher "staff handbooks" shall not be distributed to teachers without the prior review of the Association of the contents of such handbooks. By June 1st, 1969, the Board shall reduce all policy to written form and put it into a bound book form. This policy book will be regularly supplemented as Amendments are made. The Association will receive a copy of this policy book and all Amendments made to it.

G. The Port Jefferson Station Teachers Association is representative of the staff for the purpose of discussion of, negotiation on, and participation in the matters which affect the collective interests of the parties to this Agreement. The collective interests include, but are not limited to, recruitment of teachers, teacher turnover, class size, teaching load, personnel policies, performance of non-teaching duties (extra-curricular duties, remuneration and assignment procedures, clerical duties, etc.) teacher facilities, teaching assignments, transfers, promotions, summer school, protection of teachers, leaves of absence, medical benefits, health services, substitute teachers, salaries, in-service training, professional improvement, professional standards, curriculum, communications, community support for school programs, and fringe benefits.

ARTICLE XXII

A. Hours -

1. The length of the required working day for teachers in the secondary schools shall not exceed 7 hours.

2. The length of the required working day for teachers in the elementary schools shall not exceed six hours and fifty minutes.

3. The starting and dismissal times for students shall be determined by the Board of Education.

B. Class Load -

1. In the High and Junior High School, there shall be a maximum of five teaching periods, one preparation period of not less than forty-five (45) minutes, one administrative period, and one full duty free lunch period for all teachers each day.

2. Every elementary school teacher shall have a forty-five (45) minute duty free lunch period each day. Every elementary school teacher shall have a minimum of five (5) preparation periods each week.

ARTICLE XXIII

CLASS SIZE

The Board recognizes that the following are desirable goals which they will strive to achieve:

A. Elementary Schools

1. No kindergarten class should exceed twenty-three (23) pupils.

2. In the first and second grades, classes should not exceed twenty-five (25) pupils.

3. In grades three through six, classes should not exceed twenty-seven (27) pupils.

4. Physical education classes should not exceed thirty-five (35) pupils.

B. High and Junior High School

1. No subject class in Junior or Senior High School should exceed twenty-eight (28) pupils.

2. The size of classes in laboratory science should not exceed twenty-four (24) pupils.

3. Physical education classes should not exceed forty (40) pupils.

4. For the first thirty-five (35) students assigned to a study hall there should be assigned one teacher. For every additional thirty-five (35) students, or fraction thereof, assigned to a study hall there should be assigned one teacher aide. The Board and Association agree that a review of study hall policy is in order.

5. In rooms with specific equipment - business, shops, et.al., the number of pupils assigned to such rooms should not exceed the number specified in State recommendations.

6. In no case should the total pupil load for one teacher exceed one hundred twenty five (125) students.

7. In Team Teaching situations, a ratio of one (1) teacher to every twenty-five (25) students should be maintained.

8. These limitations are not meant to be restrictive or to prevent the introduction and use of new teaching methods.

ARTICLE XXIV

EXTRA-CURRICULAR SERVICES

A. All extra-curricular services shall be established as paid services. Extra-curricular services are all those services for which teachers are responsible to the administration, and are in excess of teaching and non-teaching profession related duties. Non-teaching profession related duties are covered by the contract salary and include: student conferences, extra help, parental conferences, membership and participation in professional organizations, consultation with pupil personnel services, class attendance, reports, supervisory and administrative activities such as lunch room, bus duty, supervised study, etc.. The Board agrees to make every effort to limit clerical, supervisory and administrative duties.

B. It is agreed that one or more non-teaching profession related duties may be removed or added to the list by mutual agreement between the administration and the Association.

C. Participation in all extra-curricular services by teachers is to be without coercion, consented to by the teachers involved. Any teacher may refuse to participate in any extra-curricular service.

D. Any teacher who wishes to volunteer any services, which are extraordinary to his contract may do so, free from intimidation or coercion by any member of the Board, Administration, Association or fellow workers.

E. All extra-curricular services are created by the administration with the approval of the Board. All such extra-curricular services shall be defined by the District Principal and these job descriptions shall be made available to all teachers.

F. The limits of the number of extra-curricular service positions that any individual may hold shall be restricted only by the ability of such teachers to perform the services. It is expressly understood that appointment of teachers to extra-curricular service positions shall be made, from among the applicants for such positions, strictly on the basis of the individual's ability to perform such services.

G. The schedule of payment for extra-curricular services shall be included in this Agreement as Appendix A.

H. Any extra-curricular services that are not included in Appendix A shall be remunerated at a rate negotiated between the Association and the Board.

I. The method of payment for extra-curricular services shall be on a monthly or seasonal basis, whichever is more appropriate.

CALENDAR

A. The Representative Council of the Association shall have the privilege of reviewing the proposed calendar drawn up by the District Principal and of making recommendations concerning it before its final adoption by the Board.

B. The following provisions will be included in each yearly calendar:

1. One full day in October or November and one full day in April or May for teachers conferences.

2. A maximum of three snow days. The chief administrator and the F.J.S.T.A. President, or his designee, will confer on the day or days to be used for make-up days.

3. One day of orientation for new teachers to our district to be followed by one day of preparation conferences for all teachers. The Association shall assist the District Principal in preparing the orientation program.

4. A week of afternoons (1:00-3:00) shall be provided for parent-teacher conferences at the end of the first marking period.

5. One special day (Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday) shall be set aside each week for Association activities. No other meetings shall be held on that day.

ARTICLE XXVI

TIME FOR THE PRESIDENT

The Board and the Association realize that the President of the Association is often required, by the nature of his position, to spend a considerable amount of time during the year in matters that are not only related to teachers, but to general cause of education within the District. In consideration of this, the Board agrees to make every effort to limit his class and duty assignments in order to promote the best interests of the District.

ARTICLE XXVII

STUDENT DISCIPLINE AND TEACHER PROTECTION

A. Protection

1. Teachers will immediately report to the school principal all cases of assaults suffered by them in connection with their employment.

2. This report will be forwarded to the District Principal and he will comply with any reasonable requests from the teacher, or his representative, for information in his possession relating to the incident or the persons involved, and will act in appropriate ways as liaison between the teacher, parents, the police, the courts, and other interested parties.

3. If a criminal or civil proceedings are brought against a teacher alleging that he committed an assault in connection with his employment, such teacher shall be provided by the Board with competent legal counsel to defend him in such proceedings.

4. The Board will reimburse teachers for the cost of medical, surgical or hospital services (less the amount of any insurance reimbursement) incurred as the result of any injury sustained in the course of employment.

B. Discipline

1. A teacher, on notifying the principal or his designee, may exclude from a class period, and send to the place designated by the principal, a student who is, in the professional judgement of the teacher, causing serious disruption. When a student is excluded from class, the teacher will confer with the principal, or his designee, to provide necessary information concerning the problem within twenty-four (24) hours. The principal may reinstate the student after advising the teacher, that some adjustment has been made, or following a conference which includes at least two of the following persons: a counselor, an administrator, the child and/or parent, the school psychologist, or the attendance officer. The teacher shall be informed, before the student's return to class, by the principal, as to the results of the conference and the adjustment made.

2. After three such referrals, at the latest, the principal shall have the student and at least one parent attend a conference on school rules. The school shall be represented at this conference by the principal and if appropriate, other personnel. If the teacher (s) involved and the principal agree that a procedure other than a parental conference would be more beneficial to the student, that procedure may be substituted. This shall be a prerequisite to returning the child to class.

3. If the student continues to cause serious disruption, in the professional opinion of the teacher, the principal or appropriate person shall suspend or detain the student for an appropriate period of time. Such actions may be reapplied if the disruptive behavior continues.

4. Principals shall notify the police in case of any juvenile delinquency, criminal acts in the schools and any other serious school related offenses by students.

5. A continuous record of discipline cases shall be maintained in each student's permanent record file (in reference to Items 1 to 4) for the use of the Professional School Staff.

6. A teacher has the same legal right to administer corporal punishment for the purpose of restraining and correcting students, in attendance at school, as has the parent in maintaining discipline in the home, provided such punishment is reasonable in form and moderate in degree.

7. When a student is returned to the school setting and receiving concurrent outside help for his behavioral problem, it is the teacher's responsibility to acquaint himself with the nature and progress of such help.

ARTICLE XXVIII

TAX SHELTERED ANNUITY

The Board shall make available to all members of the professional staff the Tax Sheltered Annuity. Selection of the carrier of such annuity programs shall be at the option of the Board of Education. The Board shall provide a program of payroll deductions to pay for these programs. The existing carrier shall not be changed without the mutual consent of the Board and the Association.

ARTICLE XXIX

GRIEVANCE

A. Definitions

1. A "grievance" is a claim based upon an event (s) or condition (s) which affects the welfare and/or terms and conditions of employment of a teacher or group of teachers and/or the interpretation, meaning or application of any of the provisions of this Agreement or any subsequent Agreement entered into pursuant to this Agreement.

2. An "aggrieved person" is the person or persons making the claim.

3. A "party of interest" is the person or persons making the claim and any person who might be required to take action or against whom action might be taken in order to resolve the claim.

B. Purpose

1. The purpose of this procedure is to secure equitable solutions to the problems which might arise between teachers, Association and/or Administration and Board of Education.

2. Nothing herein contained will be construed as limiting the right of any teacher (s) and/or the Association having a grievance to discuss the matter informally with any appropriate member of the Administration. No settlement of an informal nature shall be made with an individual teacher which shall be inconsistent with the provisions of this Agreement.

C. Procedure - Since it is important that grievances be processed as rapidly as possible, the number of days indicated at each level should be considered as a maximum and every effort shall be made to expedite the process.

1. Level one - Upon receipt of a written grievance by the District Principal, the District Principal shall arrange a meeting with the aggrieved person or his designee within five (5) days. The District Principal shall make a disposition of the grievance to the parties of interest in writing within five (5) days of such a meeting.

2. Level Two - If the District Principal makes no decision concerning the grievance within five (5) days of his meeting with the aggrieved person, or if the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the decision made at level one, he shall submit his grievance to the Representative Council of the Association, or a committee designated by the Representative Council to hear such grievances. If the Representative Council or its designated committee deems the grievance to be meritorious, it shall refer the grievance to the President of the Board of Education. Within ten (10) school days of the receipt of a grievance by the President of the Board, the Board shall meet with the aggrieved person, or his designee, for the purpose of resolving the grievance.

3. Level three -

(a) If the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at level two, or if no decision has been rendered within ten (10) days since he first met with the Board, the aggrieved person may request the President of the Association to submit his grievance to arbitration.

(b) The Association and the Board may agree upon a mutually acceptable arbitrator. If they do not, the Association may appeal the decision of the Board to the Commissioner of Labor of Suffolk County for arbitration under his rules. If the Commissioner of Labor of Suffolk County is not available, the Association may appeal the decision to the American Arbitration Association.

(c) The arbitrator so selected shall confer with the Board and the aggrieved person, or his designee, within twenty (20) days from the date of the close of hearings or, if oral hearings have been waived, then from the date the final statements and proofs are submitted to him. The arbitrator's decision will be in writing and will set forth his findings of fact, reasoning and conclusions on the issues submitted. The Arbitrator will be without power or authority to make any decisions which requires the commission of an act prohibited by law or which is violative of the terms of this Agreement. In grievances arising under the contract, the decisions of the fact-finder shall be binding on both parties. In grievances arising outside the scope of the contract, the recommendations of the arbitrator shall be advisory.

(d) The costs for the services of the arbitrator, including per diem expenses, if any, and actual and necessary travel and subsistence expenses, will be shared equally by the Board and the Association.

D. Rights of Teachers to Representation

1. No reprisal of any kind will be taken by the Board or any member of the Administration against any party in interest, any building representative, any member of the Representative Council or any other participant in the grievance procedure by reason of such participation.

2. Any party of interest may be represented at any or all stages of the grievance procedure by a person (s) of his own choosing. When a teacher is not represented by the Association, the Association shall have the right to be present and to state its views at all stages of the grievance procedure.

E. Miscellaneous

1. If, in the judgement of the Representative Council, or its designee, a grievance affects a group or class of teachers, the Council, or its designee, may process such a grievance as though it were an individual grievance. In such a case, the Association may process a grievance for all persons concerned, even though an individually aggrieved person may not wish to do so.

2. All documents, communications and records dealing with the processing of a grievance will be filed separately from the personnel files of the participants.

3. Forms for the filing of grievances, serving notices, taking appeals, making reports and recommendations and other necessary documents will be prepared, with the approval of the Association, by the District Principal and be given appropriate distribution so as to facilitate operation of the grievance procedure.

4. Nothing in this agreement shall be construed so as to deny the Association, or its representatives, the right to seek redress before any appropriate Administrative Agency or through the courts, if such a course seems to them, at their sole discretion, more appropriate.

5. It is expressly understood that this grievance procedure shall not be used to delay the resolution of conflicts that might arise related to the interpretation of this Agreement.

ARTICLE XXX

SALARIES

A. The basic salary schedule of the District is appended to and considered a part of this Agreement as Appendix "B".

B. Teachers with an MA, its equivalent or better, shall receive a double increment granted at step 6 providing the teacher has had a minimum of four years of service in Union Free School District No. 3.

C. Teachers will receive longevity increments of five percent (5%) of their salary at the 20th, 21st, 25th and 30th years of teaching service.

D. Unless otherwise specified, Professional Staff included in the Association's Negotiating Unit, who are presently receiving a differential in the pay scale, shall continue to receive the same differential.

E. No teacher in the district shall be below step.

F. Chairmen of departments having less than six (6) members (including the Chairman) shall receive a salary differential of five percent (5%) above their annual salary.

G. Chairmen of departments having six (6) or more members (including the Chairman) shall receive a salary differential of eight percent (8%) above their annual salary.

H. Reading teachers shall receive a differential of $550 above their annual salaries.

I. The Clinic Teacher shall receive $500 differential above his annual salary.

J. Guidance Counselors shall receive a $400 differential above their annual salaries.

K. Psychologists shall receive a $400 differential above their annual salaries.

L. No teacher shall receive a reduction in salary or other compensation as a result of this Agreement.

ARTICLE XXXI

INSURANCE

A. All insurance provided by the district for staff members shall be provided for all full time staff members.

B. The Board of Education shall pay seventy-five percent (75%) premium for teacher's choice of major medical and statewide, G.H.I. or H.I.P. Health and Accident insurance for the teacher and his dependents.

C. In the event of the death of a staff member, his estate will receive, from the District, the equivalent of one (1) full year's salary.

ARTICLE XXXII

PROFESSIONAL IMPROVEMENT

A. S.C.O.P.E. In-Service courses will be accepted for credit on the salary schedule.

B. Teachers shall be granted full credit for inclusion on the salary level for approved undergraduate courses - for courses taken after the Bachelor's degree is attained. Courses are approved by the District Principal or his designee.

ARTICLE XXXIII

SABBATICAL LEAVE

A. 1. Sabbatical leave shall be herein defined as a leave of absence from school with pay as provided by the particular leave selected.

2. The Board of Education shall provide a sabbatical leave without any loss of benefits heretofore accrued for not less than three percent (3%) of the faculty in the School District after February 10, 1968 if there are sufficient applications. Administrators in the District shall not be included in determining the three percent (3%) provision.

3. A sabbatical leave may be granted for study, or travel. A sabbatical leave shall be granted upon application of the staff member prior to April 1, 1968, for a period of: one (1) year at full pay if the staff member has served ten (10) years in the School District, or a full year at 50% pay if the staff member has served seven (7) years in the School District. Any income received as salary, in excess of the teacher's annual salary, provided from outside the School District, will be deducted from sabbatical leave salary.

B. 1. A committee from the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee of the Association, together with the Administration, shall select those staff members to be granted a sabbatical leave if the number of applicants exceeds the number of leave positions available, based upon the merits of the particular requests.

2. Those staff members not granted a sabbatical leave because of the number of positions and applicants shall be given first consideration the following year.

C. In the event that a staff member is not able to complete the granted sabbatical leave for the purpose for which it was granted, due to unforeseen circumstances, the staff member shall be allowed to return to work in the School District without any loss of pay or benefits or to remain on sabbatical leave, whichever is more appropriate at the discretion of the Board of Education.

D. Upon return, the teacher shall be place on the appropriate step in the salary schedule as though the teacher had not been on leave. Sabbatical leave shall entail the loss of no benefits.

E. By virtue of a written agreement, the teacher is expected to return to the District for one year. Also, by virtue of a gentleman's agreement, it is hoped he will return to the District for a total of three (3) years.

ARTICLE XXXIV

SPECIALIST SERVICES

The Association and the Board recognize that an adequate number of competent specialists is essential to the operation of an effective educational program. In consideration of this, both parties agree that every effort should be made to provide the District with the necessary specialists.

The Board and the Association agree to establish a joint committee to investigate and determine the further needs for specialist services in the District. This committee shall report its findings and recommendations to the District Principal and the President of the Association when completed. The District Principal shall select the committee with Association recommendations.

ARTICLE XXXV

TEACHER AIDES

The Board and the Association agree that a teacher's primary responsibility is to teach and that his energies should, to the extent possible, be utilized to this end. Therefore, they agree as follows:

A. The Board shall maintain no less than seven (7) full time teacher aides, or their equivalent, by the beginning of the 1968-1969 school year in order to relieve teachers from performing non-teaching and clerical tasks. The Board agrees to increase this number at a reasonable rate.

B. The Association and the Board shall establish a joint committee to study the most effective methods possible to make use of teacher aides. This committee shall make a report with recommendations as to the number of teacher aides that the District should employ, and in what areas they would be most useful in the promotion of educational excellence within the District. This report shall be made jointly to the District Principal and the Association and shall become the subject of negotiations in the Agreement that shall succeed this Agreement. The District Principal, with the assistance of the Association, shall appoint the members of this committee.

ARTICLE XXXVI

SELF-EVALUATION

A. Because both the Board and the Association are vitally interested in the quality of the educational program of the Port Jefferson Station/Terryville Schools, and because self-evaluation can be one of the most profitable ways to improvement, they have agreed to the following: in school year 1968-1969 a committee composed of two (2) Board members, two (2) administrators selected by the District Principal, and four (4) teachers appointed by the Association will evaluate our local school system using the National Education Association's Profiles in Excellence.

B. Cost of purchasing copies of the evaluation instrument will be borne by the Board and the Association.

C. Official copes of the report will be presented in writing to the Professional Staff by the District Principal at an official District Faculty Meeting.

D. A summary of the report will be presented in writing to the Professional Staff by the District Principal at an official district faculty meeting.

E. Appropri[illegible] steps will be taken to publicize our strong point[illegible] and to correct any conditions needing improvement.

Negotiation Research Digest

Volume 2, No. 2 October 1968

First Comprehensive Agreement in Arizona ..... Text: D-1

Full text of agreement negotiated between Board of Education of the Phoenix Union High School System and Classroom Teachers Association of Phoenix Union High School System (NEA), effective from the first teacher workday of the 1968-69 school year to July 1, 1970. Includes salary schedule for 1968-69 and 1969-70 school years, and provisions on academic freedom, teacher evaluation, sick leave, sabbatical leave, and grievance procedure which terminates in advisory arbitration.

Student Behavior Problems Provision ..... Description: A-1

Article from agreement between Ferndale City School District, Michigan, and Ferndale Education Association (NEA).

Survey Data on Organizational Representation..... Data and Statistics: B-1

Majority of local school boards negotiate with only one local teachers organization which represents classroom teachers only. Three tables from NEA Research Division's negotiation survey on recognition, negotiation, and determination of local teacher organization(s).

Mediation Board's Recommendations on Salary Impasse ..... Description: A-2
Text: C-1

Mediation Board reviews financial situation in Adams County School District 14, Colorado, and recommends that starting salary for beginning teachers with BA degree be increased by $400 per annum. Other recommendations are progressively greater annual increases: $450 for teachers at BA degree maximum, and $575 to $750 for other teachers, depending on years of employment.

Description and Analysis

STUDENT BEHAVIOR PROBLEMS PROVISION

Students who pose severe behavior problems can disrupt the learning environment and hinder other students' education. Behavior problems require individual diagnosis and assistance. The agreement between the Ferndale City School District, Michigan, and Ferndale Education Association (NEA) establishes a "Crisis Committee" composed of administrators, specialists, and classroom teachers. This committee evaluates and reviews the individual circumstances and explores and recommends possible solutions to student behavior problems. (For another approach to student discipline see the Phoenix, Arizona, agreement reprinted in Section D: Article VII, Special Student Programs, page D-4; and Article XXI, Student Discipline, page D-8.)

"CRISIS COMMITTEE"

54. The Crisis Committee is a group of Ferndale educators who meet to make program plans for children who are posing severe behavior problems. The standing committee is composed, at the present time, of the Assistant Superintendent; a building principal; the reading consultant; the School Diagnostician; the Director of Special Education; and the FEA representative. The visiting teacher of the particular school is also included, along with the classroom teacher and the building principal. The Committee does not have a regular location or time to meet but is convened by the Director of Special Education when the need arises.

The need is based on the following criteria:

A. The teacher is having considerable difficulty in controlling the child's behavior. The behavior is such that the education of the other students in the room is endangered.

B. All normal or routine procedures, at the building level, for handling problems, have been exhausted.

C. The principal of the building has received, completed and forwarded a referral on the student to the Special Education Office.

D. The child has been tested by our school diagnostician.

E. The child has been evaluated by a psychiatrist and reports are available.

F. The teacher has maintained an anecdotal record on the child for a period of time.

G. The district has no special programs for which the child is eligible.

H. Appropriate placement outside of a public school setting is not available.

Based on the above information then the Director of Special Education convenes the Crisis Committee at a designated time and place.

55. The Committee hears all the information on the child and then takes whatever action seems appropriate in order for the child, teacher and students in the classroom to proceed. The Committee is reconvened again at the request of the teacher and the building principal or at a designated time, usually four weeks after the initial staffing, to discuss progress, or lack of progress, and to evaluate the initial recommendations.

56. The Committee cannot force compliance but only functions as a group to share ideas or to explore what might be done. It is up to the teacher and building principal to implement the plan. The minutes of the meetings are forwarded to all participants.

NEGOTIATION IMPASSE PROCEDURE USED IN ADAMS COUNTY, COLORADO

In May 1968, after more than four months of salary negotiation between the Board of Education of Adams County District 14, Colorado, and District 14 Education Association (NEA), an impasse was declared. The impasse resulted from the Association's wanting a higher beginning salary, progressively higher annual increases, and higher top salaries, and the school board's seeing no financial way of implementing these increases within the budget limitations.

The Professional Relations Agreement negotiated in 1966 between the Board of Education and the Education Association contains an impasse procedure. (The full text of this agreement was reprinted in the May 1967 Digest.) This procedure provides for the establishment of a mediation board composed of one person appointed by the Board of Education, one person appointed by the Association, and a third person elected by these two. This mediation board holds hearings, determines the facts, and makes recommendations.

The impasse in this case was resolved when the mediation board analyzed the school district's budget, reserve funds, and revenue sources which emphasized the district's financial difficulties, and proposed a means by which, with extremely careful budgeting and distribution of funds, the Board of Education could give beginning teachers a $400 increase and retain the multi-step salary schedule requested by both parties.

AGENCY SHOP CHALLENGE HELD PREMATURE BY MICHIGAN COURT

To challenge the agency shop clause of the collective bargaining contract made between the Warren Board of Education and the Warren Education Association, a nonaffiliated teacher brought his case before a lower state court in Michigan. The contract, which states that the WEA is the exclusive bargaining unit for the Warren teachers, requires any teacher not joining the Association to "execute an authorization for the deduction of a sum equivalent to the dues and assessments of the Association which sum shall be forwarded to the Association" to cover the expenses of negotiation processes. If such authorization is not given, the contract gives the Board the right to notify the teacher that his employment will terminate with the end of the school year. In this case, the nonaffiliated teacher asked the court to declare the provisions of the collective bargaining contract to be contrary to the Michigan Teachers' Tenure Act. However, because all administrative remedies under the contract had not been exhausted, the court declared the plaintiff's plea premature.

IOWA DISTRICT COURT DECLARES STATE BOARD OF REGENTS CAN RECOGNIZE AND BARGAIN WITH EMPLOYEE ORGANIZATIONS

In an attempt to implement collective bargaining with its employer, the State Board of Regents, Local No. 1258 of the United Packing House Food and Allied Workers of America, AFL-CIO, (a local union of nonacademic personnel employed by the physical plant department at the University of Northern Iowa) struck. The Board, however, feeling bound by a 1961 opinion of the Attorney General that the State of Iowa does not have "to recognize unions for bargaining purposes" refused to negotiate. In an attempt to resolve the conflict, the Tenth District Court of Iowa issued a temporary injunction and scheduled a hearing. The Court determined that although the State of Iowa does not have to recognize unions for bargaining purposes, it can recognize and bargain with them.

CONTRACT PROVIDES NO CHANGE IN CONDITIONS OF EMPLOYMENT-- ATTENDANCE-KEEPING TASK NOT COVERED

During the last three years of an experiment in departmentalized instruction on the elementary level, the teachers at Riverbend School, Athol, Massachusetts, were relieved of keeping attendance records for their pupils. During these three years they signed a contract with their school board stating that wages, hours, and other conditions of employment would not be altered. Then the School Committee decided to revert to an earlier self-contained classroom system and returned the record-keeping duties to the teachers. The teachers, considering the addition of such duties a violation of their "conditions of employment," filed a grievance, but were told, when the case was taken before the arbitration panel, that keeping of attendance registers was not a condition of employment. Absent of any specific contract provision, the school committee has the right to require teachers to keep attendance records.

Data and Statistics

DATA ON RECOGNITION, NEGOTIATION, AND DETERMINATION OF LOCAL TEACHER ORGANIZATIONS

Table 1 shows that 90.4 percent (1,999) of the 2,212 school systems with negotiation agreements or procedures in 1967-68 negotiate with one local teachers organization which represents part or all of the professional staff. The categories of professional staff represented by these 1,999 school systems are:

- 62.1 percent represent classroom teachers only
- 28.9 percent are all-inclusive units
- 8.7 percent represent classroom teachers and building administrators
- 0.3 percent represent classroom teachers and central office personnel

Only 9.6 percent (213) of the school systems which enclosed a negotiation agreement or procedure with the survey questionnaire recognize more than one organization or do not recognize any organization. The majority of these school systems reflect the different recognition provisions contained in several state negotiation statutes. In California and Minnesota, a joint negotiating council is established when more than one organization requests recognition. Organizational representatives on the council are selected on a proportionate basis. The Oregon statute mandates a committee elected from the certificated school personnel.

While 5.4 percent (119) of the school system recognize more than one local organization, nearly two-thirds of these systems were reported in California and Minnesota. School systems with multiple recognition usually negotiate with two organizations; however, New York City reported separate agreements with five local organizations representing various categories of the professional staff. Over two-thirds of the 94 school systems which do not recognize any organization are in Oregon. Only 31 school systems throughout the country have adopted policies similar to those mandated in Oregon.

Type of Negotiation with Multiple Organizations

In the 119 school systems which negotiate with two or more organizations, three basic negotiation procedures are reported: (a) 25 systems reported separate negotiation sessions held with each recognized organization, (b) 87 systems provide joint negotiating councils with proportional representation, and (c) 7 systems have joint negotiation with equal representation from each recognized organization. A system-by-system breakdown is provided in Section E.

Tables 1 and 2, when considered on the basis of enrollment strata, show that the percent of systems recognizing two or more organizations decreases as the size of the systems decrease. This same pattern was indicated in the 1966-67 data presented in the October 1967 Digest.

Method Used To Determine Organization(s)

Table 3 lists the various methods used by the school systems to determine the organization(s) which will be designated for negotiation. Only the 2,118 school systems that recognize one or more organizations are reported in this table. The remaining 94 systems utilized a procedure other than organizational representation.

The Issue:

The sole question presented to the Mediation Board for consideration and recommendation was: What should be the salary schedule for the teachers of Adams County School District 14 effective September, 1968?

The Professional Relations Agreement between the Board of Education of Adams County School District 14, Adams County, Colorado, hereinafter referred to as the Board, and the District 14 Education Association, hereinafter referred to as the Association, provides for establishment by mutual consent of a Mediation Board when an impasse is reached during professional relations. Under the Agreement, the Mediation Board functions as a fact finding body with the ultimate responsibility to present recommendations to the membership of the Association and the Board for their consideration and vote.

Pursuant to Article IV of the Agreement, the Mediation Board met with representatives of the Board and of the Association in formal hearings at the times noted above, and after analyzing the testimony and documentary evidence (see list of exhibits attached hereto) and weighing the arguments of the parties, the Mediation Board makes the following observations and recommendations.

The Negotiation Process:

The Mediation Board reviewed the negotiation process and discussed the issues involved with the parties. The following factors and attitudes appear to have contributed to the impasse that resulted:

1. The Agreement between the Association and the Board makes clear cut interpretation difficult. As a result, the parties spent approximately the first four weeks in negotiations attempting to resolve the issue of appropriate representation. The Agreement should leave little room for questioning the role of the parties concerned or the procedures to be involved in the process of negotiations.

2. The negotiations commenced in January, 1968. This late date did not allow sufficient time for negotiations among the relatively inexperienced negotiation representatives. Contract renewal time, as prescribed by law, is April 15. It seems appropriate that negotiations be scheduled so that they may be terminated prior to that date.

3. A substantial portion of the negotiating time was devoted to consideration of the financial problems of the District and attempts to reach understandings about the budget process. Several changes in accounting methods and processes in recent years made comparative studies difficult. Federal programs, and their accounting requirements, created some confusion. A change in the State law required all school districts to adopt a calendar budget year commencing not later than January 1, 1967. Prior to that time, the fiscal year of the District was from July 1 to June 30. The change in the budget process of the District made it difficult for the parties to review the financial history of the District and reach meaningful understandings. The process of developing a salary schedule which covers a school year, while the budget of the District is based upon a calendar year, resulted in misunderstandings and disagreements.

4. At the time impasse was declared in early May, 1968, both parties had reached a point of frustration. The Association representatives felt that after negotiating for more than four months and making three salary proposals without concessions from the Board that too little progress had been made. The representatives of the Board believed they had made a fair salary proposal to the Association, in light of the budget limitations of the District, and that the Association and its members refused to give that proposal adequate and reasonable consideration.

Financial Structure of the School District:

Latest available data reveal the following:

1. Adams County School District 14 has the second highest tax levy among the 181 school districts in the State of Colorado.

2. The combined General Fund levy, Capitol Reserve Fund levy, and the Bond and Interest Fund levy for the past four years has been:

1965 - 48.50 mills	1967 - 55.88 mills
1966 - 51.61 mills	1968 - 59.88 mills

The rate of taxation shown applies to property as assessed in the preceding calendar year.

3. Even though the property taxpayers of the District have assumed a high mill levy, the revenue derived provides less for the support of each pupil than is provided per pupil in many districts with a substantially lower mill levy.

4. Adams County School District 14 ranks 12th from the bottom among the 181 school districts in assessed valuation per pupil in average daily attendance. Only three of the fourteen school districts in the Denver Metropolitan area - Adams County District 12, Adams County District 50, and Arapahoe County District 2 - have a per pupil property tax base which is less than the base for this District.

5. Best available data support the conclusion that the adjusted gross income per pupil with the District is lower than that of other districts in the Denver Metropolitan area.

An analysis of the financial structure of Adams County School District 14 leads to the conclusion that the tax base of the District is inadequate to meet the demands placed upon it. It doesn't seem appropriate that the second highest school district levy in Colorado should produce less revenue than would be required to support a program of average per pupil cost.

As the need for increased educational expenditures continue from year to year, the mill levy for this District will continue to get progressively higher. The financial structure of this District imposes an undue burden on the property taxpayers and provides less revenue than is needed.

Only through action of the Colorado General Assembly can meaningful relief to the financial situation in the District be realized.

Revenue Considerations:

During the process of negotiations, considerable discussion centered on the sources of revenue which might be utilized to fund the 1969 budget and the reallocation of certain funds. Representatives of the Association suggested that budgeted amounts for certain functions could be reduced and the savings applied to increased instructional salaries. Specifically, the Association suggested the Board:

1. Reduce transportation services, or charge a transportation fee.

2. Eliminate or substantially reduce the Contingency Fund.

3. Employ no additional personnel this coming year.

4. Eliminate the Capital Reserve Fund levy and appropriate a similar number of dollars to the General Fund.

5. Increase the percentage of the total budget allocated to instructional salaries.

6. Increase the mill levy.

7. Impose student fees for field trips and a rental fee for the use of text books.

The Mediation Board spent considerable time reviewing the suggestions made relative to additional revenues and the possibilities of reallocating certain portions of the budget to other purposes. The understandings of the Mediation Board are presented as follows.

Transportation

The State plan for the support of bus transportation provides that a school district shall receive from the State 15¢ per mile plus 3¢ a day for each pupil transported by bus, but in no case will the State support more than 75% of the amount actually spent by the District in transporting pupils to and from school. A school district receives no reimbursement from the State for such things as field trips, activity trips, etc. Few of the larger districts receive the full 75% of the total cost of transporting pupils from the State.

In this District, elementary pupils are transported to and from school if they live more than 3/4 of a mile from their attendance center. It is common practice among school districts in the State to transport pupils only if they live more than a mile away from the school. Many unusual and extremely hazardous traffic conditions exist within the District which seem to justify the established practice as it applies to elementary school students. Further, the Mediation Board concluded that relatively few dollars would be saved by adopting the one mile practice of other districts.

Some savings might be realized through the purchase of different type buses, but the amount is speculative. Pusher type school buses are being purchased for use in the District. Although the initial outlay for the purchase of these buses is somewhat greater, the view was presented that such buses have a greater carrying capacity, are less expensive to maintain, and are more maneuverable on the bus routes of the District.

Although the Mediation Board concluded that relatively little could be saved by amending the policies of the District with regard to the distance which pupils should be transported or with regard to the purchasing policy of buses, it believed that the imposition of transportation fees for student field trips, activity trips, and other sources might result in a savings of as much as $7,000 a year, but the Mediation Board makes no recommendation concerning the institution of such fees.

The Contingency Fund

The Contingency Fund of the District is authorized by law to cover costs created by acts of God, emergencies, and other items which could not reasonably have been foreseen at the time of budget adoption. The Mediation Board does not recommend the elimination of the Contingency Fund allocation in the budget.

In some respects, the Contingency Fund of a District is similar to an insurance policy. You hope that it isn't used, but it is important that the protection be provided. In reviewing the budgets of other districts, it would appear that the amount allocated to the Contingency Fund in Adams County School District 14 is not out of line. However, some consideration might be given to a reevaluation of contingency needs, and it may be determined that a lesser amount may be budgeted for this purpose.

The Employment of Additional Personnel

The decision as to whether teachers or other personnel should be or should not be employed must be based upon an evaluation of need, and the Mediation Board had insufficient data before it to reach any conclusions in this regard.

Capital Reserve Fund

Colorado law provides that a board of education may appropriate 2 mills for a Capital Reserve Fund. The monies in the Capital Reserve Fund are used for the purchase of new equipment, classroom furnishings, minor building remodeling, etc. The law does not permit these funds to be used for General Fund purposes.

The Colorado Industrial Commission has cited numerous building deficiencies in the District which must be corrected, because they reflect potential health or safety hazards. The Board and Administration feel compelled to correct these deficiencies at the earliest possible date.

A bond proposal was recently rejected in this District. Because funds are not available, maintenance projects are now on an emergency catch-up status. The amount allocated to preventive maintenance is totally inadequate. When a bond issue is approved, consideration may be given to reducing or eliminating the Capital Reserve Fund levy.

Percent of the Budget Allocated to the Instructional Salaries

The budget allocation for 1968 provides that 61.22% of the total shall be devoted to instructional salaries. The Mediation Board was presented evidence to show that only two districts in the Denver Metropolitan area allocate a higher percentage of their total budget to instructional salaries.

As a general practice, the concept of allocating a given percentage of the budget to different functions seems appropriate in establishing guidelines for budget development. However, the specific needs of all categories of the budget must be given due consideration and the allocation of funds should be adjusted accordingly. The percentage allocated to teachers salaries or other functions of the budget may need to be adjusted either upward or downward. In the absence of an evaluation of the total needs of the District, the Mediation Board cannot conclude that too little of the present budget is allocated to instructional salaries.

Revenue Sources

The limitations of a school district to derive additional revenue from increased levies must be given due consideration. Colorado law provides, in effect, that a board of education may authorize property tax increases in an amount not to exceed 5% of that derived from this source in the preceding year. The 5% increase authorized by law does not relate to the total budget of the District, rather it relates to the property taxes of the District and the extent to which revenues from this source may be increased.

The 1968 budget of the Adams County School District 14 calls for a General Fund net property tax requirement in the amount of $1,960,997. If the Tax Commission were to permit the inclusion of the levy for the Capital Reserve Fund ($84,818) in the computation of local property tax requirements for 1968, the Board, in its discretion, could increase revenues from property tax sources for 1969 in an amount equal to 5% of $2,045,815, or a total of $102,290.75.

The Colorado Tax Commission has authority to permit increases in excess of the 5% if the need can be demonstrated to its satisfaction. If the Tax Commission rejects a request for increase above the 5% limit, the question may be presented to the taxpaying electors of the District and they may vote to approve or reject increases without limit.

It is the view of the Mediation Board that a vote on the budget will probably be necessary in this District next year. In determining the extent to which revenue increases should be sought for 1969, it would seem essential that consideration should be given to (a) the probability of receiving Tax Commission approval, and (b) the possibilities of securing voter approval of a substantial levy increase if the Tax Commission rejects the proposal.

Student Fees

In the process of negotiations, some discussion centered on the possibility of raising additional money through student fees for field trips and a book rental charge. It has been the position of the District that such charges should not be imposed. The State Board of Education, by resolution, has stated the policy view that districts should not impose such charges on students. The Mediation Board notes, however, that many districts do receive some funds from student sources.

Financing Educational Programs in the Future

As we look at the financial status of the District for the next two years, some problems appear inevitable. All educational costs are likely to increase. As reserve funds are depleted, they will have to be replaced with tax revenue dollars. The Mediation Board finds no reason to justify expectations that the 1968 revenues will be higher or lower than presented in the budget. In reviewing the 1968 budget of the District, the Mediation Board concluded that the budget of the District presented a reasonably accurate programmed plan of income and expenditures for the operations of the District. Revenue sources and the purposes for which monies were to be spent were readily identifiable.

At best, the process of budget developing and budget reviewing requires a degree of educated guessing. However, in reviewing the 1968 budget of the District, the Mediation Board has determined that anticipations for ending fund balances as of December 31, 1968, may be developed in this way:

$166,000	Planned ending fund balance
$ 46,000	By holding 1968 expenditures to 1% less than the amount budgeted
$ 60,000	Anticipate that only $20,000 of the $80,000 budgeted for contingency will be used in 1968
$ 7,500	Reduce the number of new personnel to be employed

If the above speculations become a reality, it would be feasible for the Board to apply $235,000, or a little more, to the 1969 budget. It is essential, however, that the persons involved realize the problems which result when reserve funds are used to pay for continuing commitments.

When a district has reserve funds, and anticipated expenditures exceed anticipated revenues, the reserve funds can be applied and the tax requirement reduced accordingly. However, as we look to the future, it must be realized that the day will come when reserve funds are not available to apply to continuing budget commitments. At that time, an increase in tax revenues must be sufficient to cover increased expenditures plus the amount applied from reserve funds in the preceding year. The Mediation Board anticipates that a substantial tax increase will be required in the 1970 budget if the reserve funds are significantly applied to the 1969 budget.

In the discussions that took place during the process of negotiations, a possibility for the funding of the 1969 budget considered the following sources of revenue which would be in addition to the anticipations for 1968:

$107,085	Additional income from property tax relief fund
$127,500	A 3 mill increase in property taxes
$100,000	Apply $235,000 of the ending balance to the expenditures budget. In 1968, $135,000 of reserve funds were applied to continuing budget items which must be maintained.
$334,585	Total

The increase in budgeted appropriations required by the salary schedule proposed by the Mediation Board amounts to approximately $243,100. If this represents 61.22% of the increase for next year, the total increase in the 1969 budget would amount to approximately $400,000. The funding of the Mediation Board recommendation will require careful planning. It will be necessary that every effort be made to reduce spending during the remainder of 1968 and to hold to a minimum the amount budgeted for other purposes in 1969.

Salary Schedule Considerations

The charge to the Mediation Board was to give due consideration to all relevant factors and recommend a teacher salary schedule which would be fair and equitable to all concerned. In the hearings conducted by the Mediation Board, attempts were made to ascertain the desires of the parties relative to a salary schedule.

Among the salary schedule views presented by representatives of the Association were the following:

1. Salaries paid teachers in the District must be significantly increased.
2. The salary schedule should recognize the labors of past service.
3. Annual increases in salaries should get progressively higher.
4. There should be a commitment to pay better salaries at the top level.
5. There should be a greater difference between the top and bottom of the salary schedule.
6. It is considered desirable that the beginning salary for a teacher with a BA degree should be at least $5,800.
7. The remaining items for negotiation following the adoption of a salary schedule this year will not have significant budgetary implications.

Among the salary schedule views presented by representatives of the Board were as follows:

1. The total cost of any proposed schedule should be such that it can be funded within the budget limitations of the District.
2. The top salaries paid teachers with BA degrees should be limited, thus encouraging these people to seek professional growth.
3. A schedule which recognizes and rewards professional growth.
4. A schedule that will permit the District to be competitive in the employment of new teachers as well as more adequately compensate the older teachers in the District.

A review of the salary data received by the Mediation Board clearly revealed (a) the need to increase base salaries to permit the District to be competitive in seeking to employ well qualified teachers, and (b) the significant need to increase the salaries at the top for persons who had demonstrated professional growth.

The average salary paid the teachers of the District compares favorably with the average teacher salary in the State and in the Denver Metropolitan area, but this results because the percentage of long term employees in the District is significantly greater than in neighboring districts.

Both parties have expressed an interest in and a desire to continue the multi-step salary schedule designed to encourage and reward professional growth among teachers through graduate study. The existing schedule has unquestionably effectively contributed to such professional growth in the District. The Mediation Board is, under the circumstances, not disposed to recommend a change from the multi-step schedule. The Mediation Board believes the multi-step schedule is theoretically sound but generally more expensive than schedules with fewer steps based on educational advancements. The teachers must realize and appreciate the salary advantages of the multi-step salary schedule over schedules with less steps; they cannot fairly compare the two types of schedules by examining the salary at a given, or selected, point because all factors in one salary schedule must be weighed against all factors of any other schedule before a fair comparison is possible.

Salary Schedule Recommendations

The salary schedule recommendation of the Mediation Board is based on the following assumptions:

1. That the issues which remain to be negotiated will not have significant budgetary implications; and

2. That the funding of the proposed salary schedule can be accommodated without the need for a budget election this year.

The Mediation Board believes the salary schedule it recommends should include the following features, and the recommended schedule has been so designed:

1. The salary paid to a beginning teacher with a BA degree is $5,800 per annum. This compares with a $5,400 base salary in the present schedule.

2. The schedule provides for progressively greater annual increases in salary, thus rewarding those teachers who choose to continue their service in the District.

3. Teachers with a BA degree who have reached the maximum on the existing schedule are provided a salary increase of $450.

4. Salary increases for teachers entitled to receive a salary increment in September, 1968, range from a low of $575 for the first year teacher to a high of $750 for all teachers on the regular schedule who have been employed in the District seven or more years.

5. The multi-step schedule concept is continued unchanged and provides a salary increase for each 15 quarter hours of college credit earned by a teacher.

6. The increase in cost to the District in the 1968-69 school year amounts to approximately $243,100. In the 1969 budget of the District, it will be necessary to provide for the payment of increments during the period from September to December, 1969.

The Mediation Board makes the following recommendations:

1. That the parties adopt the salary schedule attached hereto.

2. That the District hold in effect the recommended salary schedule for the duration of the calendar year 1969.

3. That, before April 15, 1969, the Board and the Association agree on a new salary schedule for the calendar year 1970 which gives substantial consideration to the need for maximum salaries that are in line with those in effect in the other school districts in the Denver Metropolitan area.

Respectfully submitted this 5th day of June, 1968,

John Phillip Linn, Chairman

Frank S. Miles

William E. Stiles, Jr.

DISMISSAL OF CHALLENGE TO "AGENCY SHOP" PROVISION OF ASSOCIATION'S CONTRACT WITH WARREN, MICH., SCHOOLS

STATE OF MICHIGAN
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF MACOMB

James Clampitt, for himself and on behalf of all professional employees of the Warren Consolidated Schools, similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

vs. No. X-67-2865

The Board of Education of the Warren Consolidated Schools and the Warren Education Association, Defendants.

OPINION

The action herein was commenced on August 8, 1967. A Motion of Warren Education Association for Accelerated Judgment of Dismissal was filed January 25, 1968. The Plaintiff asks this Court for a Judgment declaring void the provisions of the collective bargaining contract being contrary to the Teachers' Tenure Act and for a permanent injunction against enforcing those provisions. Later, oral arguments were had by respective counsel, the Court took the decision under advisement; briefs were to be and were filed.

The Plaintiff accepts the Statement of Facts set forth in the Defendant, Warren Education Association's brief. The Board of Education of the Warren Consolidated Schools has for a number of years recognized the Warren Education Association for the purpose of collective bargaining under the Public Employment Relations Act. (PERA). A collective agreement was negotiated and entered into by the parties which governed their relations for the 1966-1967 school year period. The agreement herein was negotiated June 14, 1967, for the period 1967-1970 and remains in full force and effect at the present time. This agreement continues to provide that the Association is the "exclusive bargaining representative for all members of the unit which includes teachers such as Plaintiff. (Article 1, Section 1).

Article II, Section 3 provides: "Any contract between the board and an individual teacher shall be expressly subject to the terms and conditions of the agreement."

In Article I, Section 3 the public employer agreed to deduct membership fees and regular dues established by the Association for its members upon signed authorization of the member. In Section 4 it was affirmed that Association membership "shall be open to all teachers regardless of race, creed, sex, marital status or national origin." It was further provided:

"It is recognized that the proper negotiation and administration of collective bargaining agreements entail expense which is appropriately shared by all teachers who are beneficiaries of such agreements. To this end, in the event a teacher shall not join the Association and execute an authorization for dues deduction, such teacher shall, as a condition of continued employment by the Board, execute an authorization for the deduction of a sum equivalent to the dues and assessments of the Association which sum shall be forwarded to the Association. In the event that such an authorization is not signed for a period of thirty days following the commencement of employment of the teacher, the Board agrees that in order to effectuate the purposes of the Public Employment Relations Act and this Agreement, the services of such teacher shall be discontinued as of the end of the current school year. Such teacher or teachers shall be notified of the termination of their services immediately upon the expiration of the thirty (30) day period heretofore However, if at the end of the school year the teacher or teachers receiving the termination notice shall then be engaged in pursuing any legal remedies contesting the discharge under this provision before the Michigan Tenure Commission or a court of competent jurisdiction, such teacher's services shall not be terminated until such time as such teacher or teachers have either obtained a final decision as to the validity or locality of said discharge, or said teacher or teachers have ceased to pursue the legal remedies available to them by not making a timely appeal of any decision rendered in said matter by the Michigan Tenure Commission or a court of competent jurisdiction."

The above-quoted provision corresponds to what is known in private employment as an "agency shop." In Roberts' Dictionary of Industrial Relations (1966) "agency shop" is defined as:

"A union security provision to eliminate 'free riders.' All employees in the bargaining unit are required to pay dues or service charges to the collective bargaining agent. Non-union employees, however, are not required to join the union as a condition of employment. Payment of dues is to defray the expenses of the bargaining agent in negotiations, contract administration, etc."

A closed shop is defined as:

"A union security arrangement where the employer is required to hire only employees who are members of the union. Membership in the union is also a condition of continued employment. The closed shop is illegal under federal labor statutes."

Roberts' Dictionary of Industrial Relations (1966). The existence of the said above stated provision in the agreement was publicized to all members of the bargaining unit, almost all of whom are members of the Warren Education Association. To those few teachers who are not, the Board of Education sent letters advising them that because of the provision in Article II, Section 3, non-members refusing to pay a sum equivalent to dues and assessments of the Association would be terminated from employment in accordance with the agreement. Plaintiff is one such teacher who was so notified and who has refused to comply. Plaintiff, whose employment is subject to termination, concedes that the provision for an agency shop in a collective bargaining agreement between a public employer and the bargaining agent is permitted under the Public Employment Relations Act (Act 336, Public Acts of 1947, as amended). It is only the penalty provided in Article I, Section 4, of the collective bargaining agreement between the school board and the Warren Education Association that "In the event that such an authorization (for the deduction of a sum equivalent to the dues and assessments of the Association) is not signed for a period of thirty (30) days following the commencement of employment of the teacher, the board agrees that in order to effectuate the purposes of the Public Employment Relations Act in this agreement, the services of such teacher (under tenure) shall be discontinued as of the end of the current school year," which plaintiff contends is illegal and invalid.

The so-called tenure act (enacted 1937 and as amended in 1964) is: "An Act relative to continuing tenure of office of certificated teachers in public educational institutions; to provide for probationary periods; to regulate discharges or demotions; to provide for resignations and leaves of absence; to create a state tenure commission and to prescribe the powers and duties thereof; (and) to prescribe penalties for violation of the provisions of this act."

The purpose of Teachers' Tenure Act is to maintain an adequate and competent teaching staff, free from political and personal arbitrary interference (Rehberg vs. Board of Education of Melvindale, Ecorse Township School District No. 11, Wayne County, 330 Mich. 541). Wilson vs. Flint Board of Education, 361 Michigan Reports 691, describes the tenure act as legislation enacted to do away with autocratic power of school boards to prescribe rules to ensure a greater degree of security to teachers. Put in another way, the spirit of the statute is to protect the teacher against the whim and caprice of changing office holders (Street vs. Ferndale Board of Education, 361 Michigan Reports 32).

Article III, under Continuing Tenure, provides: "After the satisfactory completion of the probationary period, a teacher shall be employed continuously by the controlling board under which the probationary period has been completed, and shall not be dismissed or demoted except as specified in this act," etc.

Article IV under Discharge, Demotion or Retirement provides: "Discharge or demotion of a teacher on continuing tenure may be made only for reasonable and just cause, and only after such charges, notice, hearing, and determination thereof, as are hereinafter provided."

Article X under Waiver of Rights by Teachers provides: "No teacher may waive any rights and privileges under this act in any contract or agreement made with a controlling board. In the event that any section or sections of a contract or agreement entered into between a teacher and a controlling board make continuance of employment of such teacher contingent upon certain conditions which may be interpreted as contrary to the reasonable and just causes for dismissals, provided by this act, such section or sections of a contract or agreement shall be invalid and of no effect in relation to determination of continuance of employment of such teacher."

The Public Employment Relations Act (Act 336 of the Public Acts of 1947, as amended) is: "An act to prohibit strikes by certain public employees; to provide review from disciplinary action with respect thereto; to provide for the mediation of grievances and the holding of elections; to declare and protect the rights and privileges of public employees; and to prescribe means of enforcement and penalties for the violation of the provisions of this act."

As provided under Section 2 (M.S.A. 17.455 (2)) of PERA under Strikes by Public employees prohibited, "No person holding a position by appointment or employment in the government of the state of Michigan, or in the government of any 1 or more of the political subdivisions, thereof, or in the public school service or in any public or special district, or in the service of any authority, commission, or board, or in any other branch of the public service, hereinafter called a "public employee," shall strike.

Under Section 11 (M.S.A. 17.455 (11) of PERA, "Representatives designated or selected for purposes of collective bargaining by the majority of the public employees in a unit appropriate for such purposes, shall be the exclusive representatives of all the public employees in such unit for the purposes of collective bargaining in respect to rates of pay, wages, hours of employment or other conditions of employment, and shall be so recognized by the public employer: Provided, That any individual employee at any time may present grievances to his employer and have the grievances adjusted, without intervention of the bargaining representative, if the adjustment is not inconsistent with the terms of a collective bargaining contract or agreement then in effect, provided that the bargaining representative has been given opportunity to be present at such adjustment."

Under Section 15 (M.S.A. 17.455 (15) of PERA, "A public employer shall bargain collectively with the representatives of its employees as defined in section 11 and is authorized to make and enter into collective bargaining agreements with such representatives. For the purposes of this section, to bargain collectively is the performance of the mutual obligation of the employer and the representative of the employees to meet at reasonable times and confer in good faith with respect to wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment, or the negotiation of an agreement, or any question arising thereunder, and the execution of a written contract, ordinance or resolution incorporating any agreement reached if requested by either party, but such obligation does not compel either party to agree to a proposal or require the making of a concession."

Under Section 7 (M.S.A. 17.455 (7))of PERA, "Upon the request of the collective bargaining representative defined in section 11, or if no representative has been designated or selected, upon the request of a majority of any given group of public employees evidenced by a petition signed by said majority and delivered to the labor mediation board, or upon request of any public employer of such employees, it shall be the duty of the labor mediation board to forthwith mediate the grievances set forth in said petition or notice, and for the purposes of mediating such grievances, the labor mediation board shall exercise the powers and authority conferred upon said board by sections 10 and 11 of Act No. 176 of the Public Acts of 1939."

The Board of Education of the Warren Consolidated Schools in this case has entered an appearance and filed an answer but has not filed a brief; its position appearing to be that whatever side prevails, the Board of Education will abide by such a decision. The involvement of the Board of Education herein, can hardly be designated as placing continued employment of the teacher on the mercy and whim of changing office holders. While the purpose of the Teachers' Tenure Act is to maintain an adequate and competent teaching staff, free from political and personal arbitrary interference, it cannot be said that the action of the Board of Education of the Warren Consolidated Schools can be construed to be in violation of the purpose of the Teachers' Tenure Act.

It would appear that the Warren Consolidated Board of Education has negotiated and entered into the agreement demanded by the Warren Education Association. To merely view the Board of Education of the Warren Consolidated Schools as a number of political office holders without recognizing them also as bargaining representatives in behalf of the school children, their parents, tax payers and interested citizens, substantial in number and large in area; is not an accurate picture.

Plaintiff's quarrel, if at all, would appear to be with the Warren Education Association which is the exclusive bargaining representative for all the members of the unit which includes teachers such as the Plaintiff. It is interesting to note, that the Plaintiff is silent about accepting or rejecting the benefits obtained through the bargaining of the Warren Education Association (majority of the teachers in this school district are members).

There are several manners in which the Plaintiff in this case could have proceeded rather than to have commenced action in the Circuit Court; none of which causes of action appear to have been followed. The agreement between the Warren Consolidated Schools, Warren, Michigan and the Warren Education Association includes the following under Article V -- Grievance Procedures -- Section 1: Definition --

> "Any claim by the Association or a teacher that there has been a violation, misinterpretation, or misapplication of the terms or the Agreement, a violation of their right to fair treatment, or violation of any established policy or practice shall be a grievance, and shall be resolved through the procedure set forth herein".

Further, based on what is before the Court it does not appear that the Plaintiff has exhausted his remedy under Article VI -- Discharge and Demotion -- which reads as follows:

> "Discharge, demotion or other involuntary change in the employment status of a teacher shall be for just cause and preceded by: a) the faithful execution of the evaluation procedure and the honoring of all teacher's right included in this Agreement, and applicable statutes, b) The forwarding of a written explanation for the action to the teacher and the Association, c) A complete review of the teacher's personnel file with the teacher and his representative, and d) If requested by the teacher, a hearing before the Board of Education".

Also, under the Michigan Tenure of Teachers Act, Article IV -- Discharge, Demotion or Retirement -- it is provided that a discharge or demotion of a teacher on continuing tenure may be made only for responsible and just cause and only after such charges, notice, hearing and determination thereof as hereinafter provided. This Act provides the manner in which the hearings should be conducted and further provides the manner in which an appeal may be taken from a decision of the Controlling Board to the Tenure Commission. This has not been done.

Based on the reasons stated herein, the Court finds that the Plaintiff has not exhausted remedies available to him and for this reason the case is dismissed.

STATE OF NEW YORK

PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS BOARD

IN THE MATTER OF BOARD OF EDUCATION, CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 3, TOWN OF HEMPSTEAD, NASSAU COUNTY, NEW YORK, Employer, and BUILDING ADMINISTRATORS, CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 3, Petitioner.	CASE NO. C-0032

DECISION

On November 30, 1967, Building Administrators, Central High School District No. 3 (herein referred to as the petitioner)[1] filed, in accordance with the Rules of Procedure (herein referred to as the Rules) of the New York State Public Employment Relations Board (herein referred to as the Board), a petition for certification as the exclusive negotiating representative for the building principals and assistant principals employed by the Board of Education, Central High School District No. 3, Town of Hempstead, Nassau County, New York (herein referred to as the employer). The petition alleges that petitioner requested recognition on September 25, 1967, which request was declined on November 10, 1967. These allegations are uncontested, and the petition is timely.

On January 11, 1968, a hearing was conducted in this matter[2]. At this hearing, the employer contended that the appropriate unit should include the executive assistant to the principal, administrative assistants, directors, district chairmen, building principals, assistant principals, the school lunch manager, the superintendent of buildings and grounds and the deputy business assistant. Petitioner reiterated its position that the unit should consist only of building principals and assistant principals.

The employer is a central high school district consisting of three senior high schools and four junior high schools. The school district services approximately 10,000 students and employs approximately 600 professionals and 60-70 non-professionals. The district principal is the chief administrator of the school district and is the executive officer of the Board of Education. His primary function is to carry out district policy. All parties agree he should be excluded from the unit.

The district principal is assisted in his functions by an executive assistant. The executive assistant has such duties as are assigned to him by the district principal, such as locating information, carrying out rules and regulations and "trouble shooting". In general, he has no responsibility to act for the district principal in the latter's absence.

In addition to the executive assistant, the district principal has three administrative assistants, one for curriculum and research, a second for program and personnel, and a third for business and finance. The administrative assistant in charge of program and personnel is assisted by three full-time directors, one of whom directs physical education, another directs vocational education, and the third directs pupil personnel services.

The administrative assistant for curriculum and research has responsible to him the district chairmen. There is a district chairman for each of the major fields of study. The district chairmen observe and evaluate teachers in their respective subject fields with reference to content and methodology, and are responsible for the development and updating of curriculum materials. They, of course, work with the principals in performing these duties and spend over half of their time visiting the various schools in the district. Indeed, the resultant overlapping of duties and authority has apparently created a desire on the part of the principals and assistant principals to be represented separately from the district chairmen.

The administrative assistant for business has responsible to him the deputy business assistant[3], school lunch manager and superintendent of buildings and grounds. The deputy business assistant's primary job is the organization and operation of school bus transportation, and he consults with the principals and assistant principals in this regard. In addition, he maintains inventory and is responsible for assisting in the development of budgetary needs and requirements. The school lunch manager has direct responsibility for the operation of the seven cafeterias within the school district, and works along with the principals and assistant principals in this regard. The superintendent of buildings and grounds has district-wide responsibility for the maintenance, upkeep and care of the seven buildings and adjacent grounds, and works with each of the principals and assistant principals with regard to the maintenance of each building.

1/ The parties stipulated that petitioner is an employee organization within the meaning of the Taylor Law.
2/ The rulings of the Trial Examiner at the hearing are affirmed, as no prejudicial error is apparent.

3/ This position is presently vacant.

Each building principal is in charge of a school building and is assisted by an assistant principal. The building principals and their assistants are responsible in their particular school for all phases of operation and administration. In fulfilling this responsibility, they regularly consult and work along with the other administrative personnel.

The district principal has an "administrative cabinet" which consists of all job classifications discussed above, except that the school lunch manager and the superintendent of buildings and grounds participate only when a problem concerning their area of specialization arises, and the assistant principals participate only when the principals are not available.

All of the administrative personnel are paid in accordance with an index factor based upon the teachers' salary schedule, except that the record is not clear with regard to the school lunch manager and the superintendent of buildings and grounds. In other words, the wages of the administrative personnel are adjusted above the wages of teachers by applying a percentage factor. This percentage, which only varies slightly in each instance, is added to the teachers' wages to determine the salary of the administrative personnel.

All administrative personnel receive the same holidays, have the same vacation allowance (except for the building principals who work an extra month during the summer), and participate in the same medical benefit and retirement programs. All are professionally licensed, with the possible exception of the school lunch manager and the superintendent of buildings and grounds.

On several occasions during the past two or three years, petitioner met with the district principal or the Board of Education and discussed the matter of salaries. However, petitioner was not formally recognized as negotiating agent and no contract was negotiated.

For the reasons discussed below, the undersigned finds that a unit consisting of all the administrative personnel except the district principal is the appropriate unit in this case. The realities of the situation do not bear out petitioner's contention that the principals and assistant principals form a separate appropriate unit from the rest of the administrative positions below the level of district principal. All administrative personnel are subject to the same ultimate supervision (by the district principal) and their areas of responsibility are closely integrated to serve the primary function of efficiently running the school district and each constituent school. The wages of substantially all the administrative personnel are determined on the basis of the same system, and they receive the same fringe benefits except for the minor difference in vacations mentioned above.

Thus, any separate community of interest the principals and assistant principals might have by reason of their desire for separate representation[4/] and past informal negotiations has been submerged in the broader community of interest shared with the other administrative personnel[5/]. There is nothing in the record to indicate that a general unit of administrators could not negotiate effectively with the district principal and Board of Education with regard to terms and conditions of employment. The record does indicate, however, that a separate unit of principals and assistant principals would, in this case, result in undue and unnecessary fragmentization and administrative inconvenience[6/].

The undersigned therefore concludes that the appropriate unit in this matter is as follows:

Included: The executive assistant to the district principal, all administrative assistants, directors, district chairmen, building principals, assistant principals, the school lunch manager, the superintendent of buildings and grounds and the deputy business assistant.

Excluded: The district principal.

THEREFORE, the undersigned will recommend to the Public Employment Relations Board that the petition in this matter be dismissed UNLESS petitioner, within 14 days from today, files an amended petition seeking certification in the unit determined above to be appropriate[7/]. In the event an amended petition for certification is timely filed, an election, by secret ballot, will be held under the supervision of the undersigned, among the employees in the unit determined to be appropriate, unless the petitioner submits to the undersigned, within 7 days from the date of filing of the amended petition, dues deduction authorizations and other evidences sufficient to satisfy the requirements of Section 201.6(h)(1) of the Rules for certification without an election.

Dated: Albany, New York
March 27, 1968

Paul E. Klein
Director of Representation

4/ The record does not reveal whether the other administrative personnel also desire separate representation.

5/ This community of interest is shared with the school lunch manager and superintendent of buildings and grounds, even though they may not be licensed "professionals".

6/ The employer has already recognized an employee organization as negotiating representative for the teachers, and another employee organization as negotiating representative for a unit of clerical, custodial and cafeteria employees.

7/ The record does not indicate whether petitioner desires to represent the employees in this unit.

STATE OF NEW YORK

PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS BOARD

IN THE MATTER OF

THE CITY SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF BINGHAMTON, NEW YORK, Employer,

and

BINGHAMTON TEACHERS ASSOCIATION,
Petitioner,

and

BINGHAMTON FEDERATION OF TEACHERS,
Intervenor.

CASE NO. C-0119

DECISION AND ORDER

On December 19, 1967, the Binghamton Teachers Association (herein referred to as the petitioner) filed, in accordance with the Rules of Procedure (herein referred to as the Rules) of the New York State Public Employment Relations Board (herein referred to as the Board), a petition for certification as the negotiating agent for a unit of employees of The City School District of The City of Binghamton, New York (herein referred to as the employer) described as follows:

Included: classroom teachers, department heads, dental hygiene teachers, nurse teachers, sight saving teachers, hearing teachers, librarians, teacher consultants, guidance counsellors, audio-visual specialist, other special teachers, instrumental music teachers, speech correction teachers, reading clinic teachers, school psychologists and visiting teachers.

Excluded: superintendent of schools, assistant(s) superintendent of schools, clerk of the Board of Education and business administrator, auditor, executive assistant to the superintendent, administrative assistants, directors of academic studies, director of physical education, principals, head nurse teacher, speech correction director and federal program director.

The petition also states that the Binghamton Federation of Teachers (herein referred to as the intervenor) is a party in interest. Further, the petition alleges, and it is uncontested, that petitioner requested recognition as negotiating representative on September 19, 1967 and the employer has not replied1/. The petition is therefore timely2/.

1/ On December 7, 1967, the employer passed a resolution creating, inter-alia, a negotiating unit substantially identical to the one described in the petition. However, no employee organization was recognized as negotiating agent for this unit.

2/ Rules, §201.3(a)

At a formal hearing held on January 30, 1968 before a Trial Examiner of the Board3/, and all parties being present, it was stipulated by the parties that the unit described in the petition is appropriate, except that the intervenor contended that the 16 full-time guidance counsellors should be excluded since they are basically administrative, and the audio-visual specialist should also be excluded4/.

The guidance counsellors work closely with the teachers for the benefit of the students, and have the responsibility of deciding which students should be in which classes. They do not have any other administrative responsibilities5/. Thus, they do not rate, hire or fire teachers or any other employees of the employer, nor do they effectively recommend same. They do not supervise teachers or any other employees.

The salary of guidance counsellors is the standard teaching salary with an additional increment of $800 to $1000 yearly, and they receive the same fringe benefits as do teachers. Thus, they have the same sick leave, sabbatical leave and vacation allowances as do teachers, they receive the same pay differential for additional education as teachers, and they are eligible for the same health and retirement plans as teachers.

Further, it has been a custom for many years for teachers and guidance counsellors jointly to submit requests for pay increases to the Board of Education. On November 16, 1967, 14 of the guidance counsellors submitted a petition to the President of the Board of Education requesting joint representation with the teachers.

3/ The rulings of the Trial Examiner at the hearing are affirmed, as no prejudicial error is apparent.

4/ The intervenor did not state why it was contending that the audio-visual specialist should be excluded, nor did it produce evidence to support this contention.

5/ This is true despite the fact that one of the school principals, in a school "guidebook", sets forth theoretically that the duties of a guidance counsellor include "[assisting] the principal in the organization and administration of the school as assigned."

As noted above, the intervenor made no attempt to document its contention that the audio-visual specialist[6] should be excluded from the instructional unit. He is a certified teacher, works closely with other teachers in making films available for instructional purposes, and testified at the hearing that he desires to be included in the same unit as other teachers. His terms and conditions of employment are determined in the same way as those of all other teachers. He clearly belongs in the instructional unit.

The undersigned further concludes that the guidance counsellors also belong in the instructional unit. They have many interests in common with teachers, and the record does not indicate any significant conflicting interests. Both groups are professionals and certified, they work alongside one another, and their functions dovetail. All are subject to the same ultimate supervision (by the school principal), and neither supervises the other. The wages of both groups are the same, except that the guidance counsellors get an additional increment, and they receive the same fringe benefits. There is nothing in the record to indicate that a general instructional unit could not negotiate effectively with the Board of Education with regard to terms and conditions of employment[7]. The record does indicate, however, that a separate unit of guidance counsellors would, in this case, result in undue and unnecessary fragmentation and administrative inconvenience[8].

6/ There is only one such employee, and his proper title is "audio-visual teacher".

7/ As already noted, the overwhelming majority of guidance counsellors have specifically indicated their desire to be included in the general unit.

8/ The employer has already recognized an employee organization as negotiating representative for the non-professional employees of the school district.

The undersigned therefore concludes that the appropriate unit in this matter is as follows:

Included: classroom teachers, department heads, dental hygiene teachers, nurse teachers, sight saving teachers, hearing teachers, librarians, teacher consultants, other special teachers, instrumental music teachers, speech correction teachers, reading clinic teachers, school psychologists, visiting teachers, guidance counsellors and the audio-visual teacher.

Excluded: superintendent of schools, assistant(s) superintendent of schools, clerk of the Board of Education and business administrator, auditor, executive assistant to the superintendent, administrative assistants, directors of academic studies, director of physical education, principals, head nurse teacher, speech correction director and federal program director.

THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED THAT an election by secret ballot shall be held under the supervision of the undersigned among the employees of the employer in the unit determined above to be appropriate, UNLESS the petitioner or intervenor submits to the undersigned within seven (7) days from the date of receipt of this decision, dues deduction authorizations and other evidences sufficient to satisfy the requirements of Section 201.6(h)(1) of the Rules for certification without an election.

PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS BOARD

In the Matter of:

BOARD OF EDUCATION,
UNION FREE SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 7,
Employer,

-and-

DEPEW TEACHERS ORGANIZATION, INC.,
Petitioner.

CASE NO. C-0134

DECISION

On January 3, 1968, the Depew Teachers Organization, Inc., (hereinafter referred to as the petitioner) filed, in accordance with the Rules of Procedure (hereinafter referred to as the Rules) of the New York State Public Employment Relations Board (hereinafter referred to as the Board), a timely petition for certification as the exclusive negotiating representative for all certificated employees of the Board of Education, Union Free School District No. 7 (hereinafter referred to as the employer), excluding the superintendent of schools.

On February 13 and May 28, 1968, a formal hearing[1] was conducted before a Trial Examiner of this Board with all parties present and represented by counsel.

The issue to be determined is whether four principals and two assistant principals (hereinafter collectively referred to as principals)[2] are to be included in a general teachers' unit.

The petitioner contends that principals, being also qualified teachers, share a substantial community of interest with all other teachers so as to warrant their inclusion in the same negotiating unit as teachers. Petitioner characterizes the relationship between principals and teachers as one marked by cooperation and consultation rather than by disciplinary authority. It claims that the educational objectives of the principals coincide with those of the teachers, requiring a meaningful dialogue with the teaching staff which would be cut off or inhibited by placing principals in a separate negotiating unit.

The employer, while acknowledging a certain community of interest between these two groups, contends that, for purposes of unit determination, principals must be regarded as a part of management rather than as a part of the teaching staff for whom they are responsible inasmuch as principals are its "...right arm...eyes and ears..." The employer characterizes the relationship between principals and teachers as one marked by a sharp conflict of interest in that the managerial duties of the principals entail evaluation, assignment and retention of teachers. Indeed, on October 20, 1967, the employer recognized the petitioner as the exclusive negotiating representative for its teachers only.

The employer is a small school district, employing approximately 140 teachers and six principals. It is composed of two elementary schools, a middle school, and a high school. The superintendent of schools is the chief administrator and is directly responsible to the Board of Education. His primary function is to carry out the policies of the Board of Education. Principals, in turn, are directly responsible to the superintendent of schools with regard to the administration of the school building to which they are assigned. In the middle school and high school, the principal is assisted by an assistant principal.

Principals, as general administrators of their school buildings, perform functions which do not entail classroom teaching. Nevertheless, their salary is determined in accordance with the basic teacher salary schedule plus an index factor. Their fringe benefits, including sick leave, retirement, and hospital-surgical benefits are the same as those to which the teachers are entitled.

Each school year, the principals submit a proposed budget to the superintendent of schools. This proposed budget is, in part, prepared by the principals after consultation with the teaching staff and after obtaining their requisitions for equipment and instructional supplies. The superintendent of schools, after receipt of this proposed budget, independently examines it to determine its economic feasibility before submitting it to the Board of Education.

Principals may make recommendations to the superintendent of schools with regard to disciplinary action against a teacher. However, in the past 11 years, not one such recommendation for either suspension or discharge of a tenured employee has originated from the principals.

Recently, the initial responsibility for seeking and interviewing job applicants has been shifted from the superintendent of schools to the principals. The principals' report and recommendation is transmitted to the superintendent of schools, who re-interviews each applicant. The superintendent of schools then exercises his prerogative in making a final recommendation with regard to hiring to the Board of Education.

Each year, approximately four or five teachers become eligible for tenure. To receive tenure, a teacher must be recommended by the superintendent of schools, who, in turn, considers the recommendation of the principal. However, in the past 11 years, only two teachers were denied tenure.

1. The rulings of the Trial Examiner at the hearing are affirmed, as no prejudicial error is apparent.
2. The parties stipulated that the job titles of principal and assistant principal are, for the purposes of this hearing, synonymous both as to authority and duty. The petitioner amended its petition so as to exclude the curriculum coordinator from its proposed unit.

Principals may also recommend whether a probationary teacher[3] should be continued and, again, the superintendent of schools makes the effective recommendation to the Board of Education. Each year, there are approximately eight probationary teachers; over the past 11 years, only two probationary teachers have been discharged or asked to resign.

Principals may make curriculum recommendations directly to the Board of Education. However, in the past 11 years, this type of direct recommendation has been made less than ten times. Curriculum determination in each school is a joint venture of a principal and the curriculum coordinator. The latter has a staff responsibility directly to the superintendent of schools.

Principals are solely responsible for classroom assignment of teachers, but usually perform this task after consultation with the involved teacher. Principals also determine student assignment, assisted in the middle school and high school by guidance counselors.

The employer has promulgated general work rules concerning such matters as sick leave, personal leave, sabbatical leave, maternity leave, graduate credits, and prior service credits. In practice, it is the superintendent of schools and the Board of Education (but not the principals) who make effective recommendations and/or determinations with regard to these matters.

Beginning in November 1966, and for the school year 1967-1968, the petitioner negotiated such subjects as salaries and general work rules with the employer on behalf of both teachers and principals. The principals have indicated their desire to remain in the same negotiating unit as teachers with regard to future negotiations.[4]

No hard and fast rule can be established at this time declaring that principals, ipso facto, should or should not be included within a general unit of teachers for purposes of collective negotiations. Rather, each case must be determined on its individual facts. In the instant case, I find that the most appropriate unit claimed consists of all certificated personnel including teachers and principals.

As the Board has recently stated, "[t]he mere existence of supervisory responsibilities does not require a conclusion that there is present such a conflict of interest as to overcome or outweigh other facts or circumstances giving rise to a community of interest."[5] In the instant case the record indicates that, in this small school district, the superintendent of schools is the individual upon whom the Board of Education basically relies with regard to administrative matters.[6] It is clear that principals and teachers have enjoyed, over the years, a relationship marked by mutual consultation and cooperation. Although principals theoretically have power to make recommendations to the Board of Education with regard to such matters as discipline and curriculum, the record is clear that this power is very rarely exercised. Further, with regard to both tenure and probation, it appears from the record that rarely, if ever, have the principals effectively recommended that tenure be denied or that a teacher on probation be discharged. In the area of general work rules, the principals act merely as conduits for the transmission of information to the superintendent of schools rather than as decision makers. Therefore, while in theory the power of evaluation inherent in the job of a principal might create such a conflict of interest between the principal and his teachers as to warrant separate representation, actual practice in the instant case negates this conclusion. Further, it should be noted that there is a history of apparently meaningful past negotiations wherein the petitioner represented both the teachers and the principals, and the record does not persuasively indicate that this practice cannot or should not be continued.

Accordingly, the broad community of interest shared by the teachers and principals in such matters as their basic mission, the substantially similar method of salary determination, and common fringe benefits, mandates the creation of a single negotiating unit.[7]

THEREFORE, IT IS DETERMINED THAT there shall be one unit of all certificated employees of the employer as follows:

Included: Principals, assistant principals, teachers, counselors, nurses, physical-education director, audio-visual director, and librarians.

Excluded: All other personnel.

FURTHER, IT IS ORDERED THAT an election by secret ballot shall be held under the supervision of the undersigned among the employees of the employer in the unit determined above to be appropriate and who were employed by the employer on the payroll date immediately preceding the date of this Decision, UNLESS the petitioner submits to the undersigned, within seven days from the date of receipt of this Decision, dues deduction authorizations and other evidences sufficient to satisfy the requirements of Section 201.6(h)(1) of the Rules for certification without an election.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED THAT the employer shall submit to the undersigned, within seven days from the date of receipt of this Decision, an alphabetized list of employees in the unit determined above to be appropriate who were employed on the payroll date immediately preceding the date of this Decision.

3. A probationary teacher is one employed less than three years. After three years, a teacher is eligible for tenure.

4. Four of the principals so testified, and a letter from a fifth to this effect was received in evidence at the hearing.

5. In the Matter of New York State Division of State Police, Case Nos. C-0062, C-0130, C-0133, (July 1, 1968).

6. Indeed, even the cafeteria and transportation employees of the employer are under the direct staff responsibility of the superintendent of schools.

7. It is interesting to note, despite the employer's preference for separate units, the testimony of the superintendent of schools to the effect that, in his opinion, any power of evaluation that the principals might have with regard to the teachers raises no conflict of interest between these two groups.

Defendants.

No. 44035
FINDINGS AND ORDERS

On February 23, 1968, plaintiff filed herein its Petition for Injunction. On that date the Court entered an order granting a temporary writ of injunction in the form asked by plaintiff and providing that such temporary injunction should continue "until the 29th day of February, 1968, and shall terminate on such date unless an extension thereof is granted by this court for good cause shown and not ex parte." That order also scheduled a hearing on the petition for that date.

Because of conflicts in schedule between counsel and the Court the hearing was not held until March 1, 1968.

In the meantime, on February 24, 1968, defendants, employees of plaintiff at the University of Northern Iowa in the physical plant department had complied with the terms of the temporary injunction and returned to work.

They remained at work to the time of the hearing on March 1, 1968, although the temporary injunction had expired by its own terms on February 29, 1968. At the hearing of March 1, 1968, through counsel, defendants indicated that they would remain at work and refrain from taking any actions in violation of the terms of the injunction until such time as the Court rendered a decision herein without the necessity for any further temporary restraining orders. That situation has continued to the present time.

At the hearing on March 1, 1968, plaintiffs appeared by Leo M. Baker and William Sindlinger and defendants appeared personally and by C.A. Frerichs. Evidence was offered by plaintiff on that date and the matter continued for submission of briefs and for such further evidence as counsel for defendants might desire to produce. Subsequently further evidence was introduced by stipulation and by exhibits relative to the employment arrangements between plaintiff and the academic staff at the University of Northern Iowa, particularly with respect to initial "probationary" employment and acquisition of "tenure" status.

Briefs were thereafter submitted and the petition and Answer thereto, dictated into the record on March 1, 1968, submitted to the Court. The Court being advised in the premises makes and enters the following Findings and Orders:

By stipulation of the parties and by evidence offered at the hearing of March 1, 1968, it appears that the employees named individually and as a class are non-academic personnel employed by the plaintiff at the University of Northern Iowa under the general jurisdiction of the "physical plant committee". These are the employees at the University providing the basic physical services for the operation of the physical plant of the University, and include a wide variety of labor classifications and skills. Sometime prior to February 20, 1968, these employees had organized themselves into a union and received a charter as Local No. 1258 of the United Packing House Food and Allied Workers of America, AFL-CIO. John Walton, a turbine operator at the University of Northern Iowa, was and is president of Local 1258.

On Tuesday, February 20, 1968, Defendant union and its members struck against the Plaintiff by leaving their jobs without authority and remained on strike until Friday P.M., February 23, 1968. Defendants also, on February 20, 1968, did place pickets varying from two to five in number at nine locations on the campus of the University of Northern Iowa, Cedar Falls, Iowa. One of these locations was the site of the construction of the East and West Towers Building and dining facility which is being constructed by Klinger Construction Company, Sioux City, Iowa. Defendant union and its members did continue to picket at all sites during all hours of the day and night until approximately 3:00 p.m., Friday, February 23, 1968. Garbage was not picked up on the University of Northern Iowa campus from Tuesday, February 20, 1968, until late Thursday afternoon, February 22, 1968. When the garbage was picked up, all the receptacles were full. All construction work on the East and West Towers building and dining facility, the Science Building, the Union building and the addition to the Administration building ceased (with the exception of one non-union subcontractor) during the course of the strike by Defendants. Plaintiff agrees the picketing was peaceful.

The practical effect of the picketing was to bring to a halt construction on $10,500,000 worth of projects previously determined to be necessary for the orderly and efficient operation of the University of Northern Iowa with its constantly expanding student body during the forthcoming academic year. The picketing also created difficulties in food deliveries requiring non-striking employees to pick up food off campus to maintain a dining service furnishing three meals a day to approximately 4,200 students, and for several days caused the private contractor responsible for garbage removal to refrain from moving accumulating garbage from the campus.

A number of issues are raised by the Petition and Answer thereto. In this order, in the nature of an interlocutory order, the Court disposes of one of these issues, reserving decision on the others to a later date, if such decision is necessary.

The pleadings, briefs, and testimony of Mr. Walton indicate that the principal matter at issue between the parties is whether or not the plaintiff can and shall engage in collective bargaining with the defendant union.

The plaintiff, concededly a public instrumentality, feels bound by the opinion of the Attorney General of August 16, 1961, issued to the Iowa Liquor Control Commission and dealing with the question of whether or not state employees, such as defendants, may join and organize labor organizations, whether the state or any agency thereof has power to enter into collective bargaining or bargaining agreements and whether or not any such labor organization may coerce the state or any subdivision thereof to bargain collectively by means of strike, boycott, picketing, or any other coercive device. In that opinion the Attorney General ruled that state employees can organize and join labor organizations. With this portion of the opinion the Court agrees, and the matter is conceded in plaintiff's reply brief under proposition of law No. 3.

The matter of collective bargaining by the state or any of its agencies was dealt with in two separate questions in the Attorney General's Opinion. The first of these was "whether or not the State of Iowa has to recognize unions for bargaining purposes," and the second was "whether or not the State of Iowa has the power to bargain collectively, regarding labor, hours, and working conditions." The Attorney General answered each of these questions in the negative.

The Court agrees that the State of Iowa does not have to recognize unions for bargaining purposes. Leaving aside irrelevant issues such as municipal home rule, etc. and looking to Chapter 262 of the 1966 Code of Iowa, it is clear that plaintiff is vested with very broad discretion in the management of the affairs of the University of Northern Iowa and the other institutions under its control.

By 262.9(4) the Board of Regents is directed to "manage and control the property, both real and personal, belonging to said institutions." By 262.9 (11), the Board is empowered to "perform all other acts necessary and proper for the execution of the powers and duties conferred by law upon it."

The direction and authority to operate an institution of higher education and to manage and control its physical plant necessarily implies the authority to hire employees to maintain and operate that physical plant. See Local 266 vs. Salt River Project Agricultural Improvement and Power District (Arizona--1954) 275 Pacific 2d 393, 399. Coupled with Sub-section 11 of Section 262.9 this gives the Board of Regents a large discretion in the employment of workers such as those involved in this case. There is no lawful means by which defendants or any other private group or organization may compel the Board of Regents to recognize the defendant local or any other union for bargaining purposes if the Regents, in their discretion, determine to follow some other method of dealing with the problems inevitable with the employment of large numbers of individuals.

On the other hand, there are no provisions in Chapter 262 nor in any other provisions of Iowa law which appear to the Court to prevent the Regents from entering into collective bargaining or a collective bargaining agreement with the defendant local or any other union, if the Regents, in the exercise of their broad discretion, determine such a course to be most suitable for the carrying out of the duties laid upon them by Chapter 262. It seems perfectly proper for the Regents to determine, if they so desire, that the act of collective bargaining agreement, is "necessary and proper for the execution of the powers and duties conferred by law" upon the Board.

It is true that the merit system of employment is now applicable to defendant employees, and some authorities have held that a statutory scheme such as a merit system so "fills the field" as to preclude any collective bargaining agreements. See, for example, Mugford vs. Mayor (1946) 185 Maryland 266, 44 A 2d 745. There are other authorities to the same effect, and perhaps more precisely in point than the Mugford Case.

Whatever may have been the provisions of the civil service statutes or merit system statutes involved in decisions in other states, it seems clear to the Court that there are many areas of the employer-employee relationship open for bargaining despite the presence of a civil service system. As Professor Richard F. Dole, Jr. of the College of Law of the University of Iowa said in a speech delivered May 22, 1968, at the annual meeting of the Iowa Municipal Attorneys' Association in Des Moines, "Although a civil service system may limit the permissible subjects for collective bargaining, a civil service system does not necessarily preclude collective bargaining on all subjects."

He cited the case of Civil Service Forum vs. New York City Transit Authority, 151 NYS 2d 402 (1956).

The Attorney General in 1961 stated "In State Courts, it has been uniformly held in the absence of statute to the contrary that government employers have no power to bargain collectively with their employees in regard to wages, hours and working conditions." He cited the Mugford Case, supra.

The situation today is that it has not been uniformly so held in State Courts. The more recent, and to the Court's mind the better reasoned cases hold, in the absence of statute, that public employers do have the power to engage in collective bargaining and to enter into collective bargaining agreements. Chicago Division of the Illinois Education Association, et al vs. Board of Education of the City of Chicago, et. al. (Illinois 1966) 222 NE2 d 243, and International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers vs. Town of Farmington (1965) 75 NM 393, 405 Pacific 2d 233. Each of these cases was decided in a statutory scheme quite similar to that of the State of Iowa involved in this case, and each follows the reasoning of a landmark case decided by the Supreme Court of Connecticut in 1951, Norwalk Teachers Association vs. East Board of Education (1951) 138 Conn. 269, 83 Atlantic 2d 482.

The Court has concluded, therefore, that this plaintiff, operating under authority of Chapter 262 of the 1966 Code of Iowa, does have the power to bargain collectively regarding labor, hours, and working conditions.

In view of this determination, and in view of the Court's appraisal of the pleadings, briefs, and evidence, the Court is reserving judgment on Paragraphs A, B, C, D, and F of the prayer of Plaintiff's Petition.

Paragraph E of the prayer of the Petition asks that defendants be enjoined "from strike, boycott, picketing, or any other coercive device against the plaintiff for the purpose of coercing plaintiff to bargain collectively with defendant union."

The prayer, in the respect underlined, is too broad in that it asks the Court to prohibit the defendants from engaging in political lobbying newspaper advertising, and perhaps a myriad of other off campus activities carried on outside of working hours to persuade plaintiff to do that which it has the power to do.

The general rule of law appears to be that public employees, such as these defendants, do not have the right to strike as an aid in obtaining recognition or in obtaining desired ends in collective bargaining. This rule is simple to state, but difficult to apply. As an example of only one of many possible situations which might be involved we have the form of the injunction authorized by the Court in City of Los Angeles vs. Los Angeles Building and Construction Trades Council (Cal 1949) 210 Pacific 2nd 305, 307. In that case the Court felt obliged to limit a sweeping injunction as follows: "Nothing in this order shall be construed as affecting the right of any employee of said department to abandon or to resign his employment."

There are also many other troublesome areas which might arise, such as picketing which might be carried on in such a fashion as to constitute only an exercise of free speech without any side effects, such as the halting of large scale construction projects or necessary physical ingress or egress at the University.

In view of the present uncertainty as to what, if any, action by way of strike or picketing may be taken in the future, and in order to give the plaintiff Board of Regents an opportunity to consider what policies it may wish to follow in the light of this opinion, it is the Ruling of the Court as follows:

1. That that portion of Paragraph E of the prayer of the Petition requesting the Court to enjoin defendants from engaging in "any other coercive device", for the purpose of bringing plaintiff to a collective bargaining table is denied.

2. That the balance of Paragraph E of the prayer and all other paragraphs of the prayer and the issues raised thereunder are continued under submission by the Court for a period of 30 days.

3. That at the expiration of such 30 day period, on the application of any party, the Court will enter such further ruling as may be required, either upon the record already made, or upon such of any party in connection with any events which may have transpired during the intervening period.

Clerk shall furnish copy hereof to counsel.

ROBERT D. MORAN, JOHN F. ROMAN and GEORGE M. ROMANOS, JR., of the MASSACHUSETTS STATE BOARD OF CONCILIATION AND ARBITRATION, appointed by the parties. Boston, Massachusetts,

[Text of Award]

MORAN, Arbitrator: STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND OPINION: This grievance concerns the keeping of school attendance registers and results from changes which the School Committee instituted in the method of instruction at the Riverbend Elementary School in September, 1967.

Both parties signed the application for arbitration which asked this Board to answer these questions:

"Has the contract between the parties, in particular section 3. been violated by action of the School Committee in requiring teachers to keep the attendance registers. and. is this a grievance as defined in the contract?"

The answer to the second question is "yes." The rationale for that answer can be found in reading the first question together with the following language quoted from the grievance procedure of the contract between the parties:

". . . if the grievance shall involve the interpretation or application of any provision of this Contract . . . the School Committee and the Association shall forthwith submit the grievance to the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration for disposition. . . ."

The answer to the main question merits a more extended discussion. Although the application for arbitration was not amended it was clear from statements made by Counsel for both parties at this hearing that this question should not be read as applicable to all teachers but should be restricted to teachers at the Riverbend School. The Board has so considered this grievance.

Background

For several years prior to the opening of school in September, 1967, this school operated under a so-called departmentalized system of instruction wherein each teacher specialized in certain courses. The students would take different courses from several different teachers during the school year. In September, 1967, Riverbend School returned to the so-called self-contained classroom system which had been employed in this school until the latter part of the nineteen fifties and which always has been, and still is, in effect in all other elementary schools in the Athol school system. A self-contained classroom is one where one teacher teaches all the subjects to a single group of students.

During the final 3 school years under the departmentalized system at the Riverbend School, teachers were not required to keep attendance registers. They were kept by clerical help employed at the school. At the time the self-contained classroom system was reinstated at Riverbend in September, 1967, the School Committee decided to assign the duty of keeping the attendance registers to each classroom teacher although there was still the same amount of clerical help available at the school. The Riverbend teachers believe that this action of the School Committee was a violation of Section 3 of their contract. They have therefore initiated this grievance.

Section 3 states as follows:
"Subject to the provisions of this contract . . . the wages, hours, and other conditions of employment applicable on the effective date of this contract to the employees covered by this Contract shall continue to be so applicable."

The effective date of the contract in existence at the time this grievance arose was November 16, 1966. At that time the duties required of teachers at Riverbend School did not include keeping attendance registers. But whether or not the absence of such duties was a "condition of employment" is a matter that will be discussed later.

EXECUTION OF A NEW CONTRACT

Counsel for the School Committee has alleged that this grievance was resolved by the execution of a new contract between the parties in January, 1968.

As noted earlier, the change in keeping attendance registers at Riverbend School took place at the opening of the new school year in September, 1967. The following month the Teachers Association launched this issue on its way through the five levels of the grievance procedure included in the contract.

Simultaneously the parties were in the process of negotiating a new contract. These negotiations were successfully concluded with the execution of a new agreement on January 31, 1968. The new agreement also contained a clause continuing the existing conditions "applicable on the effective date of this contract."

But this contract had a different effective date: January 31, 1968. On that date the Riverbend teachers were keeping attendance registers.

The School Committee has taken the position that it is the latter contract that is determinative of this issue and that the parties agreed to continue the status quo as of January 31, 1968.

It appears from the evidence and argument presented at this hearing that there was no meeting of the minds on this matter. The Teachers Association did not intend to waive this grievance by the execution of a new agreement in 1968. But they did not consider, let alone insist, that the new contract ought to include any reservation of rights, either. They believed that the 1967 change in keeping attendance registers at Riverbend School was a contract violation so that what these teachers were required to do thereafter could not be a proper condition of employment.

Arbitrators are generally less inclined to apply a strict construction of contract language where the negotiating parties are inexperienced. If these parties had better understood the rules and practices in labor contract negotiations they would have adopted some method of expressing their position on how the execution of their new contract would effect the unresolved issue between them. More experienced negotiators would have done so. But it is not surprising that these parties failed to do so in view of the fact that collective bargaining between school teachers and school boards is relatively new in Massachusetts and these parties are only now in the first few months of their second contract. In any event the ultimate decision of this issue does not depend on what the status quo was in either November, 1966 or January, 1968.

THE CONDITION-OF-EMPLOYMENT ISSUE

The pivotal issue in this case is whether the keeping or not keeping of attendance registers was one of the "conditions of employment" of teachers in the Athol School System.

A contract clause continuing existing conditions of employment throughout the life of a collective bargaining agreement does not make fixed and immovable each and every matter that affects the working conditions of the employees regardless of scope. If it did, could the textbooks used in the classroom be changed? The proportion of male and female students in each class - or of white and non-white? Few would argue that things of this nature would be frozen into place by such a contract provision. But each of the suggested changes could make the teacher's job more or less difficult and in that respect, at least, rate as a condition of employment.

The keeping of attendance registers in public elemencary schools is required by State regulations. Boys and girls are listed separately, together with information on such things as the student's date and place of birth and next of kin. Each day a record is made of each student who is absent, tardy or dismissed early. The attendance register must be balanced after each 4 week period and semi-annually in June and January.

The only witness produced by the Teachers Association testified that these duties could be performed by a teacher in about 5 minutes' time each day, with about 35 to 40 minutes for balancing the register after each 4 week period, and from 1 1/2 to 3 hours for making the semi-annual balance each June and January.

There was no evidence that these duties were arduous or that they required any time beyond the normal school day of each teacher which is specified in the contract as no longer than:

". . . fifteen (15) minutes before the start of their day's assignment and . . . one-half (1/2) hour after the close of their day's assignment. . . ."

The Teachers Association introduced evidence that during the negotiations leading up to the January 1968 contract they tried to obtain a requirement that the keeping of attendance registers would be assigned to a school secretary in certain schools. The language proposed was as follows:

"Every school with at least two hundred and fifty (250) pupils will have a full-time secretary for at least forty-four (44) weeks. One function of this person will be to keep the school attendance registers."

There was testimony adduced by the Association that this proposal was an attempt to extend to other schools the situation relative to attendance registers then prevailing at Riverbend School, but that . . . "This was a proposal that was given up by the Association in the process of collective bargaining."

The School Committee maintained that the departmentalized instructional system was tried at the Riverbend School on an experimental basis. During the first few years of the several years of experimentation with this system the teachers kept the attendance registers. A secretary kept the registers during the last three years that this system was being tried. On the basis of this experiment the School Committee decided to return to the self-contained classroom system at Riverbend. As part of this decision the School Committee assigned to teachers the duty of keeping the attendance registers as was done at other schools in this system.

All the foregoing considerations lead this Board to the conclusion that the non-keeping of attendance registers by teachers of the Riverbend School was not a condition of their employment.

Negotiation Agreements

AGREEMENT

BETWEEN THE

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE PHOENIX
UNION HIGH SCHOOL SYSTEM

AND THE

CLASSROOM TEACHERS ASSOCIATION OF THE
PHOENIX UNION HIGH SCHOOL SYSTEM (NEA)

AGREEMENT

This Agreement is made and entered into this _____ day of _____, 1968, by and between the Board of Education of the Phoenix Union High School System and the Classroom Teachers Association of the Phoenix Union High School System affiliated with the Arizona Education Association and the National Education Association as the elected representative organization for all of the teachers in the Phoenix Union High School System.

The Board and the Association recognize and declare that providing a quality education for the pupils of the school district is their mutual aim and that the character of such education depends predominately upon the quality and morale of the teaching staff, and that:

The members of the teaching profession are particularly qualified to assist in formulating policies and programs designed to improve educational standards.

Attainment of the objectives of the educational program conducted in the Phoenix Union High School System requires mutual understanding and cooperation between the Board and the teachers. To this end, good-faith negotiations between the Board and the Association with a free and open exchange of views are desirable. NOW, THEREFORE, the parties agree as follows:

ARTICLE I

Definitions

A. The term "teacher" as used in this Agreement shall refer to all employees represented by the Association in the negotiating unit as defined in Article II, Recognition.

B. The term "Board" as used in this Agreement shall mean the Phoenix Union High School System Board of Education.

C. The term "Association" as used in this Agreement shall mean the Classroom Teachers Association of the Phoenix Union High School System.

D. The term "School District" as used in this Agreement shall mean the Phoenix Union High School System.

E. The term "Superintendent" as used in this Agreement shall mean the Superintendent of Schools of the Phoenix Union High School System.

F. The term "school year" as used in this Agreement shall mean the period of time from the opening of the schools of the district in the fall, usually in September, through the closing of the schools of the district in the spring, usually in June.

G. The term "campus" as used in this Agreement shall mean the school unit; e.g., Alhambra High School, Phoenix Union High School.

ARTICLE II

Recognition

The Board recognizes the Association as the exclusive and sole representative of all members of the certificated staff of the school district except the following:

Superintendent
Assistant Superintendents Consultants
Principals
Associate Principals
Administrative Assistants (Campus and District level)
Directors
Psychologists
Personnel Manager
Assistant Personnel Manager
Coordinators
Assistant Principals
Teachers while on Administrative Assignment
Summer School Teachers other than PUHSS Regular Day School Teachers Evening School and Adult Education Teachers other than PUHSS Regular Day School Teachers
Substitute Teachers Supervisors
Assistant Supervisors

ARTICLE III

Association and Teacher Rights

A. The Board hereby agrees that every certificated employee of the Board shall have the right freely to organize, join and support the Association for the purpose of engaging in negotiations and other concerted activities for mutual aid and protection. As a duly elected body exercising governmental power under color of law of the State of Arizona, the Board undertakes and agrees that it will not directly or indirectly discourage or deprive or coerce any teacher in the enjoyment of any rights conferred by the statutes and Constitutions of Arizona and the United States; that it will not discriminate against any teacher with respect to hours, wages, or any terms or conditions of employment by reason of his membership in the Association, his participation in any activities of the Association or collective negotiations with the Board, or his institution of any grievance, complaint or proceeding under this Agreement or otherwise with respect to any terms or conditions of employment.

B. Nothing contained herein shall be construed to deny or restrict to any teacher rights he may have under the Arizona School Laws or other applicable laws and regulations. The rights granted to teachers hereunder shall be deemed to be in addition to those provided elsewhere.

C. The Association and its representatives shall have the right to use school buildings at all reasonable hours for meetings, scheduling such use with the Associate Principal of the school, provided that this shall not interfere with or interrupt normal school operation. Direct expenses incident to the meeting, other than those normally a part of the school operations, shall be borne by the Association.

D. Duly authorized representatives of the Association and the organizations with which the Association is affiliated shall be permitted to discuss matters pertaining to Association business with system personnel on campus at all reasonable times, provided that this shall not interfere with or interrupt normal operations. Direct expenses of any meeting resulting from such discussion, other than those normally a part of the school operations, shall be borne by the Association.

E. The Association shall have the right to place appropriately identified notices, circulars and other material on designated school bulletin boards and in the teachers' mail boxes. The district courier service may be used for the distribution of the above material. The authorized representative of the Association will assume responsibility for the posting and distribution of the material for the Association. An information copy of the distributed material shall be sent to the principal, or his designee, at the time of the posting or distribution. Partisan political material endorsing or opposing a candidate for public office may not be so distributed or posted.

F. Teachers shall be entitled to full rights of citizenship and no religious or political activities of any teacher or the lack thereof shall be grounds for any discipline or discrimination with respect to the professional employment of such teacher. The private and personal life of any teacher is not within the appropriate concern or attention of the Board, provided it does not interfere with the instructional program of the school.

The teacher may be subject to disciplinary action, including suspension, for repeated infractions or failures to perform his responsibilities. Improper conduct, either in school or in the community, reflecting upon the image of public education within the system shall be cause for such action.

G. The provisions of the Agreement and the wages, hours, terms and conditions of employment shall be applied in a manner which is not capricious, or discriminatory and without regard to race, creed, religion, color, national origin, age, sex, or marital status. (Husband and wife cannot be assigned to the same campus.)

H. Membership in the Association shall be open to all teachers regardless of race, creed, religion, age, color, sex, marital status, or national origin.

ARTICLE IV

Rights of the Board

A. The Association acknowledges that the Board is charged by law with the responsibility for and authority to manage and direct the operation of the District. In the exercise of such responsibility and authority the Board shall conform to the provisions of this Agreement to the extent permitted by law.

B. Due to emergencies that occur during the school year, teachers shall be required to make home telephone numbers and addresses available to the Principal and the Personnel Department. Unless personnel request the exclusion of this information, it will be included in the System directory.

ARTICLE V

Payroll Deductions

A. Teachers may prior to October 15 sign and deliver to the Board an assignment authorizing deduction of membership dues and assessments of the Association (including the National Education Association and the Arizona Education Association). Such authorization shall continue in effect unless subsequent to June 1st and prior to September 15th of any year such authorization is formally revoked by the teacher in writing and copies thereof are delivered to the Association and the Board.

B. The deduction of membership dues upon member's request shall be made from regular pay checks for fifteen (15) payments, and the Board agrees to remit promptly to the respective Associations all monies so deducted, accompanied by a list of teachers from whom the deductions have been made.

C. Teachers may at any time sign and deliver to the Board an assignment authorizing deduction of payments for the A.E.A. #1 Federal Credit Union and Health Insurance. Teachers may also sign and deliver to the Board at the appropriate time of the year authorization for payroll deductions for the United Fund and for Tax-Sheltered Annuities. Authorization for payroll deduction for other purposes may be negotiated by the parties to this Agreement, subject to the limitations imposed on the District Payroll Office by the County Superintendent of Schools.

Teaching Hours and Class Load

A. The regular school day for certificated employees covered by this Agreement shall consist of eight (8) hours, including a duty-free lunch period. The necessary adjustments to the length of the working day will be made by the principal of each school, in order to take into account the difference in the length of the lunch period. The work day will customarily extend from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. However, teachers scheduled to begin their duty earlier, or to continue until a later time, will not be required to be on duty longer than the total hours of the regular school day without additional compensation or compensatory released time. The principal shall have the authority to permit divergence by teachers from the regular school day.

Teachers are expected to be available to parents and students for consultation after the last regularly scheduled class, and until the end of the working day. The responsibility of the teacher to be available for conferences with parents is recognized as a teacher's professional responsibility and shall be encouraged by the Association. Such contacts with parents shall be accomplished by personal appointment, parent-teacher conference meetings, home visits, or telephone conversations.

B. The weekly teaching load shall be defined as no more than twenty-five (25) classroom teaching periods and five (5) unassigned preparation periods, except for teacher assigned to the Area Vocational Program. This may be modified for flexible scheduling, team-teaching, or for experimental programs.

C. All teachers shall have a duty-free uninterrupted lunch period, except in emergency situations, and shall be permitted to leave the campus during this period.

D. Every reasonable effort will be made to keep a teacher's total daily student contacts to no more than 160, except as otherwise provided herein. Every reasonable effort will also be made to distribute the total contacts as evenly as possible among the classes, 35 per class period for a five-period teaching day, and 40 per class period for a four-period teaching day. In addition, every reasonable effort will be made to insure that teachers of special remedial classes, such as reading improvement, shall have no more than 125 student contacts, to be spread as evenly as possible among the teaching class periods.

In the subject areas of music and physical education, the departmental average shall be no more than 180 student contacts.

The Association and Board recognize the need to limit class enrollment to the number of work stations available. The funds are not provided to guarantee this for 1968-69.

For at least one school in the year 1968-69, the student contacts in business machines, industrial arts, trades and industry, and laboratory science classes shall be determined by the available work stations. The number of student contacts in these classes shall be adjusted to conform to this stipulation as of the end of the first register month and remain in effect the remainder of the school year. The Professional Council will study this program to determine the dollars necessary to implement this program in other schools in 1969-70.

The class size of any subject stipulated in the statute, will be honored.

Any exceptions to the above in which the total student contacts exceed the figure given, which involve distribution patterns with more than a 5-student variation per class, or which may involve an internal redistribution of students or teachers within a department, may be reviewed by the campus committee periodically during the first six weeks, at the end of the first semester, and at the end of the first register month of the second semester.

The present student-teacher ratio will not be increased during the 1968-69 or the 1969-70 school years except as otherwise provided herein. Consideration for change will be studied by the Professional Council for the school year 1969-70.

The Board of Education shares the concern of the Association for a reasonable student-teacher ratio and for establishing a reasonable maximum class size. The Board agrees that a high priority will be assigned to this area of instructional improvement with regard to the allocation of funds in future years.

E. A teacher engaged during the school day in negotiating on behalf of the Association with any representative of the Board shall be released from regular duties with no loss of salary. A teacher participating during the school day in any grievance procedures which are scheduled by the Board and the Association shall be released from regular duties without loss of salary, with the cost of the substitute to be shared equally between the Board and the Association.

F. Services to be rendered by the certificated staff covered by this Agreement include their participation outside of the regular school day in a reasonable number of school functions per school year and attendance at a reasonable number of general campus or system teacher meetings per semester. School functions shall include all time spent after the regular school day in scheduled parent-teacher conferences, PTA, teacher meetings after the regular school day, and attendance at any educational or civic functions. The Principal, after conferring with the Campus Committee, will make decisions relating to these matters.

G. Teachers may be required to attend regularly scheduled system-wide meetings not in excess of five (5) per school year. Arrangements for these meetings will be made as provided for in Article XXIV B-2.

H. General faculty meetings called by the school administration shall be held no more often than once a month, except in September when two meetings may be necessary, or except in the event of an emergency. An agenda for the meeting covering all known items shall be furnished the faculty at least 24 hours in advance. Faculty meetings shall not exceed one hour in duration, nor extend beyond 4:00 p.m. unless previously agreed to by the campus committee. The term "faculty meeting" as used herein does not include organization meetings on the opening day for teachers.

I. The work year of teachers covered by this Agreement (other than teachers new to the System who will be required to attend up to three pre-session orientation days) shall be determined by the official school calendar. Teachers shall be paid additional compensation for employment prior to or after the date scheduled on the official school calendar, except as otherwise provided in this Agreement.

J. The Board and Association agree that matters concerning -

1. Weekly teaching load
2. Special student programs
3. Pupil-teacher ratios and/or student contacts, and maximum class size
4. Clerical assistance available for teachers
5. Use of teacher aides, instructional aides, and paraprofessionals
6. Discipline
7. Teacher transfer
8. Teacher evaluation
9. Teacher file
10. Delivery and inventory of books and materials need continuing study and investigation. The above, along with other items, will be considered by the Professional Council.

K. Emergencies may arise making it necessary for the administration to assign teachers to cover a class during their preparation period. Teachers will be relieved from such duty at the earliest possible time. Each emergency will be reported to the Association and the Principal by the teacher who was assigned to cover the class.

L. The school calendar, including the starting school date, ending date, vacation periods, legal paid holidays, number of pupil attendance and membership days, and teacher record days, will be reviewed annually by the Board and the Association prior to adoption by the Board, and before any contracts for the year in question are distributed.

M. If a homeroom period is held, it shall not exceed twenty (20) minutes except in unusual circumstances. A homeroom assignment shall be a part of a teacher's regular assignment within the teaching day.

ARTICLE VII

Special Student Programs

A. Wherever it appears that a particular pupil is a continuing disruptive influence in a class, and that the pupil requires the special attention of counselors, social workers, law enforcement officials, psychologists, physicians, or other professional personnel, the administration will take reasonable steps to relieve the teacher of responsibilities for such pupils.

The Board agrees that specific steps will be taken toward the solution of this problem. As a first step at least one class, or corrective referral group will be established on one campus during 1968-69 and continued through the 1969-70 school year.

The system psychologist and doctor working with counselors and teachers will establish criteria to determine how such pupils will be identified.

These criteria will be reviewed by the Campus Committee of the school(s) in which such a program is located, as well as by the Professional Council.

B. The teacher shall be informed when students are assigned to his class whose history of serious behavior deviation, psychological or physical problems indicates that they should be given special attention. The criteria for determining which case histories shall be reviewed with the teacher shall be developed by a committee composed of the System Psychologist, the System Doctor, the School Department Chairman for Pupil Personnel Services, an Administrative Assistant, and a campus representative from the Association. The criteria will be reviewed by the Professional Council.

ARTICLE VIII

Teaching Conditions

A. The Board and the Association acknowledge that a teacher's primary responsibility is to teach and that his energies should, to the extent possible, be utilized to this end. Therefore, the Board agrees to make every effort to reduce the following non-teaching duties through the use of teacher aides and part-time clerical assistants:

1. Non-teaching assignments including supervision of buildings and grounds, cafeterias, and study halls.

2. Duplicating instructional and other materials and calculating attendance records.

3. Issuing return slips.

4. Collecting money from students for non-educational purposes.

B. Teachers are expected to assume the responsibility for the sponsorship of at least one extra-curricular activity. Such assignment should be within teacher's field of interest to the extent possible. First year teachers may be exempt from extra curricular assignments by the recommendation of the Campus Committee.

Student demand and interest in the activity, teacher interest, experience or skill in the activity, and the contribution the activity makes to the school program are factors to be reconciled by the Campus Committee and Professional Council in reviewing the record of extra-curricular program and teacher assignment for 1969-70.

ARTICLE IX

Qualifications and Assignments

A. Teachers shall not be assigned outside the scope of their teaching certificates or their major or minor field of study without the consent of the teacher and the Campus Committee.

B. Each year teachers will be consulted regarding the subjects they would prefer to teach. In making assignments, consideration will be given to the teacher's professional preparation, professional teaching experience and his expressed preference. Where there is not mutual agreement on teacher assignments after consultation, the teacher shall accept the assignment and the matter shall be referred to the Personnel Department for adjudication. The teacher may request to be present and/or be represented by the Association when the matter is adjudicated.

C. All teachers shall be given written notice of their assignments for the forthcoming year as soon as the master schedule is completed, and in no event later than May 15. Normally, no changes in teachers' schedules will be made later than the 15th day of August preceding the commencement of the school year. When changes in schedules must be made after August 15, every effort shall be made to consult the teachers prior to the change, as well as to notify the Association.

D. A reasonable effort will be made to schedule teachers with no more than two preparations a day. Each modified, accelerated, and enriched class, requiring different preparation, shall be considered a single preparation. The foregoing is subject to modification for educational purposes such as providing half-classes or for specialized or experimental instruction (e.g., music, art, physical education, etc.).

E. Any assignments in addition to the normal teaching schedule during the regular school year, including adult education courses, driver training, extra duties enumerated in Schedule B other than those enumerated in the teachers' contracts, and summer school courses, shall not be obligatory but shall be with the consent of the teacher. Preference in making such assignments will be given to teachers regularly employed in the district.

F. Teacher schedules and assignments shall be made without regard to race, creed, color, national origin, sex, marital status (Husband and wife cannot be assigned to the same campus.) age or membership in any teacher organization.

G. Department chairmen shall be selected from the ranks of tenure teacher applicants unless a probationary teacher applicant has demonstrated superior qualifications. In any event, department chairmen shall be qualified teachers who have had at least three years of successful teaching experience in secondary schools in the subject area. A department chairman who is not on tenure will not evaluate teachers.

ARTICLE X

Vacancies, Promotions and Transfers

A change in teaching position from one school to another may be requested by the teacher affected, by the principal of the teacher's school, or may be initiated by the Superintendent and his staff. The approval of the Superintendent or his designee is required.

a. The principal criterion for consideration of a request for transfer is whether or not the request will result in the best educational program for the School District. A request for transfer will not be granted if the teacher does not qualify for the existing vacancy.

b. The best educational program results from the selection of a school faculty which is well-balanced in terms of the teachers' experience, general background, and competence. Careful consideration will be given to each of the above when filling vacancies.

A. The Board recognizes that it is desirable in making assignments to consider the interests and aspirations of the teachers. Requests by a teacher for transfer to a different school or position shall be made in writing to the Personnel Department, one copy of which shall be filed with the Association and one copy with the Principal. The application shall set forth the reasons for transfer, the school or position sought, and the applicant's academic qualifications. Such requests shall be renewed once each year to assure active consideration by the Board.

B. The Association recognizes that when vacancies occur during the school year it may be difficult to fill them from within the district without undue disruption to the existing instructional program. If the Superintendent in his reasonable judgment so determines, such a vacancy may be filled on a temporary or tentative basis until the end of the normal school year at which time the position will be considered vacant.

C. Whenever a vacancy arises or is anticipated, the Superintendent shall promptly notify the Personnel Department and the Association. Vacancies shall be filled on the basis of professional experience which includes length of service in the district, competency and qualifications of the applicant and other relevant factors.

D. An involuntary transfer will be made to prevent undue disruption of the instructional program, to relieve overstaffing, and other unforeseen circumstances which may occur. The Superintendent shall notify the Personnel Department, the affected teacher, and the Association of the reasons for such transfer. If the teacher objects to such transfer, the dispute may be referred to the Personnel Department for adjudication. The teacher may request to be present and/or be represented by the Association when the matter is adjudicated.

E. Any teacher who shall be transferred to a supervisory or executive position and shall later return to a teacher status shall be entitled to retain such rights as he may have had under this Agreement prior to such transfer to supervisory or executive status and to full credit for total experience in the System.

F. Teachers who wish to terminate employment will notify the System Personnel Office in writing, but only after such action has been reported to and discussed with the principal concerned. Notification of resignation will be made prior to the close of the school year to become effective at the end of the school year. Only in extreme emergency should a teacher resign less than thirty (30) days prior to the beginning of a new school year. A teacher may be allowed to resign during the school year provided a qualified replacement is available and the teacher gives the Personnel Office at least thirty (30) days prior notice.

ARTICLE XI

Illness or Disability

A. At the beginning of each school year, each teacher shall be credited with a ten day sick leave allowance to be used for absences caused by illness or physical disability of the teacher. The unused portion of such allowance shall accumulate from year to year without limitation.

B. A teacher who is unable to teach because of personal illness or disability and who has exhausted all sick leave available shall be granted a leave of absence without pay for the remainder of the school year. The teacher's health condition will be reviewed and future action will be determined by the school physician and a decision will be made either to return the teacher to active duty, extend the leave of absence, or take other appropriate action.

ARTICLE XII

Temporary Leaves of Absence

A. The Board recognizes that participation in the activities of professional associations, through services on committees, boards, and commissions, may contribute to the professional growth of the staff. Likewise, the continuation of the education of staff members augurs well for the improvement of instruction. Accordingly, substitutes will be provided, upon approval of the Superintendent, for teachers who are absent from classes for the following reasons:

1. Up to three days leave to attend conferences or workshops sponsored by a professional education association, as an official delegate of the association.

2. One day leave to receive a college or graduate degree.

B. A teacher who must appear in any legal proceeding connected with his employment with the school district may be absent without loss of pay for that cause, if the teacher is required by law to attend.

C. The Superintendent, or his designee, shall work out with the Association a calendar of educational meetings which System personnel may attend. Equitable representation will be sought for these meetings from among classroom teachers, representatives of the various departmental divisions, supervisors, and administrators within the System. When so recommended, these persons will attend without loss of pay.

D. The existing statutes with regard to military leave shall apply to this agreement.

ARTICLE XIII

Extended Leaves of Absence

A. The Board agrees that one teacher designated by the Association may, upon request, be granted a leave of absence for one year without pay for the purpose of engaging in Association (local, state, national) activities.

B. A leave of absence without pay will be granted to any teacher who joins the Peace Corps, or is engaged in a similar government approved educational activity, or serves as an exchange teacher, as long as the teacher is a full-time participant in any such program.

C. A leave of absence without pay shall be granted to any teacher upon application to the Board for the purpose of campaigning for or serving in a county, state, or national public office.

D. The statutory requirements with regard to military leave shall apply to this Agreement.

E. All requests for an extended leave of absence shall be applied for and granted in writing.

F. If an extended leave is granted, all accrued rights of tenure, retirement, leave, salary increments, and other benefits shall be preserved and shall be available to the applicant upon his return from leave.

ARTICLE XIV

Sabbatical Leave

A. Teachers who have been employed for seven consecutive years may be granted a sabbatical leave for one year. During said sabbatical leave, the teacher shall be considered to be in the employ of the Board and may be paid one-half his annual salary.

B. A teacher, upon return from a sabbatical leave, shall be restored to his former position or to a position of like nature and status. All accrued rights of tenure, retirement, leave with pay, salary increments and other benefits provided by law shall be preserved and available to the teacher after the termination of the sabbatical leave of absence.

ARTICLE XV

Professional Compensation

A. Effective as of the first teacher work day as defined by the official 1968-69 school calendar, the salary schedule for all teachers covered by this agreement shall be set forth in Schedule A and Schedule B attached to this agreement and made a part of this Article by reference.

B. Teachers required in the course of their employment to drive personal cars on a regular basis shall be authorized to receive a transportation allowance of ten (10) cents per mile. Effort shall be made to limit use of personal cars for school business by the providing of district-owned vehicles. Teacher's names must be placed on the eligibility list in order to receive mileage reimbursement. Use of these vehicles for student-oriented activities shall have first priority. The assignment of the district-owned vehicles will be processed by the administration on each campus. District-owned vehicles shall not be assigned for personal use.

C. Credit for Experience

1. Upon entering the Phoenix Union High School System, the teacher shall be given credit at the rate of one year for each year of prior professional teaching experience in full-time and regular employment in a recognized and accredited educational institution. The maximum prior experience allowance shall be 5 steps on the salary schedule. Requests for retroactive prior service credit will not be considered subsequent to one year of teaching in this system. No prior service credit will be granted for teaching experience obtained more than ten years ago.

2. Trades and Industries teachers in the Phoenix Union High School System will be given one step on the salary schedule for each year of trade experience above the minimum requirements, up to a maximum of five years prior service credit.

3. One step prior service credit will be allowed for each 30 semester hours of approved college earned in T & I subjects at an accredited institution.

Prior service credit for a combination of the above may not exceed five years except as provided by the Board of Education.

D. Advancement Through the Salary Schedule

1. A teacher shall be advanced through the steps of the salary schedule at the rate of one step per year of service in this system, provided he/she has shown competence in the performance of his/her assigned duties.

2. A teacher who has worked full-time in this system for more than one-half of the school year shall be advanced one step on the salary schedule. If employment has been for one semester or less, or employment is for one-half the regular teaching load or less, the teacher will remain on the same step of the salary schedule for the following year. However, if a teacher is teaching on a fractional time basis from year to year, he/she will receive the fractional part of the normal increment.

3. A teacher will be advanced through the steps of the salary schedule provided he/she has completed four semester hours of approved study or four hours of approved non-academic work in the preceding five years. The four hours must have been completed prior to September 1. Teachers new to the system, who have not received four hours of acceptable credit in the preceding five year period, will have until September 1 following their first year of employment to have the four hours completed. Total time - two school years and two summers.

One additional step will be given on the salary schedule for completion of 24 semester hours, one step for completion of 48 semester hours, and one step for completion of 72 semester hours (the earned Doctorate and M.A. +72 are considered equivalent for salary purposes) of approved credit beyond the Master's Degree.

(a) Teachers who qualify for advancement on the salary schedule during the summer will receive an increment for their advancement during the school year immediately following the summer during which the requirements were completed. Work must be completed prior to September 1 and the transcripts must be submitted to the Personnel Manager prior to December 1. This will become effective with the 1968-69 school year.

(b) Approved study shall include all that study done at the request of the officials of the school system; that study accepted for credit toward an advanced degree by an accredited institution of higher learning; other study done after the master's degree if approved by the Superintendent or his delegated representative; and certain non-academic work.

(c) Credit for advancement on the salary schedule requires the prior approval of the Principal and the Personnel Department. Criteria for such approval will be prepared by the Professional Council.

E. Department Chairmen shall follow the salary schedule but shall have their assignments adjusted to compensate for the demands of the department chairmanship. The rate of pay for department chairmen will be determined by the number of teachers in each department at the end of the first reporting period of the school year. All fractions of teachers will be added; and, after the total number of teachers has been determined, the fraction will be rounded out to the next higher whole number from which the Department chairmen's salary increment will be determined.

Number in Department	Additional Yearly Salary
2 to 4	$ 100
5 to 9	$ 200
10 to 14	$ 300
15 to 19	$ 400
20 or more	$ 500

F. Pay for Supervising Activities

Teachers shall be paid for certain supervisory work required for activities supported by admission fees or activities provided out of student funds. The rate of pay shall be $3.50 per hour. A maximum of $10.50 will prevail for supervision of one event or $17.50 for a combined event within the system with the following exceptions:

(1) The individual in charge of supervision of a particular activity.

(2) The Business Manager or the person in charge of the finances of the activity or event.

The maximum shall be $10.50 for bus supervisors if the event is less than fifty (50) miles from the Phoenix Union High School District, $14.00 if between fifty (50) and ninety-nine (99) miles away, or $17.50 if one hundred (100) or more miles away.

G. Pay for Extended School Year

If a teacher works more than the regular contract year, payment for this work will be according to the following formula:

Summer school teachers' weekly rate shall be .25 of the weekly contract rate of the preceding year's contract for each class taught.

Weekly pay for participants in 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. system workshops shall be .75 of the weekly contract rate of the preceding year. Minimum pay for summer school shall be $55 for each class.

Teachers in Evening Schools and Adult Education courses shall be paid at the rate of $6.00 per hour.

This formula will be used for all categories of teachers except the following who shall be paid at their regular weekly rate:

1. Counselors
2. Teachers of Cosmetology
3. Teachers of Horticulture
4. Practical Nursing Instructors
5. Manpower Instructors
6. Teachers of Distributive Education
7. Teachers of Industrial Cooperative Education
8. Teachers of Cooperative Office Education

Teachers on other assignments shall be paid at their regular contract rate, unless otherwise specified in this agreement.

H. Correspondence Course teachers shall be paid at the rate of $1.25 per lesson evaluated.

I. No reduction in teachers salaries shall be made except in accordance with a general reduction required by law in this school district and in such case the reduction shall be equitably applied among all budget items.

ARTICLE XVI

Academic Freedom

A. The parties seek to educate people in the democratic tradition, to foster a recognition of individual freedom and social responsibility, to inspire meaningful awareness of, and respect for, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, and to instill appreciation of the values of individual personality. It is recognized that these democratic values can best be transmitted in an atmosphere which is free from censorship and artificial restraints upon free inquiry and learning, and in which academic freedom for teacher and student is encouraged.

B. Academic freedom shall be guaranteed to teachers in order to create in the classroom an atmosphere of freedom, which permits students to raise questions dealing with critical issues of the time and which maintains an atmosphere conducive to the study, investigation, presentation, and interpretation of facts which stress the interplay of ideas. The teacher has the right to express his point of view provided his students understand that it is his opinion and not to be accepted by them as an authoritative statement. In addition the teacher is responsible for exercising his judgment in selecting for discussion those relevant issues which he may deem to be of value to the maturity and understanding of the students involved.

C. Freedom of individual conscience, association and expression will be encouraged, and fairness in procedures will be observed both to safeguard the legitimate interests of the schools and to exhibit by appropriate examples the basic objectives of a democratic society.

D. Teachers will be entitled to full rights of citizenship, and no religious or political activities of any teacher or lack thereof will be grounds for any discipline or discrimination with respect to the professional employment of such teacher.

ARTICLE XVII

Teacher Evaluation

A. The performance of all teachers shall be evaluated in writing. Probationary teachers shall be evaluated at least three times during the school year. Tenure teachers shall be evaluated at least once every two years.

B. Evaluation shall be conducted by the Department Head and the Principal or his designee. At least one of the three evaluations of the probationary teachers shall be conducted by the Principal and at least one by the Department Head. At the beginning of the school year, the Principal shall prepare a list of the administrators qualified to evaluate teachers in certain subject areas, and designate those areas to be evaluated.

C. Each observation shall be made in person for a minimum of thirty consecutive minutes. All monitoring or observation of the work of the teacher shall be conducted openly and with full knowledge of the teacher. A written report of the observation shall be submitted to the teacher.

D. A copy of each written evaluation shall be submitted to the teacher. If either the teacher or the evaluator requests a personal interview, it will be held within ten days after the observation. The teacher will be given an opportunity to review each written evaluation report. A conference will be held with each probationary teacher within ten days after the third observation. All evaluations shall be based on valid criteria mutually developed by the Association and the Administration. Within ten days after the teacher has received the evaluation report, a copy of this report shall be submitted to the Personnel Manager.

E. The Principal, no later than February 1 of each year, shall submit the final written evaluation and recommendation for probationary teachers to the teacher, the Superintendent, and the Association. If the Association disagrees with the recommendation of the Principal regarding the re-employment of a probationary teacher, the Association may present its written recommendation to the Professional Council. In the event a probationary teacher is not re-employed, the Board will advise the teacher of the reasons in writing, with a copy to the Association.

ARTICLE XVIII

Teacher Files

All teacher files shall be maintained under the following conditions:

A. All materials placed in the teacher's files and originating within the School District shall be available beginning September 1, 1968, to the teacher at his request for inspection, except as provided in Section D.

B. Material originating within the School District and which is derogatory to a teacher's conduct, service, character or personality shall not be placed in a teacher's file unless the teacher has had an opportunity to read the material. The teacher shall acknowledge that he has read such material by affixing his signature on the actual copy to be filed. Such signature does not necessarily indicate agreement with the content of such material.

C. The teacher shall have the right to answer any material filed, and his answer shall be submitted to the Principal, reviewed by the Personnel Manager, and attached to the file copy.

D. All references and information originating outside the School District on the basis of confidentiality, and information obtained within the School District in the process of recommending the teacher for employment or promotion shall not be subject to this agreement and therefore shall not be available for inspection by the teacher.

ARTICLE XIX

Professional Behavior

A. Alleged breaches of discipline shall be promptly reported to the offending teacher and to the Association. The Association will use its best efforts to correct breaches of professional behavior by any teacher.

B. A teacher shall be entitled to have a representative of the Association present when he is being reprimanded or disciplined for infraction of rules or delinquency in professional performance. When a request for such representation is made, no action shall be taken with respect to the teacher until a representative of the Association is present.

C. Teachers shall not be disciplined, reprimanded, reduced in rank or compensation, or deprived of any professional advantage without just cause, and all information forming the basis for disciplinary action will be made available to the teacher and the Association. No such action will in any way interfere with the Board's legal right to disassociate a probationary teacher from the employ of the District for just cause.

ARTICLE XX

In-Service Training

The parties recognize that in our rapidly changing society teachers must constantly review curriculum content, teaching methods and material, educational philosophy and goals, social change and other topics related to education. The Board recognizes that it shares with its professional staff the responsibility for the upgrading and updating of teacher performance and attitudes.

a. The Professional Council may recommend to the Board the topics for workshops, conferences and programs designed for teachers during school hours.

b. The Professional Council may also recommend to the Board the topics for after school courses, workshops, conferences, and programs designed to improve the quality of instruction.

ARTICLE XXI

Student Discipline

A. Wherever it appears that a particular pupil is a continuing disruptive influence in a class, and that the pupil requires the special attention of counselors, social workers, law enforcement officials, psychologists, physicians, or other professional personnel, the administration will take reasonable steps to relieve the teacher of responsibilities for such pupils.

The System psychologist and doctor working with counselors and teachers from the Association will establish criteria to determine how such pupils will be identified.

The Board agrees that specific steps will be taken toward the solution of this problem. As a first step at least one class, or corrective referral group, will be established on one campus during 1968-69.

B. A teacher may exclude a pupil from a class for one class period or less when the grossness of the offense, the persistence of the misbehavior, or the disruptive effect of the violation makes the continued presence of the student unacceptable. In such cases, the student may be excluded from the class for the remainder of the period and will be sent with the appropriate transmittal slip to an Administrative Assistant. The teacher will furnish the Administrative Assistant with the full particulars of the incident as promptly as his teaching obligations will permit.

C. Students shall be suspended from school only by the Principal or his designee. The administration will endeavor to achieve correction of student misbehavior through counseling and interviews with the student and his parents. If transfer of the student to another teacher is deemed appropriate, such transfer will be arranged by mutual agreement between the teachers and administration.

D. In any case of an assault upon a teacher, or a complaint or suit by third parties as a result of action taken by the teacher while performing his duties, the Board will render all reasonable assistance to the teacher in connection with the handling of the incident by law enforcement and judicial authorities.

E. No action shall be taken upon a complaint made by a parent of a student directed toward a teacher, nor shall any reference to the complaint be included in the teacher's personnel file unless the teacher is duly notified.

A teacher shall be provided with the opportunity to be included in conferences between parents and the administration when the conference pertains to the teacher's relationship with one of his students.

ARTICLE XXII

Grievance Procedure

A. 1. A "grievance" shall mean a complaint by a teacher, or teachers, in the negotiating unit that there has been a violation, a misinterpretation, or inequitable application of any of the provisions of this Agreement.

2. An "aggrieved person" is a teacher or a group of teachers asserting a grievance.

3. A "party of interest" is an employee who might be required to take action or against whom action might be taken in order to resolve a grievance.

4. "Days" shall mean working school days.

B. 1. Good morale is maintained, as problems arise, by sincere efforts of all persons concerned to work toward constructive solutions in an atmosphere of courtesy and cooperation. The purpose of this procedure is to secure, at the lowest possible administrative level, equitable solutions to the problems which may, from time to time, arise. Both parties agree that these proceedings will be kept as informal and confidential as may be appropriate at any level of the procedure.

2. Nothing contained herein will be construed as limiting the right of any teacher having a grievance to discuss the matter informally with any appropriate member of the administration and having the grievance adjusted, provided the adjustment is consistent with the terms of this Agreement. The Association shall have the opportunity to be present and to state its views at any level in the grievance procedure beyond LEVEL ONE in the Formal Procedure.

C. Since it is important that grievances be processed as rapidly as possible, the number of days indicated at each level should be considered as a maximum, and every effort should be made to expedite the process. The time limits specified may be extended by mutual agreement.

If a grievance is filed which might not be finally resolved at LEVEL THREE under the time limits set forth herein prior to the end of the school year, and which if left unresolved until the beginning of the following school year could result in irreparable harm to a party or parties in interest, the time limits set forth herein will be reduced so that the grievance procedure may be concluded prior to the end of the school year.

D. Informal Procedure

If a teacher feels that he has a grievance, he may first discuss the matter with his principal or other appropriate administrator, in an effort to resolve the problem informally.

The teacher may (1) discuss the alleged grievance personally or (2) request that the Association's representative accompany him and request that he act on the teacher's behalf.

E. Formal Procedure

1. Level One - School Principal

A. If an aggrieved person is not satisfied with the outcome of the informal procedure, or if he has not elected to utilize it, he may present his alleged grievance formally in writing to his principal or other appropriate administrator.

B. The aggrieved person or the principal may request a conference prior to the rendering of the decision. The teacher may (1) discuss the alleged grievance personally or (2) request that the Association's representative accompany him and request that he act on the teacher's behalf.

C. The principal or other appropriate administrator, within five (5) days after receipt of the alleged grievance or after the personal conference, shall render a written decision to the aggrieved person with a copy to the campus representative of the Association.

2. Level Two - Superintendent of Schools

A. If an aggrieved person is not satisfied with the decision concerning his alleged grievance at Level One, he may, within three (3) days after the decision is rendered, or within eight (8) days after his formal presentation file his alleged grievance with the Association.

B. The Association shall, within five (5) days, make a judgment on the merits of the alleged grievance. If the Association decides, either that the alleged grievance lacks merit, or that the decision at Level One is in the best interest of the school system, it shall send written notification to the teacher and the campus representative of the Association. If the Association decides that the alleged grievance has merit and the decision at Level One is not acceptable, it shall, within five (5) days after receipt refer such grievance in writing to the Superintendent of Schools.

C. The Superintendent of Schools within ten (10) days from the receipt of the written grievance shall designate three persons, who may include himself, to meet with the aggrieved person and representatives of the Association for the purpose of resolving the grievance. The Principal or appropriate administrator who was involved at Level One shall be notified and shall have the option of attending the meeting.

The Superintendent shall, within five (5) days after this meeting, render his decision in writing to the aggrieved person, the Principal or appropriate administrator, and the Association.

3. Level Three - Impartial Arbitration

A. If the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level Two, he may within three (3) days after the decision is rendered, or within ten (10) days after the meeting with the Superintendent, request in writing to the President of the Association that his grievance be submitted to arbitration. The President shall immediately refer the request to the Association's Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee (hereinafter referred to as the PR&R Committee.)

B. The PR&R Committee shall, within five (5) days, make a judgment on the merits of the alleged grievance. If the PR&R Committee decides, either that the alleged grievance lacks merit, or that the decision at Level Two is in the best interest of the school system, it shall send written notification to the teacher and the campus representative of the Association. If the PR&R Committee decides that the alleged grievance has merit and the decision at Level Two is not acceptable, it shall, within five (5) days after receipt, request the Association to submit the grievance to arbitration.

C. The Association may, within five (5) days after the receipt of the request, submit the grievance to arbitration by so notifying the Board in writing.

D. The President of the Board and the Association shall, within five (5) days after the written notice is received, select jointly an arbitrator who is an experienced and impartial person of recognized competence. If the parties are unable to agree upon an arbitrator within five (5) days, the American Arbitration Association shall be called upon immediately to select an arbitrator.

E. The arbitrator shall confer promptly with representatives of the Board and the Association, shall review the record of prior meetings, and shall hold such further hearings as he deems necessary.

F. The arbitrator will have authority to hold hearings and make procedural rules. His recommendations will be issued within a reasonable time after the date of the close of the hearings or, if oral hearings have been waived, from the date the final statements and evidence are submitted to him.

G. The arbitrator's recommendations shall be submitted in writing as soon as possible to the Board, with a copy to the Association only, and shall set forth his findings of fact, reasoning and conclusions on the issues submitted. The arbitrator's recommendations shall be consistent with existing statute.

H. The Board shall take official action on the report of the arbitrator within fifteen (15) days after its receipt and shall render its decision in writing to all parties concerned.

I. All costs for the services of the arbitrator shall be shared equally by the Board and the Association.

F. All sessions held in connection with the processing of grievances including arbitration shall be in closed session and no new releases shall be made concerning progress of the hearings.

G. 1. Reprisals shall not be taken against any teacher, any party in interest, any Association representative or any other participant in the grievance procedure by reason of such participation.

2. Any party in interest may be represented at any level of the formal grievance procedure by a person, or persons, of his own choosing. When a teacher is not represented by the Association, the Association shall have the right to be present and to state its views at any level of the formal grievance procedure.

H. 1. If a grievance affects a group of teachers from more than one school, the Association may submit such grievance in writing directly to the Superintendent's office, and the processing of such grievances may be commenced at LEVEL TWO. The Association may process such a grievance even though the aggrieved persons do not wish to do so.

2. Decisions rendered at LEVEL TWO of the grievance procedure will be in writing setting forth the decision and the reasons therefor, and will be transmitted promptly to all parties in interest and to the Association.

Decisions rendered at LEVEL THREE will be in accordance with the procedures set forth heretofore.

3. All written and printed matter dealing with the processing of a grievance will be filed separately from the central office personnel files of the participants.

4. The Board agrees to make available to the aggrieved person and his representative, all pertinent information not privileged under law in its possession or control and which is relevant to the issues raised by the grievance, except as otherwise provided for in this Agreement.

5. When it is necessary at LEVEL TWO or LEVEL THREE for a representative, or representatives, designated by the Association, to attend a meeting or a hearing called by the Superintendent or his designee during the school day, the Superintendent's office shall so notify the principal of such Association representatives, and they shall be released without loss of pay for such time as their attendance is required at such meeting or hearing. The cost of substitutes will be shared equally by the Board and the Association.

6. No grievance shall be recognized by the Board or the Association unless it shall have been presented to the appropriate level within thirty (30) school days after the aggrieved person knew, or should have known, of the act or condition on which the grievance is based, and if not so presented, the grievance shall be considered as waived, provided that no grievance shall be recognized at LEVEL TWO unless it shall have been filed with the Superintendent's office within at least forty-five (45) days after the act or condition upon which it is based occurred.

I. A grievance may be withdrawn at any level without prejudice or record, and cannot be reopened.

J. Failure by the aggrieved person at any level to appeal a grievance to the next level within the specified time limits herein shall be deemed to be acceptance of the decision rendered at that level.

ARTICLE XXIII

Professional Council

A. The membership of the Professional Council shall be composed of five members of the Administrative-Supervisory staff designated by the Superintendent, and five members of the Association.

The Superintendent, serving in an ex-officio and non-voting capacity, will attend all meetings of the Professional Council.

B. The Professional Council shall meet at least once a month in order to discuss and research topics of mutual concern. The scope of the topics will include the following, in addition to other topics which may be presented to the Council for consideration.

1. To investigate specifically the items mentioned in Article VI, Section J, and make recommendations concerning same.

2. To assist in the planning and scheduling of System-wide meetings.

3. To assist in the preparation of the official school calendar.

4. To confer for the purpose of improving the selection and use of educational tools.

5. To participate in an appropriate manner in budget discussions prior to the preparation of the annual budget.

6. To consider appropriate referrals from campus committees.

7. To refer mutually agreed-upon items to the Negotiation Teams.

The meetings of the Professional Council shall be scheduled so as not to conflict with other existing System and campus committees.

C. When a topic is discussed by the Professional Council the preferable procedure for arriving at a decision will be initially through a consensus of the membership. If a consensus of the Council is not easily discerned, the topic under consideration will be resolved through a majority vote of the Council.

D. The Professional Council will make recommendations to the Superintendent and the Board regarding the topics that have been discussed. When the Superintendent has arrived at a decision regarding any topic recommended by the Professional Council, the results of the Superintendent's decision will be made available to the Board of Education.

In all cases, the Board will be the final authority on any topic brought to the Board of Education's attention by the Professional Council.

E. The Professional Council will select one of its voting members to be Chairman. The Chairman shall have a vote.

The agenda for the Professional Council will be determined by a member of the Association and the Administration serving as a screening committee for agenda items.

The minutes of the Professional Council will be disseminated to the Association, as well as to the members of the Administrative-Supervisory staff in the System.

The clerical expenses of the Professional Council and its committees shall be paid by the Board.

F. Association members on the Professional Council shall be released from school duties for meetings of the Professional Council without loss of salary whenever it is jointly decided to hold such meetings during the school day.

G. Resource people may attend a meeting by notification of the screening committee by a member of the Council prior to the preparation of the agenda.

ARTICLE XXIV

Campus Committee

A. A Campus Committee will be established at each school. The membership of the Committee shall be composed of seven members designated by the Association, (four to be elected by members of the Association on campus, and three to be appointed by the Association's Executive Board from members on campus) and at least three members of the Administrative-Supervisory staff on campus designated by the Principal. The selection of the membership of the Campus Committee will be determined prior to May 1 of each year.

The Principal, serving in an ex-officio and non-voting capacity, will attend all meetings of the Campus Committee.

B. The Campus Committee shall be scheduled to meet once a week, if needed. The Campus Committee must meet twice a month. The purpose of the Campus Committee is to discuss and research matters of mutual concern at the campus level. This Committee is to be in no way a substitute for the grievance procedure.

The meetings will be scheduled to begin no later than the start of the last instructional period of the school day.

The meetings of the Campus Committee shall be scheduled so as not to conflict with other existing System committees and the Professional Council.

C. When a topic is discussed by the Campus Committee the preferable procedure for arriving at a decision will be initially through a consensus of the membership. If a consensus of the Committee is not easily discerned, the topic under consideration will be resolved through a majority vote of the Committee.

D. The Campus Committee will make recommendations to the Principal regarding the topics that have been discussed. When the Principal has arrived at a decision regarding any topic forwarded by the Campus Committee, the Principal's decision, together with the recommendation of the Campus Committee, will be disseminated to the Professional Council and faculty. Minutes of the Campus Committee may be disseminated to the faculty.

In all cases, the Board will be the final authority on any topic brought to the Board of Education's attention by the Campus Committee through the Professional Council.

E. The Campus Committee will select one of its voting members to be Chairman. The Chairman shall have a vote. The agenda for the Campus Committee will be determined by a member of the Association and the Administration serving as a screening committee for agenda items.

F. Campus Committee members shall be released from school duties for meetings of the Committee without loss of salary whenever it is jointly decided to hold such meetings during the school day.

G. Resource people may attend a meeting by notification of the Screening Committee by a member of the Campus Committee prior to the preparation of the agenda.

ARTICLE XXV

A. There shall be no strikes or work stoppage, nor shall sanctions be applied against the District for any reason whatsoever by the Association.

ARTICLE XXVI

Effective Dates and Duration

A. If any provision or application of this agreement to any teacher or group of teachers shall be found to be contrary to law, then such provision or application shall be deemed valid only to the extent permitted by law, but all other provisions or applications shall continue in full force and effect.

B. The provisions of this Agreement shall be effective as of the date of this Agreement. The provisions of this Agreement regarding salary increases shall be effective as of the first teacher work day, as defined by the official 1968-69 school calendar.

C. This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect until July 1, 1970. Said Agreement will automatically be renewed and will continue in full force and effect for additional periods of one year unless either the Board or the Association gives written notice to the other not later than November 30, 1969 or any anniversary thereof, to terminate this Agreement, at the end of that first year.

D. The Board of Education and the Association recognize that there are external factors which could create a fiscal emergency that may necessitate consideration of modification of this agreement; e.g., additional financial restrictions imposed or benefits granted by the legislature. Any serious reduction in instructional services or significant increase in instructional services occurring as a result of the foregoing will not take place unless mutually agreed upon by the Board and the Association.

E. A copy of this Agreement shall be printed at the joint expense of the Board and the Association.

The Index is multiplied by Steps 2 through 6 of Teachers' Schedule A (the first 5 steps of the Master's Schedule).

Extra pay step is determined by years of service in the assignment in the Phoenix Union High School System.

The additional pay for coaches shall be for the season of practice as defined by the Arizona Interscholastic Association and their contracts for coaching shall be drawn accordingly. The extra service responsibilities for coaches, pom and cheer sponsors, and directors of Girls Athletic Association and Boys Athletic Association shall not begin prior to the close of the last teaching period of the school day.

Supervisory pay shall not be paid any of the above-listed personnel for performing the services for which extra pay is allocated.

Coaches who change coaching assignments shall not lose an index step.

Coaches who leave a coaching assignment for up to two years, but who remain in the System, will not lose an index step.

Coaches shall not be penalized for refusing additional coaching duties assigned by the Administration.

Varsity coaches shall have no more than two coaching assignments without their consent.

Coaches, other than varsity coaches, shall normally be limited to two coaching assignments.

SCHOOL SYSTEMS WHICH NEGOTIATE WITH MULTIPLE ORGANIZATIONS

The listing of 119 school systems which recognize more than one organization provides information on the local representation, national affiliation, and type of negotiation. Representatives from local affiliates for both the National Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers are on 47 of the 87 joint negotiating councils with proportional representation. On 16 of the councils, representatives are from affiliates of the NEA and independent organizations. Separate local units which are NEA affiliates compose 24 joint negotiating councils.

On all 52 joint negotiating councils in California, the majority of the members represent local organizations which are affiliates of the California Teachers Association and the National Education Association. On the 27 joint negotiating councils in Minnesota, the majority of the members in 18 councils represent NEA affiliates; in 8 councils, AFT affiliates; and one council, an independent organization.

Organizations which represent administrators, principals, or supervisors are designated on 32 of the joint negotiating councils. Of these 32 councils, 23 local administrator organizations are NEA affiliates and 9 are independent groups.

Of the 25 school systems which indicate separate negotiation with two or more local organizations, 20 systems conduct separate negotiation with local classroom teacher organizations and administrator organizations. In 15 of these 20 systems both the local classroom teacher organization and the administrator organization are affiliates of the National Education Association.

The following abbreviations are used to indicate the type of negotiation in effect:

JNE: Joint negotiating council with an equal number of representatives from each recognized organization.

JNP: Joint negotiating council with representation proportional to the number of staff members represented by each recognized organization.

SN: Separate negotiation for each recognized organization.

Description and Analysis

NEW JERSEY EMPLOYER-EMPLOYEE RELATIONS ACT

New Jersey passes bill to provide public employee negotiation with a separate administrative agency for public employees. A Public Employment Relations Commission is established in the Act to make policy, establish rules and regulations, mediate impasses, and resolve representation disputes. The Act provides for an exclusive representative for an appropriate unit which may be designated, selected, or elected by the majority of employees. The negotiating unit shall be defined with due regard for the community of interest, established practice, prior agreement, or special circumstances. The Commission shall not intervene in matters of recognition and unit definition except in the event of dispute.

ATTORNEY GENERAL OPINION (NEW MEXICO) CLARIFIES SCHOOL BOARDS OBLIGATION IN CASE OF STRIKE

Several public school systems in New Mexico were involved in teacher strikes last February. The reaction of the local school boards varied as to their obligation for the school year and the payment or nonpayment of teachers' salaries and the duty requirements of teachers who worked and teachers who were on strike. The Attorney General created three different sets of circumstances involving teacher strikes and answered specific questions which might arise relative to each set. According to the Attorney General, the school year is controlled by law which requires a school district to have 180 teaching days. This is not to be confused with "duty days." The payment of teachers' salaries and the number of days teachers are required to work are controlled by the teacher's employment contract. Generally, within the controls established in these documents, the local school board may at its discretion accommodate in several ways to situations arising out of strikes.

EXISTING AGREEMENT ACTS AS BAR AGAINST ELECTION

Agreement between the Flint Education Association (NEA) and the Flint, Michigan, Board of Education was held to bar petition for election by the Flint Federation of Teachers among teachers of Flint Community Junior College. The agreement between the Association and the Board is effective from September 1, 1966, to August 31, 1969, with reopener on or after February 1, 1968, for the purpose of negotiating teachers' salaries and fringe benefits and class size for the school year 1968-69. The Federation argued that (a) the reopener clause is so extensive that the contract would cease to exist, and (b) the unit described by the Federation is more appropriate for collective bargaining than the present certified Association unit. The Board found that the reopener clause did not prevent the agreement from acting as a bar as long as the term of the agreement was within the three-year limit established by law. Further, the question that one unit is more appropriate than another was held to be moot during the term of the agreement.

ARBITRATOR IN ROCHESTER, NEW YORK, DETERMINES BARGAIN UNITS FOR SCHOOL PERSONNEL

What classifications of school personnel should be represented and what bargaining units should be determined to represent the school personnel? These issues were determined in Rochester (New York) Public School System by a single arbitrator in two bargaining unit cases. One case determined the bargaining units and representation for the professional staff; the other case determined the same for the nonteaching staff. While the Rochester Teachers Association was elected to represent the classroom teacher unit, it requested recognition for a unit including all employees on the administrative and supervisory salary schedule (except administrative directors, coordinators, and assistant superintendents) and all Bracket T-II assignments. This separate unit was deemed appropriate after the arbitrator determined certain criteria established in the law for (a) community of interest, (b) power of authority to reach agreement, and (c) responsibilities to serve the public were satisfied.

These same criteria were used in the other case involving all nonteaching personnel. Prior to the request for determination, one organization conducted informal negotiation for all nonteaching personnel. Separate units for a Primary Unit and a Supervisory and Technical Unit (excluding the civil service "exempt category") were determined appropriate by the aribtrator. In addition, the arbitrator considered the desires of the teacher aides upon petition to be excluded from the units to be valid. Election procedures in both cases were established under the auspices of the American Arbitration Association whereby the persons involved could determine whether they would be represented by the requesting organizations. (The Rochester Teachers Association was elected to represent the professional administrative and supervisory unit.)

NEW CONCEPT OF ILLNESS AND DISABILITY PROTECTION

The agreement between the Livonia, Michigan, Public Schools and the Livonia Education Association (NEA), effective from September 1968 to August 1969, contains a new concept of illness and disability protection. This provision provides for the establishment of an illness and disability bank. The reserve funds allocated to this bank are to be used to remunerate teachers for the unused portion of annual days alloted for illness, disability, and/or personal business. This provision will be tried on an experimental basis during the term of this agreement. Reprint of article follows:

LIVONIA PUBLIC SCHOOLS
LIVONIA EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (NEA)
LIVONIA, MICHIGAN

ARTICLE X

Illness and Disability

On an experimental basis during the period of this Agreement, the Board and the Association agree to incorporate a new concept of illness and disability protection for teachers. Such illness and disability protection shall be provided as hereinafter set forth:

A. Coverage

1. Group I

a. Teachers who have less than three full years service with the Livonia Public Schools shall be known as Group I teachers for the purposes of this Article.

b. Group I teachers shall be provided with ten (10) annual days leave per year for the purpose of illness, disability, and/or personal business. Such annual days shall not be cumulative; however, the unused portion of said annual days shall be remunerated from the Illness and Disability Bank, prior to June 30, in accordance with the formula prescribed in B. 2, of this Article.

c. Group I teachers shall also be provided by the Board with salary continuation insurance protection in the amount of $50/wk., as provided by MESSA.

2. Group II

a. Teachers who have three or more full years' service with the Livonia Public Schools shall be known as Group II teachers for the purposes of this Article.

b. Group II teachers shall be guaranteed a sum equal to the total amount of their annual salary as set forth in Appendix A, in the event they are ill or disabled and unable to work. This salary guarantee shall be for any period of illness or disability up to one calendar year from the onset of the illness or disability. In no event, however, shall any teacher be paid under this provision an amount in excess of the total salary he would have earned had he been able to work during the period of the illness or disability.

c. Group II Teachers shall be allotted ten (10) computational days leave per year for the purpose of illness, disability, and/or personal business. Such computational days shall not be cumulative; however, the unused portion of said computational days shall be remunerated from the Illness and Disability Bank prior to June 30 in accordance with the formula prescribed in B. 2, of this Article.

3. For any absence which exceeds three consecutive school days the teacher shall upon request provide the office of the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel with a written statement from a qualified physician as to the need for such absence.

a. Only in emergencies may leave days be taken under the provisions of this Article on the last two days of school or immediately preceding or following a holiday. Any use of leave days under this emergency provision must be approved by the Superintendent of Schools in advance if at all possible. The teacher shall furnish verification upon request from a qualified physician if they are ill on these days.

B. Illness and Disability Bank

1. Funding*

a. For the purposes of administering the illness and disability protection for teachers, an Illness and Disability Bank shall be established in the amount of $_____ (this sum having been determined by multiplying the number of members of the bargaining unit by the average number of days used for the purposes of illness, disability, and/or personal business, and in turn multiplying that figure by the current per diem substitute rate).

b. The Illness and Disability Bank shall have two (2) sections: A and B. The purposes of the A section shall be: (1) to charge all absences of Group I teachers actually requiring a substitute against; and (2), to provide Group I teachers with a base for remuneration of unused annual days. The purpose of the B section shall be: (1) to charge all absences of Group II teachers actually requiring a substitute against: and (2), to provide Group II teachers with a base for remuneration of unused computational days.

The amount of the A section shall be $_____, and the amount of the B section shall be $_____, the basis for said amounts having been determined according to Paragraph a above.

c. Ninety per cent of the initial amount allocated to the respective sections (A and B) of the Illness and Disability Bank shall be used to remunerate teachers for unused days according to the following paragraphs of this Article. Ten per cent of the initial amount shall be reserved by the Board for use in this program in future years.

d. In addition, there shall be maintained a Reserve Illness and Disability Bank in the amount of $_____. The Reserve Illness and Disability Bank shall be used expressly for the purpose of protecting the liability of the Board during the period of this Agreement, and shall not be included in the remuneration for the unused portion of annual days in the case of Group I teachers, nor the remuneration for the unused portion of computational days in the case of Group II teachers.

2. Remuneration

a. Teachers in Group I shall be remunerated for unused annual days according to the following formula:

$(A-B-C) \div D = E$, where

A = Total of Section A Bank
B = 10% for future years

*Note: The dollar amounts cannot be filled in until the rate of pay for substitutes, number of teachers in the bargaining unit and average number of days used are determined. The dollar amounts shall be as set forth in these paragraphs.

C = Total number of days for which substitute was required x current substitute rate
D = Total number of unused annual days

E = Amount of remuneration per unused annual day.

b. Teachers in Group II shall be remunerated for unused computational days according to the following formula:

(A-B-C) ÷ D = E, where

A = Total of Section B Bank
B = 10% for future years
C = Total number of days for which substitute was required x current substitute rate
D = Total number of unused computational days

E = Amount of remuneration per unused computational day.

C. Evaluation

1. In recognition of the experimental nature of the Illness and Disability Program contained herein, the Association and the Board agree to evaluate the program prior to the close of the school year in order to assess its effect upon reducing the usage of substitute days within the district and its attempt to provide increased benefits for teachers.

2. Such evaluation shall result in the mutual determination of the desirability of continuing the program in future years.

It is expressly understood that all members of the bargaining unit who have accumulated sick leave days under the provision of previous contracts shall retain that accumulation and, in the event that it is mutually agreed as a result of the evaluation to return to the plan set forth in the Agreement of 1966-68 or a similar plan involving the accumulation of sick leave days, such accumulation shall be restored in full. Toward this end, the Office of the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel shall forward a statement to this effect including the total accumulated days to each member of the bargaining unit having such accumulation, a carbon copy of which shall be placed in the teacher's personnel file.

It is further understood that such accumulation shall not be used during the period of this Agreement, except that a teacher in Group I who has exhausted his ten (10) annual days may use any portion or all of the days accumulated under previous contracts, should he so desire. In such an instance, the Board agrees not to charge days used from prior accumulation against the Illness and Disability Bank.

The Superintendent's office shall forward to the Association on a monthly basis a list indicating the actual number of days for which a substitute was required for both Group I and Group II teachers. No later than Wednesday following the last day of school, the Association shall be furnished with the data and computations necessary to determine remuneration to both Group I and Group II teachers on the basis of the formulas established in this Article.

MICHIGAN BOARD SETS ASIDE ELECTION

An election held on March 12, 1968, to determine the bargaining agent for teachers in Willow Run Public Schools, Michigan, was set aside by the State Labor Mediation Board because a document, found to be a misstatement of fact, was distributed by the Association on the day of the election. Although this document in itself was not reason enough to order a second election, the Board decided that the effect on the election results was significant and the timing of the distribution did not permit the other parties to reply. The Board ordered a second election to be held.

REVIEW PANELS REPORT ON SALARY NEGOTIATION IMPASSE IN JEFFERSON COUNTY (LOUISVILLE) KENTUCKY

Salary negotiation impasse between the Jefferson County Board of Education, Louisville, Kentucky, and the Jefferson County Teachers Association (NEA) was referred to a Review Panel. This was made possible under the terms of the parties Professional Negotiation Agreement made and entered into on December 6, 1967. The Board had adopted a tentative Budget for 1968-69 which contained a salary range of $5,800 to $10,208. The Association proposal provided a salary range of $6,000 to $11,130. The Review Panel recommended a compromise plan with a salary range of $5,900 to $10,496.

The Review Panel reasoned that:

> Teachers should not be expected to subsidize governmental operations if sufficient funds are not provided through tax revenues. The Board does not seek to cut wage rates of employees of contractors that build buildings for the system or that provide other services necessary for its operation. It pays the prices set by competitive bidding for supplies in the open market. It follows, therefore, that teachers should be paid salaries that are competitive to those of systems comparable with the local one.

CHARGES OF DISCRIMINATION BY RIVAL ORGANIZATION DISMISSED BY MICHIGAN BOARD

After a representative election won by the Avondale Education Association, the Board of Education negotiated with the exclusive representative organization. The agreement provides certain rights and privileges to the Association, such as, dues checkoff, posting of organization material on an official bulletin board, and right to use meeting rooms. These privileges were denied the rival organization, the Avondale Federation of Teachers. Thereupon, the Federation filed discrimination charges against the Board of Education.

Although the charges were substantiated by the record, the trial examiner found no violation of the law and dismissed the Federation's charges. The law does not require an employer to grant equal privileges to a rival organization. Further, legally speaking, absent a newly raised question of representation, the losing organization does not continue to "represent" a "minority"; it represents no one, because the winning organization legally represents and speaks for every employee in dealings with the employer regarding salaries and conditions of employment. The Michigan Labor Board upheld the trial examiner's dismissal of the charges.

U. S. SUPREME COURT HELD VALID FAIR LABOR STANDARDS AMENDMENTS WHICH EXTENDS COVERAGE TO CERTAIN SCHOOL EMPLOYEES

Maryland, joined by 27 other states and one school district, brought suit against the Secretary of Labor, seeking to enjoin enforcement of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) as applied to schools and hospitals operated by the states and their subdivisions. Persons employed in an executive, administrative, or professional capacity are excluded from coverage.

In 1961, the Congress changed the basis of employee coverage under the FLSA to include employees of any "enterprise" engaged in interstate commerce. In 1966, the exemption of states and their political subdivisions with respect to school and hospital employees was removed.

The states in this suit charged that the "enterprise" concept was beyond the power of the Congress under the Commerce Clause and that coverage of state-operated hospitals and schools was likewise beyond the commerce power. The Court believed that the "enterprise" concept was within the power of the Congress since interstate commerce depends NOT only on the individual workers but on the whole "enterprise." The protection was extended merely to fellow employees of any employee who would have been protected by the original Act. It did not enlarge the class of employers.

The second contention of the states, that the Commerce Clause does not afford a constitutional basis for extension of the Act to state-operated schools and hospitals, assumed that the Congress was interfering with "a sovereign state function." The Court declared that the states were not being told how to perform medical and educational functions. The Court felt that since schools and hospitals are major users of goods imported from other states, and the flow of interstate goods is affected by work stoppages which do occur in these institutions, this is a valid regulation under the Commerce Clause. The court held that "valid general regulations of commerce do not cease to be regulations of commerce because a state is involved." (Maryland et. al. v. Wirtz, Secretary of Labor, U. S. Supreme Court, June 10, 1968, 36 LW 4565).

Teacher Strikes in 1967-68*

THE PAST SCHOOL YEAR from August 1967 through June 1968 was witness to a veritable explosion in teacher strikes and work stoppages--a total of 114. These strikes accounted for over one-third of the number of teacher strikes and 80 percent of the estimated number of man-days involved in strikes since 1940. They occurred in 21 of the 50 states and in the District of Columbia, and ranged in length from 1 day to more than 3 weeks. State wide strikes or work stoppages occurred in Florida, Oklahoma, and Pennsylvania. The numbers of operating school districts reported in 1967-68 were 67 districts in Florida, 940 in Oklahoma, and 590 in Pennsylvania. Because these work stoppages were called to stimulate passage of state education legislation, they are recorded as three work stoppages.

Many editorials in affected communities and nationally syndicated columns viewed striking teachers as heretics; many other editorials viewed them as martyrs. While some citizens applauded the teachers, others sought punitive action against them.

How many man-days were involved in teacher strikes? What was the relation to the total man-days of instruction? The NEA Research Division has compiled answers to these and related questions for the 1967-68 school year. The information is summarized in the tables by type of organization, by month, by state, and as a percent of the total man-days of instruction.

Fifty-six teacher strikes were recorded in the first months of school in 1967, more than recorded in any one school year up to this time. By the end of the school year, the total of 114 was reached, and almost 163,000 teachers and an estimated 1,400,000 man-days of instruction were involved.

While the 1.4 million man-days involved in strikes may seem high, they equaled less than 1/2 of 1 percent of the total estimated 367 million man-days of instruction scheduled in 1967-68 for the entire United States. Of the total man-days involved in strikes, or work stoppages 90 percent were recorded in three states, Florida, Michigan, and New York? 3.90, 1.04, and 2.11 percent, respectively, of the estimated state total man-days of instruction. In the remaining 19 states and the District of Columbia the percent of man-days involved in strikes was less than 1 percent of the estimated total instructional man-days for each area. In addition, in many of school systems, the days lost because of teacher strikes were rescheduled during the school year to meet the state minimum attendance requirements.

The total number of man-days of instruction was calculated by multiplying the estimated total instructional staff in 1967-68 by the constant figure of 180 days of instruction for the year. While the minimum number of instructional days mandated by state law varies, most state laws require 180.

Further details on teacher strike activity since 1940 and a system-by-system listing from 1960 are given in a Research Memo in process.

NEW JERSEY EMPLOYER-EMPLOYEE RELATIONS ACT

STATE OF NEW JERSEY

CHAPTER 303, LAWS OF 1968

An Act to amend the title of "An act to promote the mediation, conciliation and arbitration of labor disutes and the creation of a board of mediation for the promotion thereof," approved April 30, 1941 (P.L. 1941, c. 100), so that the same shall read "An act concerning employer-employee relations in public and private employment, creating a board of mediation, a public employment relations commission and prescribing their functions, powers and duties," and to amend and supplement the body of said act and making an appropriation.

Be It Enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey:

1. The title of chapter 100 of the laws of 1941 is amended to read as follows: An act concerning employer-employee relations in public and private employment, creating a board of mediation, a public employment relations commission and prescribing their functions, powers and duties.

2. Section 1 of P.L. 1941, chapter 100 (C. 34:13A-1) is amended to read as follows:

1. This act shall be known and may be cited as "New Jersey Employer-Employee Relations Act."

3. Section 2 of P.L. 1941, chapter 100 (C. 34:13A-2) is amended to read as follows:

2. It is hereby declared as the public policy of this State that the best interests of the people of the State are served by the prevention or prompt settlement of labor disputes, both in the private and public sectors; that strikes, lockouts, work stoppages and other forms of employer and employee strife, regardless where the merits of the controversy lie, are forces productive ultimately of economic and public waste; that the interests and rights of the consumers and the people of the State, while not direct parties thereto, should always be considered, respected and protected; and that the voluntary mediation of such public and private employer-employee disputes under the guidance and supervision of a governmental agency will tend to promote permanent, public and private employer-employee peace and the health, welfare, comfort and safety of the people of the State. To carry out such policy, the necessity for the enactment of the provisions of this act is hereby declared as a matter of legislative determination.

4. Section 3 of P.L. 1941, chapter 100 (C. 34:13A-3) is amended to read as follows:

3. When used in this act:

(a) The term "board" shall mean New Jersey State Board of Mediation.

(b) the term "commission" shall mean New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission.

(c) the term "employer" includes an employer and any person acting, directly or indirectly, on behalf of or in the interest of an employer with the employer's knowledge or ratification, but a labor organization, or any officer or agent thereof, shall be considered an employer only with respect to individuals employed by such organization.

This term shall include "public employers" and shall mean the State of New Jersey, or the several counties and municipalities thereof, or any other political subdivision of the State, or a school district, or any special district, or any authority, commission, or board, or any branch or agency of the public service.

(d) The term "employee" shall include any employee, and shall not be limited to the employees of a particular employer unless this act explicitly states otherwise, and shall include any individual whose work has ceased as a consequence of or in connection with any current labor dispute or because of any unfair labor practice and who has not obtained any other regular and substantially equivalent employment. This term, however, shall not include any individual taking the place of any employee whose work has ceased as aforesaid, nor shall it include any individual employed by his parent or spouse, or in the domestic service of any person in the home of the employer, or employed by any company owning or operating a railroad or railway express subject to the provisions of the Railway Labor Act. This term shall include public employee, i.e. any person holding a position, by appointment or contract, or employment in the service of a public employer, except elected officials, heads and deputy heads of departments and agencies, and members of boards and commissions, provided that in any school district this shall exclude only the superintendent of schools or other chief administrator of the district.

(e) The term "representative" is not limited to individuals but shall include labor organizations, and individual representatives need not themselves be employed by, and the labor organization serving as a representative need not be limited in membership to the employees of, the employer whose employees are represented. This term shall include any organization, agency or person authorized or designated by a public employer, public employee, group of public employees, or public employee association to act on its behalf and represent it or them.

5. There is hereby established a Division of Public Employment Relations and a Division of Private Employment Dispute Settlement.

(a) The Division of Public Employment Relations shall be concerned exclusively with matters of public employment related to determining negotiating units, elections, certifications and settlement of public employee representative and public employer disputes and grievance procedures. For the purpose of complying with the provisions of Article V, Section IV, paragraph 1 of the New Jersey Constitution, the Division of Public Employment Relations is hereby allocated within the Department of Labor and Industry, and located in the city of Trenton, but notwithstanding said allocation, the office shall be independent of any supervision or control by the department or by any board or officer thereof.

(b) The Division of Private Employment Dispute Settlement shall assist in the resolution of disputes in private employment. The New Jersey State Board of Mediation, its objectives and the powers and duties granted by this act and the act of which this act is amendatory and supplementary shall be concerned exclusively with matters of private employment and the office shall continue to be located in the city of Newark.

6. (a) There is hereby established in the Division of Public Employment Relations a commission to be known as the New Jersey Public Employment Relations Commission. This commission, in addition to the powers and duties granted by this act, shall have in the public employment area the same powers and duties granted to the labor mediation board in sections 7 and 10 of chapter 100, P.L. 1941 and in sections 2 and 3 of chapter 32, P.L. 1945. There shall be a chief executive officer and administrator who shall devote his full time to the performance of his duties exclusively in the Division of Public Employment Relations. (b) This commission shall make policy and establish rules and regulations concerning employer-employee relations in public employment relating to dispute settlement, grievance procedures and administration including enforcement of statutory provisions concerning representative elections and related matters. The commission shall consist of 7 members to be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Of such members, 2 shall be representative of public employers, 2 shall be representative of public employee organizations and 3 shall be representative of the public including the appointee who is designated as chairman. Of the first appointees, 2 shall be appointed for 2 years, 2 for a term of 3 years and 3, including the chairman, for a term of 4 years. Their successors shall be appointed for terms of 3 years each, except that any person chosen to fill a vacancy shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of the member whose office has become vacant.

The members of the commission shall be compensated at the rate of $50.00 for each day, or part thereof, spent in attendance at meetings and consultations and shall be reimbursed for necessary expenses in connection with the discharge of their duties.

7. Except as hereinafter provided, public employees shall have, and shall be protected in the exercise of, the right, freely and without fear of penalty or reprisal, to form, join and assist any employee organization or to refrain from any such activity; provided, however, that this right shall not extend to any managerial executive except in a school district the term managerial executive shall mean the superintendent of schools or his equivalent, nor, except where established practice, prior agreement or special circumstances, dictate the contrary, shall any supervisor recommend the same, have the right to be represented in collective negotiations by an employee organization that admits nonsupervisory personnel to membership, and the fact that any organization has such supervisory employees as members shall not deny the right of that organization to represent the appropriate unit in collective negotiations; and provided further, that, except where established practice, prior agreement, or special circumstances dictate the contrary no policeman shall have the right to join an employee organization that admits employees other than policemen to membership. The negotiating unit shall be defined with due regard for the community of interest among the employees concerned, but the commission shall not intervene in matters of recognition and unit definition except in the event of a dispute.

Representatives designated or selected by public employees for the purposes of collective negotiation by the majority of the employees in a unit appropriate for such purposes or by the majority of the employees voting in an election conducted by the board as authorized by this act shall be the exclusive representatives for collective negotiation concerning the terms and conditions of employment of the employees in such unit. Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent any official from meeting with an employee organization for the purpose of hearing the views and requests of its members in such unit so long as (a) the majority representative is informed of the meeting; (b) any changes or modifications in terms and conditions of employment are made only through negotiation with the majority representative; and (c) a minority organization shall not present or process grievances. Nothing herein shall be construed to deny to any individual employee his rights under Civil Service laws or regulations. When no majority representative has been selected as the bargaining agent for the unit of which an individual employee is a part, he may present his own grievance either personally or through an appropriate representative or an organization of which he is a member and have such grievance adjusted.

A majority representative of public employees in an appropriate unit shall be entitled to act for and to negotiate agreements covering all employees in the unit and shall be responsible for representing the interests of all such employees without discrimination and without regard to employee organization membership. Proposed new rules or modifications of existing rules governing working conditions shall be negotiated with the majority representative before they are established. In addition, the majority representative and designated representatives of the public employer shall meet at reasonable times and negotiate in good faith with respect to grievances and terms and conditions of employment.

When an agreement is reached on the terms and conditions of employment, it shall be embodied in writing and signed by the authorized representatives of the public employer and the majority representative.

Public employers shall negotiate written policies setting forth grievance procedures by means of which their employees or representatives of employees may appeal the interpretation, application or violation of policies, agreements, and administrative decisions affecting them, provided that such grievance procedures shall be included in any agreement entered into between the public employer and the representative organization. Such grievance procedures may provide for binding arbitration as a means for resolving disputes.

8. Section 6 of P.L. 1941, chapter 100 (C. 34:13A-6) is amended to read as follows:

(a) Upon its own motion, in an existing, imminent or threatened labor dispute in private employment, the board, through the Division of Private Employment Dispute Settlement, may, and, upon the request of the parties or either party to the dispute, must take such steps as it may deem expedient to effect a voluntary, amicable and expeditious adjustment and settlement of the differences and issues between employer and employees which have precipitated or culminated in or threaten to precipitate or culminate in such labor dispute.

(b) Whenever negotiations between a public employer and an exclusive representative concerning the terms and conditions of employment shall reach an impasse, the commission through the Division of Public Employment Relations shall, upon the request of either party, take such steps as it may deem expedient to effect a voluntary resolution of the impasse. In the event of a failure to resolve the impasse by mediation the Division of Public Employment Relations in empowered to recommend or invoke fact-finding with recommendation for settlement, the cost of which shall be borne by the parties equally.

(c) The board in private employment, through the Division of Private Employment Dispute Settlement, and the commission in public employment, through the Division of Public Employment Relations, shall take the following steps to avoid or terminate labor disputes: (1) to arrange for, hold, adjourn or reconvene a conference or conferences between the disputants or one or more of their representatives or any of them; (2) to invite the disputants or their representatives or any of them to attend such conference and submit, either orally or in writing, the grievances of and differences between the disputants; (3) to discuss such grievances and differences with the disputants and their representatives; and (4) to assist in negotiating and drafting agreements for the adjustment in settlement of such grievances and differences and for the termination or avoidance, as the case may be, of the existing or threatened labor dispute.

(d) The commission, through the Division of Public Employment Relations, is hereby empowered to resolve questions concerning representation of public employees by conducting a secret ballot election or utilizing any other appropriate and suitable method designed to ascertain the free choice of the employees. The division shall decide in each instance which unit of employees is appropriate for collective negotiation, provided that, except where dictated by established practice, prior agreement, or special circumstances, no unit shall be appropriate which includes (1) both supervisors and nonsupervisors, (2) both professional and nonprofessional employees unless a majority of such professional employees vote for inclusion in such unit or, (3) both craft and noncraft employees unless a majority of such craft employees vote for inclusion in such unit. All of the powers and duties conferred or imposed upon the division that are necessary for the administration of this subdivision, and not inconsistent with it, are to that extent hereby made applicable. Should formal hearings be required, in the opinion of said division to determine the appropriate unit, it shall have the power to issue subpoenas as described below, and shall determine the rules and regulations for the conduct of such hearing or hearings.

(e) For the purposes of this section the Division of Public Employment Relations shall have the authority and power to hold hearings, subpoena witnesses, compel their attendance, administer oaths, take the testimony or deposition of any person under oath, and in connection therewith, to issue subpoenas duces tecum, and to require the production and examination of any governmental or other books or papers relating to any matter described above.

(f) In carrying out any of its work under this act, the board may designate one of its members, or an officer of the board to act in its behalf and may delegate to such designee one or more of its duties hereunder and, for such purpose, such designee shall have all the powers hereby conferred upon the board in connection with the discharge of the duty or duties so delegated. In carrying out any of its work under this act, the commission may designate one of its members or an officer of the commission to act on its behalf and may delegate to such designee one or more of its duties hereunder and, for such purpose, such designee shall have all of the powers hereby conferred upon the commission in connection with the discharge of the duty or duties so delegated.

(g) The board and commission may also appoint and designate other persons or groups of persons to act for and on its behalf and may delegate to such persons or groups of persons any and all of the powers conferred upon it by this act so far as it is reasonably necessary to effectuate the purposes of this act. Such persons shall serve without compensation but shall be reimbursed for any necessary expenses.

(h) The personnel of the Division of Public Employment Relations shall include only individuals familiar with the field of public employee-management relations. The commission's determination that a person is familiar in this field shall not be reviewable by any other body.

9. Section 8 of P.L. 1941, chapter 100 (C. 34:13A-8) is amended to read as follows:

8. Nothing in this act shall be construed to interfere with, impede or diminish in any way the right of private employees to strike or engage in other lawful concerted activities.

10. Nothing in this act shall be contrued to annul or modify, or to preclude the renewal or continuation of any agreement heretofore entered into between any public employer and any employee organization, nor shall any provision hereof annul or modify any statute or statutes of this State.

11. The commission shall collect and maintain a current file of filed contracts in public employment. Public employers shall file with the commission a copy of any contracts it has negotiated with public employee representatives following the consummation of negotiations.

12. The commission in conjunction with the Institute of Management and Labor of Rutgers, the State University, shall develop and maintain a program for the guidance of public employers in employee-management relations, to provide technical advice to public employers on employee-management programs, to assist in the development of programs for training management personnel in the principles and procedures of consultation, negotiation and the settlement of disputes in the public service, and for the training of management officials in the discharge of their employee-management relations responsibilities in the public interest.

13. Section 11 of P.L. 1941, chapter 100 (C.34:13A-11) is amended to read as follows:

11. The board shall have power to adopt, alter, amend or repeal such rules in connection with the voluntary mediation of labor disputes in private employment and the commission shall have the same powers in public employment, as may be necessary for the proper administration and enforcement of the provisions of this act.

14. For the purpose of carrying out the amendatory and supplementary provisions of this act there is hereby appropriated for the use of the commission for the fiscal year 1968-1969, the additional sum of $100,000.00.

15. This act shall take effect July 1, 1968.

OTHER SECTIONS APPLICABLE TO BOTH PUBLIC AND PRIVATE SECTORS; REFERENCE: NEW JERSEY STATUTES ANNOTATED, SECS. 34:13A-7, 13A-12, 13A-13.

7. Arbitration. Whenever a controversy shall arise between an employer and his employees which is not settled either in conference between representatives of the parties or through mediation in the manner provided by this act, such controversy may, by agreement of the parties, be submitted to arbitration, one person to be selected by the employer, one person to be selected by the employees, and a third selected by the representatives of the employer and employees, and in the event of any such appointment or selection not being made upon the request of the parties in the controversy, the department may select the third person to arbitrate the matter submitted; provided, however, that the failure or refusal of either party to submit a controversy to arbitration shall not be construed as a violation of the policy or purpose of this act, or of any provision thereof, nor shall failure or refusal to arbitrate constitute a basis for any action at law or suit in equity.

12. Construction. Nothing contained in this act shall be construed as interfering with, impeding or diminishing in any way any right guaranteed by law or by the Constitution of the State or of the United States.

13. Separability of provisions. If any clause, sentence, paragraph or part of this act, or the application thereof to any person or circumstances, shall for any reason be adjudged by a court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair or invalidate the remainder of this act, and the application of such provisions to other persons or circumstances, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph, or part thereof, directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered and to the person or circumstances involved. It is hereby declared to be the legislative intent that this act would have been adopted had such invalid provisions not been included herein.

BOSTON E. WITT
Attorney General

No. 68-35

March 20, 1968

By: Gary O'Dowd
Assistant Attorney General

To: Harry Wugalter, Chief
Public School Finance Division
Department of Finance and Administration
Legislative-Executive Building
Santa Fe, New Mexico

Background:

For a short period in the month of February many public school teachers in a number of school districts in this state failed or refused to report to their classrooms without an excused or authorized absence. The reaction of the local school boards was by no means uniform. Some local boards took affirmative action in one way or another, others took no action. After the teachers reported back to their classrooms, the various local boards of education as well as representatives of the teachers sought the advice of the Public School Finance Division of the Department of Finance and Administration and the Department of Education. The numerous inquiries from the local boards as well as from the representatives of the teachers brought about this opinion request.

It was mentioned above that the reactions of the local boards to the teacher walkout were by no means uniform. Three school districts are representative of the patterns that were followed by the local school boards. For simplicity, we have designated the three representative school districts as Districts A, B and C. We will briefly set forth the events as they occurred in each of these school districts along with the questions presented to this office and our conclusions before setting forth our analysis and opinion.

School District A:

On February 22, 1968, the schools of School District A were not closed by local school board action. Some teachers reported for work while many others did not. The board of education of School District A met and officially closed all schools in the district on February 23, 26, 27 and 28.

Questions:

1. In order to comply with the minimum school year, must the board of education make up the days lost through official board closing on February 23, 26, 27 and 28?

2. Must the board of education of School District A pay the daily wage, as stipulated in the teaching contract, to those teachers who did not present themselves on February 22nd, and for whom there was no clarification of absence that might be covered via the sick leave provision, or other board policy provisions?

3. If the board of education of School District A wishes to make up February 22nd, is it legal for the board of education to compel those teachers who honored the school calendar and reported for duty that day, to add an additional day of service to the school year?

Conclusions:

1. Not unless those days are necessary to meet the minimum requirement of 180 teaching days.

2. No, but see analysis.

3. No, but see analysis.

School District B:

In School District B, the public school teachers requested time off from their assignments. This request was refused by the local school board of this district. On February 26th some teachers presented themselves for duty. Custodial, maintenance, cafeteria and pupil transportation services were performed. After an evaluation of the situation, the local school board through its superintendent closed school.

Questions:

1. Is it legal for the local board of education to meet after the opening of school, and order the school closed retroactively in order that the day be added to the adopted school calendar?

2. May the local board of education of School District B compel those teachers who reported for duty on February 26th to add another day of service to the school calendar?

Conclusions:

1. See analysis.

2. No.

School District C:

The local board of education of School District C denied a request by a teacher organization to grant professional leave to its teachers or to close the school on a particular day. School in the district were not closed and some teachers reported to their classrooms as stipulated by the school district's calendar, while others did not. The school district hired substitutes to fill the positions of the teachers who did not present themselves for duty. Now a request has come from the teacher organization for the board of education to retroactively declare that day a professional study day, and that no deduction of pay be made for any of the certified personnel who participated.

Questions:

1. Is it lawful for the board to retroactively close the schools in the district on that day and add an additional day to its school district calendar?

2. If it is legal, then must those teachers who presented themselves for service and taught that day, as well as those teachers who were absent because of verified bona fide reasons acceptable through board policy, be expected to add another day of service to the calendar without remuneration?

3. If the board of education of School District C wishes to require an additional day of service from those teachers who presented themselves as per terms of the school district's calendar and whose pay was not reduced, must the board amend those teachers' contracts if it desires to pay them for the additional day?

Conclusions:

1. No, but see analysis.

2. No.

3. Yes.

Subsequent to the above factual situations and questions being presented to this office the following supplemental questions have been asked:

1. Is it legal for a local board of education to grant leave without pay for a given number of days to school personnel in order that they may engage in professional organization-sponsored activities?

2. Is it legal for a local board of education to grant leave with pay for a given number of days to school personnel in order that they may engage in professional organization-sponsored activities?

3. Is it legal for a local board of education to grant leave with pay, less the amount required to pay a substitute, for a given number of days to school personnel in order that they may engage in professional organization-sponsored activities?

Conclusions:

1. Yes.

2. Yes.

3. Yes, but see analysis.

Analysis:

Section 77-6-9A of the Public School Code (Sections 77-1-1 through 77-20-11, N.M.S.A., 1953 Compilation (P.S.)) provides as follows:

"No budget for a school district shall be approved by the division (Division of Public School Finance) which does not provide for:

A. a school year consisting of at least one hundred eighty [180] teaching days. The state board shall, by regulation, establish the requirements for a teaching day." (Emphasis added).

Evidently, Section 77-4-2 of the Public School Code authorizes local boards of education to adopt regulations and pursuant thereto to enter into contracts with teachers providing for a school year exceeding 180 teaching days. A "school year" is defined as the total number of teaching days offered by public schools in a school district during a period of twelve consecutive months.

Employment contracts between local school boards and teachers must be on forms approved by the state board of education. See Section 77-8-8 of the Public School Code. The approved form contract provides that the teacher shall present himself or herself for duty at such times and places as designated. For each day's absence from duty not included in sick leave, or otherwise compensated for in accordance with rules and regulations of the local school board, the contract provides that there is to be deducted from the teacher's salary a proportionate amount or such lesser portion of the total annual salary as shall be established by the local school board. The contract further provides that these deductions are to be made from the installments due the teacher following such absence. Under this contract teachers agree to comply with the lawful rules and regulations of the local school board, which would include rules and regulations setting forth the days of the school year which will be teaching days as that term is defined by the State Board of Education.

At this point, we believe it is important to point out more specifically that the Public School Code requires a school district to have 180 teaching days while the teachers contractual form uses the phrase "duty days". These terms are not always synonymous in that a teacher may be paid for a duty day that cannot be classified as a "teaching day". An example of this is a day where teachers are paid for attending a professional meeting connected with their profession pursuant to Section 77-8-5 of the Public School Code. While this is to be considered a "duty day" under the teacher's contract, it cannot be considered a "teaching day" as that term is ordinarily used. See Attorney General Opinion No. 63-169, issued December 20, 1963.

With the above discussion in mind, it is fairly easy to answer a number of the inquiries presented in this opinion request. First of all we were asked if School District A must make up the days lost through the official board action of closing the schools on February 23, 26, 27 and 28. Section 77-6-9A, supra, only requires a school district to have 180 teaching days. The local school board has the power to decide what days and the number of days that will be teaching days in the school district so long as they provide for at least 180 teaching days. If for any reason the local board closes the schools in the district on days that normally would be teaching days, those days must be made up at some time during the school year if the loss of the days would result in the district holding less than 180 teaching days. See Attorney General Opinion 63-169, supra. If the days are not made up the school district could not receive its full distribution from the state equalization fund. If School District A has contracts with its teachers providing for 183 duty days and the school teachers have already attended 2 days of professional meetings the school board must make up at least 3 of the days lost through the official board closing on February 23, 26, 27 and 28 or the school district will not be able to comply with the requirement of 180 teaching days.

The second question directed to School District A asks if the local school board must pay the daily wage, as stipulated in the teaching contract, to those teachers who "walked out" on February 22, 1968. In answering this question, we believe that the provisions of the teachers' contract are controlling. That is, if the absence from duty is not included in sick leave, or otherwise compensated for in accordance with the rules and regulations of the local board, there must be deducted from the teacher's salary a proportionate amount or such lesser portion of the total annual salary as shall be established by the board. The only question is how much the local board will decide to deduct from the teachers' salaries. The amount to be deducted will be further discussed in our answer to question 3 of the supplemental questions.

Next we are asked if a local school board may compel teachers who reported for duty on a regular school day to add an additional day of service during the school year. Again we look to the teachers contract and find that the answer is unequivocally, no. Such a teacher has contracted to present himself or herself for duty on a certain number of duty days during the school year. If the teacher tenders his or her services on a day that school has not been closed by the local school board, the local board must recognize this as a "duty day" under the terms of the teacher's employment contract. The teacher is obligated to tender his or her services only on the number of duty days prescribed in the teaching contract, and no more.

In School District B, the local school board did not close school until after some teachers had presented themselves for duty. Custodial, maintenance, cafeteria and pupil transportation services were performed, and then the local school board closed the schools. It is the opinion of this office that this day must be included as a "duty day" under the terms of the teacher's employment contract and those teachers who presented themslves for duty must be given credit for having worked on that day. This is not to say that the day can be included as a teaching day under the provisions of Section 77-6-9, supra. If the local school board wishes to add a day to the school year, it may do so, but those teachers who have already reported on the number of duty days required under their contract may not be compelled to teach an additional day.

An additional problem arises with adding another day to the school year due to the fact that transportation services have already been performed on a day that the school board of School District B now wishes to classify as a day that schools in the district were closed. The transportation distribution from the state equalization fund is based on 180 teaching days. Presumably no other moneys would be available from the state to help pay for the transportation of students on the extra day proposed by the local school board of School District B.

Question 1 under the heading "School District C" asks if a school board may retroactively declare a school day to be a professional study day. Section 77-8-5 of the Public School Code provides that local school boards may pay teachers:

> "...according to their employment contracts on evidence of attendance at any professional meeting connected with their profession as educators or associated with the courses of instruction in which they specialize." (Emphasis added).

We must therefore look to the teachers form employment contract to determine whether the board may retroactively declare a school day to be a professional school day. The teachers form contract provides:

> "For each day's absence from duty not included in sick leave, or otherwise compensated for in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Board, there shall be deducted from said salary a proportionate amount of such lesser portion of the total annual salary as shall be established by the Board." (emphasis added).

We are told that in School District C, the teachers requested a professional study day and such request was denied by the local school board. Thus it cannot now be argued that the days absence for a "professional study day" was pursuant to a rule or regulation of the board. Since the teachers in School District C were not excused by a rule or regulation of the Board, the board must now, pursuant to the teacher form contract, make the appropriate deduction from the salaries of those teachers who failed to report to class without an authorized absence.

In answer to the second and third questions directed to School District C, those teachers who have already taught or offered to teach on a day that schools were open cannot be required to add another day of service without receiving compensation beyond the compensation provided for in their contract. This also applies to those teachers who were absent because of verified reasons acceptable through board policy. They cannot be expected to teach an extra day without additional compensation being paid by the school board. If the board of education wishes to ask those teachers who performed pursuant to their contractual obligatons to teach an additional day the teachers contract should be amended to provide for the additional duty day and the additional compensation that will be paid for this additional duty day.

The supplemental questions asked are all related to attendance by teachers at professional meetings connected with their profession or associated with the courses of instruction in which they specialize. In answer to the first question, we can find nothing which would prohibit a local board of education from granting a teacher leave without pay to attend professional organizaton-sponsored activities. The local school board, in its discretion, may pay teachers attending such professional organization-sponsored activities. See Section 77-8-5, supra.

Last of all we have been asked if a local board of education may grant leave with pay, less the amount required to pay a substitute, so that the teachers may engage in professional organization sponsored activities. As pointed out above, the teachers form contract provided that if the absence is an unauthorized absence, the board may deduct from the teacher's salary either a proportionate amount of the total annual salary or such lesser portion of the total annual salary as shall be established by the board. Thus if the teacher has contracted to perform 183 duty days and is absent 1 day for which absence is unauthorized, the board may deduct 1/183 of the teacher's annual salary. The board, however, may establish a policy of deducting a lesser amount from the teacher's salary. Certainly a deduction for unauthorized leave in an amount equal to the cost of hiring a substitute teacher is authorized under the teacher form contract.

The above-entitled matter having come on for hearing before Joseph B. Bixler, a Trial Examiner of the Michigan Labor Mediation Board, hereinafter referred to as the Board, at Flint, Michigan, on March 12, 1968, and the Board having considered the testimony and arguments of the parties, and being fully advised in the premises, hereby makes the following Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law and Order.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Flint Board of Education is a public employer within the meaning of Act 336 of the Public Acts of 1947, as amended by Act 379 of the Public Acts of 1965 (Public Employment Relations Act), hereinafter referred to as PERA.

Flint Federation of Teachers and Flint Education Association, hereinafter referred to as the Federation and Association, respectively, are labor organizations within the meaning of PERA.

The petition for election, filed by the Federation, requests an election in a unit described as follows:

"All teaching personnel of the Flint Community Junior College except those excluded by law as supervisory or executive personnel."

The Employer and the Association contend that an election should not be held in the unit described above for two reasons.

1. That the Federation is estopped from an election among the employees in the unit described in the petition.

2. That there is in force and effect a valid collective bargaining agreement covering the employees in the petitioned-for unit that does not expire until August 31, 1969.

The estoppel argument:

On November 5, 1965, the parties as a result of petitions filed by the Flint Education Association and the Board of Education of the School District of the City of Flint, entered into an Agreement for Consent Election. This Agreement provided that an election be held among employees of the Employer in a unit encompassing both the teaching personnel in K through 12 and the Junior College operated by the Employer.

The Association and the Employer contend that the Federation, having agreed to and having participated in an election in a unit including the Junior College teachers with K through 12 teachers, cannot at this time take the position that such a unit is not appropriate for collective bargaining.

[1] The Flint Education Association objected to being referred to as Intervenor.

We are not convinced that the mere agreement of a labor organization to a particular unit in an Agreement for Consent Election would alone estop that organization from contesting the appropriateness of that unit in subsequent proceedings.[2]

In the instant case, however, the agreement to the unit and participation of the parent body of the Federation Petitioner in this case does not stand alone. The Association and the Employer, subsequent to the election and certification of the Association on February 9, 1966, and in reliance thereon, reached a collective bargaining agreement covering the certified unit. This contract, effective September 1, 1966, will not expire until August 31, 1969, and such contract is urged by the Association and Employer as a bar to an election in this matter. It is the existence of this agreement, and not estoppel of the Federation which prevents the holding of an election on the petition, if the collective bargaining agreement meets the requirements of Section 14 of PERA.

Contract Bar:

The contract offered into evidence as a bar to an election in the unit sought by the Federation is on its face valid. It contains substantive terms of employment, and a fixed termination date that has not been prematurely extended.

The Federation does not raise any question as to the validity of the execution of this collective bargaining agreement.

The Federation also expressly stated that the unit as set forth in the contract was neither illegal, under PERA, nor a unit prohibited by Board policy.

The reasons the Federation maintains the contract is not a bar to an election in the petitioned-for unit are that: (1) the contract provides for a reopening clause so extensive that the contract would cease to exist, and, (2) the unit described in the petition is more appropriate for collective bargaining than the certified unit.

The reopening clause:

The reopening clause of the contract is contained in Article 22 that reads as follows:

"This Agreement shall be effective as of the 1st day of September, 1966, and continue in full force and effect for three years until the 31st day of August, 1969, provided that, the Association may reopen this Agreement on or after February 1, 1968 for the purpose of negotiating over teachers' salaries and fringe benefits and class size for the school year 1968-1969."

It contains substantive terms of employment, and a fixed termination date that has not been prematurely extended.

The Federation does not raise any question as to the validity of the execution of this collective bargaining agreement.

The Federation also expressly stated that the unit as set forth in the contract was neither illegal, under PERA, nor a unit prohibited by Board policy.

The reasons the Federation maintains the contract is not a bar to an election in the petitioned-for unit are that: (1) the contract provides for a reopening clause so extensive that the contract would cease to exist, and, (2) the unit described in the petition is more appropriate for collective bargaining than the certified unit.

The reopening clause:

The reopening clause of the contract is contained in Article 22 that reads as follows:

"This Agreement shall be effective as of the 1st day of September, 1966, and continue in full force and effect for three years until the 31st day of August, 1969, provided that, the Association may reopen this Agreement on or after February 1, 1968 for the purpose of negotiating over teachers' salaries and fringe benefits and class size for the school year 1968-69."

At the hearing, the Federation sought to introduce evidence of proposals the Association had made to the Employer pursuant to the reopening of the contract on February 1, 1968. The purpose of this evidence, according to the Federation, is to show how extensively the Association believed the contract to be open and thereby establish that the whole contract was being re-negotiated. The Federation contends therefore, the contract ceased to be a bar under Section 14 of PERA.

The Trial Examiner sustained objections to the introduction of this evidence on grounds that such a proposal would amount to opinion evidence and would be improper as parol evidence offered for the purpose of altering the terms of a written contract.

We are in agreement with the ruling of the Trial Examiner. The proposals at best would only reflect the opinion of the Association as to these aspects of the contract it contends are open for renegotiation. Further, the extent of renegotiation of a contract has been ruled by this Board not to affect its status as a contract bar as long as there is no premature extension of the contractual termination date. See Sterling Township, 1966 Labor Opinions 9 where we said,

"It is well established that the parties may renegotiate, modify, delete, or alter any provisions of a contract during its term if this action is mutually assented to."

This Board is further in agreement with the National Labor Relations Board's long-standing view that modification of substantive provisions of a contract, even if beyond the scope of the contractual reopening clause, will not prevent the contract from acting as a bar as long as the termination date is not extended. Deluxe Metal Furniture Co., 121 NLRB 135, 42 LRRM 1470; Ford Motor Co., 28 LRRM 1371; Western Electric Co., 94 NLRB No. 9, 28 LRRM 1002.

There is stronger basis for our so holding that for the National Labor Relations Board to do so as the Public Employment Relations Act establishes a three-year limit on contracts which may serve as a bar to an election. It might be urged that under PERA a contract could be extended to the three-year limit and remain a bar.

Thus any evidence relating to the extent of negotiations contemplated or actually engaged in by the Association and Employer would be immaterial to the case at hand. The only question before the Board is whether the collective bargaining agreement presented as a bar, as it stands unaltered, meets the requisites of Section 14 of PERA.

The appropriate unit:

As noted above, the Federation does not contend the unit covered by the contract presented as a bar, and certified by this Board, is one either prohibited by PERA or contrary to Board policy. At the hearing, the Trial Examiner rejected, over objection of the Federation, evidence bearing on whether the petitioned unit (one consisting of Junior College teachers) is more appropriate than the certified unit, made up of both Junior College Teachers and those teaching K through 12.

The record discloses, as discussed above, that the only other contention that the contract was not a bar to an election was based on proposed evidence relative to the extent of the contractual reopening which we have determined does not, under Section 14, affect the efficacy of the contract. The question is, therefore, whether the Federation may properly present evidence on the question of comparative appropriateness of the unit.

A determination that one unit is more appropriate than another could not affect the validity of a contract as a contract bar. Section 14 of PERA explicitly provides that, "NO election shall be directed in any bargaining unit or subdivision thereof where there is in force and effect a valid collective bargaining agreement . . ." (Emphasis added) This statutory prohibition on fragmentation of a unit covered by a valid contract clearly renders the question of relative appropriateness moot during the term of the collective bargaining agreement, as long as the term does not exceed three years.[3]

Here the Board has determined that the collective bargaining agreement admitted into evidence and advanced as a bar to an election is a valid contract so as to prevent an election under Section 14 of PERA.

In view of this finding, the Trial Examiner did not err in excluding evidence offered for the purpose of proving that a fraction of the contractual unit would be more appropriate than the whole unit.

[3]The Petitioner cites National Labor Relations Board decisions to support the contention that the National Board will remove a contract as a bar because of the appropriateness of the unit. In Water Tower Inn, 139 NLRB 842, the National Board litigated the appropriateness of a unit for the purpose of determining whether a contract bar existed. The National Board found in effect that the unit was inappropriate but found the contract a bar because the contractual unit was a historical one in the area. Indianapolis Power and Light, 76 NLRB 136. This case does not involve the question of whether a contractual unit is appropriate or not but decided that the incumbent union and employer were attempting to improperly use an automatic renewal clause to create a contract bar while actually negotiating a new contract.

Another case, Dolese & Sheppard Co., NLRB 532 appears to support the Petitioner's contention inasmuch as it found a contract not a bar in a multiplant situation because the contract only embraced a unit of employees at one plant. The decision does not specify the nature of the inappropriateness found, but cites an earlier decision of the National Board for support, Kinniar Mfg. Co., 4 NLRB 773. In that case, a unit was found inappropriate because it included supervisors in a unit with rank and file employees, a holding with which we would agree.

We find these decisions unpersuasive support for the Petitioner's contention that this Board should allow litigation of relative appropriateness of an appropriate bargaining unit, during a contract term.

Therefore, by virtue of Section 14 of PERA, and for the reasons stated above, the Board is precluded in the instant matter from directing an election, and, accordingly, will dismiss the petition.

ORDER

The Petition in this matter is hereby dismissed.

ROCHESTER BOARD OF EDUCATION
AND
ROCHESTER TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION AND OTHER EMPLOYEE ORGANIZATIONS

JEAN T. MCKELVEY, Arbitrator, appointed by the parties (AAA).
Rochester, New York, November 6 and 15, 1967.

[Text of Award]
Part I

MCKELVEY, Arbitrator; UNIT DETERMINATION: At the public hearing on October 30, 1967, the Rochester Teachers Association presented the arbitrator with a formal written request for recognition as the exclusive bargaining representative for a unit including all employees on the administrative and supervisory salary schedule (except administrative directors, coordinators and assistant superintendents) and all Bracket T-II assignments currently excluded from the existing unit of professional employees.[1] In its statement, the Association noted that the Board had already agreed to establish the requested unit and that the only remaining question was determining whether the Association was the majority choice of the employees in the unit.

While the parties did in fact agree on April 26, 1967 to establish an exclusive bargaining representative for administrative and supervisory certificated personnel in a unit as described above, the arbitrator notes that the question of determining the most appropriate unit or units for all non-represented personnel is one which has been submitted to her for decision under the Board Resolution of October 19, 1967. In the making of this determination, the agreement of the parties, while important, is not controlling in itself unless it also satisfies the criteria of appropriateness set forth in Section 207.1 of the Civil Service Law. This is the Section of the law to which specific reference is made in the Resolution empowering the arbitrator to determine the most appropriate unit or units, and it is likewise the Section of the law which governs local procedures for the determination of representative status of local employees under Section 206.1, which is the optional procedure adopted by the Board of Education to govern these proceedings.

The statutory standards which must be taken into account in defining appropriate employer-employee negotiating units are set forth as follows in Section 207.1:

"(a) the definition of the unit shall correspond to a community of interest among the employees to be included in the unit;

"(b) the officials of government at the level of the unit shall have the power to agree, or to make effective recommendations to other administrative authority or the legislative body with respect to, the terms and conditions of employment upon which the employees desire to negotiate; and

"(c) the unit shall be compatible with the joint responsibilities of the public employer and public employees to serve the public."

Applying these criteria to the composition of the proposed unit, the arbitrator finds that they do in fact justify and substantiate the appropriateness of a separate unit of administrative and supervisory certificated personnel for the following reasons:

1. While there is a recognizable professional community of interest among all certificated personnel, the community of interest to which the statute makes reference distinguishes between employers and employees. In the employment relationship the administrators and supervisors, while themselves employees, are in turn representatives of the employer in their dealings with subordinate personnel. Not only do they serve as representatives of the Board in administering the policies of the School District, but they also evaluate the work of teachers and other members of the established unit, have the power to recommend action concerning them, and serve as the Board's representative in lower stages of the grievance procedure operating in the established unit. While they share a community of interest as administrative and supervisory employees of the Board, their administrative and supervisory functions distinguish their interest from those whom they supervise. Hence, in the judgment of the arbitrator, it would not be appropriate to add them to the existing recognized unit (which for purposes of convenience will be referred to hereafter as Unit I).

The same principle justifies the exclusion from the proposed unit of those at higher levels of evaluation and supervision who in their turn "supervise the supervisors." This means that the proposed unit of administrators and supervisors (hereafter referred to as Unit II) should not include administrative directors, coordinators and assistant superintendents.

2. The proposed unit satisfies the second criterion in the statute since the Superintendent of Schools has the power to make recommendations to the Board of Education concerning the terms and conditions of employment of administrative and supervisory certificated personnel, and the Board in turn has the power to make agreements.

3. The proposed unit is compatible with the joint responsibilities of the Board of Education and the administrative and supervisory employee to serve the public. A larger unit, as noted above, would not be compatible with the criterion of community of interest. Smaller units into which this proposed unit might be subdivided, such as department heads, or assistant principals, or principals would lead to such fragmentation as to create an undue burden on the employer in terms of multiple negotiations, and would also be so inherently divisive as to create conflicts of interest among various segments of administrative and supervisory personnel which could subordinate their common interest in serving the public. Finally, if no unit were deemed appropriate, this would deny administrators and supervisors any collective voice in negotiating the terms and conditions of their own employment. Not only would this result in an inequity vis a vis the other professional employees, but it might also tend to create unchanneled individual conflict with the Board of Education. The public interest is better served by allowing these administrative and supervisory employees to organize and to be represented if they so choose, than by denying them the right to representation which the statute is designed to protect as a matter of public policy.

To conclude, the arbitrator decides that the most appropriate unit for administrative and supervisory certificated personnel is one which includes all certificated employees on the administrative and supervisory salary schedule up to, but not including, administrative directors, coordinators, and assistant superintendents, and, in addition, includes all Bracket T-II assignments currently excluded from Unit I.

Representation Procedures

Inasmuch as the Rochester Teachers Association is the only employee organization which has expressed an interest in representing employees in the appropriate administrative and supervisory unit, as defined above, the arbitrator rules that all eligible members of the unit shall have the opportunity to vote by secret ballot as to whether they wish to be represented for purposes of collective negotiations by the Rochester Teachers Association, or by no organization. In the absence of a contest, and in the interest of expediting the balloting, the voting will be by mail in an election to be conducted by the Syracuse office of the American Arbitration Association.

The rules to govern the election, having been agreed upon by the Board of Education and the Rochester Teachers Association, are as follows:

ELIGIBLE VOTER LIST

The parties will meet on Monday, November 6, to discuss the list of eligible voters in accordance with the unit described above. Any disagreements shall be referred to the Impartial Agent for decision.

Eligible voters who are on leave of absence shall be included on the list.

The agreed-upon list of eligible voters, together with their home addresses, shall be sent to Robert Bowling, Manager of the Syracuse office of the American Arbitration Association, 731 James Street, Syracuse, New York by certified mail, return receipt requested no later than 5 P.M., Monday, November 22, 1967.

THE BALLOT

The ballot, to be printed by the American Arbitration Association, shall read as follows:

American Arbitration Association
(Administrator)
OFFICIAL SECRET BALLOT
For Eligible Administrative and Supervisory Certificated Employees of the City School
District of Rochester, New York
Mark an X on this ballot in ONE (1) square only. Make no other mark.
Do you desire to designate the Rochester Teachers Association as the exclusive negotiating agent for a unit of supervisory and administrative certificated employees of the Rochester City School District
YES NO
This is a SECRET BALLOT and must NOT be signed.

INSTRUCTIONS ACCOMPANYING
THE BALLOT

All instructions accompanying the mailed ballot shall be prepared by the American Arbitration Association, which shall be responsible for preparing the ballots and return envelopes, mailing them to the eligible voters and receiving and keeping custody of the returned ballots.

MAILING DATES

As soon as possible after receipt of the eligible voter list, but not later than Monday, November 20, 1967, the American Arbitration Association will place the ballots in the mail.

In order to be valid, ballots must be returned, in envelopes prepared by the American Arbitration Association, and must be postmarked not later than midnight, Monday, November 27, 1967.

NOTICE OF ELECTION

Notice of the election will be prepared by the American Arbitration Association and posted on appropriate bulletin boards in each building not later than Monday, November 20, 1967.

COUNTING OF BALLOTS

Returned ballots will be brought to Rochester in a sealed box by the American Arbitration Association Administrator on Friday, December 1, 1967. They will be counted in the teachers' cafeteria of East High School commencing at 3:45 P.M. on Friday, December 1, 1967. The Association shall be entitled to have five (5) official observers at the count. They are to be provided with official badges by the American Arbitration Association. The names of the official observers shall be given to the American Arbitration Association's representative before the count begins. Five neutral tellers shall be provided and so designated by the American Arbitration Association. The Impartial Agent will be available at the count to decide any questions or challenges which may arise.

Any person who believes himself eligible to vote and who has not received a ballot by Monday, November 27, 1967 should notify both [F.] and [S.]. Such persons should also report to the teachers' cafeteria, East High School, December 1, 1967 between 3:45 P.M. and 4 P.M. The Impartial Agent will then determine whether or not they may cast a ballot in person.

THE TALLY

The American Arbitration Association shall provide a sheet for the official tally of the election results which is to be signed by the tellers, the observers and the American Arbitration Association representative.

CERTIFICATION OF ELECTION RESULTS

The Impartial Agent will certify the election results to the parties. If the Rochester Teachers Association receives a majority of the valid votes cast, it shall be certified as the exclusive negotiating representative for the unit.

FEES

Fees and expenses incurred by the American Arbitration Association in connection with the election are to be billed to and paid by the Rochester Board of Education.

Part II

UNIT DETERMINATION

In addition to approximately 2,500 certificated personnel, the City School District employs about 1,200 non-teaching employees on a Civil Service Payroll whose salaries, wages and working conditions are set forth in Article X of the Rules and Regulations of the Board of Education as revised and made effective July 1, 1967 (hereinafter referred to as Article X). Those on the Civil Service Payroll are employed in one of the following specific job classifications (Article X, page 1):

1. Class A: Clerical - Stenographic.
2. Class B: Skilled and Semi-Skilled.
3. Class C: Specified Positions in the Office of Business Affairs.
4. Class D: Administrative and Technical Positions in the Department of Buildings and Grounds, Research, T.V., and in the Office of the Superintendent.
5. Class E: All positions in the Buildings and Grounds Division not specifically covered in A, B, C, or D above.
6. Class M: Miscellaneous positions not falling in Class A, B, C, D, or E classifications and including 12-month employees and hourly employees, of whom some are considered permanent, and some are temporary employees.

Salary Schedule X covering the A, B, C, D, and E classifications set forth 20 salary brackets or grades with five progression steps in each bracket, effective July 1, 1967. The range of salaries from minimum to maximum at Step 1 is $3,472 to $15,393 per annum. At Step 5 the range is from $4,508 to $20,409 per annum. (Article X, page 21).

There are approximately 150 positions listed by job title for classifications A through E, and slotted into one of the salary brackets as shown in Article X.

Annual and hourly rates for Class M employees are set forth in various classifications appearing in Sections 10-6 through 10-10 covering miscellaneous positions in music; part-time and special positions; recreation club, intramural and inter-school contests; and cafeteria personnel and positions.

In addition to these wage and salary schedules, Article X contains general employment provisions for Civil Service Personnel covering such substantive matters as hours, leaves of absence, vacations, health insurance, life insurance sick leave, overtime, and pensions. Grievance procedures are outlined in Section 10-03.

For several years in the past an organization known as BENTE (Board of Education Non-Teaching Employees) has negotiated informally for its members with the Board of Education. On January 16, 1967, [A.], Legal Counsel to BENTE, sent a letter to the Board of Education enclosing the text of a proposed negotiation agreement and stating that on January 19, 1967, he would present to the Board a petition requesting that BENTE be recognized as the exclusive bargaining agent of all the non-teaching employees whose positions were listed in Article X. This petition containing approximately 750 signatures allegedly representing about 99 per cent of the membership of BENTE and approximately 60 per cent of all the non-teaching employees as defined in Article X, was presented to the Board on January 19, 1967 and to the undersigned Impartial Agent at the Public Hearing held on October 30, 1967.

At the time this petition and proposed agreement were presented to the Rochester Board of Education, in January 1967, the New York State Legislature was considering various bills to grant state and local government employees the right to organize and to engage in collective negotiations. Because of the uncertainty which existed as to the outcome of these legislative proposals, and in view of the lack of time for appropriate recognition procedures prior to the submission of the 1967-1968 budget on April 15, the Rochester Board of Education decided to withhold action on BENTE's request for formal recognition. Instead it agreed to meet with the BENTE representatives on an informal basis. As a result of these informal negotiations in the spring of 1967, agreement was reached on new substantive terms and conditions of employment for the non-teaching employees including an across-the-board percentage increase in wages and salaries for Article X employees, and a $2,500 life insurance policy for all of the Schedule A through E position holders and for some of those in the miscellaneous category.

After the passage of the Taylor Act and after consultation with interested employee organizations, the Rochester Board of Education agreed to unit determination and representation procedures under the Resolution governing the instant proceedings.

At the informal meeting held by the arbitrator on October 19, 1967 with representatives of the interested parties, the representatives of BENTE presented their Constitution and By-Laws. They stated that their dues-paying membership was 940 out of a total of between 1,200 and 1,400 non-teaching employees.

They also presented to the Impartial Agent a copy of a letter sent to the Board of Education's Legal Counsel on September 28, 1967 setting forth BENTE's views on appropriate local procedures to be adopted by the Rochester Board of Education for the purpose of implementing the Public Employees' Fair Employment Law of 1967. Attached to the letter was a schedule proposing a Tentative Unit Classification for Article X positions.

This proposal suggested the establishment of two appropriate negotiating units for Article X employees, with the exception of an Exempt Category of those positions on the Salary A, C, D, and E Schedules which involved top administrative and executive positions as well as those secretarial positions whose incumbents had access to confidential and policy information relating to negotiations for Article X personnel. These positions in the Exempt Category were to be excluded from any negotiating unit.

All other positions classified in Salary Schedules A, B, C, D, and E were to be assigned to one of two proposed appropriate units defined as a Primary Unit, and a Supervisory and Technical Unit. To the Supervisory and Technical Unit were assigned all positions involving evaluation of the work of others as well as those individuals who by the nature of their work may have a grievance filed against them. Some 37 job titles were listed under this Classification II for the Supervisory and Technical Unit.

The proposed Primary Unit included all Civil Service positions classified in Salary Schedules A, B, C, D, and E, and in addition the following positions in the miscellaneous category: accompanists, school attendants, teacher aides, and cafeteria personnel.

At this same meeting on October 19, 1967 representatives of Local 1635, AFSCME stated that they were seeking a unit composed of all non-teaching, non-supervisory and non-exempt civil service employees with the exception of custodial employees who possess a stationary engineer's license and those in direct line of promotion to positions requiring a stationary engineer's license. The representative of Local 71, Operating Engineers, expressed his views favoring the establishment of a separate unit of most custodial personnel listed in Salary Schedule E.

Following this informal hearing, as noted above, the arbitrator conducted a Public Hearing on October 30, 1967 of which legal notice was duly given (see note 3 and Appendix B). At this formal hearing the attorney for BENTE presented the same position on the appropriate units which he had stated at the informal meeting. The representative of the Operating Engineers, [W.], argued that most custodial employees shared a community of interest in that they worked as licensed stationary engineers or were in the line of progression to advance to the position of custodian engineers and, therefore, should be permitted to vote in a "self determination" election.

[I.], Business Manager, Local 466, Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union, appeared at the Public Hearing and spoke in favor of a separate unit of cafeteria personnel on the ground that they shared a community of interest in food service in the schools. It was announced at the Hearing that Local 1635, AFSCME, had withdrawn from the proceedings. The only other spokesman at the hearing was Mrs. [S.], a teacher aide, who protested the inclusion of the teacher aides in the primary unit sought by BENTE on the ground that the aides' community of interest was separate from the interests of the non-teaching personnel and more akin to those of the professional teachers. She stated that her group would prefer no representation at all to representation by BENTE.

Following the Public Hearing which was concluded after all parties present had an opportunity to state their view and arguments on the appropriate unit or units for non-teaching personnel, and arbitrator met again with representatives of the Board of Education, BENTE, Local 71 of the Operating Engineers and Local 466, Hotel and Restaurant Employees on Monday, November 6, 1967. The purpose of this meeting was to review with all interested parties the job descriptions in Salary Schedule E and in the cafeteria personnel group in an effort to determine the specific functions and duties of each of the positions described therein. In addition the chief supervisors of each of these two departments described their structure, organization and functions. A representative of the Personnel Department also explained the fringe benefit provisions for each of the groups on the Civil Service Salary Schedule.

The representative of BENTE opposed the severance of custodial and cafeteria personnel on the ground that BENTE had represented the employees in these classifications in informal negotiations in the past and that they had a general community of interest with all other non-teaching employees.

At the conclusion of this meeting, the Impartial Agent announced that she would make her determination of appropriate units on the basis of the evidence presented, subject to the rules and regulations of the Public Employment Relations Board which had been officially adopted, but not yet received by her or by the parties to this proceeding.

On the following day, Tuesday, November 7, 1967 the Board's Legal Counsel received copies of the Rules and Regulations and mailed them to the interested parties and to the Impartial Agent. On Friday, November 10 the Impartial Agent was informed by [L.] and by [W.] that the organizations they represented were withdrawing from the proceedings and that letters confirming their withdrawal would be sent to the Impartial Agent immediately.

On Sunday, November 12, 1967, Mrs. [S.] presented the Impartial Agent with a petition signed by 85 of the 105 Teacher Aides reading as follows:

"As a member of the Teacher-Aides Association of Rochester and employed by the Rochester City School District, I DO NOT wish to have BENTE represent me in negotiations with the Board of Education under the provisions of the Taylor Law." (Emphasis in original).

Mrs. [S.] explained that the main petition signed by 62 Teacher Aides had been prepared at a meeting of Teacher Aides held on November 8, 1967 at which time the group had formally organized, adopted a name (Teacher-Aides Association of Rochester to be known as TAAR) and had elected her as President.

The foregoing, therefore, constitutes the record of the proceedings before the Impartial Agent on the question of appropriate unit determination for Article X employees.

Findings

As the record above indicates, all of the intervening organizations have now withdrawn from the proceedings with the exception of BENTE and the recently formed group of Teacher Aides. This means that the Impartial Agent is not now confronted with the problem of determining the appropriateness of the two separate units of custodial and cafeteria personnel for whom separate representation was originally sought. What remains for decision, therefore, is the appropriateness of the two units proposed by BENTE. Her judgment of their appropriateness will be based on the criteria set forth in the Taylor Act as further elaborated and defined in the official Statement of Procedures under the Public Employees' Fair Employment Act adopted November 1, 1967.

On the question of the appropriate negotiating unit, the Statement of Procedures notes that the issue is complex and "that in many cases different parties will probably be able to argue with varying degrees of logic that different issues are appropriate." The text then goes on to discuss each of the statutory criteria as follows:

1. "COMMUNITY OF INTEREST - This is a most significant element that must be considered in determining the appropriate unit in a particular case. The following will be important in this regard: whether the employees sought to be grouped together are subject to common working rules, personnel practices, environment or salary and benefit structure. A helpful question to ask might be whether any real CONFLICT OF INTEREST exists among the employees in the proposed unit."

2. "POWER TO REACH AGREEMENT - Officials of government at the level of the proposed unit must have power to agree to terms and conditions of employment or to effectively recommend changes in terms and conditions of employment. Briefly, this means that the public employer who would ordinarily deal with the proposed unit should have the power to act effectively concerning the terms and conditions of employment to be negotiated."

3. "RESPONSIBILITIES TO THE PUBLIC - The proposed unit must be compatible with the joint responsibilities of the public employer and the employees to serve the public. This criterion means that a proposed negotiating unit might be inappropriate if its structure and composition were found to interfere with providing a service to the public. It takes into consideration the administrative convenience of the employer and perhaps suggests that an excessive number of units might be undesirable. On the other hand, too large a unit might be unwieldy for the negotiation of all possible issues."

Applying these criteria the Impartial Agent finds that there should be two units for Article X employees as follows:

I. A Primary Unit (excluding those in the Supervisory and Technical Unit defined below and the Exempt Category defined below) consisting of all Civil Service positions classified in Salary Schedules A, B, C, D, and E and including the following miscellaneous groups: cafeteria personnel, the music accompanists, and the regular school attendants.

The Teacher Aides are to be excluded from this unit because over 80 per cent expressed a desire NOT to be included.2/

The cafeteria personnel, and the accompanists and regular school attendants are included because they have almost identical fringe benefits with the Schedule A through E employees, because their percentage wage adjustments have historically been the same as those of the A through E employees, and because BENTE has served as their informal negotiating representative during the past few years.

2/ With respect to the Teacher Aides, there has been no showing that they share a community of interest with the nonteaching personnel or that the interest of the public would be served by grouping the Teacher Aides together with the other requested employees. Furthermore, as indicated in the PERB Statement of Procedures, in determining the appropriate unit consideration should be given to "the desires of employees." Here, over 80 percent of the Teacher Aides have expressed a desire NOT to be included. For these reasons, the Teacher Aides have been excluded from the unit.

The petition signed by the 62 Teacher Aides was made available to the parties. No contention was made that the petition did not clearly represent the intention of the signatories.

Moreover, to split these miscellaneous full-time employees off into other units would tend to create a condition of undue fragmentation which would serve neither them nor their employer well.

II. A Supervisory and Technical Unit which is separate from the Primary Unit described above because the individuals included do not have, as employer representatives, a sufficient community of interest with those whom they supervise and evaluate. This Unit is to include the following positions:

SALARY SCHEDULE A

Assistant Supervisor - Data Processing Control Computer Operator
Principal Examiner Claims
Senior Purchasing Clerk

SALARY SCHEDULE B

Cafeteria Manager A & B
Copy Preparation - Foreman
Assistant Bus Foreman
Fleet Safety Investigator
Foreman - Storehouse & Print Shop
Service Station Manager - Auto Annex
Office Machine Repair - Foreman
Bus Foreman
Print & Bindery Supervisor
Warehouse Supervisor

SALARY SCHEDULE C

Junior Accountant
Junior Computer Programmer
Junior Programmer Analyst
Purchasing Assistant School Auditor
Computer Programmer
Programmer Analyst
Senior Accountant
Supervisor - Data Processing Operations

SALARY SCHEDULE D

Maintenance Inspector, Buildings A & B
Maintenance Inspector, Grounds
Television Engineer Technician
Assistant Architect A & B
Assistant Engineer, Electrical
Assistant Engineer, Mechanical
Construction Engineer
Maintenance Inspector, Electrical Maintenance Inspector, Mechanical Projects Inspector
Television Maintenance Engineer
Research Associate
Chief Engineer - T.V.

SALARY SCHEDULE E

Assistant Custodian Engineer
Custodian Engineer A & B
Maintenance Mechanic - Foreman
Sr. Maintenance Mechanic - Foreman
III. Exempt Category - Salary Schedule A

This includes all stenographers and secretaries who have access to confidential and policy information related to negotiations for Article X employees. It also includes the positions listed below:

SALARY SCHEDULE A

Stenographic Secretary - Recording
Interviewer Custodial Personnel
Administrative Assistant - Personnel

SALARY SCHEDULE C

School Lunch Director
Supervisor of Pupil Transportation
Director of Data Processing
Supervisor of Budget and Accounting
Supervisor of Purchases and Stores

SALARY SCHEDULE D

Project Engineer
Mechanical Engineer Supervisor Plant Maintenance Architect
Legal Counsel

SALARY SCHEDULE E

Supervisor - Plant Security
Supervising Custodian Engineer A & B
All other miscellaneous personnel not specifically included in any of the units defined above and all employees of projects funded by Office of Economic Opportunity and all Article X employees connected therewith.

In the opinion of the Impartial Agent the above units are the most appropriate because they satisfy all the criteria set forth in the statute.

Representation Procedures

Inasmuch as BENTE is the only employee organization which has expressed an interest in representing employees in the two units, as defined above, the arbitrator rules that all eligible members of the units shall have the opportunity to vote by secret ballot as to whether they wish to be represented for purposes of collective negotiations by BENTE or by no organization. In the absence of a contest, and in the interest of expediting the balloting, the voting will be by mail in an election to be conducted by the Syracuse Office of the the American Arbitration Association.

The rules to govern the election, having been agreed upon by the Board of Education and BENTE are as follows:

ELIGIBLE VOTER LISTS

The parties will meet on Friday, November 17, 1967, to discuss the lists of eligible voters in accordance with the units described above. Any disagreements shall be referred to the Impartial Agent for decision.

The agreed-upon lists of eligible voters, together with their home addresses, shall be sent to Robert Bowling, Manager of the Syracuse Office of the American Arbitration Association, 731 James Street, Syracuse, New York by certified mail, return receipt requested no later than 5 p.m., Monday, November 20, 1967.

B-VII PERA
Objections Sustained

Material misstatement of fact made at a time so near the election so as to prevent a reply by the aggrieved party is grounds for setting the election aside. Board adopts NLRB Hollywood Ceramics rule regarding election propaganda 140 NLRB 221.

FINDINGS OF FACT, CONCLUSIONS OF LAW AND ORDER AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION

APPEARANCES:

Willow Run Public Schools: Eugene B. Calder, Esq.

Willow Run Federation of Teachers: Craig & Fieger
By: Bernard J. Fieger, Esq.

Willow Run Education Association: Levin, Levin, Garvett & Dill
By: Erwin Ellmann, Esq.

Pursuant to an Agreement for Consent Election signed by the parties on February 26, 1968, an election was held by an election officer of the Labor Mediation Board, hereinafter referred to as the Board, on March 12, 1968, between the hours of 3:15 p.m. and 5:30 p.m.

The results of this election were:

Willow Run Federation of Teachers	90
Willow Run Education Association	98
Neither	1
Spoiled Ballots	1
Challenged Ballots	1
Total	191

On March 13, 1968, the Willow Run Federation of Teachers, hereinafter referred to as the Petitioner, filed objections to conduct affecting the results of the election.

The objections as filed are:

"1. The Willow Run Education Association interfered and prejudiced the conducting of a proper election by issuing, on the date of the election, a release containing statements allegedly made by the President of the Willow Run Federation of Teachers and the representative of the Michigan Federation of Teachers, which statements were not made by them and which release misquoted and falsely quoted the actual statements of these persons; which releases were issued at a time when there was no opportunity for response, since said releases were issued March 12th, 1968, the date of the election.

2. That the agents, servants and employees of the employer interfered with the free exercise of the ballot by the employees of the School District in that the Superintendent of Schools made statements to at least one member of the staff regarding the consequence of the Willow Run Federation of Teachers being successful in the election, which statement was repeated to other members of the bargaining unit, which statement was false but which could have had the effect of intimidating members of the bargaining unit in the exercise of their ballot; and which statement the Superintendent of Schools refused to correct although requested to do so and although he had sufficient time to do so."

The objections were clarified by a Bill of Particulars, filed on April 15, 1968, pursuant to a request for particularization by the Willow Run Education Association, hereinafter referred to as the Intervenor.

On April 16, 1968, a hearing was held before Joseph B. Bixler a Trial Examiner of the Board, at Detroit, Michigan. The Board having considered the entire record, arguments, and briefs of the parties, hereby makes the following Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law and Direction of Election.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The objection to conduct by Intervenor:

The literature objected to was placed in the teachers mail boxes on the day of the election, March 12, 1968. The Intervenor admits authorship. This document reads as follows:

"WILLOW RUN EDUCATION ASSOCIATION WITH RIGHTS COME RESPONSIBILITIES

Both June Fieger, MFT field representative, and Tom Porter, WRFT president, have stated that if they win today's election they will NOT negotiate during the summer unless they are paid by the school board. Is this realistic? (The WREA paid the negotiating team since they worked for the teachers.)

This means that if negotiations are not completed by June 14th, and there is little likelihood they will be, the chances of WRFT having a contract ready at the beginning of school are highly dubious. Are you ready to withhold services in the fall when you know that the negotiating team will not have been working for you during the summer? What will the public reaction be? Will the people of Willow Run support us in such a situation? Is this the responsible position to take?

Last year all MEA affiliated units whose negotiations were not completed by June 15 were advised by the State Association to negotiate during the summer. By contrast, most of the Federation's 21 districts last summer followed Mary Ellen Riodan's lead and 'took the summer off.'

FOR RESPONSIBLE NEGOTIATIONS"[1]

The main thrust of the Petitioner's objections is that neither June Fieger nor Tom Porter made the statements attributed to them.

The record establishes that June Fieger did not make the statement attributed to her in the leaflet that the Petitioner would not negotiate during the summer unless paid by the School Board.

June Fieger denied having made such statements, and testified that, on the contrary, she would recommend to the local organization that they negotiate during the summer even without pay. The witness, Demona Tobin, testifying for the Intervenor regarding June Fieger's statements, is the one who questioned June Fieger as to whether Petitioner would negotiate during the summer, and elicited June Fieger's remarks relative to the subject. Tobin testified without any material disagreement with June Fieger as to what was said relative to negotiations during the summer vacation period.

Porter, the president of Petitioner, testified that, to his knowledge, he never told anyone that Petitioner would not negotiate during the summer vacation unless paid by the School Board. His testimony is contradicted by Michael Bennett, the president of the Intervenor. Bennett testified that at a party attended by the school teachers on the night of March 7, 1968 Bennett and Porter were talking and the subject of summer negotiations came up. Bennett raised the subject by saying if the Intervenor lost the election, he (Bennett) would not have to negotiate all summer. Porter is said, by Bennett, to have replied that if we (Petitioner) won, there would be no summer negotiations unless they were paid by the Board. Porter is alleged to have said "Shucks we want our summer vacation."

Another witness, offered by the Intervenor, to establish that Porter made the statement as quoted in the March 12, 1968, leaflet, a vice-president of Intervenor, Shirley Santuci, testified that a week or so before the election, while in casual hallway conversation, Porter said teachers should not have to negotiate in the summer and that they deserve a vacation or time to go to school. Porter is alleged, further, to have said teachers should not bargain without pay.

This Board is in agreement with the National Labor Relations Board policy regarding election propaganda misstatements as set forth in its decision in Hollywood Ceramics Co., Inc., 140 NLRB 221. In that case the National Board stated:

"We believe that an election should be set aside only where there has been a misrepresentation or other similar campaign trickery, which involves a substantial departure from the truth, at a time which prevents the other party or parties from making an effective reply, so that the misrepresentation, whether deliberate or not, may reasonably be expected to have a significant impact on the election. However, the mere fact that a message is inartistically or vaguely worded and subject to different interpretations will not suffice to establish such misrepresentation as would lead us to set the election aside. Such ambiguities, like extravagant promises, derogatory statements about the other party, and minor distortions of some facts, frequently occur in communication between persons. But even where a misrepresentation is shown to have been substantial, the Board may still refuse to set aside the election if it find upon consideration of all the circumstances that the statement would not be likely to have a real impact on the election. For example, the misrepresentation might have occurred in connection with an unimportant matter so that it could only have had a de minimis effect. Or it could have been so extreme as to put the employees on notice of its lack of truth under the particular circumstances so that they could not reasonably have relied on the assertion.

Or, the Board may find that the employees possessed independent knowledge with which to evaluate the statements."

In the present case, the handbill put into the teachers mailboxes by the Intervenor on March 12, 1968, did misquote June Fieger. As noted above, the record reveals that she had said practically the opposite of the remark attributed to her. In addition the misstatement, having been disseminated the morning of the election made a reply, for all practical purposes, impossible.

While the remarks attributed to the Petitioner's president are technically accurate according to the testimony of the Intervenor's president, we are not convinced that the statement made under the circumstances disclosed by the record justifies the presentation made in the March 12, 1968, handbill, wherein he is coupled, incorrectly, with June Fieger, as having taken an organizational position negative to summer bargaining.

In addition, this Board is of the opinion that the misrepresentation relative to summer bargaining is of a material nature. This materiality stems from the Intervenor's handbill that couples the lack of summer bargaining with a "withholding of services" in absence of contract.

We are satisfied that the Intervenor has violated the standards set forth in the Hollywood Ceramics Company case. The literature of March 12, 1968, contained a material misrepresentation and the timing of its distribution was such as made a reply impossible. We find that Intervenor has exceeded the bounds of fair electioneering and interfered with the free choice of the employees. Accordingly, we set aside the election, and we shall direct that a second election be conducted.[2]

DIRECTION OF SECOND ELECTION

It IS HEREBY ORDERED that a second election, by secret ballot, shall be conducted, under the direction and supervision of a Board Agent, among the employees within the following appropriate unit:

All certified teaching personnel under contract, EXCLUDING: Superintendent, Administrative Assistant Principals, Assistant Principals, Head Librarian, Public Librarian, Business Manager, Vocational Director, Adult

[1]The words "With right come Responsibilities" are in letters approximately three-fourths of an inch high and the concluding, "For Responsible Negotiations" approximately one inch high.

[2]This finding and order makes it unnecessary to fully consider the second aspect of Petitioner's objections. The record reveals that a unit employee testified that one James Waarala, who has been included in the unit, told the employees that the Superintendent said if the Federation (Petitioner) won the election that the string music program would be abandoned. The employee is a string music teacher. This testimony was not offered by the petitioner to establish that the Superintendent of Schools made the remark, but on the contrary, that the Waarala made the remark and that Waarala was a supervisor as would make the remark a threat.

The record does not establish that Waarala is a supervisor as defined by the Board. School District of the City of East Detroit. 1966 Labor Opinions p. 60. In view of this finding, we do not find the remark as quoted, amounts to a threat that could prevent a fair election in this matter.

Education Director, Director of Guidance and Attendance and all other persons with supervisory functions.

Eligible to vote are those employees who were employed during the payroll period immediately preceding the direction of this second election, including employees who did not work during that period because they were ill, on vacation, or temporarily laid off. Also eligible are those employees in the military service of the United States, if they appear at the polls.

Ineligible to vote are employees who have quit or been discharged for cause since the designated payroll period, and who have not been rehired or reinstated before the election date.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Employer shall prepare an eligibility list in alphabetical order, containing eligible voters' names in accordance with the above description, and submit copies of such list forthwith to the Labor Mediation Board and to the other parties.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the election shall be conducted on the premises of the Employer at such time and date as a Board Agent shall determine after consultation with the parties.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Employer shall cause to be posted in prominent places in and about the establishment, sample ballots and notices of election (furnished by the Board) setting forth the time, date and place of election, at least five days prior to said election.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that eligible employees shall vote whether they desire to be represented for collective bargaining purposes by Willow Run Federation of Teachers, Willow Run Education Association, or neither.

William E. Stiles, Jr., appointed by the Teachers Association
William B. Peden, Chairman, appointed by the other two Panel Members

By the terms of the Professional Negotiation Agreement between the Jefferson County Board of Education, Louisville, Kentucky, hereinafter sometimes referred to as "the Board," and the Jefferson County Teachers Association, Louisville, Kentucky, hereinafter sometimes referred to as "the Association," dated December 6, 1967, an "impasse" procedure is provided in the event that the parties reach an impasse during negotiations. Pursuant to such procedures, the Board appointed Craig Bradley and the Association appointed William E. Stiles, Jr., as Panel Members. On September 9, 1968, the two Panel Members agreed on the selection of William B. Peden as the Chairman and third member of the Panel.

Hearings were held on September 11, 12, and 16, 1968, at the Conference Room of the Kentucky Education Association, Louisville, Kentucky. Full and equal opportunity was given to each party to make statements and arguments, introduce evidence, and examine and cross-examine witnesses. At the conclusion of the hearings, opportunity was given to both parties to file written post-hearing briefs, but neither party was desirous of filing such. Both the Board and the Association agreed that the Panel was duly constituted and appointed and that the report of the panel would be due on September 23, 1968.

ISSUE

The basic issue involved is one of salary schedules. The final offer of the Board was for a base salary of $5,800.00 for a beginning teacher with a B.A. degree, with provisions for a four point index for both experience and preparation. The final offer of the Association was for a base salary of $6,000.00 for a beginning teacher with a B.A. degree, with provisions for a four and one-half point index for both experience and preparation. Prior to the last proposal of the Association it had presented a request for a base salary of $6,200.00, with provisions for a five point index for both experience and preparation. In addition both the first and second proposals of the Association had provisions for shortening the number of "steps" necessary to reach the maximum benefit for work experience. The Tentative Budget adopted by the Board also shortened the number of steps necessary for such purpose but not to the extent requested by the Association.

The Board had started its negotiations from the base pay of $5,450.00 in its 1967-1968 budget. Upon the parties being unable to reach an agreement, the Association declared that an impasse existed and called for the appointment of a Review Panel as provided in the Professional Negotiation Agreement.

FACTS PRESENTED

The Negotiation Process:

Some time prior to the Professional Negotiation Agreement of December 6, 1967, there were two major groups representing the teachers in the county system, both of which were acting in good faith, but sometimes being at odds with each other. In such a situation the Board was in the middle.

Through the efforts of Messrs. J. Dan Baldwin and Claude Purvis, Jr., and others the two groups were brought together into a single unit known as the Jefferson County Teachers Association. Messrs. Baldwin and Purvis were elected joint presidents of the association.

The present agreement was adopted in December of 1967 prior to the session of the Kentucky General Assembly which began in January of 1968, at which time certain bills were to be introduced regarding professional bargaining for teachers. This was a forward step in that this was the first such agreement in force in the system.

Section A of the Preamble to the Professional Negotiation Agreement between the Jefferson County Board of Education and the Jefferson County Teachers Association says, in part, "...good-faith negotiations between the Board and the Association are the basic purpose of this Agreement."

Article V, Section A, "Subjects of Negotiation" says: "Either party shall have the right to meet and negotiate for the purpose of reaching an agreement which shall include the following items but not be limited thereto: Personnel policies and working conditions, curriculum, salaries, and salary schedule, and other matters pertaining to the orderly and efficient operation and development of the school system."

Between December 6, 1967, and the end of the school year, the Board and the Association negotiated, and reached agreement on several items related to working conditions. Salary negotiations, however, continued through the summer except for the month of July. No agreement was reached.

The Association proposed that the Board open schools on August 26 with the salary schedule for the 1967-68 school year temporarily in effect until agreement could be reached on a salary schedule for the 1968-69 school year. The Board, because it had promised the new teachers a salary of at least $5,750.00, felt it could not keep the old schedule in effect. On August 13, 1968, the Board adopted a "tentative salary schedule" beginning at $5,800.00 for teachers with a Bachelor's degree and no experience and ranging to $10,208.00 for teachers with 30 semester hours beyond the Master's degree and fifteeen years of experience.

The Association regarded the adoption of the "tentative salary schedule" as a reason to believe that an impasse existed and at that time invoked Article IV, "Mediation and Impasse", of the Professional Negotiation Agreement.

During negotiation over the salary schedule, little or no real bargaining took place. The Association offered one proposal and one counter-proposal. The Board offered two proposed salary schedules, both costing approximately the same amount of money.

Both parties agreed that there had been some difficulty in fulfilling all the requirements of the Agreement, particularly with regard to the exchange of information about financial resources and tentative budgetary requirements. This portion of the Agreement will probably be reopened during negotiations in the current school year.

The Association feels that at least part of the lack of bargaining was due to the "gentlemen's agreement" to keep the salary schedules of the Board and of the Board of Education of Louisville, Kentucky, comparable. Early in the negotiation sessions the Association informed the Board that the Association would not consider such agreement as having a bearing on the salary schedule.

The Gentlemen's Agreement:

At the time of the Special Session of the Kentucky General Assembly in 1965 the Government agreed to add to the call of that legislature a proposal to add a 1/2 of 1% of occupational license tax in Jefferson County for school financing. The bill as originally proposed would have allocated approximately 66% of the revenue produced to the Louisville Board of Education and 34% to the Jefferson County Board of Education.

A "gentlemen's agreement" was reached (the exact parties to such agreement are unknown to the Panel, but apparently including representatives of the Jefferson County Board of Education, the Louisville Board of Education, and legislators from this area) whereby the revenue from the proposed tax would be allocated on a pupil population ratio. A part of this agreement was that the salary schedules in the Louisville and Jefferson County systems would be kept at comparable levels so that in the event of merger of the two systems the cost necessary to make the two salary schedules equal would be negligible.

Salary schedules in the two systems have been comparable for the past three school years, and the schedule adopted in the Tentative Budget of the Board for the year 1968-1969 is comparable to the one subsequently adopted by the Louisville Board of Education.

When the Professional Negotiation Agreement was entered into on December 6, 1967, providing for negotiations between the Board and the Association a number of possibilities arose among which are:

1. That such agreement constituted a possible breach of the "gentlemen's contract" in that if true bargaining concerning salaries should take place, the salary schedules of the two systems might not continue to be comparable.

2. That the agreement of December 6, 1967, was unenforceable because of the prior "gentlemen's agreement."

3. That the "gentlemen's agreement" was no longer in effect because the merger bills had failed.

It is not the function of the Panel to make a determination of whether such "gentlemen's agreement" is still in effect legally or morally, nor to determine whether there has been a possible breach thereof. Our function is to make an investigation, find facts and recommend a solution.

Recruiting:

One problem in relation to the creation of the present Tentative Budget and negotiations regarding salary schedules is related to recruiting. Because of the turnover rate and the addition of new classrooms each year a large number of teachers must be recruited and hired annually. Since teachers must be hired in the early part of the calendar year before the budget is approved, some promise must be made as to what salary a new teacher can expect. The Board is thus placed in the position of having to, in large degree, fix the base pay before negotiations commence with the Association. During the recruiting in 1968 representatives of the Board promised that there would be at least a $300.00 increase in the base salary as compared with the year 1967-1968, for a starting salary of at least $5,750.00.

Teacher Turnover Rate:

The Association presented a schedule (Exhibit B, JCTA) showing the percentage of teacher turnover rate of 48 school districts for 1966-67 said to be comparable with the Jefferson County system. The average percentage of turnover was 15.3 while that of Jefferson County was 20.1, the fourth highest of the 48.

The Association charges the reason for the higher rate in Jefferson County is that the salary schedule is below the national average. The average salary for Jefferson County Classroom teachers in 1967-1968 was $6,936.00. The estimated average salary for classroom teachers in the United States for 1967-1968 was $7,296.00. (NEA Research Report 1968-R1, Rankings of the States, 1968)

The Board presented the results of a survey that it made (Exhibit F, JCBE) on 636 teachers who had left the system. Only 49 replied that they had taken another position in teaching, while 23 replied that they had taken a position in industry. The two reasons given most commonly were: "Husband Transferred," (105) and "Marrying or Moving," (116).

It is thus apparent that the salary schedule has some direct effect on the turnover rate, but that it is not the major factor at the present time. It must be pointed out, however, that if the schedule is not kept current with the times the turnover rate will no doubt increase.

Salaries in Comparable Districts:

An examination of the salary schedules already adopted for the 1968-1969 school year in 16 cities, five of which are of closely comparable size to Jefferson County (Exhibit C, JCTA), showed that one had a minimum salary of $5,700.00, one $5,800,00, one $5,900.00 and the other thirteen school districts had minimum salaries of $6,000.00 and over, up to $7,000.00. Fourteen of the same districts provided a salary schedule for a sixth year of preparation (Rank I on the Jefferson County Schedule), and of these, five provided a maximum salary under $11,000.00 and nine $11,000.00 and over, up to $12,600.00.

A projection of the salary schedules of 53 school districts of approximately the same size as Jefferson County (Exhibit A, JCTA) and which assumes an average increase of 8% over the 1967-68 school year, anticipates an average minimum salary of $6,037.00 and an average sixth year preparation maximum of $11,154.00.

When the cities among the 53 spoken of in the immediately preceding paragraph are limited to those which lie in the southeastern region of the United States (Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Arkansas), and the same projection (an anticipated 8% increase) is made, the average minimum salary shows at $5,762.00 and the sixth year preparation maximum of $10,006.00.

Number of Days Worked:

A comparison was made of the days teachers were on duty in 1966-1967 in forty-five school districts, including Jefferson County, which are of comparable size (Exhibit N, JCTA). The average was 185 days for the forty-five districts. Jefferson County teachers were on duty 190 days.

Revenue Receipts:

The Board has clearly stated there is no source of additional increase to supplement the base salary or index steps.

Kentucky may or may not be unique in its taxing structure. The structure in itself is not permissive, as the rates are subject only to legislative process. In addition the base for assessment is subject to legislative process, which base was set at 100% of fair value by the Special Session of 1965.

Since the amounts of revenue from local sources as well as from state sources (foundation program) are fixed at the State level, it appears that additional revenue is an impossibility at this time, therefore additional revenue with which to implement an increase in salaries is not available.

The Foundation Program allotment was predicated on a projected enrollment of 87,091, a level which has not been attained. This will have a direct bearing on budgeted receipts, but just how much the reduction will be is pure conjecture at this point, according to information presented by the Board.

Cost of Salary Increase:

The exact cost of an increase in the base salary of $1.00 cannot be determined without minute calculations as so many factors are involved such as the total number of teachers, the rank of each teacher, the experience factor for each teacher, and various other items. In spite of the difficulties involved a working estimate can be obtained by dividing the cost of the increase in the Tentative Budget (Exhibit E, JCBE, page numbered -5-) by $350.00 (the amount of the increase).

Such cost was shown to be $1,956,836.00 which gives a cost of $5,591.00 for each $1.00 of increase in the base salary. To give the teachers a $50.00 raise in base pay would cost approximately $280,000.00; a $100.00 raise, $560,000.00, etc.

Cost of Change in Index:

The parties have stipulated that the cost of a 1/10 of 1% increase in the index from 4.0 to 4.1 would be in the vicinity of $90,000.00 to $100,000.00. An increase from 4.0 index to a 4.5 index would cost between $450,000.00 and $500,000.00. The cost of changing the index upward will rise as the base salary is increased.

Source of Pay Raise:

The Association has taken two basic positions:

1. That the teachers should be paid the "going rate," which in the Association's opinion is the national average for systems of comparable size. They contend that the Board pays the "going rate" for books, supplies, interest on bonds, and for all other expenditures, and thus that it should do likewise for its teachers. To the Association it is merely a matter of priorities.

2. That the proposed budget shows an increase of some $9,000,000.00 over 1967-68 actual expenditure and that more than $1,900,000.00 of such amount should go into increases for teachers.

The Association has not gone on record as to the source from which any increase in salaries that the Panel should recommend should originate, either from an increase in revenue or a decrease in expenditures, or a combination of both. Its position is that this is a prerogative of the Board and that all the teachers ask is to be paid the "going rate."

The Board takes the position that it is dealing with a situation where it cannot control its income in that the tax rate is fixed, and it has no ability to change such. Further the Board says that all of the budgeted items are essential and that none of them can be cut without seriously disrupting the educational process. The Board has shown that of the $8,950,282.76 increase in budgeted expenditures in the Tentative Budget for 1968-1969 that $2,210,373.37 comes from a Specially Voted Building Fund which by law can only be used for capital outlays and debt service.

The Board has further shown that of the approximate $6,700,000 increase in proposed General Fund expenditures in the Tentative Budget that approximately $5,469,000 is an addition to the instructional purposes budget. It takes the position that instructional salaries, excluding secretarial and clerical salaries, have been increased some $4,848,000, which amount includes both increases for existing personnel as well as salaries of new personnel employed because of the expansion of the system.

Salary Schedule Recommendations:

The recommendation of the Review Panel is based on the assumption that the funding of the proposed salary schedule can be accommodated by reducing other expenditures in the Tentative Budget. The Panel does not propose to tell the Board the specific expenses that must be reduced, if reductions are necessary, as that is a function that the Board must decide in accordance with priorities.

Teachers should not be expected to subsidize governmental operations if sufficient funds are not provided through tax revenues. The Board does not seek to cut wage rates of employees of contractors that build buildings for the system or that provide other services necessary for its operation. It pays the prices set by competitive bidding for supplies in the open market. It follows, therefore, that teachers should be paid salaries that are competitive to those of systems comparable with the local one.

The Review Panel believes that the salary schedule that it recommends should provide for salaries comparable to those paid in similar systems and that the percentage points in the index should be increased to give added recognition for experience and preparation.

RECOMMENDATION

The Review Panel makes the following recommendations:

1. That the base salary in the Tentative Budget adopted for the 1968-1969 school year be increased from $5,800.00 to $5,900.00.

2. That the index in the Tentative Budget adopted for the 1968-1969 school year be changed from 4% to 4.1% both for experience and preparation, with the percentage increase for experience at the maximum step remaining unchanged.

Respectfully submitted this 23rd day of September, 1968.

Both local teacher organization and its parent body are qualified, as parties in interest, to file charges that the school board is unlawfully favoring a rival organization.

B-II PERA
Procedural Issues

Incumbent teacher bargaining agent is entitled to full intervention in case involving charges by rival organization that school board denies it certain rights which are granted to incumbent.

B-VIII PERA
Unfair Labor Practices
Assistance or Domination Not Found

Adopting Wisconsin rule, the Board decides that a school board may grant, through bargaining, to the certified bargaining agent of its teachers, the exclusive use of payroll deduction of dues, school bulletin boards and teachers' mail boxes, meanwhile denying all such advantages to a rival organization.

Decision and Order

Exceptions were filed by the Avondale Federation of Teachers and Michigan Federation of Teachers, Joint Charging Parties, to the Trial Examiner's Decision and Recommended Order dated April 23, 1968.

The exceptions read as follows:

"1. The recommended order provides for a dismissal of the charges in their entirety when the decision itself indicates areas which should permit for the charges to lay.

2. The decision itself permits a rival organization to the exclusive representative to have organizational conveniences or advantages '...which are essential to communicating with employees, such as the right to solicit membership during non-working hours on the premises and the right to handbill or distribute literature at certain times and places.'

3. The charges contained in (b)(1) (relating to bulletin boards), (b)(4), (b)(5), (b)(6) and (b)(7) and (c) would be those areas covered by the above quoted portion of the decision and should be so allowed by the Labor Mediation Board."

We find no prejudicial error in the statement of the Trial Examiner with respect to organizations other than the exclusive bargaining representative soliciting membership during non-working hours on the premises and handbilling or distributing literature at certain times and places. The Trial Examiner, perhaps out of undue caution, was simply noting that there are circumstances wherein a rival organization may engage in activities to promote membership in its organization. Soliciting membership in an organization other than the exclusive bargaining representative on an employee's own time is not a prohibited activity during the period when a new representation petition may be filed by a rival organization. During this period, advertising activities are authorized.

Charge (b)(5) was listed as an area of activity by the Avondale Federation of Teachers which should be allowed by the Labor Mediation Board. The evidence disclosed that the only "materials" to which reference was made in this part of the charge consisted of a package postmarked December 10, 1966, and addressed to "Teachers, Stiles Schools, 3976 Livernois, Rochester, Mich. 48063." The refusal of an employer to deliver materials mailed in this fashion to its employees is not an unfair labor practice. Indeed, the package had a return address showing it was mailed by one "Harold Strayer"; not by either of the Charging Parties.

There was no evidence to support Charge (b)(7). Material to which reference was made was addressed to Stiles Elementary School, and appears to have been delivered by one of the Charging Parties, not by U.S. mail.

We pass no judgment on any breach of federal postal law or regulations, as this is a matter not within the jurisdiction of the Labor Mediation Board.

Subject to the comments above, we adopt the Trial Examiner's Decision and Recommended Order.

ORDER

The charges filed by Avondale Federation of Teachers and Michigan Federation of Teachers, as amended during the hearing, are dismissed.

Trial Examiner's Decision and Recommended Order

APPEARANCES:

For the Respondent: Harry D. Wise Jr., Esq.

For the Charging Party: Bernard J. Fieger, Esq.

For the Intervenor: Ellmann and Ellmann
By: Harvey I. Wax, Esq.

Pursuant to Section 16 of Act 336, Public Acts of 1947 as amended (M.S.A. Sec. 17.455, designated as the Public Employment Relations Act, hereinafter referred to as PERA), a hearing was held on March 2, 3, and 17, 1967, at Detroit, Michigan, before the undersigned Trial Examiner of the Labor Mediation Board (hereinafter referred to as the Board) on charges filed by Avondale Federation of Teachers and Michigan Federation of Teachers, hereinafter referred to as AFT and MFT respectively. Based on the entire record, including post-hearing briefs filed by the Respondent and by the Intervenor Avondale Education Association (AEA), the undersigned hereby makes the following:

Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law

The Respondent is a public employer within the meaning of PERA.

Respondent moved for discharge of MFT as a charging party. MFT is the parent body of AFT, and both are labor organizations within the meaning of PERA. Both are qualified, as parties in interest, to file the unfair labor practice charges which are the subject of this case.

AEA is also a labor organization within the meaning of PERA, since it currently is the certified exclusive bargaining agent for teachers in the Respondent district. AFT and MFT objected to AEA's right to intervene in these proceedings. The undersigned ruled that AEA has an interest in the outcome and is entitled to full intervention.

The charges, as amended during the hearing, allege that the Respondent has violated sec. 10(a), (b) and (c) of PERA in that:

(a) It has refused to honor the request of its employees, members of the Avondale Federation of Teachers, as demonstrated by authorization executed by such employees, that the dues of the Avondale Federation of Teachers be deducted from their wages although it grants that privilege to members of another labor organization.

(b) (1) It has refused to permit the Avondale Federation of Teachers or its members to freely use the internal mail system and faculty bulletin boards for the purpose of distributing and displaying its notices, bulletins and information releases to the professional employees of the Employer and its members.

(2) It refused to permit individual members of representatives of the Federation to insert Federation materials in the teachers' mailboxes.

(3) It refused to permit packages containing Federation materials from being delivered from one school to another for distribution within the internal mail system.

(4) It removed Federation materials from teachers' mailboxes and from mailboxes of Federation members when placed in such boxes directly by members or representatives of the Federation.

(5) It refused to deliver Federation materials mailed in packages by U.S. Mail to teachers in the several schools after opening said packages, said materials having the individual teachers' names imprinted thereon.

(6) It refused to permit letters from the Federation and other individuals, containing Federation materials or suspected Federation materials to be delivered from school to school through the internal mail system or to be placed in the teachers' mailboxes.

(7) That on February 21, 1967, Federation materials mailed in the U.S. Mail to the individual members were refused by the agents and administrators of the System and returned to the U.S. Post Office; in one school where the letters had been actually placed in the teachers' mailboxes, such letters were then removed and returned to the U.S. Post Office; that such action was admitted to the President of the Federation by a Principal and by an Assistant Superintendent.

(c) It refuses to permit the Avondale Federation of Teachers or its members to use the school premises for meetings of the Avondale Federation of Teachers.

Additional and related charges, numbered (d), (e) and (f) were withdrawn at the conclusion of the hearing.

The basic facts:

On January 11, 1966, following a representation election in which AFT participated, the Labor Mediation Board certified AEA as the exclusive bargaining agent for all teachers in the Avondale District. Prior to and during the election contest, the School District, by resolution, treated the two rival organizations with a carefully-guarded equality in terms of organizational opportunities. Both were allowed to have members' dues deducted from pay checks. Both were allowed use of school facilities for purposes of holding meetings and posting notices and other campaign materials.

After the election the Respondent adopted a stricter policy with regard to organizational activity on the part of AFT. On September 6, 1966, AEA and the Respondent executed a collective bargaining agreement for the ensuing school year. This agreement provided for the checkoff of dues in favor of AEA but made no provision for AFT checkoff. The agreement provided for posting of organization material on an official bulletin board and for AEA's right to use of meeting rooms. AFT has been allowed to erect its own bulletin board in at least one school, where such a request was specifically made. Efforts by AFT to have its organizational publications distributed via the inter-school mail delivery service have been blocked by the Respondent. Generally speaking, these publications have been severely critical of AEA and its performance as bargaining agent for Avondale teachers.

Analysis and conclusions

While the Respondent and AEA introduced evidence tending to contradict the charges, it may be fairly concluded that the fundamental facts asserted in the charges are substantiated by the record. The issue raised by these facts is whether an employer is prohibited by PERA Section 10 from favoring the majority representative by such disparate treatment. Section 11 of PERA provides in pertinent part as follows:

> "Representatives designated or selected for purposes of collective bargaining by the majority of the public employees in a unit appropriate for such purposes, shall be the exclusive representatives of all the public employees in such unit for the purposes of collective bargaining in respect to rates of pay, wages, hours of employment or other conditions of employment, and shall be so recognized by the public employer..."

The import of Section 11 is that the majority rules in determining a bargaining agent and, conversely, that the organization which loses a representation election may not be accorded any sort of status as spokesman for its supporters. For a school board to bargain with the defeated organization as to its members would be akin to a foreign government negotiating a treaty with a defeated presidential candidate. Here, AEA has been, at all times material to this case, the exclusive representative. This means that, as a matter of law, AEA speaks for every teacher in the system and AFT speaks for absolutely none (so far as the school board is concerned).

Checkoff of dues, use of bulletin boards and the faculty mail service, and use of school rooms for meetings are not rights implicitly guaranteed to all labor organizations. The employer may concede such conveniences either through collective bargaining or on its own motion. Where a valid question concerning representation has been clearly raised, the employer may not discriminate between rival organizations as to these conveniences. Where, as here, the question of representation has been resolved in favor of one of two rival organizations, Section 11 of PERA becomes operative and the organizations need not, indeed may not, be treated as equals in the eyes of the employer. Eastern Michigan University, C67 K23, 1967 Labor Opinions 384; Bentor Harbor Board of Education, C65 K20, 1966 Labor Opinions 334; Melvindale-Northern Allen Park School District, C66 K57, 1967 Labor Opinions 167. The employer's duty to bargain with the statutory bargaining agent includes "the negative duty to treat with no other." N.L.R.B. v. Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, 301 U.S. 1, 44; Wyckoff Heights Hospital, 27 NYSLRB 75, 79, 55 LRRM 1291 (1964).

The Wisconsin Employment Relations Board has dealt with the problems posed in this case. In a declaratory ruling in Milwaukee Board of School Directors, Case V, No. 9836 DR-1, Decision No. 6833-A, issued March 24, 1966, the Wisconsin Board held as follows:

> That the Milwaukee Board of School Directors may, under Sec. 111.70, Wisconsin Statutes, grant, through collective bargaining, to the certified exclusive collective bargaining representative for the teaching staff, the exclusive use of the following privileges, under circumstances where the use of such privileges has been accorded to other organizations representing members of the teaching staff prior to the certification of the exclusive collective bargaining representative:
> a. Payroll deduction of dues, upon voluntarily executed authorization by individual teachers in favor of the exclusive collective bargaining representative, where such an exclusive obligation is reflected in a resolution or collective bargaining agreement.
> b. The posting of notices and other appropriate materials on school bulletin boards, in the performance of its function as the exclusive collective bargaining representative of the teaching staff.
> c. The use of teachers' mailboxes for the distribution of notices and other appropriate materials when necessary to perform its function as the exclusive collective bargaining representative of the teaching staff.

The undersigned adopts the reasoning and conclusion of the Wisconsin Board. In my estimation, where one organization is the settled exclusive representative under the statute, a rival organization may be denied all organizational conveniences or advantages except those which are essential to communicating with employees, such as the right to solicit membership during non-working hours on the premises and the right to handbill or distribute literature at certain times and places. The conveniences involved in this case may be denied entirely during an organizing campaign. Therefore, they may be denied to AFT after its election loss. The simultaneous grant of such conveniences to AEA is consistent with Section 11 of PERA and AEA's duty to fairly and impartially represent all teachers, even the AFT dissidents. Such conveniences help the exclusive representative to communicate with the people it represents. That is essential to good representation. Armco Steel Corporation, 148 NLRB 1179. See also Armco Steel Corporation v. N.L.R.B., 344 F2d 621, 624 (CA 6, 1965) 59 LRRM 2077. The brief of AEA succinctly sums up the case in observing that the winning organization, once it has negotiated a favorable contract, need not carry the minority organization on its back. I would argue only with the connotation in the word "minority."

Legally speaking, absent a newly-raised question of representation, the losing organization does not continue to "represent" a "minority"; it represents no one, because the winning organization legally represents and speaks for every employee in dealings with the employer regarding salaries and conditions of employment.

Recommended Order

On the basis of the above findings it is recommended that the Board enter an Order dismissing the charges in their entirety.

Negotiation Agreements

MASTER CONTRACT AGREEMENT

Between the

Kenosha Board of Education and the

Kenosha Education Association (NEA)

Effective July 1, 1968 to June 30, 1969

KENOSHA UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 1

Kenosha, Wisconsin

PROFESSIONAL NEGOTIATION AGREEMENT

I. Preamble

The Board of Education of the Kenosha Unified School District and the Kenosha Education Association agree that the educational welfare of the children of the district is paramount in the operation of the schools. The parties further agree that the development and fulfillment of educational programs of the highest quality require harmonious working relationships among the board, the administrative staff and the teaching staff. In order to promote maximum utilization of the ability, experience, and judgment of all parties sharing responsibility for the quality of instruction in the Kenosha Unified District, the parties do hereby agree as follows:

II. Definitions

As used in this agreement:

A. Board shall mean Board of Education of the Kenosha Unified School District.

B. Superintendent shall mean the Superintendent of Schools of the Kenosha Unified School District.

C. Association shall mean the Kenosha Education Association.

D. Joint Negotiations Committee shall mean the committee composed of three board members, three Association representatives, a five member advisory committee composed of teachers selected by the Association, and a five member administrative staff advisory committee including the Superintendent of Schools and/or the Deputy Superintendent of Schools to be selected by the Board of Education.

E. Teaching Personnel shall mean the certificated teaching employees of the Board.

F. Consultant shall mean a resource person qualified by training and/or experience to advise on problems being considered by the Joint Negotiations Committee. Said consultant may or may not be an employee of the Board and may be called upon by either party.

III. Recognition

The Board and the Association recognize their responsibilities toward each other and to the community for negotiating in good faith to reach agreements which are mutually satisfactory.

The Board recognizes that teaching is a profession, that members of this profession have specialized educational qualifications, and that their participation on matters relative to the professional services of teachers is important to the success of school programs.

The Association recognizes the members of the Board of Education as elected representatives of the people and further recognizes the legal authority of Board Members for district policy decisions and the Superintendent for the operation of the district.

The Board recognizes the Kenosha Education Association as exclusive representative of all certified teaching personnel of the district.

Exclusive recognition shall entitle the Association to the use of school buildings, bulletin boards, and teacher mailboxes in the performance of its obligations as the majority representative of the teaching personnel.

IV. Principles

A. Obtaining Objectives - The process described in this negotiation agreement is dependant on mutual understanding and cooperation. It therefore requires a free and open exchange of views with all parties participating in negotiations leading to policy decisions by the Board of Education.

B. Membership in Organizations - Membership in any organization shall not be required as a condition of employment.

C. Joint Negotiations Committee - Three members of the Board selected by the Board and three representatives of the Association selected by the Association shall comprise the Joint Negotiations Committee. Association representatives shall be certified to the Board by the president of the Association.

D. Subjects of Negotiation - The Joint Negotiations Committee shall consider such matters of mutual concern as salaries, hours, and conditions of employment.

V. Procedures

A. Directing Requests - A request from the Association for the initial meeting of the Joint Negotiations Committee for consideration of the Salary and Welfare Agreement shall be made in writing directly to the Board President. A similar request from the Board shall be made in writing to the President of the Association.

Within fourteen (14) days of the date of the request, a mutually convenient time and place for a meeting shall be set by the Joint Negotiations Committee. The meeting will occur within twenty-one (21) days from the date of the request.

B. In order that the negotiations may be conducted in an orderly manner, each group shall be represented by a Chairman. It shall be the responsibility of the Chairmen to open the meeting, to control, and to conclude the meeting. Negotiating sessions shall be of not more than two hours duration unless an extension of time is mutually agreed upon. A subsequent meeting date shall be established prior to the conclusion of each meeting if there is further business to conduct.

C. Minutes - Minutes of each session shall be kept by the Secretary of the Board acting in an official capacity. Ten (10) copies of the minutes shall be mailed to the Association Office in care of the Executive Secretary. A copy of the minutes shall be sent to each member of the Board and Administrative Staff Advisory Committee.

D. Meetings - Additional meetings shall be agreed upon by the Joint Negotiations Committee as may be necessary to complete consideration of agenda items. The presidents of the Board and Association will be responsible for notifying their representatives of scheduled meetings.

E. Assistance - Consultants may be called upon by either the Board or the Association for advice or information on matters being considered by the Joint Negotiations Committee. The total number of participants representing the Board or the Association shall not exceed ten for either group for any one session.

F. Exchange of Information - The Board agrees to furnish the Association, upon reasonable request to the Superintendent, such information as available which will assist the Association in developing intelligent, feasible and constructive proposals on behalf of teachers, students, and the school system.

G. Study Committees - The Joint Negotiations Committee, by mutual agreement, may appoint ad hoc study committees for research, study, and development of reports. Such committees shall report their findings only to the Joint Negotiations Committee.

H. Proceedings during Negotiations - Negotiations shall be conducted in meetings which are closed to the press and to the public. Until all procedures under the terms of this Agreement have been exhausted, no information, other than that of a final signed agreement arrived at through negotiations, shall be made public by either the Association or the Board without the approval of both parties. This does not preclude keeping the teaching personnel and the Board informed, on a confidential basis, as to progress of negotiations.

I. Procedure in the Event of an Impasse - When an impasse has been reached during negotiations, the matter will be submitted to a Board of Review within thirty days upon the request of either party to the other. In no event shall the disputed matter(s) be submitted to the Board of Review until at least three months or ten meetings have elapsed after the commencement of negotiations. The Board of Education will name one advisor and the Association will name another. A third member, who will act as chairman, and who is not a member of either party, will be selected by the first two members. If the first two members cannot agree on a third member, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction will then be requested to appoint a third member. The Board of Review shall report recommendations for settlement within a reasonable period of time set by the two negotiation parties - after studying the facts, proposals, counter-proposals, and other pertinent information in an attempt to reach a type of agreement that is acceptable to both parties. Actions of the Board of Review shall be mediatory and shall not be disclosed to the public or to the press.

J. Costs - Costs and expenses incurred in securing and utilizing the services of a consultant are the responsibility of the party engaging this service. Costs and expenses of an advisor named by either party shall be borne by that party. Costs and expenses incurred in securing and utilizing the services of members of the Board of Review shall be shared equally by the Board and the Association.

VI. Agreement

When a substantive agreement is reached, it shall then be made in writing and submitted for ratification to the Board and to the Association. When approved by both parties, it shall be signed by their respective presidents and shall be entered into the official minutes of the Board. Thereupon, the terms of the agreement shall be incorporated into Board policy.

If any sections of this agreement or any addenda thereto should be held invalid by operation of law or by any tribunal of competent jurisdiction, or if compliance with or enforcement of any sections or addenda should be restrained by such tribunal, the remainder of this agreement and addenda thereto shall not be affected thereby, and the parties shall enter into immediate negotiations for the purpose of arriving at a mutually satisfactory replacement for such (invalid) section(s).

VII. Amendment

If either the Association or the Board desires change(s) in this agreement, the President of the group desiring change(s) shall notify the President of the other group in writing. If the other group agrees to the necessity of the change(s), the proposed amendment(s) shall become agenda items for negotiations and are final when ratified by the Board and the Association. By mutual consent the effective date of such amendments may be set prior to the completion of the current agreement year.

VIII. Distribution

Teachers shall receive a copy of the professional Negotiation Agreement and the Teacher Salary and Welfare Agreement upon receipt of their individual contracts, said documents to be furnished by the Board.

IX. Grievance Procedure

A. Definitions

1. A "grievance" is a claim based upon an event or condition which affects the welfare and/or conditions of employment of a teacher or group of teachers and/or the interpretation, meaning or application of any of the provisions of this agreement of any subsequent agreement entered into pursuant to this agreement.

2. An "aggrieved person" is the person or persons making the claim.

3. A "party in interest" is the person or persons making the claim, any person who might be required to take action in order to resolve the claim, and the Chairman of the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee (hereafter called the PR&R Committee) or his designee.

B. Purpose

1. The purpose of this procedure is to secure, at the lowest possible administrative level, equitable solutions to the grievance(s) which may arise. Both parties agree that these proceedings will be kept as informal and confidential as may be appropriate at any level of the procedure.

2. Nothing herein contained will be construed as limiting the right of any teacher having a grievance to discuss the matter informally with the appropriate member of the administration at level one, and having the grievance adjusted at level one without intervention by the Association, provided the adjustment is not inconsistent with the terms of this Agreement.

C. Procedure

Since it is important that grievances be processed as rapidly as possible, the number of days indicated at each level should be considered as a maximum, and every effort should be made to expedite the process. The time limits specified may, however, be extended by mutual consent.

In the event a grievance is filed which might not be finally resolved under the time limits set forth herein by the end of the school term, and which if left unresolved until the beginning of the following school term could result in irreparable harm to a party in interest, the time limits set forth herein will be reduced so that the grievance procedure may be exhausted prior to the end of the school term or as soon thereafter as is practicable.

Any problem(s) involving teachers, or the Kenosha Education Association, concerning conditions of employment contained within the agreement shall be resolved in the following manner:

1. Level One. The teacher(s) involved shall, within five (5) school days of the grievance, go first to his immediate supervisor by himself, or with a representative of the PR&R Committee, in an attempt to solve the grievance.

2. Level Two. (a) If the aggrieved person(s) is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level One, or if no decision has been rendered within five (5) school days after presentation of the grievance, he may file the grievance in writing with the Chairman of the Association's PR&R Committee within five (5) school days after the decision at Level One or ten (10) school days after the grievance was presented, whichever is sooner. Within five (5) school days after receiving the written grievance, the Chairman of the PR&R Committee will refer it to the Superintendent of Schools.

(b) The Superintendent will represent the administration at this level of the grievance procedure. Within five (5) school days after receipt of the written grievance by the Superintendent, the Superintendent or his designee will meet with the aggrieved person and the Chairman of the PR&R Committee or his designee in an effort to resolve it.

(c) If a teacher does not file a grievance in writing with the Chairman of the PR&R Committee and the written grievance is not forwarded to the Superintendent within thirty (30) school days after the teacher knew or should have known of the act or condition on which the grievance is based, then the grievance will be considered as waived.

3. Level Three. (a) If the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level Two, or if no decision has been rendered within five (5) school days after he has first met with the Superintendent or his designee, he may file the grievance in writing with the Chairman of the PR&R Committee within fifteen (15) school days after the grievance was submitted at Level Two. Within five (5) days after receiving the written grievance, the PR&R Committee will determine whether to refer the grievance to the Board of Education.

(b) The Board will meet in executive session at its next regularly scheduled meeting to consider all grievances which have been submitted to it since its last such meeting. Any party in interest shall have the right to appear before the Board and be heard.

THIS AGREEMENT IS MADE and entered into as of the 15th day of January, 1968, by and between the Kenosha Board of Education, Kenosha Unified School District No. 1, Kenosha, Wisconsin, and the Kenosha Education Association, for a term of one year from the date hereof or until a new agreement is reached.

KENOSHA EDUCATION ASSOCIATION	KENOSHA BOARD OF EDUCATION
_____ President	_____ President

KENOSHA UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 1

Kenosha, Wisconsin

TEACHER SALARY AND WELFARE AGREEMENT

Pursuant to the Professional Negotiation Agreement existing by and between the Kenosha Board of Education, Unified School District Number One, and the Kenosha Education Association, acting as the officially certified and exclusive collective bargaining representative for certified teaching personnel, as adopted by the Board of Education at its regular monthly meeting on January 15, 1968, the following agreement on teacher salaries and working conditions, coming as a result of negotiations between the parties to the agreement and representing mutually satisfactory conclusions thereof, is hereby promulgated as governing the relationships indicated herein between the Board of Education at its regular monthly meeting on January 15, 1968, the following agreement on teacher salaries and working conditions, coming as a result of negotiations between the parties to the agreement and representing mutually satisfactory conclusions thereof, is hereby promulgated as governing the relationships indicated herein between the Board of Education and the teaching staff of the Kenosha Public Schools, effective July 1, 1968, except as otherwise noted.

I. WORKING CONDITIONS

A. Class Size

1. Every reasonable effort will be made to maintain an optimum class size of twenty-five and a maximum class size of twenty-nine, in academic subjects, at the elementary school level.

2. Every reasonable effort will be made to maintain an optimum class size of twenty-five and a maximum class size of twenty-nine, in academic subjects, at the secondary school level. The foregoing standards are subject to modifications for educational purposes or specialized or experimental instruction.

3. Every reasonable effort will be made to maintain an optimum class size of the following special subject classes, in the secondary school, with a maximum of three (3) pupils above the optimum class size.

Industrial Arts (Junior High Woodworking)	21	Physical Education	40
Industiral Arts (All other)	22	Music (academic)	30
Art	30	Home Economics	25
Drafting	30

The number of students per class will not exceed the number of pupil stations available.

4. In areas of high population mobility, or where special considerations are present, the class size indicated herein may be revised to fit the particular situation.

5. Every reasonable effort will be made to keep the number of split grades to a minimum and to assign fewer students to split grade classes than to single grade classes.

B. Teaching Hours and Teaching Load

1. Teaching hours

a. All teachers are expected to be in their respective rooms or assigned places at least fifteen minutes before the time for the tardy signal for each session. Teachers are expected to be present and performing their duties during the times that pupils are required to be there according to the hours of school as presently established by the Board of Education. Teachers shall be available for a period of thirty (30) minutes after school dismissal except in those schools which have closed noon hours.

b. Teachers shall be required to attend staff meetings at the call of the Principal. Every reasonable effort will be made to limit such meetings to the following:

1. One day of each month for building meetings called by the principal of each building;

2. One day of each month for department meetings or special group meetings.

c. The minimum duty free lunch period for teachers will be thirty (30) minutes.

d. All secondary schools will have a closed noon hour as soon as adequate lunch facilities can be made available. Noon hour schedules will be worked out by the staff of the school under the direction of the principal whenever changes from an open to a closed noon hour are contemplated. The only exception to this policy will occur in the case of the opening of a new building. Under such circumstances, teachers will know the type of noon hour to be in effect when they apply for transfer to the building.

2. Teaching load

a. Junior high school level

1. The normal teaching load shall include the equivalent of twenty-five (25) teaching periods per week.

2. The normal teaching load shall include no more than two (2) distinct teaching preparations. Distinct preparations shall be defined as preparations for classes of different grade levels, or very different ability levels, or different subject areas.

3. The normal teaching load shall include at least the equivalent of one preparation period per day.

4. The normal teaching load shall include five periods per week to be used for work in special assigned areas not involving the direct supervision of students. Special assigned areas may include:

a. Curriculum planning

b. Lab preparation

c. TV and special program preparation

d. Conferences

e. Committee assignments

5. Through mutual agreement between a teacher and the building principal, the teaching load may consist of six teaching periods in lieu of the normal five teaching periods and one special assignment period.

6. The normal teaching load shall include an activity or study hall assignment in schools where activities are scheduled during the school day.

7. It will be normal to have a homeroom assignment in those schools operating on an open noon hour.

b. Senior high school level

1. The normal teaching load shall include the equivalent of twenty-five (25) teaching periods per week.

2. The normal teaching load shall include no more than two distinct teaching preparations. Distinct preparations shall be defined as preparations for classes of different ability levels, or different subject areas.

3. The normal teaching load shall include at least the equivalent of one preparation period per day.

4. The normal teaching load shall include a homeroom or equivalent assignment.

c. Teacher participation in extra-curricular activities outside of the normal teaching hours will be considered voluntary.

II. TEACHER ASSIGNMENT

A. Assignment of teaching field

In accordance with past and present practice, teachers shall not be assigned, except temporarily and for good cause, outside the scope of their teaching certificate or their major or minor field of study.

B. Posting of vacancies

In accordance with past and present practice, lists of vacancies existing after the 15th of April of each year shall be posted regularly in each building unit and in the Office of the Kenosha Education Association, so that teachers desiring reassignment may be advised of open positions.

C. Advisors to new staff

Every reasonable effort shall be made, during the school year, to request experienced teachers to act as advisors to new members of the staff on a voluntary basis.

D. Teacher schedules

1. Teachers shall continue to be notified in writing of any change in their programs and schedules for the ensuing school year, including the schools to which they will be assigned, the grades and/or subject they will teach, and any special or unusual courses or assignments that they will have prior to the close of the school year.

2. In arranging schedules for the teachers who are assigned to more than one school, every reasonable effort will be made to limit the amount of inter-school travel. Such teachers shall be notified of any change in their schedules as soon as practicable.

E. Promotions

All vacancies in promotional positions, including specialists and/or special projects teachers, excepting the position of superintendent, shall be filled pursuant to the following procedure.

1. Such vacancies shall be adequately publicized which shall mean as a minimum that a notice shall be conspicuously posted in every school clearly setting forth a description of and the qualifications for the position, including the duties and salary.

2. Such notice shall be posted as far in advance as possible, ordinarily at least 30 days before the final date when applications must be submitted, and in no event less than two weeks before such date.

3. Teachers who desire to apply for such vacancies shall submit their applications in writing to the Office of Personnel within the time limit specified in the notice.

III. SALARIES

A. 1968-1969 Teacher salary schedule

The basic salary schedule for all persons covered by this agreement is set forth in Appendices "A" and "B" which are attached hereto and made a part hereof.

B. Alternate Compensation Plans

One of two alternate compensation plans, known as Option A and Option B, will be made available to each teacher. Under Option A the teacher's contract salary is divided into twenty payments, with 1/20th of the salary being paid on each designated pay period during the school year. Under Option B the teacher's contract salary is also divided into twenty payments to be made on each designated pay period during the school year. Under Option B, however, each of the first nineteen payments will be equal to 1/24th of the teacher's contract salary, while the twentieth payment will be equal to 5/24ths of such salary. The teacher will be asked to indicate his preference at the time of the signing of the teaching contract with no changes in the compensation plan permitted during the duration of the contract.

C. Extra-curricular compensation

Extra-curricular personnel shall be compensated as set forth in Appendix "C" which is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

D. Teacher substitutes

If a teacher is required to act in the capacity of a substitute teacher, that teacher will receive compensation of $5.00 for each period taught in addition to the teacher's regularly assigned duties.

E. Credit for military service

Credit will be given on the salary schedule for military service up to a maximum of three (3) years.

IV. FRINGE BENEFITS

A. Inservice travel account

A minimum of $10,000 will be included in the 1968-69 school budget for the purpose of partially reimbursing teachers authorized to attend workshops and conferences related to their teaching assignment.

B. Group health insurance

1. The school district shall continue to provide on a fully paid basis, hospital and surgical insurance to all personnel subject to this agreement at least comparable to that provided in the school year 1967-1968.

2. The school district shall continue to pay teacher group health and hospitalization insurance for the duration of the annual contract, after sick leave has been exhausted, provided, however, that the teacher shall have been on duty for at least one day after the opening of schools during the contract year.

C. Sabbatical leave

1. Purposes: The underlying philosophy of the sabbatical leave is to increase the quality of teaching and to gain enriching and broadening experience by professional study and research. Major consideration must be given to the benefits which will accrue to the pupils and to the community, through the individual teacher's personal growth.

2. Sabbatical Leave Committee: All applications for leave shall be reviewed by a sabbatical leave committee appointed by the Superintendent of Schools and composed of the Deputy Superintendent, two additional members of the administration, and three teachers. The suggestions of the committee shall be made to the Superintendent, who shall make recommendations to the Board for final approval.

The committee shall be so structured as to provide for staggered terms. Membership shall be for three years, with the provision for an extension of one three-year period, whereupon the member shall retire from the committee. From the inception of the committee, two members, one from the administration and one from the teaching staff, shall retire upon the completion of one year's service. Appointment of new members to the committee shall be by the Superintendent.

3. Quota: Not more than one (1%) per cent of the teaching staff shall be granted sabbatical leave in any one full academic year.

4. Eligibility: An applicant for a sabbatical leave must be a degree-holding teacher who has served in the school system for no less than five (5) consecutive years preceding the leave and must not have reached his sixtieth birthday at the time of application.

5. Requirements: An applicant who wishes to undertake formal study shall agree to meet the minimum requirements of the institution of higher learning which he plans to attend. When the first half of the sabbatical leave has been completed, the teacher shall request that a progress report be submitted to the committee by a representative of said institution. At the conclusion of the leave, evidence of successful completion of the study program, in the form of a certified transcript of work taken and the grades earned, shall be submitted to the Superintendent.

6. Length of leave: A sabbatical leave may be granted for a period of one full academic year. Recipients of sabbatical leaves must return to the school system for not less than two complete years after returning from such leave and, prior to the inception of such leave, shall furnish the district a suitable bond or collateral to indemnify the school system against loss if this condition is not met. The teacher shall bear the expense of the bonding initially, but the school district will refund the cost of bonding after the recipient has returned and has served in the school system for two years. After one year of such service, and where professional advancement is involved, a teacher may leave the system without forfeiture of bond but, in this instance, refunding of bond premium will not be made.

This provision will not apply when, for physical reasons or other circumstances beyond his control, the teacher is incapable of further service. In such case, the teacher shall submit to the Superintendent of Schools a written statement from a licensed physician indicating physical incapacity.

7. Application procedure: Following consultation with his immediate supervisor, the applicant shall secure a sabbatical leave form from his principal or department head. This form must be completed and filed with the Chairman of the Sabbatical Leave Committee by March 1st of the year preceding the leave. The Committee will submit its recommendations to the Superintendent by April 1st annually. (Appendix E)

8. Determinants of Sabbatical Leave: In order that all applicants be given equal consideration, the following criteria will be considered in selecting the candidates for sabbatical leave: (a) evidence of acceptance of the teacher's program or project by the institution offering advanced study or research; (b) merit of objectives for sabbatical leave; (c) years of teaching experience in the Kenosha Public Schools; (d) previous leaves; (e) reasonable distribution of applicants by schools; (f) interview with the Sabbatical Leave Committee; and (g) teaching needs within the school system.

9. Rights and privileges: A teacher who is granted a sabbatical leave shall retain all rights of tenure, retirement, insurance, and salary step placement attained prior to the sabbatical leave, and accrued sick leave. After completion of the sabbatical leave, the teacher will be placed on the salary schedule one step higher than when he left, e.g. a teacher on the sixth step when he applies for sabbatical leave, shall be placed upon the seventh step when he returns. Sick leave will accrue during the time of the sabbatical leave.

10. Accident and illness, or other termination, of the sabbatical leave: In case of injury to, or other illness of the teacher during the leave, which prevents his completing the purpose of the leave, the sabbatical leave, including compensation, will be terminated and all provisions for sick leave will then apply. These provisions will take effect immediately following notification of the Chairman of the Sabbatical Leave Committee, verified by a doctor's report. Upon release by a medical doctor, the teacher will return to regular teaching duty for the remainder of the school year, to be assigned as needed at the discretion of the Superintendent. The subsequent year he will be reassigned as if he had completed the sabbatical leave.

If the teacher is unable to continue the purpose of the sabbatical leave for reasons other than sickness or injury, he will notify the Superintendent and will return to regular duties as assigned.

11. Other employment or grants and fellowships: During the period of sabbatical leave, a teacher may engage in remunerative employment and/or may accept grants or fellowships, if all other provisions of this agreement are met and such employment, grant, or fellowship does not adversely affect the purposes of the sabbatical leave.

12. Compensation: Compensation for a teacher on sabbatical leave shall be $5,000. Payments shall be made to the applicant in accordance with payroll procedures as they apply to all teaching personnel.

V. GENERAL

A. Alteration in Compensation Plans

Requests or proposals from the teaching staff for a check-off system are to be made to the Board through the Association as the certified bargaining representative for the teaching staff.

B. Alterations in the school calendar

Requests or proposals from the teaching staff for alterations in the annual school calendar, e.g., teacher conventions, are to be made to the Board through the Association as the certified bargaining representative for the teaching staff.

C. The Board shall not discriminate in any way against any teacher by reason of his membership in or participation in the activities of any teachers' association.

D. The Board will provide the Association with an advance copy of the agenda for each official board meeting.

E. All existing school policies affecting teachers as defined by the Professional Negotiation Agreement and the Teachers' Salary and Welfare Agreement, unless changed by this contract, shall remain unaltered until changed by mutual consent.

F. The school calendar for each ensuing school year shall be a matter of negotiation between the Association and the Board pursuant to the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission ruling.

G. The School calendar for school year 1968-1969 is set forth in Appendix "D".

VI. TEACHER TENURE

The following changes are made in the existing Board policies concerning the attainment of teacher tenure status and affect all teachers employed for the 1968-69 school year and thereafter:

A. A degree teacher with two or more years of teaching experience prior to employment in the Kenosha School District shall be granted tenure status when he has been employed in the District for two full consecutive school years and been approved for further employment.

B. A degree teacher with less than two years of teaching experience prior to employment in the Kenosha School District shall be granted tenure status when he has been employed in the District for three full consecutive school years and been approved for further employment.

C. A non-degree teacher with three or more consecutive years of teaching experience in the Kenosha School District shall be granted tenure status when he has been employed in the District for one complete school year after he attains a degree and has been approved for further employment.

VII. NON-TEACHING DUTIES

A. The Board and the Association acknowledge that a teacher's primary responsibility is to teach and that his energies should be utilized to this end only. Therefore, continuing efforts will be made to reduce the clerical responsibilities assumed by teachers.

B. The Board will continue a plan for the collection of fees at the elementary level, as a means of alleviating the clerical load for elementary teachers.

VIII. REHIRING OF TEACHERS WITH RETIREMENT STATUS

Teachers eligible for retirement at age 65, but rehired, shall be appropriately placed on the salary schedule; they shall maintain sick leave benefits which have accrued previous to the time at which they reach retirement status.

IX. USE OF SCHOOL FACILITIES

A. The Association, in the performance of its obligations as negotiating agent for teachers, will have the right to use school buildings for meetings without cost up to 5:00 P.M. on regular school days. At other times the Association shall pay custodial costs only for such use. The principal of the building will be notified in advance of the time and place of all such meetings.

B. The Association, in the performance of its obligations as negotiating agent for teachers, shall have the right to place notices, circulars, and other material on bulletin boards designated for teacher use and in teachers' mailboxes.

C. It is expressly understood that no member of the administration will assume responsibility for the posting or distribution of materials for the Association or any other teacher organization.

X. PAYROLL DEDUCTIONS

A. The following voluntary payroll deductions will be made:

1. U.S. Savings Bonds
2. Kenosha County United Fund
3. Tax sheltered annuity through the Wisconsin Teacher Retirement Fund
4. Group Life Insurance
5. Kenosha Teachers Credit Union

B. An amount to cover the combined dues of the Kenosha Education Association, Wisconsin Education Association, and the National Education Association will be deducted from the salary of each teacher who authorizes such a deduction. The administration of such deductions will be handled in the following manner:

1. Deductions will be made once a month. The amount of the deduction will be established at the time of enrollment. There will be one standard deduction, except for those who are life members.
2. The monthly deduction will be made only on the first payroll check of each month, beginning in October of each year.
3. If a member has no earnings to be paid the first payroll check of the month, no deduction will be made for that month.
4. The member will have to make his own arrangements for direct payment of his dues if he has no pay check on the first pay period of any month.
5. It shall be the member's responsibility to see that the deduction is taken from his check on the first pay period of any month.
6. Any errors should be reported immediately by the teacher to the Treasurer of the Kenosha Education Association who will contact the School Finance Office.
7. The dues withheld will be remitted by the School Finance Office to the Treasurer of the Kenosha Education Association the week following the deduction. The remittance will be accompanied by a list of teachers and amounts for which deductions were made.
8. The Treasurer of the Kenosha Education Association will furnish the School Finance Office with an initial list of members who have authorized combined dues deductions and the amount to be deducted for each.
9. All subsequent additions or deletions will be forwarded in writing by the Treasurer of the Kenosha Education Association to the School Finance Office after obtaining necessary teacher authorization.

10. The initial list of names of teachers who have authorized combined dues deductions will be provided to the School Finance Office by the Treasurer of the Kenosha Education Association on or before September 15 of each year.

XI. TEMPORARY LEAVES OF ABSENCE

A. Absences due to personal illness

Professionally certificated personnel may be absent for personal illness up to ten (10) days in a school year with full pay. Such unused leave is cumulative up to a total of one hundred twenty (120) days.

B. Absences due to illness in family

In case of illness in the immediate family (father, mother, brother, sister, son, daughter, husband, wife, or other relative with whom the teacher may be living at the time) a teacher shall be allowed three (3) days absence with full pay in a school year. Such absence shall be charged to the sick leave as outlined above and deducted from the current of accumulated personal illness allowance.

C. Absences not chargeable to the sick leave allowance.

1. Death in family

In case of death in the immediate family (father, mother, brother, sister, son, daughter, husband, wife, or other relative with whom the teacher may be living), a regular teacher shall be allowed three (3) days with full pay, and for other relatives (grandparents. uncles, aunts, first cousins, nieces, nephews, and grandchildren) the teacher shall be allowed the day of the funeral with full pay. The above regulations shall apply equally to relatives whether by blood or marriage but no allowance with pay shall be granted for days previous to that of which the death occurs. Additional death leave will be granted at the discretion of the Superintendent of his appointed designee up to a maximum of three (3) days.

2. Military leave for duty

The Board shall grant, upon request, a military leave of absence for duty not to exceed ten school days if such leave is mandatory.

Such employee shall receive the difference between the military pay exclusive of any reimbursement for expenses other than salary and his regular school per diem rate.

3. Personal leaves

a. Two (2) days leave without pay for personal reasons. Application for such personal leave shall be made at least twenty-four (24) hours before taking such leave (except in case of emergency) and the applicant shall not be required to state the reason for taking such leave other than that he is taking it under this section.

b. One (1) day leave without pay to receive a college or graduate degree.

c. One (1) day leave without pay to attend the graduation of a member of the teacher's immediate family.

4. Appearance in legal proceedings

The Board will continue to grant time necessary for appearance in any legal proceeding connected with the teacher's employment or with the school district or in any other legal proceeding if the teacher is required by law to attend. Such approved absence will be with full pay subject to reimbursement to the Board for any fees received for required appearance.

XII. EXTENDED LEAVES OF ABSENCE

A. A leave of absence without pay of up to two (2) years will be granted to any tenure teacher who joins the Peace Corps or serves as an exchange teacher and is a full-time participant in either of such programs. Upon return from such leave, a teacher will be considered as if he were actively employed by the Board during the leave and will be placed on the salary schedule at the level he would have achieved if he had not been absent.

B. Military leave will be granted to any tenure teacher who is inducted or enlists in any branch of the armed forces of the United States. Upon return from such leave, a teacher will be placed on the salary schedule at the level which he would have achieved had he remained actively employed in the system during the period of his absence up to a maximum of three (3) years.

C. Maternity leaves of absence shall be limited to employees on tenure but in no event shall an employee be engaged in teaching during the four month period prior to confinement. In all cases of pregnancy a leave of absence and/or withdrawal from service shall be mandatory at least four months prior to the date of delivery. It shall be the duty of the employee to notify the Superintendent of the pregnancy not later than six months prior to the anticipated date of the birth of the child and to furnish a physician's certificate stating the expected period of confinement. A leave of absence, if requested, shall be without compensation and shall be taken not later than four months before the expected date of confinement. The Superintendent at his sole discretion may deny employment to a pregnant teacher at the start of a semester.

The provisions of this section, with respect to notification of pregnancy, apply to all instructional employees regardless of tenure. Such leaves of absence may be for a period extending to the end of the teaching year during which it is requested. It may be extended to include the following teaching year if desired.

Under any circumstance, a teacher who is out on maternity leave will be permitted to return to the classroom only at the beginning of a school year, i.e. September. Before the teacher returns to work after such leave of absence she shall be fit and capable of doing the work she was hired to do, and upon request shall furnish a physician's certificate to this effect.

D. A leave of absence without pay or increment of up to one (1) year will be granted for the purpose of caring for a sick member of the teacher's immediate family. Upon return from such leave, a teacher will be assigned to substantially equivalent position, as available.

E. Any teacher whose personal illness extends beyond the period compensated will be granted a leave of absence without pay for such time as is necessary for complete recovery from such illness. Upon return from such leave, a teacher will be assigned to a substantially equivalent position, as available.

F. The Board shall continue to grant all benefits to which a teacher was entitled at the time his leave of absence commenced, including unused sick leave.

G. All requests for extended leaves will be applied for and granted in writing.

XIII. VOLUNTARY AND INVOLUNTARY TRANSFERS AND ASSIGNMENTS

A. The Superintendent of Schools is responsible for the assignment of instructional staff personnel. It is, therefore, his responsibility to effect any and all transfers, reassignment, or relocation involving instructional staff members. Reassignment of staff members may become necessary to meet expanding enrollments, instructional requirements, the opening of new buildings, and for other acceptable reasons, including the wishes of employees who desire to change their places of employment within the system.

When in the best interests of the school system a transfer of a teacher from one position to another is required, the teacher will be given reasons for the change as early as possible before the change is to be effected. Reasons for transfer shall be expressly understood by all concerned and the responsibility for the decision effecting the reassignment of a staff member shall rest with the Office of the Deputy Superintendent.

B. Voluntary transfers and assignments

1. During the school year the Superintendent shall post in all school buildings a list of the known vacancies which will occur during the following school year, and he shall send copies of this list to the Executive Secretary of the Association. During the summer, lists of known vacancies shall be supplied to the Executive Secretary of the Association as they arise.

2. Applications for transfer may be instituted for any instructional staff member who has achieved tenure status, and who has been in his present position for at least two years. Persons seeking transfer should obtain a teacher transfer form, complete it, and send it to their immediate supervisor for processing. A letter of application which includes a brief description of the reason for the request should accompany the form. On receipt of the application the applicant's immediate supervisor may add his approval and endorsement to the application. The application may then be referred to the administrator of the school or area wherein the applicant desires to relocate. The receiving administrator may then add his approval and his endorsement of the application. The application is then sent to the Personnel Administrator who refers it with all pertinent information to the Deputy Superintendent for action. If the application is approved, the applicant and other supervisory and administrative personnel concerned will be informed of the decision and the reassignment of the applicant will thereby be confirmed. In the event that the application for transfer is denied by any of the persons to whom it is referred, it shall be their responsibility to direct the letter of application and their request for denial to the Office of the Personnel Administrator. It will then be the responsibility of the Personnel Administrator and/or the Deputy Superintendent to investigate the reasons for the denial and rule on the request.

The following criteria shall be used as the basis for decision on the request for transfer:

(1) The instructional needs of the school system will be given first consideration in all transfer requests.

(2) The specific qualifications of the teacher or teachers requesting transfer will be reviewed and considered.

All decisions affecting personnel are subject to review, on request, by the Superintendent of Schools.

3. Vacancies created due to expansion of the present school district facilities or new positions created in the school district shall be posted as they occur.

4. The Board shall continue to carry out their present practice of posting in appropriate places and making available to the Association a systemwide schedule showing the names and new positions of all persons who have been reassigned or transferred.

5. In the determination of requests for voluntary reassignment and/or transfer, the convenience and wishes of the individual teacher will be honored to the extent that they do not conflict with the instructional requirements and best interests of the school system.

C. Involuntary transfers and assignments

Although the Board and the Association recognize that some involuntary transfer of teachers from one school to another or reassignment within a school may be unavoidable, they also recognize that frequent transfer or reassignment of teachers is disruptive of the educational process and interferes with optimum teacher performance. Therefore, they agree as follows:

1. Notice of an involuntary transfer or reassignment shall be given to teachers as soon as practicable and, under normal circumstances, not later than May 1.

2. A teacher's area of competence, and major and/or minor field of study, will be considered in determining which teacher is to be transferred or reassigned. Such teachers will be placed in a comparable position wherever possible.

3. Action on involuntary transfer or assignment shall be initiated by the proper supervisory employee to the Office of Personnel. The Office of Personnel, under the direction of the Deputy Superintendent, shall institute necessary action. This action shall include:

a. A meeting with the teacher involved in order to establish the problem and the need for action.

b. A meeting with the Personnel Administrator and the receiving administrator to explore the problem and insure a reasonable opportunity for success.

c. The request shall be sent to the Office of the Deputy Superintendent for review and approval or rejection.

XIV. TEACHER EVALUATION

A. All monitoring or observation of the work performance of a teacher will be conducted openly and with full knowledge of the teacher. Teachers will be shown a copy of any evaluation report prepared by their superiors and will have the right to discuss such a report with their superiors before it is submitted to central Administration or put in their personnel files.

B. No teacher will be disciplined or deprived or any professional advantage without just cause.

XV. TEACHER AND BUILDING FACILITIES

A. Building facilities

1. Every reasonable effort will be made to provide space in each classroom in which teachers may safely store instructional materials and supplies used in said classroom.

2. Where facilities exist the Board shall provide a teacher work area containing adequate equipment and supplies to aid in the preparation of instructional materials.

3. Every reasonable effort will be made to provide well-lighted and clean teacher rest rooms.

4. In new school building units the Board shall continue to provide a communications system so that teachers can communicate with the main office from each individual classroom.

5. Existing faculty lounges in the elementary schools and existing teacher facilities in the secondary schools will be maintained and such lounges and facilities shall be provided for in new school building units.

6. An adequate portion of all existing parking lots will be reserved for teacher parking. Accessibility will be maintained as soon as possible during inclement weather. Every reasonable effort will be made to provide adequate teacher parking at every school.

B. Teacher facilities

Where conditions permit the Board shall provide a serviceable desk and chair for each teacher.

XVI. TEXTBOOKS AND SUPPLIES

The Board will continue its endeavor to provide sufficient instructional materials to ensure each pupil will have the best educational program available to him.

XVII. SPECIALISTS

The Board and the Association recognize that an adequate number of competent specialists and/or consultants are essential to the operation of an effective educational program, and that additional specialists will be added each year as needed.

XVIII. PROTECTION

A. Teachers will immediately report all cases of assault suffered by them in connection with their employment to the school principal in writing.

B. This report will be forwarded to the Superintendent and the Board which will comply with any reasonable request from the teacher for information in its possession relating to the incident or the persons involved, and will act in appropriate ways as liaison between the teacher, the police, and the courts.

C. If civil proceedings are brought against a teacher alleging that he committed an assault in connection with disciplining a student, legal counsel to defend the teacher in such proceedings will be provided by the Board through its insurance carrier.

XIX. PERSONAL INJURY BENEFITS

A. Whenever a teacher is absent from school as a result of personal injury caused by an assault by a student, occurring in the course of the teacher's employment, the teacher will be paid his full salary for the period of such absence, and no part of such absence will be charged to his annual sick leave. Under these conditions any benefits accruing to the teacher would be remitted to the school district.

B. Insofar as the Workmen's Compensation law applies teachers will be reimbursed for the cost of medical, surgical and/or hospital services incurred as the result of any injury sustained in the course of employment.

C. The Board shall have the right to have the teacher examined by a physician designated by the Board for the purpose of establishing the length of time during which the teacher is temporarily disabled or absent from performing his duties, and the opinion of said physician as to the said period shall control.

XX. SAVINGS CLAUSE

If any sections of this agreement or any addenda thereto should be held invalid by operation of law or by any tribunal of competent jurisdiction, or if compliance with or enforcement of any sections or addenda should be restrained by such tribunal, the remainder of this agreement and addenda thereto shall not be affected thereby, and the parties shall enter into immediate negotiations for the purpose of arriving at a mutually satisfactory replacement for such (invalid) section(s).

XXI. DURATION

The provisions of this agreement will be effective as of July 1, 1968, will continue and remain in full force and effect as binding on the parties until June 30, 1969, and will be the basis for negotiations in the 1968-1969 school year.

XXII. PROFESSIONAL NEGOTIATION AGREEMENT

The Professional Negotiation Agreement dated January 15, 1968, will be the basis for negotiations on a new agreement in the 1968-1969 school year.

This Agreement is made and entered into as of the 6th day of June, 1968, by and between the Board of Education, Kenosha Unified School District Number One, and the Kenosha Education Association, certified collective bargaining representative for certified teaching personnel of said District.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING IN THE PUBLIC SECTOR

Neil W. Chamberlain*

Prepared for presentation at the 5th Annual Orvil E. Dryfoos Conference on Public Affairs, Public Affairs Center, Dartmouth College, May 25-26, 1968.

In matters of economics, it has become fashionable to speak of the "blurred line" between the public and private sectors. It is hard to know where one ends and the other begins. In matters of collective bargaining, on the other hand, the hard edge has been largely preserved. Whatever fuzziness may attach to the public or private nature of the operation, we still tend to use a binary sort to identify those who are public employees and those who are not. To those who are not (or at least to most of them), we apply one set of bargaining rules. To those who are public employees, we apply a different set.

Perhaps it overtaxes the imagination to speak of applying any set of rules to bargaining in the public service. Even if some jurisdictions have moved to codify practice, as in New York City, we can hardly say that governmental units in the United States, as a class, operate on industrial relations principles that are relatively uniform and understood. Instead, we have a wilderness of chiefly casual or undirected growth. There is no counterpart of the federal and state labor relations acts which provide a certain pattern in the private sphere. The federal Executive Order 10988 of 1962 does go some distance towards establishing a limited bargaining format for the classified civil service, but this embraces less than one-half of federal employees and confines bargaining to personnel policies and grievances, excluding all money matters and major benefits. In the states and municipalities there is only confusion or -- if one is in a euphemistic mood -- experimentation.

In some important respects one can compare collective bargaining in the public sector today with collective bargaining in the private sector 30 or 35 years ago. Problems which were a source of controversy and bitter dispute between unions and managers at that time, but which since have largely been worked out, have risen again to plague relations between unions and governments today. It is as though the law makers and law administrators can minister to others but not to themselves.

One of the most divisive issues in pre-World War II private bargaining was that of the managerial prerogative. Corporate officials intoned solemnly and repetitively that their legal obligation ran solely to the stockholders, and that they were in fact chosen by stockholder trustees to manage the company's assets in stockholder interests. How could they then consent to negotiate with an outside group, responsible to non-stockholder interests, concerning matters which affected so directly the profitability of the company? Even when the passage of time had conditioned managers to bargain with unions on wages, hours, and working conditions, they continued for a time to try to draw a line dividing subjects which were bargainable from those which were not. The latter were presumed to relate to the proper functioning of the business, and were the sole prerogative of management, of no concern to unions. The unions, for their part, refused to draw such a line. They argued that any aspect of corporate activity might conceivably affect their members so significantly that they in their turn would be abnegating their representative duty if they did not make it a subject for negotiation and for strike if necessary.

So bitterly did the conflict go that some top-flight executives of America's major corporations threatened to pull out of the system if they were forced to surrender on this matter of principle. But with the passage of time the conflict reduced to a skirmish, and what had been viewed as principle was seen as a matter of relative bargaining powers. There were no surrenders -- only settlements. What had loomed as a threat to the maturation -- and even to the survival -- of private collective bargaining receded into the background. Now whenever the monthly issue is exhumed, as it occasionally still is, the sophisticated squirm uneasily as though good taste had been violated.

Except in the public sector. There the management prerogative issue is alive and shining, and battles are waged in its name. The name, to be sure, is changed -- it is now spoken of as sovereignty -- but the principle remains the same. In Hobbesian terms, government is identified as the sole possessor of final power, since it is responsive to the interests of all its constituents. To concede to any special-interest group a right to bargain for terms which the sovereignty believes contravenes the public interest is to deny the government's single responsibility. The government must remain in possession of the sole power to determine, on behalf of all, what shall be public policy. And public policy includes the determination of what proportion of tax revenues shall be allocated for the conduct of any service, whether it be police protection or sanitation or teaching. No union can be allowed to bargain up the rates for its members, through threat or pressure, thereby curtailing what the city can afford to do in other areas. The economic concept of opportunity cost demonstrates that if sanitation workers get more, the city must skimp in providing parks or manning fire stations. It is not for the sanitation workers to manipulate the government's budget; that is a matter for the legislators on behalf of the public as a whole. If sanitation workers are unhappy at the outcome, they are not bound to stay in service. The government makes its budget, determines its rates, and fills its jobs with those to whom the rates are satisfactory. The same line of reasoning applies to other conditions of employment.

Government employers are of course willing to listen to the arguments of their employees and to take these into account in fixing their personnel and wage policies. But union pressure tactics -- the applications of private force -- are out of place in dealing with a sovereignty.

Perhaps I have stated the issue more baldly and crudely than a constitutional lawyer would do, but this is the essence of the matter. The public service is held to be different from a private profit-making organization. If the latter may be defrocked of its managerial prerogatives without concern, the former must remain fully vested with sovereignty if society is to survive.

I submit that this argument is as specious as any of the older myths in industrial relations which we have relegated to some cobwebby historical attic. Is it essential that every act of government, however routine or however directly affecting the interests of some special group, however misguided or ill-conceived or convenient to itself, must be protected by the invisible shield of sovereignty? Certainly it is possible to distinguish between those acts of government which involve only an operating or administrative function and those which involve the policy-making or legislative function. If sovereignty is an attribute of the latter, it need not automatically be extended to the former. The managing of the public establishment can surely be differentiated from a determination of what the public establishment shall manage.

If we permit suppliers of equipment and materials to governments to negotiate over prices and delivery terms, are we denying governmental sovereignty any less than if we permit suppliers of services to do the same? Or in the case of services, is it that we are fearful of monopoly power or excessive bargaining strength? If that is the issue, then we are dealing with matters of relative bargaining power, just as in the private sector, so that principle is not involved. Or is it that public services are so essential that we cannot permit an interruption in them? If that is the nub of the problem, it speaks only for different procedures, not an absence of them. But these are issues to which I want to return later, so I will say no more about them now. I have mentioned them here only to strengthen my case that sovereignty as an excuse not to bargain in the public sector is no more a principle than management prerogative is in the private sector, that it is chiefly a source of comfort and convenience to government officials rather than a bedrock on which society rests.

Other issues which are viewed as relics in the private sector but as lively problems in the public domain are union recognition and exclusive representation rights. The bloody strikes in the little steel industry 30 years ago were aimed at forcing management to recognize the union as a representative institution, with which an agreement could -- and should -- be negotiated. The National Labor Relations Act which was passed in 1935 had set up an election procedure intended to resolve that issue but so reluctant was management to admit that the union even existed that it sometimes required the force of a strike to secure what the law provided.

In the public sector the same reluctance is manifested today, as in the recent Memphis sanitation strike, the same affair in which Martin Luther King lost his life. Terms were not the issue there, only union recognition, beclouded it is true by the fact that it was a white government which was being asked to recognize a union composed largely of Negroes. But in the private sphere, color or no color, the recognition problem has long since been hurdled, while it still persists in some public jurisdictions.

Similarly with exclusive representation rights. That matter was laid to rest in private industry in the thirties. At first managements were willing, however reluctantly, to sign agreements with unions "for members only." This was the formula on which U.S. Steel finally came to terms with John L. Lewis, and it was considered a major union victory, despite the fact that it conferred less than the Wagner Act allowed. But by the end of that decade majority representation was an accepted principle. The union which won the backing of 51 percent of workers voting in an election was certified as the bargaining representative for all.

Many government officials remain reluctant to grant such status in public bargaining units. The "for members only" formula is the only one on which negotiations can take place even when the union is recognized. It is held that the government cannot compel a person to be represented by a union he does not want and in the control of which he does not participate -- issues which were put to rest by government itself in labor legislation which it passed applying to others.

I do not mean to imply that all government units adhere to such views. Some have moved a long way towards modernizing their labor relations. But the public sector taken as a whole reveals a tangled underbrush of just such obsolete doctrines choking the path leading to improved collective bargaining.

One other comparable difficulty I will simply mention briefly. In the great upsurge of unionism in the thirties, labor negotiators sometimes complained that they could not locate the seat of corporate authority, with which they could effectively negotiate. Contracts were more often signed then with plants than companies, and a plant manager would sometimes maintain that he had no authority to commit the company, which might well have been the case. But the local union had difficulty in reaching a distant management, and if it did it might find itself being referred back to the plant management. Sometimes it took a strike to locate those with whom an agreement could be reached. By and large that sort of shadowboxing was as much a matter of artlessness as artfulness, of inexpertise rather than game-playing, and it is seldom any longer a factor in private negotiations. But it is still a problem in the public sector, especially in the cities, where a union may get shunted around among the conflicting or overlapping authorities of a department manager, a mayor, and a city council, and where it may still at times require a strike to identify who has the capacity to make an agreement.

I have so far been talking of respects in which collective bargaining in the public sector is slowly and awkwardly traversing the same ground that private collective bargaining covered some time ago, stubbing its toes on some of the same obstacles, without much apparent benefit from the prior experience. But there are respects in which the two spheres are admittedly different, or are thought to be different, which introduce fresh problems of their own. These differences may indeed seem to render collective bargaining in the two sectors entirely noncomparable, rendering invalid those comparisons which I have just been making.

The first of these arises from the peculiar constraints imposed by the source of revenues of government as against business. When a business firm negotiates a new contract, the cost of the package can be covered from any or all of three sources: a reduction in its profits, greater efficiency (increased productivity), or higher prices on its products. A firm will bargain harder and grant less if these three sources are limited, and it will usually be more generous if these three sources are permissive. In the case of government, in contrast, it makes no profit and its productivity gains are limited since it deals primarily in services. Its primary source of revenue for the higher costs lies in raising its prices, which is to say its taxes. And that is a political act which it will take only with great reluctance. Thus one can expect that a government will tend to be niggardly with its employees to avoid the unhappy necessity of tax increases. The consequence is that, on the whole, the incomes of public employees have shared less in the general prosperity than have private incomes. It simply takes more pressure to raise the public remuneration level, given the different nature of the public employer.

There are some who are reluctant to confront this fact. They try to blunt the argument by pointing to the special advantages of public service, such as job security or longer vacations. There are always people who prefer such benefits to more on private jobs, they say; if that were not the case, governments would have more difficulty getting people to work for them.

This argument can be faulted on two counts. Whatever special benefits may attach to certain types of public employment, the money side of the total package has not risen proportionately as much as in private employ, so that the relative position of civil servants has deteriorated. Second, the fact that people can be found for the jobs says nothing about the quality of those people -- that too may be and probably has been deteriorating in recent years.

So I return to the special constraint lying on the public sector -- that its revenues can be increased chiefly through taxes, leading public negotiators to tougher positions on the bargaining front. I am not unmindful of the fact that some unions themselves wield political influence, and have at times won what seem to be outsize increases presumably because of such influence, but these instances are not the common pattern, I am sure. In weighing certain public grumbling over higher taxes against a union membership's ambiguous pleasure over a fat settlement, most politicians would feel the scales were tipped to favor the former.

A second major dissimilarity between the public and private sectors lies in the availability of the strike. Despite the rash of walkouts of civil servants in the last few years, the doctrine remains that workers cannot strike against the government. Such state legislation as there is on public collective bargaining invariably affirms that dogma. In New York, when the Taylor Act replaced the Condon-Wadlin Act it did nothing to legalize strikes of public employees. On the contrary, it calls for fines to be levied against a striking union running for each day the strike continues. It does provide for factfinding as to a fair settlement whenever union and government officials have reached an impasse, but it does not require either party to accept the recommendation, and there is no authorization of a strike even if one or both parties reject the recommendation.

The issue of strikes in the public service has been vigorously debated, and I will not review the arguments here. There are some who feel that no strikes against the government can be tolerated, and others who believe that strikes should be treated the same in the public as in the private sector -- curtailed or controlled only when they create an emergency or threaten public health or safety, and otherwise permitted. Whatever one's views on the matter, the question of strikes against the government intrudes a special and thorny note which is absent from discussions of private collective bargaining. It is all tied up with the matter of sovereignty, and all very confused and confusing.

There is a third respect in which public sector bargaining has its own special complications. It can perhaps be wrapped up in a phrase which has gained currency and credibility -- "the sickness of the cities." When we catalogue our major social ills, most of them are traceable to the urban condition. And inevitably these social ills have their impact on the working conditions of city employees, whether we are talking about teachers confronting unruly students or perhaps equally unruly parents, or policemen and firemen called on to meet the desperate conditions created by civil disorders, or welfare workers whose duties take them into the worst of slum areas, or sanitation workers and bus drivers who must fight the almost impossible traffic congestion of the central city. The plight of our cities has made working conditions for such as these so miserable that it is small wonder they are driven to seek more of a voice concerning programs to ameliorate their lot and more remuneration for what they are called on to do.

Indeed, I am inclined to think we would make more progress in resolving problems of collective bargaining in the public sector if we concentrated first on municipal or local employment, and tried to see this less as a problem of public service generally than as part of the problem of the cities. In the remainder of my remarks I shall proceed on that basis.

If I may simply summarize now the thesis which I intend to develop a little more fully, it would take this form. A solution to how city employees can be fairly dealt with is not to be found in trying to untie, one by one, all the knots which entangle that issue -- the knots of sovereignty and exclusive representation and political constraints and right of strike -- but rather by cutting through that whole inherited snarl and trying to devise freshly a feasible and functional system of urban labor relations which falls into place alongside other urban programs. For it is clear that our cities are in need of drastic treatment, and the forms the treatment takes are bound to affect their pattern of labor relations.

To begin with, despite all the traditional American regard for home rule and despite the current renewed emphasis on decentralization as a means of focussing affirmative responsibility on those who are quick to be negatively critical, a revitalization of metropolitan civil service will not prove possible without some federal leadership. We are faced here with something which, like civil rights, so blankets the nation that to hope its massive problems can be solved by dozens of disjointed and unrelated efforts is quixotic. The federal government is needed not to impose solutions on the cities or even to assume a dominant role; it is needed chiefly as the natural governmental unit capable of coordinating the otherwise fragmented urban efforts.

It is now abundantly clear that the problems of our cities are no longer local problems. To cope with the mounting pressures that come from urban congestion, racial unrest, unwelcome technical fallout, social welfare programs with rising case loads, and all the other manifestations of urban blight requires a nationally coordinated program. Local leadership, drive, and imagination are indispensable, but they are not enough. To meet the demands which the times place upon us we cannot do without national leadership, drive, and imagination in impelling and propelling the local effort.

I will confine myself principally to labor relations aspects of the matter, even though I emphasize the holistic nature of the urban conditon. Let me begin at a simple, indeed, elemental level -- the necessity for providing some standards for adequate remuneration for the various occupational groupings common to cities. Whether some agency within the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development or some independent commission, there is a role to be played by some small body of experts which could collect and compare data from all the cities relating to pay scales, and which can compare such data with comparable jobs in private industry taking into account differences in job advantages and responsibilities. In effect, this would constitute something of a national job evaluation for the common municipal occupations.

Such a continuing survey would have several benefits. It would set meaningful benchmarks which would at least partially outflank the problem of the political unpalatability of tax increases to raise pay scales. It would expose more vividly to the citizens of any community how the remuneration which they offer their public employees compares with remuneration elsewhere, and put pressure on them to raise their sights where that is called for. That pressure comes from outside the jurisdiction, in the form of what Arthur Ross once called "coercive comparisons." And how can a municipal administration be condemned for conceding to its organized workers increases which are designed to bring them up to a standard?

The kinds of job evaluaton or rate ranges of which I am talking would not constitute a substitute for collective bargaining, but standards around which bargaining can take place. There would be no expectation of national uniformity to city pay scales, but at least an informed sense of the range within which remuneration could be expected to fall. By linking such scales to comparable private employments, with adjustments, provision would also be made for more orderly upward movement.

But this is only the start. Earlier I commented that governments, unlike business, cannot rely on increased productivity to finance higher pay scales, since governments deal chiefly in services. But that is at best a half truth. The efficiency of services can be improved, perhaps not as easily as can the manufacture of goods but enough to warrant more effort in this direction. And municipal administrations, again with appropriate federal coordination, can pool experience and research results in a continuing push to upgrade their operations. Here the coordinated effort is more likely to put pressure on the unions which may be expected to fight changes in working practices, but will find resistance less easy if there is a nationally coordinated effort to introduce changes, especially if this is accompanied by improvement in remuneration.

We would doubt, for example, that our sorely pressed police forces around the country would benefit from experimentation with new forms of organization, higher recruit requirements at higher levels of pay, improved methods of communication, and other innovations? These come with difficulty when a Policeman's Benevolent Association fights for the preservation of traditions which are, unfortunately, no answer to present needs. But with the prod of a federally coordinated national program, led by experts, it would no longer be so easy for the local PBA to charge a local administration with being uninformed or with playing political football with public safety.

With an impartial, objective, but concerned search for standards both of performance and remuneration, it would be an act of folly to allow an inherited dogma of governmental sovereignty to stand in the way of realizing their full potential. Leaving to one side the question of applicability to all municipal employees, I see no reason why arbitration should not serve as an appropriate means of resolving disputes which city authorities and unions cannot settle by negotiation. Surely one can question whether the sovereign city of, say, Cincinnati or Detroit or Seattle (I pick the names at random) should be privileged to pay its employees as little as they can get away with, regardless of how this deteriorates the quality of their services or leads to labor embroilments. Surely it needs no argument in these days that what happens in any major city is of importance to all cities. Arbitration with the benefit of carefully researched standards to determine what a city should pay and what it should expect for its payment scarcely impugns the sovereignty of a city in any essential respect.

There is not the slightest prospect -- I say this categorically -- that any city can withdraw from its employees the right to strike, and fail to put in its place a meaningful substitute, and expect to preserve a system of orderly labor relations. The last few years have demonstrated that the consequence can only be illegal strikes and disrespect for law. Is the city more sovereign when it presides over anti-strike ordinances which are ignored than when it joins in an initiative to establish a well-founded arbitration procedure?

But -- a cautious voice may well inquire -- suppose we do provide national standards guiding arbitration decisions in municipal settlements, where do the cities obtain the financing to underwrite the higher awards? Can there be any doubt that the cities' payrolls would swell enormously if they were to pay salaries commensurate with the upgraded quality of performance which is needed if they are to remain afloat?

The fact is that the tax base of the cities is woefully inadequate to their fiscal needs. The property tax which is their chief resort is too limited a support. The Pechman task force appointed by President Johnson recognized that the federal government is the great revenue producer with its prior accessibility to the income tax, which even with a steady rate structure produces a heavier flow of funds as incomes rise and move into higher brackets. Out of that recognition emerged the Heller-Pachman plan for redistributing funds from federal government to the states. In its original formulation there was no restriction on the uses to which such funds could be put. The assumption was made that the states would of their own accord channel the federal bonus to their most pressing needs. As others latched on to the idea, variant versions appeared. Some wanted to tie the allocations to specific uses. One interesting variation would have funneled the funds directly to cities, bypassing the state administration, on the premise that here is where the financial need is greatest.

At the moment the war in Vietnam has effectively dampened any interest in the Heller-Pechman proposal. Rising military outlays pose a need for new sources of revenue rather than for means of their effective disbursement. But the war will not go on forever, and the time will come soon enough for us to be thinking of it now, when the efficient tax collection machinery of the federal government can be put in the service of the cities, whether or not through the states as intermediaries.

It is here that the importance of a fresh new approach to the problems of collective bargaining in the public service becomes evident. Instead of relating it to questions of strike and sovereignty and the like, we relate it to needed standards of performance and remuneration consonant with performance, and we recognize the national character of the urban crisis by effective federal coordination of municipal initiatives, and we provide -- through the Heller-Pechman mechanism -- the financial means of backing up the negotiated settlements and arbitral awards which are linked to federal fact-finding.

To encourage local initiative and at the same time to set some constraint on local awards, some sort of local matching of federal assistance would probably be required. Perhaps the federal treasury would underwrite one-third of municipal wage and salary awards when these were specifically linked to standards for scales and performances. I do not propose any particular formula since this would have to be fitted within the overall framework of Heller-Pechman federal disbursements.

Obviously some such financial bolstering of the cities is absolutely essential if they are to survive, and it should be equally obvious that the cities' problems of labor relations are directly linked to their financial problems. Unless there is some orderly mechanism for an upward adjustment of salary scales in keeping with the private sector, we can expect continued labor unrest in the cities, bubbling up into recurrent illegal strikes as the only means of forcing attention to need and providing the rationale for some kind of settlement, political or otherwise. I do not think an orderly system can be devised separately by each city out of the resources available to them. It will require a federal coordinating initiative supplemented by federal fiscal power.

But I do not want to stress too singly the financial aspect. Performance in the public sector is also of the highest importance. The quality of the cities' services, from education to sanitation, is much in need of improvement. But tied in with the quality of performance is a variety of matters which might also be labelled working conditions. Questions such as moonlighting by policemen and firemen, the hours of rubbish pickup in residential and commercial areas, teachers' extracurricular requirements, and so on in a seemingly endless list involve at one and the same time performance and working conditions. Such double-interest issues cannot be discussed as though the issues were separable. It is here that continuing discussions with representative unions in a nonbargaining atmosphere can be fruitful, but they are likely to be most fruitful if the cities can move such discussions on to a professional plane. Most of the services a city supplies can be converted into professional services, standards of performance can then be examined in terms of professional standards, and working conditions in terms of professional practice.

This may seem excessively optimistic, but I would prefer to set my sights higher than lower. I see no reason why we should conceive of collective bargaining in the public service as involving only or even primarily a transfer of experience from the private sector. Some experience is extremely relevant, as I indicated at the start of my remarks, but other facets of the process may be remarkably different. If we see the present as a time of opportunity, when we can newly fashion a system of public collective bargaining responsive to its peculiar needs, and do it with whatever innovative mechanisms give promise of help, we are likely to achieve a better result than if we attempt to tailor the public garment by alterations on the private pattern.

I have confined the burden of my comments to labor relations in the cities, barely touching on the federal government and the states. These latter, I think, present more tractable problems. Our greatest need at the moment is in the cities, and I urge that we think of collective bargaining there not as presenting just one more nearly insuperable problem but as something which itself can contribute to a better society.

Description and Analysis

MICHIGAN LABOR BOARD RULES AGAINST NEGOTIATING IN PUBLIC BUT DISMISSES REFUSAL TO BARGAIN CHARGE

The Michigan Labor Mediation Board dismissed the charge of the Menominee City District, MEA, that the Menominee Board of Education was refusing to bargain. The Board of Education had insisted on having representatives of the press present during bargaining sessions as a condition for the use of its premises.

The MLMB stated that the language of the School Code, "meetings of the Board shall be public," does not refer to negotiation sessions, but only to meetings where final action on board business (such as ratification) takes place. The MLMB also warned the Board that "collective bargaining cannot be effective in the presence of either press or public."

The MLMB agreed with the Trial Examiner that if the Association found the press "unpalatable...it was incumbent upon [it] at that time to reject the meeting place." The charge was dismissed because the Association did not make "a clear demand for a neutral meeting place."

CALIFORNIA PROVIDES FOR EXECUTIVE SESSIONS

California amended its code to permit state and local agencies to hold executive sessions with their representatives during consultation meetings with employee organizations regarding salaries and fringe benefits.

The amendment also provides that state and local agencies may hold executive sessions rather than public hearings on grievances against public employees, unless a public hearing is specifically requested in writing by the public employee. The agency then may deliberate its decision in executive session.

FREEDOM OF ASSOCIATION UPHELD BY INDIANA ATTORNEY GENERAL

In response to the question, "May a department of State Government prohibit its supervisory and/or professional employees from holding membership in an employee association?" the Attorney General of Indiana declared that no state government or department may lawfully prohibit a public employee in a supervisory capacity from joining a union or employee organization of which his subordinates, also, may be members.

The employer can expect the loyalty of his supervisory employee as a member of management, although recognizing the potential conflict if he, also, is represented by the employee organization. No legislation may infringe on the rights of an individual to free association.

Since the legislature has not acted on this matter, he added, "when the state enters into agreements with employee unions, the definition of the bargaining unit therein could well be drawn to exclude those employees which the parties can agree are 'supervisory' and 'professional.'"

FIRST STATE SCHOOL-BOARD DECISIONS UNDER NEW MARYLAND LAW

Under the new Maryland statute, final appeal in negotiation disputes between local school boards and their employee organizations is to the State Board of Education. The Board's first decisions under the new law concerned the right of a county council to cut the school budget after negotiations between the school board and the employee organization had been completed, and the right of a school superintendent to appoint district teachers to budget advisory Task Forces.

Renegotiation on School Budgets Not Allowed

After the Anne Arundel County Council cut over $3 million from the Category of Instruction in the school budget, the Board of Education cut the salary scale for provisional teachers. The Teachers' Association of Anne Arundel County objected. As the agency for final appeal in negotiation disputes, the State Board of Education ruled that a county council or commissioners can make cuts in school budget items which a school board has previously negotiated with teachers.

The State Board emphasized that the County Council had the power to make such a cut even though the Association thought it was protected by a negotiated agreement. It also pointed out that the Association and the Board of Education could not renegotiate, even though the Board of Education had broken the letter and the spirit of the law by taking upon itself the decision on where to make the cuts. No teachers association in Maryland can renegotiate an agreement even when a county council negates that agreement by exercising its lawful power to cut funds from the school budget.

County Superintendent Has Right To Establish Task Forces

The State Board of Education found that the Montgomery County School Superintendent's establishment of Task Forces of teachers to advise him on budget problems did not conflict with the exclusive representative's rights provided in the negotiation law. However, the Board reserved the right to intervene at a later date if such activity is expanded to undermine the negotiation process.

STRIKE INJUNCTION UPHELD IN PINELLAS COUNTY, FLORIDA

The Pinellas County Classroom Teachers Association found the salary schedule presented by the Board of Public Instruction unacceptable and told the County Superintendent that the teachers would not "begin performance of services until 'such things as salaries and general working conditions could be agreed and incorporated in their respective contracts.'" The Circuit Court issued a strike injunction.

The Florida Supreme Court upheld the injunction, ruling that the teachers had already signed final, binding contracts with the Board, even though the contracts contained only a base salary, with the statement that the Board would not employ teachers at a salary lower than this base. The Court further ruled that Florida government employees were in effect prohibited from striking by law, and that the teachers were not forced into involuntary servitude, as they had the choice of working or resigning.

STUDENTS' GRADES NOT A CRITERION FOR TEACHER EFFECTIVENESS

The arbitrator in the case between the Barnstable, Massachusetts, School Committee and the Barnstable Teachers Association determined that a directive sent to a high-school teacher by his principal was threatening the "welfare and employment conditions" of that employee.

After meeting with the teacher and observing his class in response to complaints he had received, the principal had directed the teacher to give his students higher grades in conformity with those they received in other classes, or be considered insubordinate. The teacher protested. The arbitrator judged that the teacher's rights were violated, since grades alone cannot be the criterion for assessing a teacher's effectiveness.

CALIFORNIA COURT UPHOLDS WINTON ACT

The issue before the Superior Court of California was the validity of the right of the San Francisco Board of Education or its School Superintendent and the Teacher Federation to meet and confer directly with their respective representatives apart from the Negotiating Council.

The Winton Act requires that the two bargaining units meet and confer only through the Negotiating Council. Therefore, the Superior Court ordered that the parties were "perpetually enjoined and restrained from meeting and conferring or signing agreements directly with their representatives...outside of and without regard to the Negotiating Council."

ASSOCIATION ACTIVITIES RULED NOT REASON FOR MICHIGAN TEACHER'S DISMISSAL

The Michigan Labor Mediation Board upheld the Trial Examiner's decision to dismiss the charge by the Bullock Creek Education Association that the Bullock Creek School District failed to rehire a teacher because of his activities as a member of an association bargaining committee.

The Bullock Creek District did not rehire the teacher following the required one-year probationary period for teachers new to a school district. Pursuant to the Teacher Tenure Act, the District was obliged to terminate the teacher's employment if it did not want to grant him full tenure.

The Bullock Creek Education Association claimed that the teacher had not been rehired because of his association activities, and the District claimed that he had not been rehired because of a poor rating on his teaching performance.

In examining the charge of discrimination, the MLMB compared the teacher's evaluation forms with the forms of other teachers evaluated during the same time period, and found that two teachers who had been given higher ratings than this teacher had also not been rehired.

The MLMB ruled that a reported hostile verbal exchange between the teacher and a member of the School Board during bargaining sessions was an isolated incident and, therefore, not relevant to the case. In handing down its decision, the MLMB stated that "mere weakness of the Employer's defense does not satisfy the [charging party's] burden of proof."

The MLMB declined to pass judgment on the reasonableness of the evaluation, however, and in so doing stated, "If sitting as an arbitrator on the merits of the refusal to retain [the teacher], the undersigned might well conclude that the District has not treated [the teacher] fairly or in a professional manner."

SABBATICAL LEAVE NOT AUTOMATIC UPON SUPERINTENDENT'S APPROVAL, IF PRIOR CONTRACT CONDITIONS ARE NOT MET

The arbitrator ruled that the Pittsfield, Massachusetts, School Committee did not violate the terms of its agreement with the Pittsfield Teachers Association when it denied a request for sabbatical leave over the recommendation of the Superintendent of Schools. The contract language requires the Committee to approve automatically the Superintendent's recommendation of sabbatical leave only if the applicant meets all other conditions for approval.

The grievant's request for sabbatical leave was received by the Superintendent after the deadline for submission. Therefore, since one of the conditions for sabbatical leave was not met, the School Committee had the right to overrule the Superintendent's approval.

Data and Statistics

NEGOTIATION IN HIGHER EDUCATION

Collective negotiation activity for faculties in state colleges and universities and junior and community colleges has been increasing. One contributing factor is the passage of state negotiation statutes for public employees.

Negotiation Statutes

Following is a review of states which have passed statutes affecting employer-employee relations in public higher education.

All Public Employees

Five states--Alaska, Hawaii, Michigan, New Jersey, and New York--have passed negotiation statutes which cover all public employees, including employees of school districts, under their respective laws. The New York statute specifically refers to state colleges and universities. The Michigan statute by a court ruling in a case involving nonprofessional employees covers colleges and universities.

Eight states have passed separate negotiation statutes which taken together cover all public employees. California, Florida, Minnesota, Oregon, and Washington negotiation statutes cover teachers separately from state and other public employees. Massachusetts and Wisconsin negotiation statutes cover state employees separately from other public employees including teachers. Rhode Island has three separate negotiation statutes, for state employees, municipal employees, and teachers.

Since these 13 states have passed one or more negotiation statutes, which generally cover all public employees, it appears that all state colleges and universities, junior and community colleges, and public school systems in these states are covered.

Professional Employees in Public Education

Ten states have passed separate teacher negotiation or consultation statutes for public education--California, Connecticut, Florida, Maryland, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oregon, Rhode Island, Texas, and Washington. In Maryland, Nebraska, and Texas, only public-school teachers have negotiation or consultation statutes; other public employees have not been given statutory negotiation rights. In Connecticut, a separate negotiation statute is provided for municipal employees but there is no statute for state employees.

In the teacher negotiation statutes in these 10 states, public-school employers are defined as regional, county, or local school districts. The public-school employees are defined as teachers or certificated school personnel. Only the Washington law specifically refers to certificated employees of community colleges. While not receiving specific mention in the other statutes, faculties of junior colleges would in all likelihood be covered where these institutions are part of the school system as defined in the law.

In addition to the 10 states mentioned above, eight states cover teachers under negotiation statutes along with other public employees. In Alaska, Hawaii, Michigan, New Jersey, and New York, teachers are covered in all the public employee negotiation statutes. Teachers in Massachusetts and Wisconsin are included with the municipal employees in the negotiation law. In New Hampshire, teachers are covered under a negotiation statute for town employees. Other public employees in New Hampshire are not covered for negotiations.

Other Public Employees

Three other states have negotiation statutes for public employees, but with exceptions. Delaware has passed a negotiation statute for state and municipal employees which excludes certified professional employees of the public schools. Similarly, the Missouri negotiation statute for state and municipal employees excludes teachers in public schools, colleges, and universities. Vermont has a negotiation statute for municipal employees excluding teachers. Other states have negotiation statutes for special segments of public employment which are not related to education.

Survey of Formal Negotiation Policies and Procedures

In 1967-68 the NEA Research Division surveyed salary and related matters in public and nonpublic higher education institutions. Responses were received from 1,113 of the 1,570 colleges and universities granting the 4-year or higher degree and 649 of the 853 2-year institutions. One question asked whether a formal procedure provided for conferences or negotiation between representatives of the governing board of the institution and faculty representatives on matters of faculty salary or welfare.

Ten (1 percent) of the institutions granting 4-year or higher degrees and 52 (8.4 percent) of the 2-year institutions responded that they had a documented policy which provides that the representatives of the governing board or the administration agree to negotiate with faculty representatives on matters of salary or welfare. All but one of these 52 2-year institutions were public institutions. Tables 1 and 2 provide details.

An example of an agreement between the governing board of a college and the faculty is that between the Board of Trustees of Jackson Community College, Jackson, Michigan, and the Jackson Community College Faculty Association (NEA), which is reproduced in full in Section E.

Case No. C67 E-38

MENOMINEE CITY DISTRICT
MICHIGAN EDUCATION ASSOCIATION,

Charging Party.

B-VIII PERA
Unfair Labor Practices
Refusal to Bargain Not Found

Section 561 of the School Code of 1951 (CLS 1961, 340, 561; Mich. Stat. Ann. 1965 Cum. Sup. 15.3561) does not require school boards or unions to negotiate in public meetings.

A school board or other public employer is not obligated to provide a meeting place for negotiations.

OPINION AND ORDER

Respondent Board of Education of the City of Menominee recognized the Charging Party as the exclusive bargaining representative of the teachers employed by it subsequent to the enactment of the Public Employment Relations Act in July, 1965. The parties entered into a collective bargaining agreement for the school year 1966-67.

In February, 1967, there were discussions between a representative of the Board of Education and the Charging Party concerning negotiations for a contract covering the 1967-68 school year.

At issue in this case is the insistence of the Board of Education that it would not participate in negotiations without members of the press in attendance at bargaining sessions.

On May 12, 1967, the Menominee Association filed charges, some of which were withdrawn at the hearing. The remaining charges stated:

"The Employer has and is violating Section 10(e) of the Act by refusing to engage in any collective bargaining without the presence of representatives of the local press. By taking the position that they (the Board of Education) refuse to exclude the press from negotiating sessions, they have effectively imposed a condition upon the bargaining process which cannot be met by the Labor organization due to the fact that the Board of Education, though continuing issuance of inflammatory, coercive, intimidating, misleading and inaccurate releases to the press, have made the press the agents of the Board and have created an atmosphere in the community which severely prejudices meaningful negotiations if the press, as agents of the Board, are allowed to attend. The refusal to proceed except in the presence of these outside agents, constitutes a refusal to bargain in violation of Section 10(e) of the Act."

The Employer and its agents received the proposal of the Menominee City District of the MEA for the 1967-1968 school year on or about March 1, 1967, and refused to hold any negotiation meetings until April 7, 1967, at which time a counter-proposal represents a 'sham' proposal and reveals nothing more than 'surface bargaining' with no attempt to bargain in good faith as required by Section 15 of the Act.

At the April 7, 1967, meeting at which the counter-proposal was submitted, the Board refused to schedule further meetings, and announced its tentative policy to allow the press to be present. A further meeting was tentatively scheduled for April 17, 1967, at which time the 'press' was present. The Menominee City District (MEA) negotiating team refused to proceed, and the Employer then prepared a news release and issued the same together with the entire proposed contract of the Menominee City District (MEA). The editorial comments prepared by the Board and released to the press were inaccurate, misleading and designed to frighten, inflame and panic the general public, and, when coupled with the previous statements of the Board, designed to ridicule, terrorize, coerce and intimidate the teachers. These reports were published in both local papers.

All of the foregoing incidents constitute individual unfair labor practices and, collectively, demonstrate a continuing pattern of refusal to bargain in good faith in violation of Section 15 of the Act.

The Employer, by adopting its position in regard to refusal to exclude the press, has attempted and succeeded in placing an onus on the labor organization by placing the Association in the position of choosing to abandon meaningful negotiations by allowing the presence of the press or, in the alternative, forcing the Association to become vilified by the press because of its refusal to allow their presence. The very act of casting the Association in a public posture where it is labeled, with the assistance of the Board, as a group which is afraid to air its views in public because it has 'something to hide' constitutes a refusal to bargain."

The Trial Examiner recommended dismissal of the charges because the Menominee Association did not make "a clear demand for a neutral meeting," which the School Board had refused. The evidence discloses that the two parties contemplated the use of School Board premises and that the Board of Education conditioned the use of the school premises on the presence of the press.

We agree with the Trial Examiner that if the Menominee Association found the presence of the press "unpalatable

...it was incumbent upon (the Association) at that time to reject the meeting place."

Exceptions were filed to the Trial Examiner's Findings of Fact and Recommended Order by both the Charging Party and the Respondent.

The Board of Education's Exceptions and Brief do not persuade us that the Trial Examiner was in error.

The Board of Education relies upon Section 561 of the School Code of 1951 (CLS 1961 340.561; Mich. Stat. Ann. 1965 Cum. Sup. 15.3561) which, among other things, provides:

> "Meetings of the board shall be public meetings and no person shall be excluded therefrom. The board may hold executive sessions, but no final action shall be taken in any executive session."

The section also provides that:

> "All business which the board of any district is authorized to perform shall be done in a public meeting of the board and no action shall be valid unless voted at a meeting of the board by a majority vote of the members elected to the board and a proper record made of the vote."

The basis for the Board of Education's argument is the language that "business" shall be done at a "public meeting of the Board."

In context, it appears clear that the term "business" means final action which binds the School District to the action of the Board of Education. It is evident from the statutory provision: "The board may hold executive sessions, but no final action shall be taken in any executive session," that there may be discussions and tentative conclusions reached at non-public meetings.

In 1965, the Legislature enacted the Public Employment Relations Act, which requires the public employers and the employees' exclusive bargaining representatives to engage in "good faith" collective bargaining. While collective bargaining is in one sense "business" of a public employer, the results of a bargaining session do not become final board action until ratification by the Board of Education.[1]

The succinct answer to the Board of Education's contention is that:

> 1. Collective bargaining cannot be effective in the presence of either press or public. Representatives of employers and labor organizations (perhaps because they are human) tend to speak for the public and the news media rather than engage in the collective bargaining procedure.
> While both sides should have nothing to hide in bargaining if they are bargaining in good faith, neither side is required by law to lead with its best offer or to follow a prescribed pattern effecting a settlement.
> We believe the Legislature intended neither preliminary discussion in public of the purchase price of desks or books, nor for the services of teachers -- so long as the public has an opportunity to know the terms of the bargain before final School Board approval or disapproval.
> We will not impose upon the parties the obligation to bargain in a public arena if they are unwilling to do so. Such an obligation would tend to prolong negotiations and damage the procedure of compromise inherent in collective bargaining.
> 2. The Legislature recognized the need for executive sessions in section 561 of the School Code. The Legislature also recognized this need when it established the process of collective bargaining as a requirement for public employers and exclusive bargaining representatives.[2]
> 3. The statute is satisfied by the public meeting of the Board of Education at which the tentative agreement reached by the bargaining teams of the Board of Education and the teachers are presented to the public for public consideration and public ratification or rejection.
> Parenthetically, we believe it advisable for representatives of both public employers and employees to keep their principals advised (including, if it seems wise, the press) of the progress of negotiations. This, however, is apart from the requirement that the press be present at bargaining sessions.

We might also note in passing, that the "press" stands on no higher ground than the public generally. As the New York Court of Appeals said in United Press Association v. Valente, 308 N. Y. 71, 123 N.E. 2d 777, 778, 783 (1954):

> "this is not a case of...freedom of the press and ...the right asserted by Petitioners is not embodied within the constitutional provision guaranteeing those freedoms... But freedom of the press is in no way abridged by an exclusionary ruling which denies to the public generally, including newspapermen, the opportunity to 'see and hear what transpired.' The fact that petitioners are in the business of disseminating news gives them no special right or privilege, not possessed by other members of the public."

In this case, the Menominee Association did not propose an alternative meeting place, so we affirm the Trial Examiner with the correction of the typographical error noted below.

It is apparent, as the Menominee Association's Exception No. 1 pointed out, that the second sentence of the Trial Examiner's conclusions contains a typographical error. It should read:

[1] Likewise, the tentative agreement is not binding on the employees in the bargaining unit until ratification by the members of the labor organization if its constitution or by-laws or resolution of its members so provide. Seldom do labor organizations authorize bargaining committees to bind the organization without membership approval.

[2] We recognize that the refusal or failure of a labor organization to bargain in good faith is not an unfair labor practice. However, the labor organization has the same duty to bargain as does the public employer. Only the method of enforcement is different; and, perhaps, there is no effective means under the present statute to require a labor organization to bargain in good faith. However, see General Teamsters Union v. Brewer's City Coal Dock, 33 LRRM 2210 (Circuit Court, Ottawa County, 1953); General Teamsters Union, Local No. 406 v. Uptown Cleaners & Hatters, Inc., 356 Mich. 204, 97 N.W. 2d 593 (1959); Detroit Local Joint Executive Board, Hotel and Restaurant Employees, and Bartenders International Union, AFL-CIO v. Dick Ceaser, d/b/a Dick Ceaser Enterprises, 53 LRRM 2848 (Circuit Court, Wayne County, 1963). And Garden City School District v. Labor Mediation Board, 358 Mich. 285, 99 N.W. 2d 485 (1959) required mediation.

"It would, therefore, follow that the School Board or other employer within the meaning of PERA could not insist on meeting on its premises, and take that position that it would not exclude the press."

ORDER

The charges filed by the Menominee City District Michigan Education Association are dismissed.

MICHIGAN LABOR MEDIATION BOARD

Robert G. Howlett, Chairman
Leo W. Walsh, Board Member

Dated: May 17, 1968

APPEARANCES:

For the Respondent: Charles E. Keller, Esq.

For the Charging Party: Thomas Roberts, Esq.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND RECOMMENDED ORDER

The above entitled matter having come on for hearing before Joseph B. Bixler, Trial Examiner for the Michigan Labor Mediation Board, hereinafter referred to as the Board, at Menominee, Michigan, on September 27, and the entire record and post hearing briefs having been considered, the undersigned hereby makes the following findings of fact, conclusions of law and recommendation to the Board for the disposition of the case:

FINDINGS OF FACT

Board of Education of the City of Menominee, hereinafter referred to as the School Board, is a public employer within the meaning of Act 336 of the Public Acts of 1947, as amended by Act 379 of the Public Acts of 1965, hereinafter referred to as PERA.

Menominee City District, Michigan Educational Association, hereinafter referred to as the Charging Party is a labor organization within the meaning of PERA.

The Charging Party has been the recognized collective bargaining representative of the teachers employed by the School Board for at least two years. The parties entered into a collective bargaining agreement for the school year 1966. In February 1967, Irene Lovig, the chairman of the Charging Party, had a preliminary discussion with Dr. Robert Freeman, the Superintendent of Schools, relative to the beginning of negotiations for a contract covering the 1967-1968 school year. The record reveals that at this preliminary meeting a question arose as to whether the representatives of the press were to be allowed to be present at the oncoming negotiations sessions. The Charging Party, by letter of February 27, 1967, and at various times subsequent to that date made clear its desire that negotiation sessions be conducted without members of the press in attendance at the negotiating sessions.

The School Board, on the other hand, while not refusing to negotiate without the press present, repeatedly took the position that the School Board did not believe it could exclude the press from meetings affecting public welfare and monies. This position was explicitly set forth in writing in letters to Mrs. Lovig on April 21, 26, and May 1, 1967, from Dr. Freeman.

The Charging Party and the School Board negotiating teams eventually did meet with the press representatives present, under protest by the Charging Party, and a collective bargaining agreement was reached for the school year 1967-1968. In view of the fact that an agreement has been reached, various portions of the charges as originally filed, were withdrawn by the Charging Party at the hearing.

The essence of the remaining allegations is that the School Board, by its refusal to agree to exclude the press representatives from the negotiation sessions, violated Section 10(e) of PERA.

The foregoing facts are not in material dispute.

The School Board takes the position that what occurred is not a violation of the bargaining duty as imposed by Section 10(e) of PERA for three reasons:

1. That the School Board is prohibited by Michigan statute from conducting meetings in private.

2. That the Michigan and Federal constitutions require the press to be given access to negotiations under the provisions relating to freedom of the press.

3. That the presence of members of the press under National Labor Relations Board precedent would be found not to impede collective bargaining nor would even insistence on the presence of the press constitute an unfair labor practice.

The Charging Party in advocating its position that an unfair labor practice has occurred here takes the negative to each of the School Board's contentions.

Considering the contentions of the parties in the order in which they appear above.

Michigan Statutes

The statute advanced by the School Board as prohibiting closed meeting is Section 561 of the School Code of 1955, as last amended by Act 181, P.A. 1961, CLS 1961 No. 340.561; MSA 1965 Cum. Supp. No. 15.3561. This act provides as follows:

All business which the board of any district is authorized to perform shall be done at a public meeting of the board and no act shall be valid unless voted at a meeting of the board by a majority vote of the members elect of the Board and a proper record made of the vote. A meeting in which all members are present, with or without proper notice, shall be considered a legal meeting for the transaction of business. Meetings of the board shall be public meetings and no person shall be excluded therefrom. The board may hold executive sessions, but no final action shall be taken at any executive session. The minutes of all board meetings must be signed by the secretary. In the absence of the secretary in any meeting, the president shall appoint a temporary secretary who shall sign the minutes of the meeting. In the absence of president, the other members present shall elect a temporary president. (Emphasis added)

The School Board in its brief, when quoting this statute, concludes that the words, "...meeting of the board shall be public meetings and no person shall be excluded therefrom. The board may hold executive sessions" make it "clear and unequivocal" that the public and the press have a right to be present at its meetings. This reasoning begs the question facing the State Labor Board. It assumes that bargaining sessions are not "executive sessions" as provided for in the statute and secondly that they are meetings of the School Board.

As far as this record reveals, the negotiation meetings were not meetings wherein final action was to be taken. The negotiations were not conducted by the School Board, but by a man retained as a negotiator. At the conclusion of the negotiations, the School Board found it necessary to hold a formal public meeting to approve the agreement reached by the negotiating teams.

The undersigned cannot conclude under these circumstances that the School Board is statutorily required to hold public meetings within the meaning of the statute when fulfilling the bargaining duty imposed by the PERA.

Freedom of the Press

The School Board proposes that the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution wherein it provides, "Congress shall make no law... abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press," and the Michigan Constitution that, "No law shall be enacted to restrain or abridge the liberty of speech or of the press" obligates the School Board to allow the access of the press to negotiation sessions.

As conceded by the School Board in its brief, the United States Supreme Court has not recognized explicitly the "right to know." The undersigned suspects that such a right extended to the press will never be recognized. The press as a business is engaged in gathering news. What is gathered is marketable to the extent that the individual citizen is curious enough to purchase the product. However, the mere fact that the press is constitutionally given freedom of expression does not give it the right of access to any information that is not available by right to the average citizen. That the press is extended privileges and often treated with a deference not extended to the average citizen is obvious, but when it comes to the matter of a legal "right to know" the press and the individual are equals. One would not need to be a constitutional scholar to detect the inherent evil in the press being subsidized by exclusive access to information not available to the public for verification. It would be far better that the citizen and the press be denied the right to know, than to have the citizen forced to accept accounts of events not available to him for verification. In the instant case, this is especially true where the School Board is required to act openly when taking final action. This affords the public access to the tentative agreement before it becomes final and binding.

Here, this contention actually has little bearing on the issue of this case as there is no basis for concluding the press had a "right to know" beyond that provided for in the school code, discussed above. The record does not reveal, nor do any of the parties contend that "final action" was to be taken during the negotiation sessions.

Precedent allowing or disallowing the press to be present at negotiation sessions

The State Labor Mediation Board has never passed on the question of outsiders, of any variety as non-participating observers being present at negotiation sessions. Both parties have turned to National Labor Relations Board decisions, and not suprisingly, both have found cases involving transcriptions of negotiation sessions that they contend support their respective positions.

The employer's cases involved insistence by the employer of stenographic record of bargaining meetings, St. Louis Typographical Union (Graphic Arts, Assn.) 149 NLRB 750. The Charging Party's case involves the employer's demand that a tape recording be made of bargaining meetings. Architectural Fiberglass, 65 LRRM 1331.

In the Graphic Arts case, the NLRB found such insistence was not per se a violation, in the Fiberglass case, the NLRB found the insistence on the tape recording an unfair labor practice, and evidence of not bargaining in good faith. In the first case, the National Board leaves open the door to a contrary disposition depending on the use made of the stenographic record, and in the latter case the insistence on the tape recording, is found to be a violation, particularly, in view of many obvious violations of the National Labor Relations Act that occurred. In the opinion of the undersigned, the case at hand is readily distinguishable from the cases relied upon by the parties. First, the employer here has not insisted upon the presence of the press. Secondly, a tape of stenographic record being taken is quite obviously different than the presence of newspaper reporters whose only object of being present is to observe what occurs for the purpose of publication.

It is this latter element that convinces the undersigned that a party to negotiations could not lawfully insist upon the press, or the public for that matter, being present at the bargaining meetings. The very concept of bargaining entails shifting of positions and retreating from some in return for advancement of others. To have these changes reported on a day to day piecemeal basis could lead to one party or the other having the appearance of excessive acquiescence to the demands of the others. In addition, the knowledge of publicity cannot help but require that presentation be postured for the public rather than for the mutual resolution of existing differences.

The National Labor Relations Board has treated a situation that is close to that involved in this case. An employer invited rank and file employees to attend negotiating sessions over the objection of the bargaining agent. The National Board in that case stated as follows:

> Respondent insistence that bargaining negotiations be conducted in the presence of the rank and file employees clearly was contrary to uniform industrial practice and was not conducive to the orderly, informal and frank discussion of the issues confronting the negotiators necessary to reach a contract.[1]

The undersigned is of the opinion that this determination of the National Board is well taken and that insistence, over objection of the other party, to the presence of employees, the public, or the press at bargaining sessions as a condition precedent to further bargaining is a failure to bargain in good faith.

In the instant case, however, the School Board maintains that it has not insisted on the presence of the press, but merely refused to exclude the press from the meeting room. The record does not reveal how the parties to this cause came to be meeting on School Board premises for negotiations. The parties met on the School Board premises and at Mediation Board offices from time to time from May until August 1967.[2] On August 9, 1967, a tentative agreement was reached that was contingent on the passage of additional millage by the citizens of Monominee. The millage increase was rejected on August 28, 1967. This date must be in error. As noted above, on August 9, 1967, the parties reached a tentative agreement with the State Mediator in Grand Rapids. Because this agreement was contingent upon a millage vote to be held on August 28, 1967, there would have been no need for negotiation during this period. It follows that the testimony was in error as to the time the request for a neutral site was made and therefore too vague to form a basis for a conclusion that the School Board insisted on meeting on its premises, as well as refusing to exclude the press before August 28, 1967.

[2] Mediation sessions were held in private at the insistence of the State Mediator.

CONCLUSIONS

The undersigned, as indicated above, is convinced that the statutory duty to bargain prohibits either party from insisting on the presence of outsiders during the bargaining. It would, therefore, follow that the School Board or other employer within the meaning of PERA could not insist on meeting on its premises, and take the position that it would exclude the press. This would amount to conditioning bargaining upon the presence of outsiders.

In the instant case, the School Board and the Charging Party at the inception of the bargaining looked to the use of School Board premises as a matter of course. I do not believe that the statute imposes any obligation on the employer to provide a meeting place.[3] In the absence of such an obligation, there would appear to be no justification in concluding that the one offering the premises for bargaining purposes cannot condition the use of the premises. If such conditions are unpalatable to the other party, it is incumbent upon them at that time to reject the meeting place. In the case at hand, the Charging Party knew prior to the first scheduled meeting that the School Board would not expel members of the press from its premises. The Charging Party chose not to attend that meeting scheduled for April 17, 1967, rather than to demand a neutral meeting place where they could have excluded the press. Had a clear demand for a neutral meeting place been made and the school Board refused to meet without the presence of the press, a clear violation of the duty to bargain would have been established.

Recommendations

As this record stands, the undersigned is of the opinion that it does not establish that a breach of the bargaining duty imposed by PERA has occurred. It is recommended that the Board dismiss the charges in this case.

SENATE BILL NO. 592

An act to add Section 54957.6 to, and to amend Section 11126 of, the Government Code, relating to employer-employee relations.

[Approved by Governor August 13, 1968. Filed with Secretary of State August 13, 1968.]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 11126 of the Government Code is amended to read:

11126. Nothing contained in this article shall be construed to prevent a state agency from holding executive sessions during a regular or special meeting to consider the appointment, employment or dismissal of a public officer or employee or to hear complaints or charges brought against such officer or employee by another public officer, person or employee unless such officer or employee requests a public hearing. As a condition to holding an executive session on the complaints or charges to consider disciplinary action or to consider dismissal such officer or employee shall be given written notice of his right to have a public hearing rather than an executive session, which notice shall be delivered to him personally or by mail at least 24 hours before the time for holding a regular or special meeting. If notice is not given, any disciplinary or other action taken against any officer or employee at such executive session shall be null and void. The state agency also may exclude from any such public or private meeting, during the examination of a witness, any or all other witnesses in the matter being investigated by the state agency. Following the public hearing or executive session the agency may deliberate on the decision to be reached in an executive session.

Nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent state agencies, which administer the licensing of persons engaging in businesses, or professions from holding executive sessions to prepare, approve, grade or administer examinations.

Nothing in this article shall be construed to prohibit a state agency from holding an executive session to deliberate on a decision to be reached based upon evidence introduced in a proceeding required to be conducted pursuant to Chapter 5 (commencing with Section 11500) of Part 1, Division 3, Title 2 of the Government Code or similar provision of law.

Nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent any state agency from holding an executive session to consider matters affecting the national security.

Nothing in this article shall be construed to grant a right to enter any correctional institution or the grounds of a correctional institution where that right is not otherwise granted by law, nor shall anything in this article be construed to prevent a state agency from holding an executive session when considering and acting upon the determination of a term, parole, or release of any individual or other disposition of an individual case, or if public disclosure of the subjects under discussion or consideration is expressly prohibited by statute.

Nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent any executive session to consider the conferring of honorary degrees, or gifts, donations and bequests which the donor or proposed donor has requested in writing to be kept confidential.

Nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board from holding an executive session for the purpose of holding a deliberative conference as provided in Section 11125 of the Government Code.

Nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent the Trustees of the California State Colleges from holding executive sessions dealing with site selection for such state colleges.

Nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent the Franchise Tax Board from holding executive sessions for the purpose of discussion of confidential tax returns or data the public disclosure of which is prohibited by law.

Nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent the Board of Corrections from holding executive sessions when considering reports of crime conditions under the provisions of Section 6027 of the Penal Code.

Nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent the Motor Vehicle Pollution Control Board from holding executive sessions when considering the proprietary specifications and performance data of manufacturers.

Nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent the Board of Administration of the Public Employees Retirement System from holding executive sessions when considering investment decisions.

Nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent the governing body of a public agency, or such boards, commissions, administrative officers, or other representatives as may properly be designated by law or by such governing body, from holding executive sessions with its representatives at any time in discharging its responsibilities under Chapter 10 (commencing with Section 3500) of Division 4 of Title 1 of this code as such sessions relate to salaries, salary schedules, or compensation paid in the form of fringe benefits.

Sec. 2. Section 54957.6 is added to the Government Code, to read:

54957.6. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a legislative body of a local agency may hold executive sessions with its designated representatives prior to and during consultations and discussions with representatives of employee organizations regarding the salaries, salary schedules, or compensation paid in the form of fringe benefits of employees in order to review its position and instruct its designated representatives.

STATE OF INDIANA

OFFICES OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

JOHN J. DILLON, ATTORNEY GENERAL

219 STATE HOUSE

June 6, 1968

Honorable Roger D. Branigin
Governor of Indiana
206 State House
Indianapolis, Indiana

OFFICIAL OPINION NO. 25

Dear Governor Branigin:

You have asked me to advise you on the following question:

> "May a department of State Government prohibit its supervisory and/or professional employees from holding membership in an employee association?"

You stated that one department head reports that some of his supervisory employees are not effectively carrying out department policies and orders because of a conflict with their loyalty to the employees' union to which they belong. You also ask whether, if such membership cannot be prohibited under the law, association activities of supervisory and professional employees can be restricted in any way by the department head. Although your question is rather broad, from the context I have concluded that you are concerned primarily with unions organized on a "vertical" pattern, i.e., those which include non-supervisory employees and their supervisors in the same union.

That it is essential to business and industry that some employees be more responsive to management than to labor unions has long been recognized. The United States Supreme Court decided in March of 1947 that foremen were "employees" whose rights to bargain collectively were protected by the National Labor Relations Act, Packard Motor Car Co. v. National Labor Relations Board (1947), 330 U.S. 485. Within four months, Congress had amended the Act specifically to exclude "supervisory employees" from the definition of employees with whom employers are required to bargain collectively under the terms of the Act, thus nullifying the effect of the Supreme Court opinion. The Labor Management Relations Act of 1947, 61 Stat. 137, amending § 2 of the National Labor Relations Act, 29 U.S.C. § 152. Congress did, however, preserve the right of foremen to become and remain members of labor organizations. The Labor Management Relations Act of 1947, 61 Stat. 151, amending § 14(a) of the National Labor Relations Act (last amended by 73 Stat. 541), 29 U.S.C. § 164(a). The purpose of the amendments was explained in National Labor Relations Board v. Retail Clerks International Ass'n. A.F.L. (9th Cir. 1954), 211 F. 2d 759, at 763-764, cert. den. 348 U.S. 839:

> "A primary objective of § 2(11) of the Act. . . was to assure to the employer his right to procure the loyalty and efficiency of his supervisors and managers. The reports which accompanied the legislative bill which Congress enacted into the Labor Management Relations Act of 1947, made this abundantly clear. The reports were specific as to certain evils which the congressional committees thought they could avoid by excluding foremen and other supervisors from the operation of the Labor Act. Much emphasis was laid upon the desirability of assuring their independence of unions of the rank-and-file. It was noted that what had been happening in respect to unionizing of foremen under the former Act was 'bad for output' and hurt the free flow of commerce which the Act was intended to promote."

In Carpenters District Council v. National Labor Relations Board (D.C. Cir. 1959), 274 F.2d 564, the Court said:

> "Congress was aware of the potential conflict between the obligations of foremen as representatives of their employers, on the one hand, and as union members, on the other. Section 2(3) evidences its intent to make the obligations to the employer paramount. That provision excepts foremen from the protection of the Act. Its purpose was to give the employer a free hand to discharge foremen as a means of ensuring their undivided loyalty, in spite of any union obligations." 274 F.2d at 566.

However, the fact that some supervisors are members of a union of their subordinate employees does not excuse an employer from bargaining with the union, and an employer may treat the supervisory employees as employees covered by the National Labor Relations Act if he desires to do so. Pharmacists & Retail Drug Store Employees Union v. Lake Hills Drug Co. (W.D. Wash., N.D. 1964), 255 F.Supp. 910. See also Carpenters District Council v. National Labor Relations Board, supra.

The National Labor Relations Act does not apply to state employees. National Labor Relations Act, § 2(2), 29 U.S.C. § 152(2); 1966 O.A.G. 144, 151, No. 22; 1944 O.A.G. 224, No. 55. Neither is there an Indiana statute defining the bargaining rights of public employees. As I pointed out in 1966 O.A.G. 144, No. 22, the lack of an Indiana labor relations law for public employees creates daily problems for public officers in the executive and administrative departments of government. Public employees also are left without definite standards to guide their legitimate attempts to secure better working conditions and wages.

Nonetheless, there are several applicable rules of law:

(1) No person has a right to public employment, which is, instead, a benefit or privilege. Keyishian v. Board of Regents (1967), 385 U.S. 589, 605-606; State ex rel. Buttz v. Marion Circuit Court (1947), 225 Ind. 7, 72 N.E. 2d 225 (public office).

(2) Despite that fact, the United States Constitution prohibits that conditions be placed upon the benefit or privilege of public employment which infringe upon the liberties of free expression and association. It was not always so. See Adler v. Board of Education (1952), 342 U.S. 485. However, the Supreme Court of the United States recently said, in holding New York's Feinberg Law unconstitutional,

> ''the . . . Law was, however, before the Court in Adler and its constitutionality was sustained. But constitutional doctrine which has emerged since that decision has rejected its major premise. That premise was that public employment, including academic employment, may be conditioned upon the surrender of constitutional rights which could not be abridged by direct government action. Teachers, the Court said in Adler, 'may work for the school system upon the reasonable terms laid down by the proper authorities of New York. If they do not choose to work on such terms, they are at liberty to retain their beliefs and associations and go elsewhere.' 342 U.S., at 492. The Court also stated that a teacher denied employment because of membership in a listed organization 'is not thereby denied the right of free speech and assembly. His freedom of choice between membership in the organization and employment in the school system might be limited, but not his freedom of speech or assembly, except in the remote sense that limitation is inherent in every choice.' Id., at 493.
> ''However, the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit correctly said in an earlier stage of this case, '. . . the theory that public employment which may be denied altogether may be subjected to any conditions, regardless of how unreasonable, has been uniformly rejected.' Keyishian v. Board of Regents, 345 F.2d 236, 239. Indeed, that theory was expressly rejected in a series of decisions following Adler. See Wieman v. Updegraff, 344 U.S. 183; Slochower v. Board of Education, 350 U.S. 551; Cramp v. Board of Public Instruction, supra; Baggett v. Bullitt, supra; Shelton v. Tucker, supra; Speiser v. Randall, supra; see also Schware v. Board of Bar Examiners, 353 U.S. 232; Torcaso v. Watkins, 367 U.S. 488. In Sherbert v. Verner, 374 U.S. 398, 404, we said: ''It is too late in the day to doubt that the liberties of religion and expression may be infringed by the denial of or placing of conditions upon a benefit or privilege.''' Keyishian v. Board of Regents, supra, 385 U.S. at 605-606. (Emphasis added.)

(3) The protected right of free association and expression includes labor union membership, under both the United States Constitution and Art. 1, § 31 of the Indiana Constitution. N.L.R.B. v. Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp. (1937), 301 U.S. 1, 33; Karges Furniture Co. v. Amalgamated Woodworkers Local Union (1905), 165 Ind. 421, 75 N.E. 877; 1966 O.A.G. 144, 150-151, No. 22.

(4) One condition of the exercise of the right of free association which may not be imposed on the benefit or privilege of public employment is the requirement that an employee refrain from mere membership in an organization. See Keyishian v. Board of Regents, supra.

(5) As previously stated, it has been long recognized in ordinary business and industrial labor-management relations that there are employees who must be more responsive to the wishes of the employer than to those of a union made up primarily of non-supervisory employees. This principle is as necessary in government as it is in business and industry.

It is, therefore, my opinion that a department of state government may not prohibit a supervisory or professional employee from holding membership in an employee association which is primarily an organization of his subordinate employees, because such a prohibition would violate the supervisory or professional employee's right of free association protected by both the United States and the Indiana Constitutions. Obviously, however, any supervisory or professional employee who is not effectively carrying out department policies and orders, for whatever reason, including responsiveness to a union of his subordinates rather than to the department he is hired to represent, can be disciplined or dismissed as otherwise authorized by law for failure to perform his duties properly. Some supervisory and professional employees of the state at high levels have the duty of implementing the policy of the State of Indiana with regard to employment practices and salaries. Active participation, such as making policy in or negotiating on behalf of a labor union of subordinate employees, would put those professional and supervisory employees in the untenable position of negotiating with themselves. For those employees, it would seem reasonable to me that refraining from such activities would be the wisest course to follow.

One further problem consistently emerges when the degree of responsiveness to management required of a particular employee is questioned. That problem is the selection of those employees who may properly be designated ''supervisory'' or ''professional'' employees, and from whom responsiveness to management (in this case, the state) rather than to a labor union of his subordinates may fairly be demanded. The designation of such employees is ordinarily made, in business and industry, according to definitions in the National Labor Relations Act. Since the state government must operate without the General Assembly's expression of detailed policy on this subject, the matter appears to be a proper subject of bargaining between the state and the employee unions. A reasonable level of employment must be selected to be designated as ''supervisory'' or ''professional.'' When the state enters into agreements with employee unions, the definition of the bargaining unit therein could well be drawn to exclude those employees which the parties can agree are ''supervisory'' and ''professional.''

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION OF ANNE ARUNDEL COUNTY :

v. :

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF ANNE ARUNDEL COUNTY :

BEFORE THE

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

FACTS

This is a review before the State Board of Education under the provisions of Article 77, Section 21 of the actions of the Board of Education of Anne Arundel County on the school budget after it had been submitted to and reduced by the County Council.

On or before June 15, 1968, the Teachers' Association of Anne Arundel County (''TAAAC'') was duly designated as the exclusive representative and negotiating agent of all public school employees in Anne Arundel County, pursuant to Article 77, Section 175.

Some time theretofore the Board of Education had submitted to the County Council of Anne Arundel County (''County Council'') a proposed budget which had been previously negotiated with TAAAC on a voluntary basis and which had been approved by the Representative Assembly of TAAAC and by the Board of Education. The County Council subsequently cut the sum of $3,100,000.00 for the Category of Instruction in the school budget, without further specification. Thereafter, the acting Superintendent of Schools for Anne Arundel County, C. Berry Carter, requested representatives of TAAAC to be present at a meeting of the Board of Education, at which the matter of reallocation of funds in the Category of Instruction was to be discussed. Such discussion was held shortly before the regularly scheduled public meeting of the Board on June 17, 1968, and this discussion was continued after the adjournment of the latter, at approximately 10:30 P.M. At this reconvened session the Board stated to TAAAC representatives that it would be necessary to cut approximately $165,000.00 from the salary scale for provisional degree teachers, which the representatives of TAAAC advised the Board would not be acceptable to it. Considering the meeting to be at an end, the TAAAC representatives left at approximately 12:30 with the impression that the School Board had not yet made its final decision and that TAAAC would be consulted further on the matter. Before the adjournment the School Board felt it had strongly indicated to TAAAC that its final offer had been made. In any event, later in the morning of June 18, the School Board effected the $165,000 cut from the salary scale of the provisional degree teachers.

TAAAC contends that the requirement of Article 77, Section 175 (h)(2) that the employee organization and the county school board negotiate ''at all reasonable times'' as to salaries includes the period of time after the school budget has been submitted to the County Council. TAAAC further contends that the actions of the School Board on June 17 and June 18 did not constitute good faith negotiation. The School Board, on the other hand, submits that, even if negotiation were required (which it does not concede) ample opportunity was given TAAAC to discuss the issue with the Board.

Opinion of the Board

At the time this matter was heard by the State Board of Education the 1968-69 school budget of Anne Arundel County had already been implemented. Any order of the Board upsetting arrangements which had theretofore been made could have resulted in harm to the cause of public education of the County. Nevertheless, we would not hesitate to express an opinion on the issue raised by the petitioner if such an opinion could be a guide for similar situations in the future. However, this issue should not arise again.

Article 77, Section 68 requires the county commissioners or county council in any county to ''indicate in writing what item or items of the annual budget of the county board of education have been denied in whole or part, and the reason for the denial in whole or in part of the respective items''. The Court of Appeals of Maryland, in Board of Education v. Montgomery County, 237 Md. 191, 201-202, 205 A. 2d 202, 208 (1964), has made it abundantly clear that the reasons for such denial of school budget items must not only be in writing ''but must be detailed'' in order to ''advise the county board of education of the items to which it is required to limit the expenditure of the school tax'' (emphasis supplied). Under Article 77, Section 68A, the obligation of itemizing budget cuts in Anne Arundel County has, in some measure, been transferred to the County Executive. Anne Arundel County v. Board of Education, 248 Md. 512, 522, 237 A. 2d 426, 430-31 (1968). Leaving aside the question of whether the law requires itemization of budget cuts by the County Executive or the County Council, it is clear that itemization of costs by an authority other than the Board of Education is required and that a lump sum cut violates both the letter and spirit of the law.

If the clear mandate of the law had been adhered to, no discretion would have been left in the Anne Arundel County Board of Education to reallocate funds within its budget after action by the County Council. Thus, the present controversy would not have arisen.

The complexity of the problems which may arise under the provisions of Article 77, Section 175, as this case illustrates, makes it imperative that county boards of education, county commissioners, and county councils do not take the requirements of Article 77, Sections 68 and 68A lightly. The law is clear. We shall expect county boards of education to abide by it. Where the county commissioners or county council effect a budget cut which does not meet the requirements of Sections 68 and 68A the county board of education shall bring the matter promptly to the attention of the State Board of Education so that consultation can take place on the legal remedy which should be pursued.

The negotiating procedure followed by the Board of Education of Anne Arundel County in this case was adopted in the context of a ''second round'' of budget considerations, following a budget cut by the County Council. We have made it clear that under the provisions of the Public School Law of our State there must not be any such ''second round''. We are prepared to note, though, that if the procedure in question here had been followed in the initial negotiation process it would not have met the requirements of Article 77, Section 175 (h) (2).

Conclusion

For the reasons stated in our Opinion the petition is dismissed.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY EDUCATION ASSOCIATION	)
vs	)	Before the State
	)	Board of Education
HOMER O. ELSEROAD, Superintendent	)	of Maryland
Montgomery County Public Schools	)

FACTS

This is a review before the State Board of Education under the provisions of Article 77, Section 21 of the actions of the Superintendent of Schools of Montgomery County in inviting teachers employed by the Montgomery County Public Schools to serve on task forces advising the Superintendent on budget problems.

On March 7, 1966 the Montgomery County Public Schools formalized a long-standing practice by adopting a policy to provide for ''Superintendent's Committees for Operational Tasks''. On July 18, 1966, a supplemental policy statement relating to Advisory Committees was issued.

On or before June 15, 1968 the Montgomery County Education Association, petitioner herein, was designated as the ''exclusive representative'' of all public school employees of Montgomery County, in accordance with Article 77, Sec. 175.

On July 19, 1968, the respondent, Superintendent Elseroad invited a number of teachers for whom petitioner acted as exclusive representative to serve on budget development task forces, whose purpose it was ''to insure considerably greater staff involvement in establishing needs for improvement in FY 1970.'' The Superintendent characterized this approach as ''a milestone toward total staff involvement in all phases of our operation.'' The result of the task force efforts, he indicated, would be a ''comprehensive brochure describing our recent programs and outlining our goals for the future.'' Once the brochure was published, he explained, ''the staff and the public will be asked to make a listing of priorities to help the Superintendent and the Board of Education develop the Operating Budget for FY 1970.''

Petitioner objected to the Superintendent's action in inviting teachers to serve on the task forces, contending that in doing so he infringed on petitioner's status as exclusive representative of the teachers under Article 77, Sec. 175.

Opinion of the Board

The task forces established by Superintendent Elseroad on July 19, 1968 were to report by August 5, 1968. The issue raised by the petition is, therefore, moot. However, as the basic question raised by the petitioner is likely to come up again, we are prepared to state our opinion thereon.

Article 77, Sec. 175 provides that ''(p)ublic school employees shall have the right to form, join, and participate in the activities of employee organizations of their own choosing for the purpose of being represented as to all matters relating to salaries, wages, hours and other working conditions''. Id. (b). The law further sets forth a procedure under which an organization can qualify as an ''exclusive representative''. Id. (e). It then requires that a public school system ''meet and negotiate with two or more representatives of the employee organization so designated as the exclusive negotiating agent for the public school employees .... with regard to all matters relating to salaries, wages, hours and other working conditions''. Id. (h)(1). The term ''negotiate'' is defined as including ''the duty to confer in good faith, at all reasonable times, and to reduce to writing the matters agreed upon as the result of such negotiations". Id. (h)(2).

Article 77, Sec. 175 also provides that ''(n)othing contained herein shall be deemed to supersede other provisions of this Code....'' Id. (k). Among such other provisions is Article 77. Sec. 155 which reads as follows:

> "The county superintendent of schools shall visit the schools, observe the management and instruction and give suggestions for the improvement of the same. He shall advise with principals and teachers...and shall labor in every way to awaken public interest and to improve educational conditions within the county." (Emphasis supplied.)

The question raised by this petition relates to the scope of Article 77, Sec. 175. As we interpret the language as well as ''the true intent and meaning'' of the law, we believe that it does no more nor less than prescribe a formal procedure by which the representative of the public school employees and the public school employer negotiate on salaries, wages, hours and other working conditions. That procedure must be adhered to and no entity other than the exclusive representative may speak for the employees in these negotiations.

In the facts presented to us we see no evidence that the task forces were in any way infringing on the negotiations process prescribed by law. Nor do we see the exclusivity rights of the petitioner infringed upon. In establishing the task forces the Superintendent did no more than exercise his duties under Article 77, Sec. 155. We find his action of involving members of the teaching staff commendable and would, in fact, suggest that task forces of this type be expanded to include interested members of the public and students as well. The greater the opportunities for a constructive interchange of ideas on educational goals and policies prior to the preparation of the budget, the better the service rendered the community.

We are not suggesting that Section 175(k) gives the Superintendent the power to use Section 155 so as to negate the basic purpose of the 1968 professional negotiations statute. We can conceive that situations might arise in which task forces of the kind established by Montgomery County are used to undermine the negotiation process required by Article 77, Section 175. Nothing contained in this opinion should be construed as preventing us from intervening in such a situation. But in the instant case we find no evidence of any such improper intent.

Petitioner has referred us to two decisions of the United States Supreme Court. Neither of these, in our view, supports its contentions. The issue in N.L.R.B. v. Wooster Div. of Borg-Warner Corp. 356 U.S. 342 (1958) to which petitioner's quotation referred, was whether an employer may insist, in negotiating a union contract, on providing for a pre-strike secret vote of all employees. The quotation from N.L.R.B. v. Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. 301 U.S. 1 (1937), explains the Court's interpretation of the Railway Labor Act, which requires the employer "to refrain from entering into collective labor agreements with anyone other than their true representative as ascertained in accordance with the provisions of the Act." These two decisions refer clearly to the negotiating process and not to contacts between employer and employee outside the negotiating process. They are thus inapposite.

We note from the evidence that at least one of the teachers invited to serve on a task force refused to do so. We urge that as a matter of good policy it be made clear to all teachers that their participation in a task force shall be purely voluntary and that any teacher should feel free to turn down an invitation.

Conclusion

For the reasons stated in our Opinion the petition is dismissed.

FLORIDA SUPREME COURT DECISION IN PINELLAS COUNTY
CLASSROOM TEACHERS ASSOCIATION CASE

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF FLORIDA
JULY TERM, A. D. 1968

The Pinellas County Classroom Teachers Association, Inc., a Florida corporation, and Fred Cekau, its President, and Mrs. Elsie Chamburs, its secretary, Appellants,

vs.

The Board of Public Instruction of Pinellas County, Florida, Appellee.

Case No. 36,773

Opinion filed September 18, 1968
An Appeal from the Circuit Court for Pinellas County, Ben F. Overton, Judge
Cotten, Shivers, Gwynn & Daniel, William F. Daniel and Edwin I. Ford, for Appellants
Edward A. Turville, for Appellee

THORNAL, J.

We take jurisdiction of a direct appeal from a final decree of a circuit court which construes controlling provisions of the Florida and United States Constitutions.

Our ultimate decision is concluded by the power of a chancellor to enjoin a strike by public school teachers.

On January 11, 1967, the appellant, Pinellas County Classroom Teachers Association, Inc., entered into a Professional Affairs Agreement with the appellee, Board of Public Instruction of Pinellas County. In this opinion we shall refer to the Agreement by that designation. The appellant association shall be called C. T. A., and the Board shall be so called. By the Agreement the Board recognized C. T. A. as the organization with which it would negotiate concerning salaries and working conditions of teachers. Both parties accepted "their individual obligations to assure the uninterrupted operation of the School System." By its terms it remained effective until January 15, 1968. Numerous Conferences were held pursuant to the agreement. In April, 1967, new contracts were sent to all teachers employed on an annual contract basis and to those moving into a continuing contract or tenure status. Testimony was that not a single contract was returned to the Board with any statement of reservations. As a result, before the beginning of the 1967-68 school term, the Board had received executed contracts from every teacher who was returning to the system either under tenure or on an annual contract basis. In the former category there were 2,699, and in the latter, 1,073. Copies of the two types of contracts were attached to the complaint and a list of the names of all teachers who signed them was placed in evidence. Additionally, there were 252 teachers under so-called binder agreements. These were new teachers whose certification from the State had not yet been received. In this status they were not members of C. T. A. when suit was filed. However, each of these had previously received and accepted a formal "notification of appointment" which the chancellor correctly held constituted an enforceable agreement.

Each annual contract recited a base salary and then expressly provided that the Board agrees to employ the teacher "at a salary not less than that shown above, and in accordance with the officially adopted salary schedule." Each continuing contract provided that the teacher was employed on a continuing basis "at an annual salary schedule heretofore or hereafter adopted by the County Board." The so-called binder agreement stated that "The signatures on this offer will indicate that this agreement is binding on the part of the County Board and you." The binder provided also that "The salary scale for the coming school year recognizing certification, rank, and acceptable experience, will be observed." This was accepted by the 252 new teachers.

Normally, under state regulations the budget of the Board should have been submitted to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction by August 3, 1967. However, due to legislative delays occasioned by teacher salary problems at the time, the Board could not adopt its 1967-68 salary schedule until August 10, 1967. The Chancellor held that the delay was excusable and we agree.

At the August 10, 1967, Board Meeting the vice-president of C. T. A. read a prepared statement to the effect that the salary schedule was unacceptable despite increases in all categories. On August 15, 1967, the president of C. T. A. delivered to the County Superintendent a written communication to the effect that the teachers could not begin the performance of services until "such things as salaries and general working conditions could be agreed and incorporated in their respective contracts."

With schools scheduled for opening on August 16, 1967, and the announced intention of the teachers to stay away from the classrooms, the Board sought and obtained a temporary injunction to prohibit the strike. The temporary injunction was granted on August 15, 1967, and was made permanent on August 31, 1967, after two days of extensive hearings.

By the injunctive decree the Chancellor announced:

"That the Pinellas County Classroom Teachers Association, Inc., and each of its members who hold an appointment with the Board of Public Instruction of Pinellas County, Florida, be and they are hereby permanently enjoined from striking, failing to report to work, stopping work, or failing to perform all or part of their duties of employment for the purpose of inducing, influencing or coercing a change in compensation or conditions of employment."

The Chancellor supplemented the formal decree with an explanatory opinion which was expressly incorporated into the decree. It is this decree which we now review on appeal.

Although appellants claim that the teachers were only negotiating and had never finalized contracts, this record is abundantly clear that all three classes of teachers had binding contracts with the Board. While the stipulated salaries were stated to be the minimums or those stated in the schedule to be adopted by the Board, the fact remains that all elements of a contract were present and agreed upon in writing. The Chancellor correctly held that all parties bound by his decree had valid and enforceable contracts to teach in the Pinellas County schools for the year 1967-68, beginning August 16, 1967.

Appellants raise various objections to the pleadings. The complaint was properly brought against the appellant Association in order to bind its members by the decree. The Association represented the teachers who had acted in concert through C. T. A. as their bargaining agency. The members of C. T. A. were the only ones bound by the decree. Non-member teachers had not threatened to strike. Relief against them was neither sought, nor obtained.

The complaint adequately alleged bases for declaratory relief. Under Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.130 (a), it was sufficient to attach copies of each of the several contracts and allege that they "were signed respectively by the three categories of teachers.

Appellants have come directly here, claiming that the trial judge passed directly on the validity of Fla. Stat. §839.221 (1967). This statute, in effect, prohibits governmental officers and employees from participating in strikes against the government. It states that "no person shall accept or hold any . . . employment in the service of the state, of any county or of any municipality . . ." who participates in any strike against the governmental employer. The statute guarantees the right to bargain as a member of a union or labor organization but precludes the right to strike against government.

The Chancellor did not really pass on the validity of the statute. He recognized the statute and then announced that even if it were inapplicable, "a person holding a government position has no right to strike without clear and direct legislative authority to do so." He based his ultimate judgment on the general powers of equity to prevent the breakdown of an essential aspect of government because of an unauthorized work stoppage by its employees. In following this course the Chancellor relied upon sound concepts and precedents. Miami Water Works Local No. 654 v. City of Miami, 26 So. 2d 194 (Fla. 1946); Dade County v. Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway & Motor Coach Employees of America, 157 So. 2d 176 (3d Dist. Ct. App. Fla. 1963); Norwalk Teachers' Ass'n. v. Board of Education of City of Norwalk, 83 A. 2d 482 (Conn. 1951). In referring to strikes by public employees the decision last cited credits the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt with the statement that "Such action, Looking toward the paralysis of Government by those who have sworn to support it, is unthinkable and intolerable." We share this view so clearly announced by one whom history records as a political patron saint of the modern labor movement. The Chancellor wisely made clear that his injunction could not preclude an unconditional termination of employment, nor could it be employed to impinge on freedom of speech, assembly or association short of the advocacy of a strike against the government.

The Chancellor did, however, construe the so-called "involuntary servitude" provisions of the state and federal Constitutions. Fla. Dec. of Rights §19, provides in part: "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude . . . shall ever be allowed in this state." Substantially identical proscriptions are announced by U.S. Const. amend. XIII.

Appellants insist that the injunction requires involuntary servitude as proscribed by the foregoing provisions. The Chancellor specifically held that it does not. He clearly stated that involuntary servitude is not involved simply because all he was doing was prohibiting a strike by a group of teachers who had been duly appointed and who had not terminated their employment. The Chancellor did not force the teachers to work. He merely offered them alternatives, which were: (1) to work and thereby comply with their contracts; (2) resign in accordance with the terms of their contracts; or (3) resign in violation of their contracts and subject themselves to the provisions of Fla. Stat. §231.36 (1965), which would make them ineligible for employment in the school system for a period of one year from the date of such violation.

We are not here confronted by an arbitrary mandate to compel performance of personal service against the will of the employee. These people were simply told that they had contracted with the government and that they could, if they wished, terminate the contract legally or illegally, and suffer the results thereof. They could not, however, strike against the government and retain the benefits of their contract positions.

Appellants place great reliance on Henderson v. Coleman, 150 Fla. 185, 7 So. 2d 117 (1942). This decision does not control the instant case. Henderson merely held that one man cannot be forced to serve another against his will.

It then held that where "there was no contractual relation" between a union and a truck operator, the union members could not be required to work for the operator. In the case before us there was the "Professional Affairs Agreement" between the Board and C. T. A. Even more importantly, perhaps, the appellants were told that they could resign or breach their contracts, but they could not strike and bargain for a return to work while retaining their teacher status under contract terms. This is a significant aspect of the instant matter which should be carefully noted in employing this opinion in any future situation.

A "strike is ordinarily thought of as the physical act of employees leaving their workbenches or office desks and departing from their place of employment, but not including in such departure a serverance of the employer-employee relationship." Forkosch, A Treatise on Labor Law (1965). The teachers here were not quitting their jobs or severing the employer-employee relationship. They were free to do that before and after the injunction. What they were really attempting to do here was to exert pressure on the School Board by refusing to go to work, but at the same time laying claim to their positions and asserting the right to go back to work on terms more acceptable to them. This, indeed, was a typical strike. Dayton Co. v. Carpet, etc. Union Local No. 596, AFL, 229 Minn. 87, 39 N. W. 2d 183, cert. denied 339 U. S. 906 (1949); State v. Coleman, 156 Fla. 413, 27 So. 2d 477 (1945).

The conclusion is almost inescapable that the action announced by members of appellant C. T. A. was a strike by any standard. It was a strike against the government which all authorities agree cannot be tolerated in the absence of expressed consent by the government. Local 1526, International Longshoremen's Association, A. F. L. - C.I.O., v. Broward County Port Authority, 183 So. 2d 257 (4th Dist. Ct. App. Fla. 1966); Board of Education of the City of New York v. Shanker, 283 N.Y.S. 2d 548 (Sup. Ct. 1967); Amell v. United States, 384 U.S. 158 (1966); Miami Water Works Local No. 654 v. City of Miami, supra; Norwalk Teachers Association v. Board of Education of the City of Norwalk, supra; Pruzan v. Board of Education of the City of New York, 209 N. Y. S. 2d 966 (Sup. Ct. 1960), aff'd. App. Div., 215 N. Y. S. 2d 718 (1961), aff'd. 9 N. Y. 2d 793, 175 N. E. 2d 164 (1961).

We affirm the holding of the Chancellor to the effect that in the absence of specific statutory authority an employee of government has no right to strike, as herein defined, in order to coerce a change in compensation or conditions of employment. To this end, we agree with the Chancellor when he stated:

> "To allow such action would permit the breakdown of governmental functions, would sanction the control of a governmental function for private gain; and further, to allow such action is the same as saying that governmental employees may deny the authority of government through its duly elected representatives. To permit this is to take the first step toward anarchy."

The decree is affirmed.

CALDWELL, C. J., THOMAS, ROBERTS, DREW, and ADAMS, (Retired), JJ., concur
ERVIN, J., concurs in judgment with opinion

ERVIN, J., concurring in the judgment:

I concur in the judgment of affirmance. I believe that the described contracts which were executed by teachers on a tenure basis or an annual contract basis, or on a binder agreement basis bound them to teach during the ensuing school year. Such contracts rendered them ineligible to resign or refuse to teach, for salary reasons, during that term. Had they not executed such contracts containing the language described in the foregoing opinion, they would have been bound in any way and would have been under no legal or moral obligation to teach during the ensuing school year.

In the matter of the arbitration between:

BARNSTABLE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

and

BARNSTABLE SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Case No. 1130-0043-68

OPINION AND AWARD
Contract interpretation grievance.

This matter was presented to the undersigned at a hearing held in Osterville, Mass. on May 6, 1968. At this hearing Haskell C. Freedman, Esq. appeared for the Association and Alan S. Miller, Esq. appeared for the Committee. Briefs were filed by Mr. Freedman and Mr. Miller on June 28, 1968.

ISSUE

(1) Does the demand for arbitration filed with the American Arbitration Association on January 29, 1968, constitute an arbitrable matter under the terms of the collective bargaining agreement?

(2) If so, what disposition shall be made of that demand for arbitration?

BACKGROUND

The essential portions of the demand for arbitration filed by Richard P. Gleason, Chairman of the Association's Negotiating Committee, read as follows:

''NATURE OF DISPUTE:

From his own experience of the past eight years and by precedent, the Barnstable School System has accepted the teachers' judgement and evaluation of students - which is basic to the integrity of the teaching profession. In violation of Article II in the Agreement hereto attached, the conditions of employment of the undersigned were radically changed and his welfare threatened by a written statement from his administrator containing the following points:

1) the undersigned must abandon his personal judgement of students and substitute higher grades; and

2) to fail to do so would constitute insubordination (which is in effect dismissal).

REMEDY SOUGHT:

1) A retraction of the demand that the undersigned abandon his academic standards; and

2) a statement of policy from the Barnstable School Committee to all teaching personnel re-establishing the teacher's right to grade according to his personal judgement without political (or other) interference.''

The provisions of the Agreement which are pertinent to our inquiry are Article II and Article III.

Article II provides,

''ARTICLE II

COMPENSATION AND OTHER CONDITIONS OF EMPLOYMENT

Except as otherwise provided in this Agreement, the wages, hours, and other conditions of employment applicable on the effective date of this Agreement shall continue to be so applicable unless there is good justification for a change. Before any significant change is made, it will be discussed with the Association.''

Article III defines a grievance in Paragraph A, to wit:

''ARTICLE III

GRIEVANCE AND ARBITRATION

A. A ''grievance'' is a claim based upon an event or condition which affects the welfare and/or conditions of employment of a teacher or group of teachers and/or the interpretation, meaning or application of any of the provisions of this Agreement or any subsequent agreement entered into pursuant to this Agreement.''

In Article III, Paragraph E., Level Four A. the parties provide for the disposition of grievances via arbitration,

''---provided, however, that only grievances that involve the interpretation or application of this Agreement shall be subject to arbitration.---''

The grievant, Edward F. Barry, is a high school chemistry teacher. He has been employed in this capacity by the Barnstable School Committee since 1959. In mid May 1967 Mr. Barry was called to the office of principal Paul J. Prescott and informed that a number of complaints had been made about the marks he was giving to his students. Mr. Barry inquired as to the nature of these complaints and Mr. Prescott explained that he didn't think it was important to discuss that. He said he would like to have Mr. Barry give consideration to re-evaluating his marking system, his teaching approach and the subject material covered. Mr. Barry replied that as a good teacher he was constantly in the process of evaluating his methods, himself and his subject materials. The meeting closed with Mr. Prescott asking Mr. Barry to give the matter further thought.

At the beginning of school in early September 1967, Mr. Prescott visited one of Mr. Barry's chemistry classes for a few minutes one day and for a full period the next day. After this, Mr. Prescott again asked Mr. Barry to his office. Mr. Wannie, the assistant principal, was present at this meeting. Mr. Barry asked that either Mr. Wannie not be present or that he be allowed to have a fellow teacher present, and both requests were denied. Mr. Barry was asked for his opinion as to why his students were achieving at a lower level in chemistry than in any of their other subjects? He answered that he aimed the course at a sufficiently high level so that the median of achievement would be adequate for a student to compete with students in other schools who were seeking admission to Ivy League colleges. Since some of his students had been "assigned" to chemistry they did not in his opinion belong in this class. The meeting ended according to Mr. Barry's testimony, with a request that he make a firm statement within two weeks as to whether he intended to mark his students in line with the present marking curve.

On October 5, 1967, Mr. Prescott again spoke to Mr. Barry about his marking habits and when the latter declined to agree to conform to the marking curve which is apparently followed by all other teachers, Mr. Prescott handed him the following memorandum:

"October 2, 1967

Memo to: Mr. Barry
From: Mr. Prescott

A study of the final marks you gave in college chemistry last year shows the following:

Of the 67 people taking college chemistry, four received A's or 6%; eight received a mark of B or 12%. Quite commonly in the better colleges, an A or B is the only mark that is considered as a college certifying mark so 18% of your students received certifying marks. At the other end of the scale, 30% received D; 13% failed or a total of 43% received either D or a failing mark.

These marks are very much out of line with the marks college preparatory students received in other classes and from other instructors. A further examination of the records shows that your distribution of marks has been about the same for the past three years.

High school chemistry is not regarded as more difficult than numerous other subjects in the high school curriculum. Also, it is very doubtful if the students in your chemistry classes are misplaced to any degree. There is reason to believe that they have sufficient ability and/or intelligence to do good work in chemistry, work which is worthy of a college certifying mark. In view of the above, you are asked to do the following:

1. To report to the principal and to the director of guidance, in writing, any student who you believe is lacking in intelligence and/or the ability to do the work required in a college preparatory chemistry class. Upon the receipt of such a report, the guidance department and myself will immediately go over the student's records and tests with you, in order that appropriate action may be taken.

2. You are also asked to repeatedly examine the teaching techniques you use in your classes, methods of motivation, the employment of audio visual aids, the degree of student participation, etc. This is to be done in order to make every effort possible to increase learning thereby raising standards.

3. You are specifically and directly ordered to revise your marking system to bring it into line with the marks received by college preparatory students in other classes in the school. To fail to do so, will be regarded as an act of insubordination.

4. Enclosed is a Distribution of Marks report for the second quarter, 1966-67."

The graph attached to this memo indicated the grades received by Barnstable High School students for the 2nd quarter 1966-67, as follows:

	College Course	Other Than College Course
A	14%	9%
B	33%	26%
C	28%	35%
D	19%	21%
E	4%	7%

Attached to the graph, the results of which are listed above, was a statement dated February 9, 1967 which read:

"The attached graph of distribution of marks for the second quarter is not to be construed as meaning that administration wishes teachers to mark on a so-called normal curve. Quite the contrary.

The graph is presented to merely serve as a basis of comparison."

ANALYSIS I

Following a full and considered study of all the testimony, documentary evidence and arguments, the Arbitrator is required to find that the Association's January 27, 1968 demand for arbitration does raise an arbitrable issue. The crux of the dispute is over Mr. Barry's right to continue to grade his students as he has in the past, and this clearly is a condition of employment and is covered by Article II of the Agreement. Article II provides in effect that working conditions not changed in negotiations, and applicable on the effective date of the Agreement, shall continue to be so applicable unless there is good justification for a change. It further says that before any significant change is made, it will be discussed with the Association.

Mr. Barry's method of marking his students based on examination results, homework, classroom participation and lab work, has been followed uninterruptedly since he was first retained as a teacher in 1959. As a teacher his first duty is to teach and this is followed closely by a second responsibility which is to evaluate the results of his teaching by marking his students.

A condition of employment is not only one of the fringe benefits attaching to a job, it is each of the separate duties of the job which is performed on a continuing basis. The clerical duties attaching to a teaching assignment is a condition of employment, and so too is the lecturing, the maintaining of discipline, preparing tests, and the grading of students. Each of these functions is a condition of employment for a teacher, and where a teacher is directed to revise his marking system to bring it into line with the marks received by his students in their other classes, this raises a question as to whether or not his rights under Article II of the Agreement have been violated, and this matter is arbitrable under Article III, E, Level Four, as the grievance involves the interpretation or application of the Agreement.

It can not be disputed that school administrators are entitled to express concern about a teacher whose results show that only 18% of his college preparatory students received certifying marks, and 50% of these same students obtained certifying marks in all of their other subjects. Originally Mr. Barry was asked to reconsider his teaching approach, the subject material covered and the possible re-evaluation of his marking system. This was certainly a reasonable request in view of his high percentage of low marks and low percentage of high marks.

Thereafter however, it is apparent that reasonable discussions of the possible causes of this phenomenon did not occur, despite the good intentions of both sides to do what was best for the students. Whether Mr. Barry or Mr. Prescott is primarily responsible for the breakdown in communications which resulted is not determinable from the evidence, but in all likelihood both are at fault for not having sufficient respect for the sincerety of each other.

Mr. Prescott's paragraph numbered 3, on his October 2, 1967 memo to Mr. Barry is the bone of contention and it deserves to be read again:

> ''3. You are specifically and directly ordered to revise your marking system to bring it into line with the marks received by college preparatory students in other classes in the school. To fail to do so, will be regarded as an act of insubordination.''

Mr. Prescott treats Mr. Barry's marking system as the main cause of the low marks received by Mr. Barry's chemistry students, and the arbitrator finds that there is no evidence in the record to support such a conclusion, or to justify a directive to revise his marking system to bring it into line with the marks received by students in other classes.

The School Committee's case is replete with references to the need for Mr. Barry to revise his marking system upward, ostensibly so that more chemistry students will receive A's and B's and thus have a better chance for admission to college. This is a desirable result but the approach of revising a marking system to obtain it, leaves much to be desired. There are enough natural hazards in any marking system which make it difficult to grade a student with precisely the mark he deserves without imposing an artificial standard, with no instructions for its application.

When all teachers were given copies of the 1966-67 second quarter graph showing marks of students at Barnstable High School, a note was appended to each graph. That note was previously quoted and essentially it said that it should not be implied that the administration wanted teachers to grade on a normal curve. On the contrary, the graph was to be used for comparison. However, in Mr. Prescott's memo of October 2, 1967, he specifically directs Mr. Barry to revise his marking system, "to bring it into line with the marks received by college preparatory students in other classes in the school." This is a direct order to mark his students on a so-called normal curve, and it contradicts the February 9, 1967 memo attached to the graphs distributed to the teachers, where this was declared not to be the policy of the administration.

The low marks complained about in Mr. Barry's case could be the result of one or several different factors. He could be covering too much material for the time alloted. He could be covering too much non-sequential material causing some students to have difficulty in picking up new categories. It could be that his course needs to be organized differently, or restructured to provide more lecture time and less class room participation, or vice versa. Wherever improvements are in order they should be made, but Mr. Barry is entitled to advice and counseling along these lines and it is absurd to direct him to change his marking system, when marks are the effect and not the cause of his students inability to better understand the subject matter.

After proper investigation by the administration, which up to now has not taken place, it may be found that a simple rearrangement of the subject matter, or a rewording of certain test questions will result in chemistry students having a better understanding of their subject, with better marks resulting. If this is so then Mr. Barry may be directed to make the rearrangement or rephrase his test questions, and based on his character as revealed at the hearing and his fine record as a teacher over the years, he would be delighted to adopt any suggestion that will result in better learning opportunities for his students.

For the foregoing reasons, the Arbitrator finds that Mr. Prescott's directive to Mr. Barry contained in the October 2, 1967 memo in paragraph numbered 3, constitutes a violation of Mr. Barry's rights under Article II of the Agreement. At the time the Agreement was written Mr. Barry enjoyed the right of marking his students fairly and equitably based on their overall accomplishments in his chemistry classes. Mr. Prescott's directive to him, to in effect mark on a normal curve, is contrary to stated administration policy. There is no justification for imposing such a marking system on this teacher, and the attempt to do so is contrary to the intent and spirit of Article II of the Agreement.

Accordingly, the undersigned Awards that:

(1) The demand for arbitration filed with the American Arbitration Association on January 29, 1968 does constitute an arbitrable issue.

(2) The memo of October 2, 1967 from Mr. Prescott to Mr. Barry, shall be removed from Mr. Barry's personnel file and expunged from his record.

Mr. Barry need not comply with the paragraph numbered 3 of this memo.

BALLARD, individually and as President of said Federation, Defendants.	NO. 588011 J U D G M E N T

The above entitled case came on regularly for hearing before the above-entitled court, the Honorable Andrew J. Eyman Presiding, on February 20, 1968.

Plaintiffs above-named appeared by their attorneys, Messrs. Johnson & Stanton, by Thomas E. Stanton, Jr., Esq. and Marshall A. Staunton, Esq.; defendants Board of Education of the San Francisco Unified School District and all Board members, said School District, and Superintendent of Schools Robert E. Jenkins, appeared by their attorneys, Thomas M. O'Conor, Esq., City Attorney, by George E. Baglin, Esq., Deputy City Attorney, and Irving G. Breyer, Esq., Legal Adviser to the San Francisco Unified School District; and defendants San Francisco Federation of Teachers, Local 61, American Federation of Teachers and James E. Ballard, appeared by their attorneys, Messrs. Levy, DeRoy, Geffner & Van Bourg, by Victor J. Van Bourg, Esq.

The cause was referred to the Court Commissioner, the Honorable William J. Ahlbach, for a hearing concerning all issues of the petition for writ of mandate and complaint for declaratory relief. The hearing commenced on February 27, 1968, and continued on March 4, 13 and 28, and April 15 and 24, 1968. At the conclusion of the hearings on April 24, 1968, the parties, through their respective attorneys of record, signed and thereafter filed an agreed statement of facts to be submitted to the above-entitled court for its determination and judgment. The cause was argued orally before the court on May 28, 1968, and thereupon submitted to the court for decision.

The Court, having considered the pleadings, the agreed statement of facts, the exhibits attached thereto, the testimony supplementary to said statement and the briefs and arguments of counsel, and having heretofore signed and filed its written Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law directing that judgment be entered as hereinafter provided:

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, DECLARED AND DECREED, as follows:

1. That the provisions of article 5 (commencing with Section 13080) of Chapter 1 of Division 10 of Part 2 of the Education Code, commonly known as the Winton Act, are not unconstitutional under the Constitution of the United States and the State of California for any of the reasons specified in the seventh affirmative defense pleaded in the answer of the defendant San Francisco Federation of Teachers, Local 61, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO (hereinafter referred to as the "defendant Federation") on file herein.

2. That defendant Board of Education and its designee, the defendant Superintendent of Schools, are required by the Winton Act to meet and confer in good faith and to endeavor to reach agreements with representatives of certificated employee organizations, including representatives of the defendant Federation, only through the Negotiating Council with regard to the matters set forth in Sections 13084 and 13085 of the Education Code, and the defendant Federation is required by said Winton Act to meet and confer with the defendant Board of Education and the defendant Superintendent of Schools only through the Negotiating Council with regard to said matters.

3. That the Winton Act does not preclude representatives of the defendant Federation or of any other organization representing certificated employees from presenting proposals directly to the defendant Board of Trustees at a public meeting, or any member of said Board or the defendant Superintendent of Schools or any other person from asking questions or otherwise commenting on or responding to any such presentation at such meeting, but the Act does require that meeting and conferring on such proposals be accomplished through the Negotiating Council.

4. That a peremptory writ of mandate be issued out of and under the seal of this Honorable Court and be directed to defendant Board of Education, the defendant members of said Board and the defendant Superintendent of Schools, commanding them that immediately after the receipt of said writ, they meet and confer in good faith and endeavor to reach agreements with representatives of certificated employee organizations, including representatives of the defendant Federation, only through the Negotiating Council of the defendant School District with regard to matters set forth in Sections 13084 and 13085 of the Education Code; and further commanding said defendants, and each of them, to make known to this Honorable Court in the Court Room of Department 20 thereof, in the City Hall of the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, within twenty days after the date this judgment becomes final, how they have executed this writ, and to have with them then and there this writ.

5. That the above-named defendant Board of Education and its designee, the above-named defendant Superintendent of Schools, be and they hereby are, perpetually enjoined and restrained from meeting and conferring or signing agreements directly with representatives of the defendant Federation or of any other certificated employee organization with regard to matters set forth in Sections 13084 and 13085 of the Education Code, outside of and without regard to the Negotiating Council, and the above-named defendants Federation and James E. Ballard be, and they hereby are, perpetually enjoined and restrained from thus meeting and conferring or signing agreements with the defendant Board of Education or the defendant Superintendent of Schools.

6. That plaintiffs above-named do have and recover from defendants costs and disbursements incurred in this proceeding, amounting to the sum of $_____.

In the Matter of:

BULLOCK CREEK SCHOOL DISTRICT OF MIDLAND COUNTY,

Respondent,

Case No. C68 C-16

- and -

BULLOCK CREEK EDUCATION ASSOCIATION,

Charging Party.

B-VIII PERA
Unfair Labor Practices
Discrimination

In a case involving a charge that an employer terminated an employee because of his activities as a member of a union bargaining committee, mere weakness of the employer's defense (explanation) does not satisfy the charging party's burden of proof, absent some affirmative evidence of anti-union motivation on the employer's part.

DECISION AND ORDER

On May 9, 1968, Trial Examiner James R. McCormick issued his Decision and Recommended Order in the above-entitled matter, finding that the Respondent, Bullock Creek School District of Midland County, had not engaged in, and was not engaging in, certain unfair labor practices and recommended that the charges be dismissed as far as they relate to the failure of Respondent to rehire teacher Kenneth Galloway for the 1968-1969 school year. The Trial Examiner withheld his decision on certain other allegations which were heard by him as part of this case. Rulings on those aspects of the case await the filing of briefs, as is more fully set forth in the Trial Examiner's Decision, attached.

The Trial Examiner's Decision and Recommended Order was issued and served upon the interested parties in accordance with Section 16(b) of Act 336 of the Public Acts of 1947 as amended. The parties have had an opportunity to review said Decision and Recommended Order for a period of at least twenty days from date of service thereof on the parties, and no exceptions have been filed by any of the parties to the proceedings.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 16(b) of the Act, the Recommended Order by the Trial Examiner shall become the Order of the Board and the charges and complaint relating to the failure to rehire Galloway are hereby dismissed.

TRIAL EXAMINER'S DECISION
AND
RECOMMENDED ORDER

APPEARANCES:

For the Charging Party: Foster, Campbell, Lindemer and McCurrin
By: James A. White, Esq.

For the Respondent: Thomas and Delaney,
By: John W. Thomas, Esq.

The above-entitled matter came on for hearing, pursuant to Section 16 of Act 336, Public Acts of 1947, as amended (Public Employment Relations Act, hereinafter referred to as PERA), before the undersigned trial examiner of the Labor Mediation Board, on April 4, 1968, at Midland, Michigan, as a result of charges filed on March 13, 1968, by the Bullock Creek Education Association (hereinafter referred to as the Association) against Bullock Creek School District of Midland County (hereinafter referred to as the District) alleging unlawful practices prohibited by PERA Section 10. On the record as a whole, including testimony of witnesses, exhibits, stipulations, and argument of counsel, the undersigned makes the following finding of fact, conclusions of law, and recommended order:

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The District is a public employer within the meaning of PERA and the Association is a labor organization within the meaning of PERA. The Association is the certified exclusive bargaining agent for the certificated teaching personnel of the District.

The charges, as amended, allege certain violations of the District's duty to bargain with the Association. The charges also allege that Kenneth Galloway, a biology teacher in the District's High School, was, on March 26, 1968, notified that he would not be employed for the 1968-1969 school year and that his services would be discontinued as of June 7, 1968. It is alleged that Galloway is being discriminated against because of his Association activities.

At the conclusion of the hearing it was agreed to submit the Galloway case for decision without briefs. Accordingly, the Galloway charge was effectively severed from the remainder of the case, for purposes of the undersigned's decision and recommended order.

The instant decision is concerned with the Galloway charge only. A decision on the remaining charges will be issued following submission of briefs, a due date for which was set at the conclusion of the hearing.

Galloway taught for four years at Bad Axe, Michigan, before being hired by this District for the school year 1967-1968. He is a certificated biology teacher and teaches both regular biology classes and "slow" classes. Pursuant to the Teacher Tenure Act, Act 4 of 1937, Extra Session, as amended, a teacher such as Galloway, upon moving to a new district, is on probation for one school year. If the District does not want him to gain full tenure in the District, it must notify him, at least sixty days prior to the end of the school year, that his performance has not been satisfactory and that he will not be employed further.

Galloway was elected to the Association's negotiating team in November, 1967. He participated in the negotiation meetings held so far this year. The record does not reveal any specific organizational activity on his part other than participating in meetings as a member of the team. The only noteworthy event involving Galloway at a negotiation meeting was a verbal exchange he had with School Board Member Dr. Frederick Brown. Brown, with reference to the top salary proposed by the Association for a teacher with a master's degree, remarked that he would consider taking a teaching position at such a high salary. Galloway cracked that Brown would not be qualified to teach. Brown, obviously flustered, countered that if he (Brown) did decide to take a teaching job Galloway would be the first to go. The remark apparently was an isolated, if potentially threatening, statement. Brown holds a doctor of philosophy degree in biology, Galloway's field, and it is quite plausible that Brown was alluding to his own presumed superior qualifications to teach biology. An Association witness who heard the verbal exchange, so interpreted Brown's meaning.

On January 30, 1968, Galloway was observed in his class by High School Principal Oliver Juengel, as a preliminary to filling out a standard evaluation form which is routinely prepared on probationary teachers in January. Immediately thereafter, Juengel filled out the form and discussed it with Galloway. The form provides for ratings of teachers on thirty-one factors, which fall under four major headings: classroom instruction and management, professional qualities, personal qualities, and parent and community relations. The teacher may be graded superior, good, acceptable, improvement needed, and unsatisfactory. Juengel graded Galloway "good" on the bulk of the factors and "acceptable" on seven of them. On the reverse side of the form, Juengel pointed out that Galloway had some problems in maintaining order during a classroom discussion.

The Assistant Principal observed Galloway's class for about ten minutes sometime later, but did not make an evaluation. He did tell Galloway he would recommend his retention. On March 6, 1968, Superintendent Dalton O. Coe wrote to Galloway telling him the District was uncertain as to whether Galloway ought to be put on tenure and expressing a hope that in the interim the District could bring itself up to date on Galloway's status in order to make a proper determination.

Later in March, Juengel again observed Galloway in his class. Juengel was present for most of an hour and was distressed over cheating and continuous student talking. He did not discuss his concern with Galloway. Subsequently, Juengel recommended to Superintendent Coe that Galloway not be retained. Juengel had concluded, according to his testimony, that Galloway's inability to maintain discipline was serious enough to cause the District to deny him continuing tenure, particularly in view of the fact that Galloway was not a novice but rather an experienced teacher.

Superintendent Coe, relying mainly on Juengel's recommendation, in turn recommended to the School Board that Galloway not be given tenure. Coe testified that he gave additional weight to Galloway's academic record and prior teaching record, the details of which were not made known at the hearing held by the undersigned. The Association objected to all such evidence as too remote to be relevant.

Juengel explained the seemingly favorable written evaluation report on Galloway by saying that he ordinarily only makes use of the first three grades (superior, good, acceptable) in evaluating teachers. Thus, he testified, Galloway's ratings were low when compared to other teachers. This is confirmed by a study of the comparable evaluation reports made on all other probationary teachers at the high school. Of approximately twenty such teachers, Galloway's rating was the worst, and some of these are beginning teachers. The most convincing evidence in support of Juengel's claim is the fact that the two other probationary teachers in the District who have been denied tenure this Spring both received considerably better grades on their evaluation forms than Galloway received.

If sitting as an arbitrator on the merits of the refusal to retain Galloway, the undersigned might well conclude that the District has not treated Galloway fairly or in a professional manner. However, the Tenure Act forces a School Board to discontinue a teacher's services or allow him to obtain tenure privileges, which makes it relatively difficult to remove him at a later time. In any event, the undersigned may not act in the capacity of an arbitrator or tenure commission which must determine if just cause for the termination existed. The sole statutory issue here is whether the Association has proved by a preponderance of the evidence that the District was motivated by Galloway's activities as a member of the Association's bargaining committee. The Association, in my mind, has not carried this burden of proof. To be specific, absent some affirmative evidence of anti-Association motivation, mere weakness of the Employer's defense does not satisfy the burden of proof. I find that there is insufficient evidence on which to predicate a finding of a violation of Section 10 of PERA in connection with the decision to not retain Galloway.

RECOMMENDED ORDER

On the basis of the foregoing findings of fact and conclusions of law, and on the record as a whole, the undersigned recommends that the Board enter an Order dismissing the charges as to Galloway. The remainder of the case, as noted above, will be treated in a separate decision after the filing of briefs.

AMERICAN ARBITRATION ASSOCIATION

In the Matter of the Arbitration

between

The Pittsfield Teachers Association

and

The Pittsfield School Committee

CASE NO. 1130-0209-68

Introduction

The undersigned, who was designated Arbitrator in the above-entitled matter by the American Arbitration Association pursuant to the terms of the parties' January 1, 1967 Agreement, held a hearing in Pittsfield, Massachusetts on July 25, 1968 at the Plunket School at which the School Committee was represented by Leon J. Kowal, Esq. and the Association by George R. Shea, Jr., Esq.

The Issue

As agreed by the parties at the commencement of the arbitration hearing, the issue presented to the Arbitrator for a decision is:

> Has the contract been violated by the decision of the School Committee to deny the request of the Grievant for sabbatical leave, after the Superintendent has made a recommendation, on the grounds that the request was not received on time?

The Facts

The Grievant, John A. Massimiano, a teacher and subsequently Director of Health, Safety, and Special Education, began his service in the Pittsfield Schools in 1951.

The contract calls for a written request for sabbatical leaves to be "received by the Superintendent of Schools" no later than December 31 each year. The Grievant testified that his request, although dated December 31, was actually submitted at 3:30 p.m. on Friday, December 29, in the official "incoming" mailbox in the outer office of the Superintendent of Schools. The school office was closed on December 30, 31, and January 1 because of the holiday weekend. The Superintendent himself was not in the office in the several days prior to or after the deadline, but authorized an Assistant Superintendent, Lincoln Lynch, to open the mail on his behalf. Witnesses testified that school administrators knew in advance of the Grievant's intent to file a request, that the office was open until 5:00 p.m. on the 29th, that Assistant Superintendent Lynch was not only empowered to open the mail but was "very efficient" and on duty until late in the afternoon.

The Grievant testified that on Tuesday, January 2, Lynch asked if he had submitted the request. Not until the morning of January 3 was the receipt of the request acknowledged by the process of "time stamping," the usual Pittsfield School Office practice in handling certain other requests for leave. The time stamping, usually done by a secretary, on this request was witnessed on January 3 by Lynch and by the Assistant for Personnel, Thomas J. Roche.

Superintendent James P. Reynolds recommended to the School Committee that the request be granted. At its March 13 meeting, the Superintendent asked the Grievant several questions concerning his request (mainly about grants for advanced study) but the School Committee voted to deny the request. The Association filed a grievance on March 19 on the grounds that Article XX on sabbatical leaves had been violated since leaves for study and travel will be granted upon recommendation of the superintendent. The School Committee decided that the request for sabbatical leave was not submitted in conformance with the contract, hence no violation.

Relevant Contract Provisions

Article XX: SABBATICAL LEAVES

> Upon recommendation by the Superintendent of Schools, sabbatical leaves will be granted for study or travel to a member of the professional staff by the Committee subject to the following conditions:
> 1. No more than one (1)% per cent of the professional staff will be absent on sabbatical leave at any one time.
> 2. Requests for sabbatical leave must be received by the Superintendent of Schools in writing in such form as may be required by the Superintendent of Schools no later than December 31, and action must be taken on all such requests no later than April 1 of the school year preceding the school year for which the sabbatical leave is requested.
> 3. The teacher has completed at least seven (7) consecutive full school years of service in the Pittsfield School System.
> 4. Teachers on sabbatical leave will be paid at three-quarters (¾) of their regular salary rate....
> 5. The teacher will agree to return to employment in the Pittsfield School System for one (1) full year....

Position of the Parties

The Association contends that the request was made on time on December 29 and that the applicant should not be penalized for any delay in stamping it. It holds that the School Committee, under the provision of the contract, is obliged to grant a request that carries the favorable recommendation of the Superintendent. This provision, it asserts, makes approval automatic. The Association asks that this interpretation be upheld by the Arbitrator.

The Committee contends that it is bound to grant sabbatical leaves only if the conditions listed in Article XX are met (completion of seven years, request by December 31, etc.). It concedes that otherwise the School Committee is compelled to honor such recommendations, but only if the precedent conditions are met. The School Committee asserts that the request was not received until two days after the deadline, and that the Committee then was not bound to accept the recommendation.

Discussion and Opinion

The Arbitrator is asked to interpret the contract and to render a decision on its application in this particular instance.

The parties do not dispute the interpretation that the contract does delegate to the Superintendent the determination of who is to receive sabbatical leaves. The School Committee spokesman at the hearing acknowledged that whether or not the School Committee intended such delegation, that indeed it had agreed to contract language which had that effect. This ordinarily means that anyone deemed eligible (e.g., at least seven years of service, with a written request no later than December 31, agreeing to return, etc.) up to and no more than one (1) per cent (%) of the professional staff can be recommended with School Committee concurrence following as a matter of policy.

But the opening clause of Article XX does specify conditions which are properly interpreted as prerequisites as important as the presence or absence of the Superintendent's recommendation. Clearly the Superintendent cannot recommend more than one per cent nor any teacher with less than seven years of service and expect the School Committee to grant the leave. The clause does specify that it is a Committee's function to make the grant but "...sabbatical leaves will be granted... by the Committee subject to the following conditions." The receipt of a request no later than December 31 is another one of those conditions. The Association as well as the Committee agreed on the phrase "subject to the following conditions" concerning the Committee granting this category of leave.

The question of whether the request was submitted by the deadline is disputed by the parties. The Grievant testified under oath that he submitted the letter in the same fashion as he had successfully requested consideration for promotions earlier in his career. The office mailbox was an ordinary mode of written communication with the Superintendent.

No one witnessed the submission of the request.

Nevertheless, the contract calls for the request to be received by the Superintendent of Schools by December 31. The evidence seems to support the fact that neither the Superintendent nor his designated substitute did receive the request until after the deadline.

1. No administrator or secretary in the office on December 29 was asked to receive the request or acknowledge its receipt on behalf of the Superintendent.

2. Despite procedures for sorting and opening the office mail (several times a day according to witnesses) the request was not acknowledged until the second working day after the deadline.

3. If the request had been acknowledged on the last working day before the deadline, the time stamp for December 29 might have been affixed to a letter dated December 31.

4. The Grievant testified that he was asked on Tuesday, January 2, by an Assistant Superintendent about whether he had submitted a written request.

5. The receipt of the letter was first acknowledged by two administrators on January 3, to which fact one of the witnesses testified at the hearing.

The Superintendent acknowledged that he ignored the time stamp when he made the recommendation. But to ignore any of the conditions which govern the Committee decision was not his but rather a Committee prerogative. The Committee can insist that all contract conditions be enforced by administrators just as teachers can grieve if deprived of their rights under the contract.

The efficiency of the office staff or of other administrators acting on behalf of the Superintendent was affirmed in testimony which satisfied the Arbitrator that no relaxation of work hours or office practices characterized the end of the 1967 calendar year. Nor were there other issues advanced or facts questioned. The fact that the Grievant subsequently decided to leave the system, which might "moot" a lawsuit, did not enter into the Committee argument nor the Arbitrator's decision. Any previous differences between the Grievant and School Committee or other administrators were not raised as factors in this case.

In rendering a decision the Arbitrator is governed by the language of the contract:

> ...The arbitrator's decision will be in writing and will set forth his findings of fact, reasoning and conclusions on the issues submitted. The arbitrator will be without power or authority to make any decision which requires the commission of an act prohibited by law or which is violative of the terms of this Agreement.

In summary, the Arbitrator interprets the contract as delegating to the Superintendent the right to select and recommend staff members for sabbatical leave with Committee approval following automatically if all the stipulated conditions are met. In this particular case, the Arbitrator finds the weight of evidence establishes receipt of a written request after rather than before the stipulated end-of-year deadline. The Committee has the right to insist that all conditions be met and to overrule a favorable recommendation if it determines that one or more conditions have not been met.

Award

The grievance is denied.

Negotiation Agreements

AGREEMENT

between

THE JACKSON COMMUNITY COLLEGE

and

THE JACKSON COMMUNITY COLLEGE

FACULTY ASSOCIATION

1968 - 1970

MASTER AGREEMENT

This Agreement entered into this_____ day of _____, 1968, by and between the Board of Trustees of Jackson Community College, Jackson, Michigan, operating under Act 331, P.A. 1966 as amended of the State of Michigan, hereinafter called the ''Board'' and the Jackson Community College Faculty Association, a District of the Michigan Association of Higher Education, hereinafter called the ''Association.''

WITNESSETH

WHEREAS the Board and the Association recognize and declare that providing quality higher education for youth and adults of this college district is their mutual aim and that the character of such education depends predominantly upon the quality and morale of the college professional personnel, and

WHEREAS the members of the faculty are particularly qualified to assist in formulating policies and to assist in determining educational programs, and

WHEREAS the members of the faculty recognize that their primary responsibility is to properly and ethically perform their professional duties, and

WHEREAS the Board has a statutory obligation, pursuant to Act 336 of the Michigan Public Acts of 1947, as amended to negotiate with the Association as the representative of its professional personnel, excluding the administrative personnel, with respect to salaries and terms and conditions of employment, and

WHEREAS the Board and the Association pledge themselves to seek to extend the advantages of public education to every student without regard to race, creed, religion, sex, age, color, or national origin and to seek to achieve equality of educational opportunity for all students, and

WHEREAS the parties have reached certain understandings which they desire to confirm in this Agreement,

In consideration of the following mutual covenants, it is hereby agreed as follows:

ARTICLE I

RECOGNITION

A. The Board hereby recognizes the Association as the sole and exclusive negotiating representative for all college professional personnel under contract on a full-time or part-time basis, excluding seminar instructors, employed or to be employed by the Board, excluding the President; the President-elect; the Vice Presidents; the Deans; the Director of Admissions and Registrar; the Directors of Continuing Education, Paramedical Programs, Development and Construction, and the Director of Information and Alumni Relations; the Comptroller; the Supervisor of Purchasing; the Supervisor of Construction; and the Superintendent of Maintenance, - all of which collectively are designated as the Bargaining Unit.

B. The term ''Instructor'' shall include all instructors, assistant professors, librarians, counselors, coordinators, directors (other than those excluded above), division chairmen and department heads, and references to instructors shall include both male and female instructors.

C. The Board agrees not to negotiate with any teachers' organization other than the Association for the duration of this Agreement.

D. The Board specifically recognizes the rights of itself and its employees appropriately to invoke the assistance of the State Labor Mediation Board or a mediator from such public agency, or an arbitrator appointed pursuant to the provisions of this Agreement.

ARTICLE II

RIGHTS OF THE BOARD

Subject to the provisions of this agreement and except as expressly provided otherwise by the terms of this agreement, the Board of Trustees and the President reserve and retain full rights, authority and discretion, in the proper discharge of their duties and responsibilities, to control, supervise and manage the Jackson Community College and its professional staff, to determine and administer educational policy, to operate the College and to direct the professional staff, and otherwise retain all rights, authority and discretion which are exclusively vested in the Board of Trustees or the President under governing law, ordinances, rules and regulations as set forth in the Constitution and laws of the State of Michigan and of the United States.

ARTICLE III

RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES
OF THE INSTRUCTORS AND THE ASSOCIATION

A. Pursuant to Act 336 of the Public Acts of 1947, as amended, the Board hereby agrees that every eligible professional employee of the Board shall have the right freely to organize, join and support the Association for the purpose of engaging in collective bargaining or negotiation and other concerted activities for mutual aid and protection. As a duly elected body exercising governmental power under the laws of the State of Michigan, the Board undertakes and agrees that it will not directly or indirectly discourage or deprive or coerce any instructor in the enjoyment of any rights conferred by Act 336 or other laws of Michigan or the Constitution of Michigan or the Constitution of the United States; that it will not discriminate against any instructor with respect to any term or condition of employment by reason of his membership in the Association, his participation in any activities of the Association or collective professional negotiations with the Board, or his institution of any grievance, complaint or proceeding under this Agreement, or otherwise with respect to any terms or conditions of employment.

B. Nothing in this Agreement shall relieve or prevent an individual instructor, whether a member of the Association or not, from performing his professional duties or from exercising his independent judgment as a member of the faculty or of his department or division.

C. Nothing contained herein shall be construed to deny or restrict to any instructor rights he may have under the Michigan General School Laws or other laws and regulations as they apply to community college instructors. The rights granted to instructors in this Agreement are in addition to those provided elsewhere.

D. The Association and its representatives shall have the right to use the college facilities at all reasonable hours for meetings at no charge. It is understood that the Association will pay for any additional costs or custodial services required.

E. Duly authorized representatives of the Association shall be permitted to transact official Association business on college property at all reasonable times, provided that this shall not interfere with nor interrupt normal college operations.

F. The Association shall have the right to use college facilities and equipment, including typewriters, duplicating equipment, other business machines, and all types of audio-visual equipment at reasonable times, when such equipment is not otherwise in use. The Association shall pay for the reasonable cost of all materials and supplies incident to such use.

G. Faculty bulletin boards and other established media of faculty communication shall be made available to the Association for official business.

H. The Board agrees to furnish to the President of the Association pertinent information concerning the College District. This includes, but is not limited to, the professional staffing and the financial resources of the College; agendas, minutes and all attachments of all public Board meetings; treasurer's reports; enrollment data; names and addresses and position on the salary schedule of all professional personnel in the bargaining unit; and such other information as requested by the Association which will assist it in developing intelligent, accurate, informed, and constructive programs on behalf of the faculty and students.

I. The Board shall notify the Association as soon as possible concerning any new or modified fiscal, budgetary or tax programs, construction programs, or major revisions of educational policy, which are proposed or under consideration.

J. The provisions of this agreement and the wages, hours, terms, and conditions of employment shall be applied in a manner which is not arbitrary, capricious, nor discriminatory, and without regard to race, creed, national origin, age, sex, marital status, or political affiliation.

K. All professional staff, including supplemental and part-time instructors, must submit the following notarized statement as required by the State of Michigan:

> "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support the constitution of the United States of America and the constitution of the State of Michigan, and that I will faithfully discharge the duties of my position, according to the best of my ability."

L. Employees who are found to be members of organizations listed by the United States or Michigan Departments of Justice as subversive or unlawful, or who retain membership in such organizations after they receive such listings, shall have their contracts terminated immediately upon receipt of proof of such by the Board of Trustees.

M. Consistent with the Code of Ethics of the education profession, the private and personal life of any instructor is not within the appropriate concern or attention of the Board except as such behavior may affect the College adversely.

N. Each instructor shall have the right to review and challenge that part of the contents of his personnel file that has been developed concerning his employment by the College. A representative of the Association may be requested to accompany the instructor in such a review. Confidential credentials and related personal references normally obtained at the time of employment are specifically exempted from such review and shall be removed prior to the review of the file.

O. A report from the Association President or his designated representative shall appear on the Agenda of all Board meetings if requested prior to the start of the meeting.

P. The responsibility of the President of the Faculty Association shall be taken into consideration in the assignment of his class load and schedule. No extra-duty assignments or overload will be made unless requested by him.

Q. The faculty will be consulted regarding the selection of the College President whenever such position is vacant or a successor is to be selected for the incumbent.

R. Instructors are expected to live in a location from which reasonable access to the College is possible at all times.

S. Instructors are expected to comply with reasonable rules, regulations and directions adopted by the Board or its representatives from time to time which are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Agreement, provided that a faculty member may reasonably refuse to work under conditions which threaten physical safety or well-being.

T. The Board and the Association recognize that the NEA-MEA Code of Ethics of the Education Profession (See appendix C) shall define acceptable criteria for professional behavior.

1. The Association shall deal with violations of the Code by its members.

2. Action by the Association on unethical conduct of any of its members shall not prevent action by the Board on the same offense.

U. The Association recognizes that abuses of Personal Illness Leave or other leaves, chronic tardiness or absence, willful deficiencies in professional performance or other violations of discipline by an instructor reflect adversely upon the teaching profession and create undesirable conditions in the College.

1. Alleged breaches of discipline, violations of the Master Agreement, or of the Code of Ethics of the Education Profession shall be promptly reported to the offending instructor and to the Association.

2. The Association will use its best resources to correct breaches of professional behavior by any instructor and, in appropriate cases, may lend its support to proper administrative disciplinary procedures.

V. The President or his representative shall have the right to counsel with an instructor regarding his professional performance or behavior. In the event a reprimand, warning or disciplinary action is planned, reasonable advance notification shall be given the instructor and either party shall be entitled to have present a representative of the Association. If the request is made, no action shall be taken until such member is present.

W. Instructors on salary step 10 in September 1968 shall be designated as "Assistant Professors," and those on salary steps 8 and 9 will be reviewed prior to November 1 by the Personnel Review Committee and recommendation made to the President for presentation to the Board for the rank of Assistant Professor.

ARTICLE IV

PAYROLL DEDUCTIONS

A. Instructors may at any time sign and deliver to the Comptroller and the Treasurer of the Association an assignment authorizing deduction of continuing membership United Profession dues (Association, Michigan Association of Higher Education, and American Association of Higher Education). Such authorization shall continue in effect unless such authorization is formally revoked in writing by the instructor and copies thereof delivered to the Treasurer of the Association and to the Comptroller between June 1 and September 1 of a given year.

B. The deduction of membership dues shall be made monthly from regular check payment for ten months, beginning in September and ending in June of each fiscal year, and the Comptroller agrees to remit all monies so deducted according to the directions of the Executive Board of the Association, accompanied by a list of instructors from whom the deductions have been made.

C. The Association assumes full responsibility for the validity and legality of such employee's deductions as are made by the College pursuant to this section.

D. In lieu of Association membership, full-time instructors may sign an authorization of deduction for an amount equivalent to the United Profession Dues as a representation fee and deliver such authorization to the Comptroller, with a copy to the Association Treasurer.

E. Payroll deductions for United Fund, Jackson County School Employees Credit Union, tax sheltered annuities, U.S. government savings bonds, group insurance premiums, and any other deductions mutually agreed upon are also authorized.

F. Mandatory deductions will be made for Social Security, Federal and Michigan Income Tax, retirement, and other deductions required by law.

ARTICLE V

CONDITIONS OF WORK

A. The parties recognize that the availability of optimum school facilities for both student and instructor is desirable to insure the high quality of education that is the goal of both the Association and the Board. It is also acknowledged that the primary duty and responsibility of each instructor is to teach and that the organization of the College and the College day should be directed at insuring that the energy of the instructor is primarily utilized to this end.

B. Teaching Loads

1. Fulltime teaching load excluding composition courses and vocational programs is considered to be no more than 16 class contact hours per week during the fall and spring semesters. A class contact hour is defined as any regularly scheduled fifty-minute instructional activity.

2. Recognizing that the teaching of English composition requires individual student conferences and adequate time for the grading of papers outside of the classroom situation, English compositon classes are equated at 4/3 in calculating contact hours.

3. Recognizing that student counseling and student evaluation are carried on within the laboratory situation, full-time teaching load for instructors assigned exclusively to vocational programs is considered to be no more than 25 class contact hours per week during the fall and spring semesters.

4. Librarians shall be scheduled for an eight-hour work day exclusive of the lunch hour and a five day week.

5. Counselors are expected to be on duty forty hours a week and to perform extra duties from time to time for which the counselors' extra stipend is paid.

6. Whenever possible, a supplemental instructor shall be employed for no more than one-half of the full-time teaching load.

7. Supplemental instructors shall not be employed where there are sufficient course demands to justify the employment of a full-time instructor and providing qualified, full-time instructors are available.

C. Overloads

1. Because assignments vary from one semester to another, being slightly more or less than the regular load, the following "carryover" procedure shall apply in calculating overloads:

   a. A one-hour flexibility will be maintained throughout the year. An instructor in the college sector assigned 17 hours the first semester will not be paid overload until the second semester.

   b. If his assignment is 16 hours or more the second semester, he will be paid for the extra hour plus any overload assigned the second semester.

   c. If his assignment is 15 hours or less the second semester, he will not receive pay for the extra hour taught during the first semester.

2. No teaching load shall exceed 20 hours per semester or 36 hours for a full year in the college sector without prior written consent of the instructor.

3. No teaching load in the vocational sector shall exceed 25 contact hours per semester without the written consent of the instructor.

4. Compensation for overloads will be paid at 1/50th of the instructor's basic annual salary for each contact hour of overload above regular teaching loads as defined in B.

5. Overload assignments will not be included in the regular faculty contracts or letters of appointment but will be authorized on supplementary contracts clearly stating the amount of the overload and compensation therefor.

6. Any overload shall be limited to one registration period without prior written approval of the instructor. Overloads will be avoided whenever possible.

D. Calendar

1. The 1968-69 calendar is Appendix D of this agreement.

2. In the event the opening of the College is delayed due to the unavailability of facilities, the negotiating teams will meet to resolve calendar and scheduling problems.

   a. Christmas vacation shall be from December 23 through January 3.

   b. Legal holidays shall be observed.

3. The College calendar for 1969-70 shall be negotiated prior to December 1, 1968. The calendar for 1970-71 shall be negotiated prior to December 1, 1969.

E. College Week

1. The normal college week is Monday through Friday although classes may be scheduled on Saturday.

2. If an instructor is assigned classes on Saturday, he will not be assigned classes within a 48 hour block of time without his written permission.

3. Assignment for Saturday classes shall be for no more than one registration period without prior written consent of the instructor.

F. College Day

1. The Division Chairmen and Department Heads shall consult with each instructor concerning the scheduling of his classes. Final determination of schedule is made by the appropriate instructional Dean.

2. Instructional assignments may be at any time of the college day, but following an evening assignment no instructor shall be assigned a class before 10:00 a.m. without his written permission.

3. Evening classes from 6:00 p.m. shall be assigned to an instructor no more than two evenings per week without his prior written consent.

4. A fulltime instructor shall not be assigned to evening classes for more than one semester per year without his prior written consent.

5. Every effort shall be made, beginning with the spring semester of the 1968-69 year, for the hours of 4:00 to 6:00 p.m. on Wednesday afternoons to be cleared of scheduled activities in order to allow for associational and institutional meetings. Scheduling for these meetings shall be established through the College Steering Committee.

6. Each instructor shall have an hour free for lunch each day between eleven and two unless written approval waiving the lunch hour is received from the instructor.

7. An instructor will not be scheduled to classes on both campuses without his prior written consent.

G. Class Size

1. Because the student-instructor ratio is an important aspect of an effective educational program, standards for class size in each division and department of the College shall be established by mutual agreement in writing between the Administration and the instructor with the assistance of the Division Chairman or Department Head concerned. In the event no agreement is reached, class size shall be assigned but subject to the grievance procedure. Class size shall be established on the basis of equity and fairness consistent with maintaining the quality of instruction at a Community College level.

2. An "Inventory of Faculty Teaching Loads" shall be distributed to all members of the professional staff each semester.

H. Course Preparation

1. Assignment of course preparation shall be arranged within each department or division.

I. Office Hours

1. It is expected that reasonable attention be given to office hours and student counseling.

2. Class schedules and office hours shall be posted in the instructor's office and submitted in triplicate to the Vice President for Instruction.

3. Supplemental instructors shall be available at least one hour each week for student counseling.

J. Campus Assignments

1. Teaching assignments, involving full-time instructors, outside the present campuses will be discussed with the Association. If no agreement can be reached the position shall be assigned subject to the grievance procedure. It is understood that the instructor's desires shall be considered in making such assignments and due consideration shall also be given to the extra time and expense involved.

K. Registration

1. Registration responsibilities shall continue as set forth in existing policies.

L. Sponsorship of Student Activities

1. Instructors are expected to devote reasonable time to student activities.

2. Assignment will be based on the instructor's preference as much as possible.

3. Assignments will be made, if necessary, but an instructor will be excused from participation if there is good reason.

4. Elected officers of the Association and members of the Association Negotiating Team may be excused from student activity sponsorship if they request it.

M. Attendance at College Functions

1. Commencement responsibilities are as set forth in existing policies.

2. Instructors are expected to attend Commencement Exercises for registration periods in which they are employed.

3. Academic attire is provided for the June Commencement at the expense of the College. It is not used for the other graduations.

N. Teaching Facilities

1. Whenever possible there shall be separate enclosed offices for all full-time instructors with not more than two instructors to each office.

2. Reasonable instructional and office equipment, classroom space, and supplies will be provided for each instructor.

3. Whenever possible, a telephone shall be provided for each office complex, and this phone shall be operative for in and out calls during all the hours when instructors are on duty.

4. Clerical service shall be provided for each office complex in the College.

O. Faculty Facilities

1. There shall be provided in each building used for offices or instruction adequate restroom and lavatory facilities exclusively for faculty use.

2. One room in each instructional building shall be reserved for use as a faculty lounge appropriately furnished.

3. There shall be adequate facilities where possible in each building for women faculty to lie down.

P. Faculty Parking

1. There shall be provided on each campus adequate space exclusively for faculty parking convenient to each building.

2. Faculty parking shall be furnished at no cost for all faculty owned cars.

Q. Vacancies and Promotions

1. Whenever any vacancy in any professional position in the College shall occur or whenever a new position is created, the Board shall publicize it by providing written notice of such vacancies to each faculty member. Additional assignments, other than overloads, resulting in compensation in excess of $300 per semester shall be circulated.

2. A vacancy shall be publicized at the time job applications are to be received. Notices shall go to the faculty first.

3. Instructors shall apply for such vacancies in writing.

4. In filling vacancies in professional positions, the Board shall give first considerations to the candidates within the college who desire to change their assignments.

5. Appointments shall be made in the best interests of the College, in terms of the job descriptions for each position, considering both the proven competence of present employees and the desirability of the introduction of new viewpoints and personalities.

6. Applying for another position, either within the college or elsewhere, is recognized as a professional right and shall not affect adversely an employee's status in his present position.

7. Each applicant shall be notified of the disposition of his application prior to the publication of the name of the successful applicant.

8. The Board shall have final authority in all appointments.

R. Transfers

1. Any instructor who shall be transferred to a supervisory or executive position and shall later return to an instructor's status shall be entitled to retain such rights, including experience credit on the salary schedule, as he may have had under this Agreement prior to such transfer.

2. 2. Contemplated changes in assignment shall be discussed with all instructors concerned and with their Division Chairmen or Department Heads and Dean.

3. Such assignments shall be made in the area of the instructor's competency. The instructor's preference shall be honored whenever possible.

4. Objection to such changes is subject to the grievance procedure.

5. Instructors wishing to change or rotate assignments may make such requests which will be honored whenever possible.

S. Academic Freedom

The rights of the instructor to deal with controversial subjects in his area of competence within the classroom under the protection of the College and the responsibility of the instructor to protect his own and the institution's integrity in these matters as outlined in the Code of Ethics of the Education Profession are confirmed and accepted.

The following quotation is from "Guide for the Evaluation of Institutions of Higher Education," NCA:

"Freedom of the college or university faculty member to present the truth as he sees it in his area of competence both in the classroom and in the reports of his research activities is essential to the accomplishment of the purposes of our society . . . The student can enjoy the freedom to learn only where a corresponding freedom to teach is guaranteed to instructors . . .

"The faculty member, too, has responsibilities in the matter of academic freedom. He must be careful not to use the privileged position he occupies in discussion of subjects other than those in which he possesses special competence as a scholar. For the protection of his profession and his institution he should strive at all times to be accurate and to exercise appropriate restraint in his public utterances. Further, he should recognize that there are limitations on his freedom of expression and action which are dictated by . . . good taste."

T. Dual-Department Assignments

Full-time faculty members who are assigned duties in more than one department or division shall have membership in all departments in which they serve.

U. College Steering Committee

1. The college Steering Committee shall be established in accordance with the procedures agreed to in negotiation, and appears in Section IV of the Faculty Manual.

2. The administration and Association shall cooperatively establish the committee and implement its functions.

ARTICLE VI

SUMMER SESSIONS

A. Teaching Loads

1. Full-time teaching load is established at 16 contact hours per week, but a 15 contact hour assignment is considered a full load.

2. Both fractional and overloads are computed on the basis of a seven-week summer session and on the basis of 16 contact hours per week.

3. A 17 contact hour schedule is not considered as an overload if the class load average is 15 students or fewer.

B. Non-teaching Assignments

1. Non-teaching assignments are based on a 35-hour week for a full schedule.

C. Class Size

1. Class sizes are established on the same basis as the spring and fall semesters.

D. Assignments

1. Instructors in the summer session shall be assigned with their own division or department unless no regular instructor is available.

2. Assignments will be made, whenever possible to instructors requesting summer appointments.

3. Assignments shall be arranged on a rotating basis on a schedule developed by mutual agreement under the division chairman or department head.

4. The Administration shall determine necessary institutional research and curriculum work subject to a maximum of 12 half-load commitments to be divided in any way among the departments and divisions.

E. Summer Commitments

1. By January 15 the Faculty will be advised what courses, experimental and normal, will be offered in the coming summer session in order to present a well-rounded summer program. Firm contracts for scheduled courses will be issued not later than May 1. When a scheduled course for which a teaching contract has been issued does not materialize because of insufficient student interest, the instructor shall have the option of accepting a comparable, professional non-teaching assignment or of accepting a proportionally reduced contract.

2. Faculty members wishing to offer experimental classes not on the schedule or courses not generally offered in a summer session will make their desire known to the Administration as soon as possible and state whether they are willing to stand by to teach such a course. The course will either be approved by placing it on the schedule or rejected. Contracts for these courses will be issued when 5 or more students are registered.

3. The basic summer session does not preclude special offerings that vary in length from the 7-week session.

F. Pay

1. The 1969 basic summer session will consist of a 7-week session at 1/6 of the instructor's 10-month contract computed on the instructor's 1969-70 salary.

2. The 1970 basic summer session will consist of a 7-week session at 1/6 of the instructor's 10-month contract computed on the instructor's 1969-70 salary and with step increases for those eligible.

3. Compensation for summer overloads will be paid at 1/100th of instructor's basic annual salary for each contact hour per week of overload assignment.

4. English composition classes registering more than 20 students will be compensated for on the 4/3rds basis of the regular semester.

G. Summer Contracts

1. An instructor employed for the summer session is issued a 12-month contract or letter of appointment for the fiscal year. It is understood that this 12-month contract or letter of appointment will supersede any 10-month contract or letter of appointment issued on April 15.

ARTICLE VII

DIVISION CHAIRMEN AND DEPARTMENT HEADS

A. Selection and Appointment

1. Division Chairmen and Department Heads are appointed annually and they may succeed themselves.

2. Appointments are made by the President of the College. Any member of the department or division may nominate a candidate or may apply for the appointment. Recommendation may also be initiated by an administrator.

3. Recommendation and nomination shall be submitted by May 1. Appointments shall be made no later than June 1 of each year.

4. If the chairmanship should for any reason become vacant before the expiration of the term of service of the incumbent, the same procedure will be followed to fill the vacancy for the remainder of the term.

B. Salary and Teaching Load

1. Each division chairman or department head will be granted a reduction from his normal teaching load for the purpose of carrying out his responsibilities.

2. Each will receive in addition a salary increment established in Article X, Section K.

C. Responsibilities

1. The duties of the department heads and division chairmen will be developed cooperatively by them and the appropriate administrator, and will be set forth in the job descriptions for their positions. While in the exercise of administrative functions the Division Chairmen and Department Heads are responsible to the Board.

2. Subject to the provisions of Article VI on the Summer Session, summer employment may be offered to but not required of department heads and division chairmen. An acting head or chairman will be appointed to serve in the absence of the incumbent.

ARTICLE VIII

c. The employee contributed paid-up life insurance is mandatory for all new instructors.

d. An instructor, upon leaving the employment of the College, may keep the paid-up insurance or receive a full refund of all contributions.

e. The paid-up portion of the life insurance does not pay an additional amount in the event of the death of the instructor while in the employment of the College.

5. Accident Insurance

a. At the option of the instructor, a contributory accidental death coverage may be selected.

b. This coverage offers a minimum of $20,000 additional accident benefits with a maximum, in $10,000 increments, of up to $100,000 but not to exceed ten times the instructor's basic annual contract.

c. Coverage equal to 50% of that on the instructor may also be elected for the spouse.

d. The rate for the instructor is .06 per month per $1,000 of benefit, and the rate for the spouse is .045 per month per $1,000 of benefit subject to change by the insurance company.

6. Travel accident coverage while on college business

a. Faculty members traveling on College business are covered by a death and dismemberment accident policy with The Insurance Company of North America of ten times the annual salary with a minimum of $50,000 and a maximum of $200,000.

b. This coverage is paid by the College.

7. An ad-hoc Committee shall be selected in October, 1968, to conduct a thorough study and review of the present health and life insurance programs of the College, compare it with other available plans, and make recommendations to the Board and the Association by March 1, 1969 for possible changes during this Master Agreement and by February 1, 1970 for the new Master Agreement. The committee shall be composed of 5 Association members, 3 administrative members, 1 clerical, 1 custodial, and 1 Board of Trustee member.

B. Leaves of Absence Paid

1. Personal Illness or Disability

a. An instructor's income shall be continued, for each illness or disability, at full basic salary rate for the first 30 days; at 85% for the second 30 days; at 70% for the third 30 days.

b. Days for the purposes of this provision are calendar days.

c. All instructors absent will cause the fact to be reported to their department head, division chairman, or supervisor in advance of their next time obligation. If not available, the message should be left with the main switchboard of the College.

d. The College reserves the right to require a medical examiner's report on cause of frequent or extended absence for health reasons.

2. Long-term Disability

a. If an instructor, prior to age 65, becomes totally and permanently disabled for a period of longer than 90 days, this plan carried with The Aetna Life and Casualty will provide payment of 60% of basic monthly earnings, subject to a maximum of $1,000 per month, for as long as the employee remains so disabled, but not beyond age 65.

b. Benefits payable from Workmen's Compensation, Social Security, etc. will be included in the determination of the 60% payment.

c. The pension supplement will provide a benefit equal to the normal Retirement Income Benefit lost during any period benefits were payable by the Long-Term Disability Plan and will be payable commencing at age 65.

3. Bereavement and Family Illness

a. Leave not to exceed three days may be allowed for such occasions, in the immediate family.

b. Bereavement leave may be followed by personal affairs leave if the employee is required to attend to business matters following the death of a near relative.

c. Arrangements for personal affairs leave in such case shall be made by telephone if not anticipated at the beginning of the bereavement leave.

4. Personal Affairs

a. Reasonable leave may be permitted for matters which cannot be cared for in free time and which would result in legal, business, or family disadvantage if not covered at the appropriate time.

b. Such leaves when known in advance should be arranged with the Vice President for Instruction and provision made for handling responsibilities in the Instructor's absence. Emergency absences should be reported to the College as soon as possible after the emergency is known.

5. College Assignments

a. Absence from campus as a representative of the College shall be regarded as an extension of duty, when arranged in advance.

b. Instructors on approved trips are covered by the College insurance policies.

6. Sabbatical Leave

The Board of Trustees of the Jackson Community College will consider applications and grant sabbatical leaves of absence for full-time instructors in accordance with the following specific provisions:

a. Instructors who have served the College under either Board for ten years are eligible for a sabbatical leave. In the 1969-70 school year the number of years required for eligibility shall be reduced to nine years.

b. Seniority in service shall be given priority consideration in the granting of all such leaves.

c. At the option of the instructor, the sabbatical leave may be taken for one or two semesters or a summer session.

d. A proposal for a summer sabbatical shall be on conditions that do not exist during the year or cannot be arranged by a division or department during a regular semester. These sabbaticals may be rejected by the Board without recourse to the grievance procedure by the applicant.

e. The salary for the sabbatical leave will be half the ten-months' salary for two semesters, full pay for one semester, or for one summer session at the summer rate.

f. If an instructor receives a grant or fellowship, the instructor's pay from Jackson Community College will be reduced so that total income from Jackson Community College and the grant or fellowship will not be more than one and one-third times his regular ten-months' pay at Jackson Community College.

g. No more than five percent of the faculty shall be on a sabbatical leave at the same time.

h. All such leaves will always be conditioned by departmental arrangements which will preclude any loss of efficiency in the department or any substantial deviation from the announced program of the College.

i. It is the responsibility of the College to make every effort to hire short-term replacements for instructors applying for sabbatical leaves if their assignments cannot be assumed by other members of the staff.

j. All such leaves shall be limited to purposes that clearly promise reciprocal advantage to the College through the enhancement of personal competence by study, research, writing, or cognate pursuits.

k. An instructor who receives a sabbatical leave shall return to the College for a period of two years or refund, on a prorated basis, the salary received during the leave period.

l. Leaves shall be requested at least one semester before the effective date.

C. Leaves of Absence Non-paid

1. Instructors who are called to active military duty will be granted leaves for such period.

2. Women instructors may be granted maternity leave not to exceed one year, however resumption of employment shall be at the beginning of a semester.

3. Instructors may apply for leave without pay for professional travel, schooling, exchange teaching, or work experience and will be granted such leaves if replacement can be obtained. Instructors on continuing contracts shall have preference for such leaves.

4. Leaves of absence will be granted for health reasons.

5. The Board shall grant a leave of absence without pay, upon application, to any instructor to campaign for, or serve in, a political office.

a. Such leave shall be requested 30 days in advance of the date it is to begin.

b. Leave shall begin with the start of active campaigning and shall be terminated at the end of the semester following an unsuccessful election.

c. Leave for office holding may be extended no more than two years following a successful election.

d. Instructors on continuing contract who resign to hold either an elective or an appointive office will be given reemployment preference upon completion of their terms.

4. Campaigning for or the holding of local offices which carry minimum reimbursement and do not entail interference with normal college obligations shall not require a leave, but instructors not on leave shall be particularly careful to observe the Code of Ethics in connection with political involvement and shall "refrain from exploiting the institutional privileges of their professional positions to promote political candidates or partisan activities."

D. Continuation of Benefits While on Leaves

1. Non-paid Leaves

a. Experience credit on the salary schedule will continue to accrue for all the types of non-paid leaves specified in VII C3.

b. Arrangements can be made for insurance on an individual basis while instructors are on leave.

c. An instructor on unpaid leave shall retain all years earned toward sabbatical leave, but shall not accrue additional years while on leave.

2. Sabbatical

a. Experience credit on the salary schedule will continue to accrue while on sabbatical leave.

b. All benefits provided under this Master Agreement shall be guaranteed to an instructor on sabbatical leave.

c. Group Term Life Insurance will be continued on the basis of the annual contractual salary.

E. Admission to Courses

1. Instructors on annual or continuing contracts shall be granted tuition free entrance for credit or audit to any classes they desire so long as there is no conflict with their own assignment.

2. Spouses, children, or legally adopted children of these instructors shall be granted tuition free entrance to any classes for which they meet the entrance requirements.

F. Retirement

1. All contracts with professional employees shall be terminated at the end of the fiscal year (June 30) in which the employee becomes 65 years of age.

2. This shall not preclude the employment of instructors over 65 years of age for limited periods.

3. Instructors may apply for early retirement in accordance with the State Retirement Law.

4. Instructors contemplating retirement should give notice of their intentions a semester before the effective date.

5. Retiring professional staff members who have served ten or more years with the College may be considered for Emeritus appointment upon recommendation of the professional staff. Such appointments carry entitlement to all courtesies and services available to the active staff, but no remuneration.

6. Effective with the 1969-70 school year, a terminal leave benefit of $50.00 per year of service with the College under either Board will be paid upon retirement to--

a. Any instructor who retires at the end of the fiscal year in which he attains the age of 65 and has served a minimum of ten years.

b. Any who has twenty years of service who retires at the end of the fiscal year in which he attains age 60 or at the end of any year thereafter.

c. Any instructor who retires after reaching age 55 who has fifteen years of service if retirement is the result of ill health sufficient to qualify the instructor for disability retirement under the Michigan Retirement System for Public School Employees Act.

G. Physical Examinations

1. At the request of the President, any instructor shall receive a physical examination by an approved physician covering any condition which appears to interfere seriously with the instructor's performance of duties. The cost of such examination shall be borne by the Board.

2. Each instructor shall submit annually a report of a recent TB test or chest X-ray.

3. Each new instructor shall submit a report of a recent physical examination by a physician, and the contract of employment shall not become effective if an unsatisfactory health condition is present, as determined by the College Physician. Cost of such examination is borne by the prospective instructor.

ARTICLE IX

GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE

A. A grievance is hereby defined to be any dispute or controversy between the parties to this Agreement, or between the Administration and any Instructor covered by this Agreement, with respect to matters arising during the term of this Agreement which affects a condition of employment, discipline, or discharge or otherwise arises out of the provisions of this Agreement.

B. To be valid a grievance must be filed within twenty (20) working days from the time the grievant became aware or should have been aware of the event which gave rise to the alleged grievance. Time periods may be extended by mutual agreement by the parties. When referred to hereinafter, days shall mean working days unless otherwise herein stated.

C. The grievance procedure shall be as follows:

Step 1. Any Instructor having a grievance will first take the grievance up with his Division Chairman or Department Head or immediate supervisor. If an Instructor so desires he may request the presence of a member of the Association. From the time of the conference the supervisor shall have two (2) working days within which to present the Instructor with an answer. After receipt of the answer the grievant shall have ten (10) working days to move the grievance to the 2nd step. If not presented within ten (10) working days, the grievance shall be considered to have been dropped.

Step 2. A grievance presented from Step 1 and to Step 2 shall be presented in writing to the appropriate Dean, with a copy to the Association, who will meet with the grievant and Association representative. The meeting shall be held within six (6) working days of the filing of the grievance in Step 2. Following the meeting a written answer shall be presented to the Association and the grievant within five (5) days. Following the answer the grievant or Association shall have ten (10) days to move the grievance to Step 3. In the event this is not done the grievance will be considered to have been dropped.

Step 3. A grievance appealed to Step 3 shall be discussed between the President or his designee and the grievant and the Association Representative(s). The meeting shall be held within ten (10) days of the presentation of the grievance. Following the meeting the President or his designee shall answer the grievance in writing within five (5) working days. A copy of the answer shall be given to the Association. Following this answer the parties shall have ten (10) working days within which to appeal to Step 4 and if this is not accomplished the grievance will be considered to have been dropped.

Step 4. A grievance appealed to Step 4 will require a meeting between the grievant, the Association Representative(s) and the Board. The meeting shall be held within twenty (20) days of the filing of the grievance in Step 4 and the Board shall have ten (10) working days to answer the grievance in writing.

D. Arbitration. If the Grievant is not satisfied with the disposition of the grievance by the Board or if no disposition has been made within the period provided in Step 4, the grievance may be submitted to arbitration before an impartial arbitrator within 20 working days following the decision of the Board not counting July or August.

1. If the parties cannot agree on an arbitrator within 2 weeks after the demand for arbitration has been made, the arbitrator shall be selected pursuant to the rules and procedures of the American Arbitration Association whose rules shall likewise govern the arbitration proceeding.

2. Except as provided by law, the Board and the Grievant shall not be permitted to assert in such arbitration proceeding any ground or to rely on any evidence not previously disclosed to the other party.

3. The arbitrator shall have no power to alter, add to, or subtract from the terms of the Agreement.

4. Both parties agree to be bound by the award of the arbitrator and agree that judgment thereon may be entered in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

5. The fees and expenses of the arbitrator shall be shared equally by the parties.

E. DISCHARGE. In the event of a discharge the aggrieved party may file a grievance within ten (10) working days directly to Step 3. Subsequent to Step 4, mediation may be invoked by either party.

F. In the event the Board believes there has been a breach of the contractual agreement by the Association, then the President shall have the right to present the matter to the Association Grievance Committee in writing. A meeting shall then be held within ten (10) days. If the matter cannot be resolved, mediation may be requested. If mediation cannot settle the dispute, arbitration may be invoked.

G. In the event the Association files a collective grievance, it shall be processed directly at Step 3.

H. No reprisals of any kind shall be taken against any faculty member for participating in any grievance.

I. If any faculty member for whom a grievance is filed, processed, or sustained shall be found to have been unjustly discharged or demoted, the arbitrator shall be empowered to determine whether he shall be restored to his former position with full reimbursement of all professional compensation lost or shall have the authority to reduce the penalty.

J. The number of days indicated at each level should be considered as maximum and every effort should be made to expedite the process. However, the time limits may be extended by mutual consent. Failure to answer a grievance at any step shall be considered a denial of the grievance.

K. All documents, communications and records dealing with a grievance shall be filed separately from the personnel files of the participants.

L. It is agreed that the aggrieved party and the Association shall be furnished with any information possessed by the Board or the Administration necessary for the processing of any grievance or complaint.

M. Nothing contained herein shall be construed to prevent any instructor from presenting a grievance and having the grievance adjusted without the intervention of the Association. However, no grievance shall be adjusted without prior notification to the Association and an opportunity for an Association Representative to be present, nor shall any adjustment of a grievance be inconsistent with the terms of this Agreement.

N. In the administration of the grievance procedure, the representation of the faculty members is solely the responsibility of the Association.

O. A grievance may be withdrawn at any level. However, if in the judgment of the Association Grievance Committee the grievance affects the welfare of the faculty, the grievance may be continued to be processed as a grievance of the Association.

ARTICLE X

FACULTY EVALUATION

A. The evaluation of staff performance is the responsibility of the Instructional Deans with advice of the appropriate Divisional Chairmen and Department Heads.

B. It is agreed that evaluation shall be done in a fair and equitable manner following the procedures agreed to in negotiations and shall be subject to the grievance procedure.

C. The procedures which are to be followed are in Section IV of the Faculty Manual.

ARTICLE XI

PROFESSIONAL COMPENSATION

A. Dates of Issue and Return

1. All contracts or letters of appointment for returning members of the staff shall be issued by April 15.

2. Said contracts or letters of appointment are to be signed and returned to the Board of Trustees by May 15 and are subject to the terms of the Master Agreement.

B. Annual Contracts

1. New faculty members will be employed on annual contracts during the first two years of employment, except that an instructor with no previous community college teaching experience may be required to serve three years on annual contract.

2. Annual contracts for new faculty members will be renewed if both the instructor and the Board desire such renewal.

a. The Board will notify the instructor in writing by April 1 if his contract is not to be renewed, together with reasons for non-renewal if such is the case.

b. Similarly, the instructor will notify the Board by May 15 if he does not desire renewal of his contract.

3. In addition to the terms of Article X B1, an instructor may, for good reason and by mutual agreement between the Association and the Board, be offered a third year on annual contract before being placed on continuing contract or released.

C. Continuing Contracts

1. Any instructor who has been employed by the Board on a full-time basis for two ten-months' contracts and who meets the Board requirements in Article X B and is recommended by the President, will be appointed to a continuing contract at such salary as the salary schedule may provide.

2. An instructor who wishes to be released from continuing contract shall give notice in writing no later than 60 days prior to the beginning of the semester when the resignation is to become effective.

3. A continuing contract shall not be terminated without a probation period of at least one year, except for retirement or serious misconduct.

4. Probation shall be established by the Board on the recommendation of the appropriate Dean and the President of the College, following an evaluation interview with the instructor. Notification shall be no later than April 15. A copy shall be sent to the instructor and the Association.

5. No instructor on continuing contract shall be placed on probation, dismissed, publicly reprimanded or otherwise disciplined without just cause and proper procedure. Such action will be subject to the professional grievance procedures as described in this Master Agreement.

6. An instructor on probation will be evaluated twice (once prior to December 15 and again prior to March 15) with special attention paid to any reduction or correction of the stated deficiencies. The Dean and the President shall then recommend to the Board either the removal of probation or termination of contract. The Board will notify the instructor in writing with a copy to the Association by April 1 if his contract is to be terminated or by April 15 if he is to be removed from probation.

D. Contract forms are Appendix B of this Agreement.

E. An instructor shall be released from regular duties without loss of salary at least one day each semester for the purpose of participating in area or regional professional meetings or interinstitutional visitations.

1. Each division or department is allowed $150 per year for conference travel allowance with an additional $100 per year for each additional four members and major fraction thereof over four, two constituting a major fraction. A minimum of $150 is allowed per division or department. In addition, $25 for each instructor assigned to the division or department is allowed.

2. Instructors assigned to more than one department shall receive their conference allowance from the department of their major assignment.

3. The department and division members are responsible for the utilization and scheduling of these funds.

4. In order to schedule attendance at National Conventions or other expensive conferences, it is permissible for departments and divisions to carry over the conference funds not to exceed $300 from one year to another.

5. Each Division Chairman and Department Head shall be allowed a uniform travel allowance of a minimum of $100 per year.

6. A contingency fund of $100 will be established for travel allowance for any instructor who is appointed or elected to a regional, state, or national professional committee in his specialized area. This fund will be kept separate from the regular departmental or divisional travel allowance.

F. Salary Schedules

1. The salaries of instructors covered by this Agreement are set forth in Appendix A, which is attached to and incorporated in this Agreement. Such salary schedule shall remain in effect during the term agreed upon.

2. The ten months' schedule is for a full-time assignment during the fall and spring semesters.

3. The twelve months' schedule is for full-time assignment during the fall and spring semesters and the summer session.

4. Step advancement is on an automatic yearly basis until maximum is reached.

G. Placement of New Faculty

1. College level teaching experience will be evaluated at full credit, with suitable prorating of part-time assistantships and similar appointments.

2. Teaching other than college will be evaluated at full credit for one year. Teaching experience beyond this amount will be allowed at half credit.

3. Military experience will be evaluated at half credit with a maximum of two years allowed.

4. Other work experience will be allowable only if it is pertinent to the teaching field. This will be evaluated at full credit for one year. Experience beyond this amount will be allowed at half credit.

5. The total allowable experience in all categories for step placement will not exceed six years, except that seven years' experience credit will be allowed for community and junior college teaching experience.

6. Under special circumstances, credit in excess of this amount may be requested from the President with the amount specified and supporting data justifying the request.

7. Step and Class placement of new instructors will be reviewed by the Personnel Review Committee within the first year of employment.

H. Definitions of and Qualifications for Salary Classification

1. Instructors are classified for salary purposes into four Classes based on academic preparation. Promotion to a higher Class is recommended by the Personnel Review Committee on the following criteria:

Class I	Bachelor's degree or equivalent
Class II	Master's degree or 30 semester hours of graduate credit beyond Class I
Class III	Master's degree plus 30 semester hours of graduate credit after qualifying for Class II OR 60 semester semester hours graduate credit beyond Class I including the Master's degree
Class IV	30 semester hours of graduate credit in addition to Class III requirements (or the earned doctorate)

2. An employee without a Bachelor's Degree but qualified for a specific professional position in relation to the instructional program of the College may be employed on Class I with step placement according to allowable experience. In this category, however, Steps 9 and 10 will not apply and the employee will not be eligible for a continuing contract nor rank designation until a Degree or equivalent has been obtained.

3. Undergraduate credit may be approved as equivalent to graduate credit when

   a. Courses are in the specific teaching area of the applicant.

   b. Courses outside the specific teaching area contribute to the instructor's effectiveness to the College.

4. Approval of undergraduate courses is required by the Personnel Review Committee and the President prior to the time the course is taken.

5. All undergraduate credits earned after the completion of requirements for Class I and prior to the date of this contract shall be evaluated on the basis of relevance to the instructor's assignment within the College. Credit to be evaluated under this provision must be submitted on or before April 30, 1969.

6. Professional or institute courses may be evaluated as graduate equivalency when approved in advance by the Personnel Review Committee and the President.

7. Class advancements involving undergraduate credit heretofore approved will remain unchanged.

8. It is agreed that during the life of this agreement the parties shall mutually develop a program for recognition of equivalency as it relates to work experience and the parties will make every effort to have the study completed for implementation for 1969-70.

9. The following salary adjustments are made for faculty members in Classes III and IV:

   a. For an earned Specialist, Candidate, or similar certificate, and annual salary addition of $250 shall be approved.

   b. An annual salary addition of $250 shall be approved upon certification by the Dean or the student's advisor of the graduate school that the applicant has been admitted to a program leading to a Doctor's degree and that a minimum of one full year of organized graduate work beyond the Master's degree has been satisfactorily completed.

   c. For an earned Doctorate degree an annual salary addition of $900 shall be approved.

10. It is the responsibility of the instructor to supply verification of credits and certificates to the Board.

11. In moving from one class to a higher class placement, step advancement shall be maintained.

I. Personnel Review Committee

1. The functions of this Association-Administration Continuing Committee are as follows:

   a. They will review the Step and Class placement of new instructors during the first year of employment.

   b. They will review applications for Step and Class adjustments for present faculty members.

   c. They will make recommendations to the President for presentation to the Board for salary Step and Class adjustments under the terms of this Master Agreement.

   d. They will make recommendations annually prior to November 1 concerning instructors newly classified on salary steps 8, 9 and 10 for the rank of "Assistant Professor" who have not previously received this rank.

2. The membership of this committee is as follows:

   a. The Vice President for Instruction (Chairman of the Committee)
   b. The Dean of Arts and Science
   c. The Dean of Vocational-Technical Education
   d. The Chairman of the Division or Department of the applicant
   e. An Association member from Salary Class I
   f. An Association member from Salary Class II
   g. An Association member from Salary Class III
   h. An Association member from Salary Class IV
   i. A member-at-large from the Faculty Association
   j. A Secretary-recorder will be selected by the committee from its membership at the beginning of each academic year.

J. Counselors and Coordinators

1. Compensation for counseling or coordinating is computed on 6% of the first seven steps of the Class II teaching schedule.
2. The counseling staff shall be placed on the schedule with full credit for previous counseling experience.
3. Compensation for part-time counseling shall be pro-rated.

K. Division Chairmen and Department Heads

Compensation for division chairmen and department heads is $700 for the fiscal year.

L. Coaching

1. Coaching salaries are based on the percentages listed below and are computed on the first seven steps of the Class II, ten-months' teaching schedule.

Basketball	15%
Swimming	11.5%
Assistant Basketball	10%
Men's Intramural	10%
Women's Intramural	10%
Track	9%
Cross Country	8%
Baseball	8%
Soccer	8%
Tennis	7%
Golf	7%
Assistant Track	6%
Ticket Manager (Athletics)	$200

2. The coaching staff shall be placed on the schedule according to coaching experience in the sport involved and not according to teaching experience.

M. Supplemental Instructors

1. Compensation is paid as follows:

Semester	Amount
1 and 2	$140 per credit hour
3 and 4	145 per credit hour
5 and 6	150 per credit hour
7 and 8	155 per credit hour
9 and over	160 per credit hour

2. English Composition is compensated at 4/3.

N. Salary Payment

1. The salary of each instructor shall be paid on a bi-weekly basis.

2. The instructor shall upon written notice have the option of receiving his compensation for the ten-months' contract in 20 or 26 payments.

   a. The first Friday after Labor Day shall be the first pay for those on 26 payments.

   b. The third Friday after Labor Day shall be the first pay for those on 20 payments.

3. Compensation for the Summer Session is paid in four equal installments bi-weekly beginning the first Friday after July 1.

4. When a normal pay day occurs on a day when classes are not in session such pay day shall be the last day of classes.

5. Deductions may be authorized and shall be executed for any of the following:

   a. United Professional Dues
   b. Government Bonds
   c. Jackson County School Employees' Credit Union
   d. Tax sheltered Annuity
   e. Such others as are mutually agreed upon by the Association and the Board.

6. Salary checks are to be mailed or delivered in sealed envelopes at the instructor's option.

9. Faculty Prepared Instructional Material

1. Material Prepared on Own Time

Salable material developed by staff members on their own time shall not become the property of the College, but such materials may be sold to students of Jackson Community College only under an arrangement with the College.

2. Material Prepared on Contract Time

Salable material developed by staff members during time allocated for that purpose and compensated for by the College shall become the property of the College and royalties accrued therefrom shall be distributed on the basis of 25% to the inventor or inventors, author or authors and 75% to the College unless another method for distribution of proceeds was arranged prior to the development of the material. Material prepared for Jackson Community College student use under these conditions shall be sold to the students with no profit to the author. Patents or copyrights shall be issued to the inventor or author and the College or its assignees.

ARTICLE XII

MISCELLANEOUS

A. Long-range institutional planning shall be conducted cooperatively by the administration and the faculty.

B. Institutional Identification Cards will be supplied to all faculty members during the September registration period.

C. The Association will notify the Vice President of Instruction by November 1 of the year preceding the expiration of the master agreement of any changes in the membership of the Association's negotiating team. Their schedules then will be arranged for 3 three-hour common periods in every week free of classes or other college commitments during the second semester; however, in no event shall the College be responsible for clearing the schedule of more than five people so designated by the Association.

D. In order to promote mutual understanding of the terms of the contract in relation to specific problems, monthly meetings of negotiators shall be held. In addition to negotiators, the President of the Faculty Association and the President of the College may attend.

E. This Agreement shall supersede any rules, regulations or practices of the Board which shall be contrary to or inconsistent with its terms.

F. This Agreement shall likewise supersede any constitutional or by-law provisions of the Association heretofore in effect.

G. All instructor contracts shall be made expressly subject to the terms of this Agreement.

H. The provisions of this Agreement shall be incorporated into and be considered part of the established policies of the Board.

I. Copies of this Agreement shall be incorporated in the Faculty Manual and be presented to all instructors now employed or hereafter employed by the Board.

J. The Association shall have seventy-five copies of this Agreement for its use.

K. If any provision of this Agreement or any application of the Agreement to any instructor or group of instructors shall be found contrary to law, then such provision or application shall not be deemed valid or subsisting except to the extent permitted by law, but all other provisions or applications shall continue in full force and effect.

L. This Agreement shall not be effective until approved as to form by counsel for the Association and for the Board.

ARTICLE XIII

RESERVE CLAUSE

All rights and authority of the Board prescribed by law or stated in Article II of this Agreement are retained. This Agreement covers all subjects of bargaining and there shall be no duty on either party to bargain collectively regarding those matters covered in this Agreement unless otherwise specified for the duration of this Agreement.

ARTICLE XIV

DURATION OF AGREEMENT

This Agreement shall be effective as of September 1, 1968, and shall continue in effect until August 31, 1970. This Agreement shall not be extended orally, and it is expressly understood that it shall expire on the date indicated.

EXPERIENCE OF THE CANADIANS

ON

NEGOTIATIONS IN EDUCATION

By: Gib Eamer*
Western Washington State College
Negotiations Seminar
August, 1968

I have been asked to speak on, "What We Can Learn from the Experience of the Canadians on Negotiations in Education." It would be quite wrong of me to suggest that you should do this or that. I do not think you can devise any one system in negotiations in education that will meet all the situations or even a majority of situations you will encounter in your country.

While we are both democracies and live next to one another, our forms of government are quite different. You separate the legislative and the executive functions of government whereas we link them closely. Our executive - or cabinet system - requires that the members of the cabinet be elected members of the legislature and that the Premier be the leader of the party holding a majority in the legislature to hold the confidence of the legislature. Even the leader of the opposition in the legislature is designated as the Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition. Because of this constitutional difference our problems are different.

In Canada education is a provincial responsibility and any authority delegated to school boards, superintendents and teachers is contained in acts of the legislature. The School Acts carefully define the duties of each group. The main duties of teachers are not subjected to the direction or whim of local authorities. Many of the items that you might feel are important matters for local negotiations are not a problem to us at the local level. They must be negotiated with the government at the provincial or, as you would say, at the state level.

I have decided tonight to deal with some of the actions we have taken and why we proceeded as we have. If from this you can glean any information or ideas I will be happy.

Statutory Membership

One other difference in our approach is that we believe in and have provision for statutory membership in our professional organizations. This is true in all the provinces of Canada. My own province led the way in this movement when the provincial legislature passed a bill called, "An Act Respecting the Teaching Profession." This was in 1933 and marked the first time, at least in our country, that the law recognized teachers as professional people. A section of that Act states, "Every teacher employed in schools organized under the school act, the Secondary School Act and Vocational School Act shall as a condition of his employment be a member of the Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation."[1] This concept has grown until today every province of Canada has legislation establishing this principle and the right is given to the professional organizations to discipline their membership.

To receive this legislation was a great privilege and placed upon us an equally great responsibility. How best to discharge our duties? We set up goals and became determined to build the teacher group into a respected professional organization and to restore to teachers the dignity and responsibility that inadequate salaries and insecurity had denied them. To achieve this we had to first unite our teachers, not only into one organization, but to unite them in a determination to restore and rebuild the teaching profession.

We Are Different

We recognized that our profession was different from other professional groups in that we are one hundred per cent employed, that we were public servants and that our profession was made up of individuals. As a totally employed group we could have affiliated with labour and, indeed, the British Columbia Teachers' Federation was for a number of years so affiliated. We felt that other aspects of our aspirations could not find expression in such affiliation and that we could not really ape any other professional organization, because our problems were different. So we dedicated ourselves to the building of a professional body to meet our own needs.

The Need for an Economic Base

To realize our vision, there was a need to build our profession on a firm economic base. You can't be professional if you haven't the means to be professional. We have offered no apologies for the emphasis that was first placed on economic matters. To achieve economic security we were determined to bargain and bargain collectively. To us collective bargaining is not a dirty term.

Collective action by groups of people down through the ages has been and still is a vehicle or a process which man has employed to ensure his individual and group survival. In the political sphere tribal organizations developed as man made his first attempts at group organization. Clans, countries, nations, empires represent man's later attempts to organize for survival. The need for group action in economic spheres is accepted as a necessity in an increasingly complex society.

In the economic area we have accepted the formation of companies, corporations and business organizations as legitimate groups for economic development. The buying and selling of material goods and the development of our material resources have reached, in both quality and quantity, levels of success that surpass the wildest expectations of a generation ago.

Yet if those who sell their services wish to organize and use the methods of those that worship at the altar of free enterprise the hue and cry goes up that it is not professional. Collective bargaining by those who sell services and by those whose livelihood depends on their own talents, skills and resources is not a new idea, but it is one that is viewed with considerable mistrust by the uninformed. The final alternative to collective bargaining is a planned economy which removes the local right to make decisions on how one will live or work. Planned economy is a polite word for socialism which to many is a very nasty word.

*Mr. Eamer is Executive Secretary, Saskatchewan Teachers Federation, Canada.

"This term collective bargaining is one of those omnibus terms we have in the economy that means exactly what we choose to make it mean."[2] This quote is from Dr. J. Tait Montague, Director of the Institute of Industrial Relations of the University of British Columbia. Dr. Montague continued, "We usually thought of the labour market as individuals selling their services, and it took a long time for our society to come around to thinking that individuals, in selling their labour services, might group together to require certain action in the labour market. It gradually came about, born of the struggles of early unionists and an increasing social acceptance, that we were not satisfied with what the labour market did to individuals."[3]

The way in which various labour services are sold differs: a lawyer sells his services in a different way from a machinist, and a machinist sells his services in a different way than the plant worker. Teachers must sell their services in a different way than the lawyers or the doctors because we are employed, not self-employed. We cannot meet in solemn conclave in a hotel over a week end and increase our fees. We must bargain for them with a tough employer-representative of the public.

I have belaboured this question of collective bargaining because it was one of our greatest problems--to get an acceptance of the practice by our employers and also to make the term acceptable to teachers. For some reason our public and our employers thought it to be a four-lettered word. However, today it is accepted.

Teachers were the first to establish the right to bargain collectively in the public service. I am happy to say that the right for public employees to so bargain is established on both the provincial and federal levels. It is important to remember that things just don't happen: they are made to happen.

One final quote on this issue and it is by Stanley M. Cohen, Associate Editor of one of our largest newspapers - The Montreal Star. Mr. Cohen said, "Good teachers will only be attracted to our school systems and remain in them if they receive good pay, decent professional working conditions, have high morale, a consultative role and the respect they deserve. And there is nothing degrading about their having to use collective bargaining methods in order to achieve those goals."[4]

Are Strikes Inevitable?

If you have collective bargaining are strikes inevitable? My friend, Dr. Tait Montague, would say that the right to strike should be in collective bargaining. He says, "A hesitation that non-industrial workers have about bargaining has been the use of strike, a feeling that the obligation that they have to their profession and career work is such that they would not want to go on strike. Bargaining is a case of the supply taking action to influence the market. The strike becomes the handle on the thing, the thing that makes the market work. We are getting lots of statements now that the strike is an out-of-date instrument. I want to suggest that there is nothing so out-of-date as the statement that the strike is an out-of-date instrument. It is just not good enough to say, 'I want the market with collective bargaining in it, but only the parts I like.'"[5]

Strike is an irritating term so we avoid using it. We say we reserve the "right to withdraw services". If there is bargaining in "good faith" this ultimate action will not be necessary. Since The Teachers' Salary Negotiation Act was passed in my province we have had nearly 6000 salary agreements settled by negotiation and in the past seventeen years we have had one strike. I would never sign any agreement that would deny me the right to withdraw my services. I know little Johnny will be flung around and it will be said that we are striking against children. To me this is "malarky". If teachers are forced to this ultimate action it means that the educational system is in a sorry way. Whatever means are needed to correct the situation are for Johnny, not against him.

All Teachers Should Be Included in Any Salary Agreement

We take the stand that all our members are teachers whether they are heads of departments, consultants, principals, supervisory assistants or superintendents. Teaching is a team effort and all groups should work together as a team. All of the administrative categories are members of their professional organization. Collective bargaining must not be for a few of the group, but for all. Our negotiating committees bargain for all of these groups, with the single exception of the chief education officer. We think he should be included but this concession shows the "wear and tear" of bargaining.

Our government, at the request of the Trustees' Association, suggested that administrative personnel be removed from the bargaining unit. However, a Royal Commission[6] that heard evidence on this suggestion recommended against the proposal and the groups have remained in the bargaining unit.

What is the opinion of the administrators? I would like to quote to you from a brief submitted to the Royal Commission by the largest group of Administrators, the H. S. Principals' Association.

"1. It is our considered opinion that the present method of determining principals' salaries on the general salary scale, plus administrative allowances, has worked well in the past and should be continued.

2. Members of this association approve the present procedures whereby the responsibility of negotiating principals' allowances is placed in the hands of the general negotiating committee."[7]

The brief went on to state. . .

"It has been claimed that principals' salaries should not be placed in the same package as the salaries of those they supervise. This has been likened to placing the foreman in the same category as the worker he supervises.

This criticism, we consider, loses its validity because it fails to recognize the fundamental differences between supervision in industrial and professional operations. In the industrial situation procedures can be specified in detail and employees told what they are to do, and probably just how to do it. It is also generally possible to mechanically measure the workers' output or efficiency and this also becomes a part of the supervisor's job which can usually be done with a fair degree of objectivity.

In dealing with the complex human relationships which exist in every classroom, any attempt on the part of the supervising principal to dictate to the teacher just how he is to do his teaching and how he is to meet each emerging situation, would only result in a deterioration of the teacher's work. The most effective role of the principal in his relations with staff is to act as a consultant and advisor rather than an authoritarian supervisor. The principal and teachers must work closely together as a professional team if really effective gains are to be made in the educative process.

To segregate principals and teachers for salary negotiations would tend to emphasize the 'master-servant' concept of supervision which we find entirely unacceptable."[8]

All other administrative groups took a similar stand.

It is important to remember that we see collective bargaining as a means to an end--not an end in itself. We feel that our profession can make its greatest contribution to the educational system as a united society of professional equals. "We, therefore, provide in our code of ethics procedures for administrators to properly and democratically discharge their responsibilities. For this reason the administrators could say to the Royal Commission, ''We do not find that the present negotiation procedures compromise, in any way, our relationships with either the Board or the Staff."[9]

Negotiators and Authority

No teacher group in Canada employs professional negotiators and only in two provinces do some school boards employ them. Teachers have never felt the need as they have been able to recruit very able people who have found the work stimulating and have been quite prepared to spend the time in essential preparation. Boards have able business managers and board members that are also quite capable. We find that such committees bring an attitude to negotiations that permits concession and genuine bargaining. It permits each side to get to know the other better and to understand his problems.

Our practices in the different provinces vary. In Alberta the Alberta Teachers' Association certifies the teacher negotiating committee, but the committee is named by the teachers. In Saskatchewan the teachers' committee is elected by a majority of teachers employed and the teacher organization merely certifies that they have been elected and are the committee.

The Saskatchewan Act provides that when a committee is so elected the members of the committee shall be the exclusive representatives of the teachers. Committees are authorized by law to conclude an agreement but a referral back to the total group for ratification is the practice.

What does the wear and tear of negotiations do to teacher-trustee relations? On the whole I believe that bargaining improves relations and establishes better understanding between the two groups, even when there are protracted negotiations. As I pointed out earlier, in my province over 6000 agreements have been concluded during the past seventeen years. In the vast majority of cases they have been very amicable.

Teachers carefully choose their committee. They try to select teachers of repute and, of course, teachers that are prepared to do the necessary homework to be good negotiators. It is my considered opinion that bargaining in good faith by the parties can improve relationships. It would be quite wrong to leave you with the impression that all is always "sweetness and light". At times we do have really rough negotiations but this is the exception, not the rule.

Recently, an interesting news item, in the Edmonton (Alberta) Journal, was a report from the annual meeting of Red Deer County: the Reeve of that county told the annual meeting that the County could put pressure on to resist increases on teaching staff salaries, but the price that would be paid for this would be the loss of a larger number of teachers the next year.

The news story said further that several ratepayers reiterated the Reeve's sentiments. One speaker observed that teachers are being singled out as a group contributing solely to the economic pressures, while other professional people, such as lawyers and doctors, are improving their positions without public censure.

The Reeve of Red Deer County has been on a team for a number of years that has negotiated with a tough teachers' committee.

Points We Had to Learn

It has been the experience of most teacher groups that at first they didn't fully realize that they were public servants and dealing with elected people. It is important in negotiations that room be left for "face saving". This is why it has been found advisable to provide for compromise. It is a fine theory that one should ask only for what one is prepared to accept as a settlement. Practice has told us that this procedure is very unwise.

We always bargain for what we can justify, though we are prepared to accept less. It is also advisable to "throw in" some give-away items.

This is not dishonest, but a realistic approach to bargaining with a group that must justify its agreement with a public that has not perhaps been too well informed.

We had to learn what constitutes a settlement. It is more than the signing of an agreement. A proper settlement must be accepted by both parties. There is a tendency to advocate arbitration for the settlement of disputes. This should be resisted. There is an inclination to hide behind arbitration. Here no attempt is made to reach agreement but rather to let the arbitrator make the decision. This means continued discontent. It also places in the hands of one or two persons the welfare of hundreds of people. It is too impersonal.

We soon learned that bargaining was not a game for amateurs, and that an organization must prepare and arm its negotiators with techniques and information. The Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation has a membership of about twelve thousand. It has three full time staff members at the executive level dealing with economic matters, training of negotiators and researching of information. During the negotiating period, there is a steady flow of information bulletins to committee members.

Committee members quickly learn that those on the other side of the table resent being devastated with argument. By this technique one may win the battle but lose the war. Some of you know Dr. Eric Taylor; he insists that one of the first laws of effective collective bargaining is to attempt to identify yourself with those across the table.

Doves or Hawks?

Let us remember that we are living in the latter half of the twentieth century. "We must disregard our yesterday thinking and proceed on the realities of today. The teacher of today is a different animal and is better prepared. Most teachers are university graduates. They have been taught to think and have been urged to be creative in their teaching. You must expect some of this activity to rub off and make the teacher say, ''We are not prepared to accept the pay standards and working conditions of yesterday."

"The term 'schoolteacher' is as archaic today as the society that spawned it. It is not merely redundant, the mental image it generates no longer applies in the twentieth century America."[9] So says Dr. E. Glenn Fennell commenting on the changing status of teachers in the May-June issue of Education Age.

Dr. Fennell describes the schoolteacher, the Miss Dove of yesterday, as a prim, colourless, conservative maiden who devoted her waking hours to her pupils. She scarcely had a life of her own; hers was a life of service. In return she received a pittance, benevolently bestowed on her by a penurious and patronizing employer.

Miss Dove reflected 19th century society. "Like every good teacher past or present, she endeavoured to fulfill her school's basic role, which was to reflect, preserve, maintain, defend - and if possible improve - the society she served."[10]

Today the role of the school has not changed nor has the basic role of the teacher changed. But there is a vast difference between Miss Dove and the teacher in today's classroom. Miss Dove did not change but her society did; and in her place today we have Mr. and Mrs. Hawk, products of that change.

Recognizing the change the Alberta Teachers' Association commissioned Professor Sam Mitchell of the University of Calgary to prepare a monograph on - "Profile of Alberta Teachers: Expectations and Heightened Aspirations."[11]

Professor Mitchell's study reveals that the increased levels of aspirations which teachers now hold are producing increasing dissatisfaction on the part of teachers when they compare themselves with other professionals; when they consider the status in which teaching is held in the community; and when they think of the opportunities which teaching affords for the development of one's abilities. The study also shows that inexperienced teachers manifest greater dissatisfaction than teachers with five or more years of experience.

In this latter statement surely there is a message for legislators, school board members and administrators. To me the message is that we can expect an escalation of the discontent that exists today. It behooves us to realize these facts of life and be prepared to deal with them in a constructive manner.

This monograph was prepared as a guideline to a teachers' association on how to deal with this phenomenon and to harness this great potential for the general upgrading of education. It is recognized that the 'new' teacher must find his satisfaction in the classroom where he wants to be. He must have a voice in the decision making of school policy, curriculum and working conditions.

We need the Hawks who are anxious to prepare pupils for present-day society. Their militancy should be welcomed. Whom would you have as a teacher of your child, a Dove or a Hawk? I know my answer to the question. Give me the Hawk.

Description and Analysis

U.S. COURT RULES TEACHERS HAVE CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHT TO ENGAGE IN UNION ACTIVITY

The United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit reversed the decision of the District Court in the Cook County, Illinois, case, ruling that the Constitution of the United States gives teachers the right to engage in union activity. Whether a teacher has tenure or not, he may not be dismissed for exercising his constitutional rights. The Court further ruled that "even if this record disclosed that the union was connected with unlawful activity, the bare fact of membership does not justify charging members with their organization's misdeeds."

EXTRA PAY AWARDED FOR STUDY HALL DUTY

The arbitrator in Lakeview, Michigan, ruled that the Board of Education violated its agreement with the Lakeview Education Association by denying teachers additional compensation for study hall duty assigned one to three times per week in addition to a full teaching load. He stated that a study hall assignment is a "class" or teaching period, and according to the agreement, teachers responsible for more than a full teaching load of five classes a day are entitled to additional compensation for the overload.

The Board, therefore, was ordered to pay these teachers for their study hall duty on a pro-rata formula.

MASSACHUSETTS LABOR COMMISSION FINDS ONE-MAN UNIT INAPPROPRIATE

The Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission rendered a decision in two cases involving the bargaining status of the only principal employed by a school system. The cases involved the Elementary School Systems of the Towns of Ashburnham and Westminster, each of whom employs only one principal.

The Commission ruled that a one-man unit "in cases where the Municipal Employer employs only one in a job classification is inappropriate." In a second question, the Commission found that the principals involved "are not executives within the meaning of the Municipal Collective Bargaining Law." Were they employed in a larger system, they would have been included in the "Administrators Unit." The Commission suggested that the principals be included in the teachers' units, so that they would "not be denied the right to benefits under the statute because of the circumstances in these matters."

TEACHER PAID FOR EXTRA HOURS EARNED BEFORE B.A. DEGREE

The arbitrator in Chippewa Valley, Michigan, ordered that a probationary teacher who had earned 15 hours beyond those required for the B.A. degree, before the award of the degree, be placed on the B.A. + 15 salary schedule, in accordance with promises given her at time of employment.

He ruled that the agreement between the Chippewa Valley Board of Education and the Chippewa Valley Education Association, as well as the prior policies of the Board indicated that placement on this schedule was based on the earning of 15 hours after the B.A. degree had been attained. However, exceptions to this policy had been made in the past.

The arbitrator found that the assurances given the teacher at the time of employment that she would be eligible for the higher schedule were "but another example of policy-deviation which had been indulged in prior to PERA. The significant difference now is that the Association, as an equal party to the Agreement, could prevent the administration from carrying out such promises, especially if it felt that such individual treatment was aimed at undermining its bargaining authority." In this instance, the Association chose to support the case of the teacher.

Following consideration of these points, the arbitrator ordered that since the teacher "was given assurances that she would be eligible for the B.A. + 15 hrs. rating" at the time of employment, this commitment must be honored."

COLLEGE REQUIRED TO PROVIDE SALARY INFORMATION TO ASSOCIATION

The Michigan Labor Mediation Board upheld the charge of the Washtenaw Community College Education Association that the College refused to bargain under PERA by withholding information on employee salaries.

The administration of the College determines salaries of new instructors by using point allocation charts, awarding points for "experience, educational attainment, certificates and licenses, skill-related activities, occupational and/or professional affiliations, breadth and depth of experience, and 'special elements of consideration.'" The award of points is based on information provided in the job application.

The MLMB ruled that employees' charts and the pertinent sections of the application forms used in developing these charts constitute "information which is relevant to the administration of the contract." The College was ordered to provide the Association with these forms "and any other records in its possession which are relevent to salaries or conditions of employment."

CONFLICT OF INTEREST FOUND IN UNIT OF COORDINATORS, DIRECTORS, AND TEACHERS

The New York Public Employment Relations Board ruled in an appeal of the decision by PERB's Director of Representation in the Johnson City unit determination case that coordinators and directors should not be included in the teacher unit. The Board stated that "the evaluating function of the coordinators and directors plus their position in the complaint or grievance procedure would, in our opinion, give rise to such a conflict of interest as to preclude their being joined in the same unit as the teachers."

The Johnson City Teachers Association sought the formation of a single unit of all professional employees, "excluding the superintendent of schools, the administrative assistant to the superintendent, the director of pupil services and the business administrator." The Director of Representation ruled that there should be two units, one composed of principals and vice-principals, and the second including coordinators, directors, and teachers. This decision was appealed by the School Board.

PERB determined that two units were appropriate, one including "all classroom teachers, special teachers, guidance teachers, nurse teachers, dental hygienists and psychologists" and the other including "all principals, vice principals, coordinators and directors." The Board further ordered an election to determine which organization would represent each group, unless sufficient evidence could be presented within seven days to satisfy the requirements for certification without an election.

TEACHER RESPONSIBLE FOR TWO ACTIVITIES LISTED IN SUPPLEMENTAL PAY SCHEDULE TO BE PAID FOR BOTH

The arbitrator in Clintondale, Michigan, ruled that a teacher responsible for more than one activity listed in the supplemental pay schedule is entitled to supplemental pay for each one.

The case involved a music instructor who is responsible for concerts at both the elementary and junior high-school levels. These activities are listed separately on the supplemental pay schedule in the Agreement between the Board of Education and the Clintondale Education Association. The arbitrator concluded, "When the teacher was assigned to perform two of those activities, and it is undisputed that he was so assigned, he became entitled to the compensation provided for each of such activities."

Data and Statistics

SHARP RISE IN WHITE-COLLAR PAY

Salary increases from June 1967 to June 1968 were the largest recorded in the eight years that the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics has surveyed salaries of selected white-collar occupations in private industry.

Preliminary information from the annual nationwide survey of professional, administrative, technical, and clerical occupations shows that salary increases for clerical occupations averaged 5.1 percent over the year ending June 1968, compared to 4.6 percent the previous year and an average annual increase rate of 3.1 percent from 1961 to 1967. Average salaries for the professional, administrative, and technical occupations also advanced more in the 1967-68 period than in earlier years:

	Percent Increases in Average Salaries
Occupation	June 1967 to June 1968	1966 to 1967 1/	Average annual rate of increase 1961 to 1967
Accountants	5.7	4.6	3.5
Auditors	5.5	4.8	3.7
Chief accountants	5.5	5.1	3.8
Attorneys	5.3	3.2	3.7
Managers of office services	5.6	5.5	3.6
Buyers	4.9	4.2	NA
Job analysts	7.0	3.4	3.4
Directors of personnel	5.4	3.8	3.7
Chemists	5.1	4.4	4.0
Engineers	5.4	4.3	3.5
Engineering technicians	5.1	3.7	NA
Drafting	5.3	3.5	NA
Clerical	5.1	4.6	3.1

1/ The actual time periods between the 1966 and 1967 surveys were 16 months for drafting and clerical occupations, and 15 months for all others. The increases between surveys were prorated to a 12-month period.

June 1968 average salaries for eight levels of engineers, the largest professional group studied, ranged from $752 a month for college graduates in trainee positions to $1,940 for those responsible for highly complex engineering programs. At the fourth level, the largest group in each profession, representing fully experienced employees, engineers averaged $1,091 a month and chemists $1,063.

Among five engineering technician levels, the third and fourth, in which a majority of the technicians were classified, had average salaries of $633 and $731, respectively. Draftsmen-tracers averaged $412 a month, and the average was $769 for the highest of the three draftsmen levels studied.

Salaries of accountants ranged from $621 for accountants I to $1,128 for accountants V. Auditors averaged $637 at level I and $1,025 a month at level IV. Level I accountants and auditors were trainees with bachelor's degrees in accounting or the equivalent in education and experience.

Buyers responsible for purchasing "off-the-shelf" items and services (level I) were paid monthly salaries averaging $612. Buyers IV, who purchased large amounts of highly complex and technical items, materials and services, averaged $1,036 a month.

Job analysts and directors of personnel, representing three and four levels of work, were studied in the personnel management field. Level II of job analysts averaged $735 a month compared with $1,048 for those at level IV, where evaluation of a variety of more difficult jobs under general supervision was required. Personnel directors averaged $919 for level I and $1,643 for level IV.

Among the 21 clerical work levels surveyed, average monthly salaries ranged from $306 for file clerks I to $606 for secretaries IV, the highest of a four-level series. Averages for 11 of the clerical levels were above $420 and only 4 were below $380 per month.

Although originally designed to compare Federal with private pay, the survey is also used as a benchmark by business, labor unions, professional societies, trade associations, schools, and State and local government agencies. It is a basic reference source for salary administrators, recruiters, educators, career counselors, employee placement workers, and planners.

The definitions used in the survey were graded by the U.S. Civil Service Commission in accordance with the standards established for each grade under the Federal Classification Act. The equivalent Classification grade for each of the work levels surveyed will be identified in the final survey report.

A bulletin--National Survey of Professional, Administrative, Technical, and Clerical Pay, June 1968--containing complete and final results of the survey will be issued early in 1969. In addition to more detail for the nationwide information based upon the full survey coverage, it will provide mean, median, and middle range salaries by occupational level for all establishments located in metropolitan areas and for establishments with 2,500 employees or more.

This annual survey relates to metropolitan areas and nonmetropolitan counties in the United States except Alaska and Hawaii. The minimum employment sizes of establishments in industries studied were: 250 or more in manufacturing and retail trade; 100 or more in transportation, communication, electric, gas, and sanitary services, wholesale trade, engineering and architectural services, and commercially operated research, development, and testing laboratories; 50 or more in finance, insurance, and real estate. Occupational definitions used for the 1968 survey are the same as in BLS Bulletin No. 1585, "National Survey of Professional, Administrative, Technical, and Clerical Pay, June 1967," except for minor modifications for engineers and chemists.

Survey results are summarized in the following table.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS

For the Seventh Circuit

SEPTEMBER TERM, 1967 — APRIL SESSION, 1968

No. 16562

JAMES McLAUGHLIN, et al.,
Plaintiffs-Appellants,
v.
ALBERT TILENDIS, et al.,
Defendants-Appellees

A p p e a l from the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division.

JUNE 12, 1968

Before Castle, Chief Judge, and Fairchild and Cummings Circuit Judges.

CUMMINGS, Circuit Judge. This action was brought under Section 1 of the Civil Rights Act of 1871 (42 U.S.C. § 1983)[1] by John Steele and James McLaughlin who had been employed as probationary teachers by Cook County, Illinois, School District No. 149. Each sought damages of $100,000 from the Superintendent of School District No. 149 and the elected members of the Board of Education of that District.

Steele was not offered a second-year teaching contract and McLaughlin was dismissed before the end of his second year of teaching. Steele alleged that he was not rehired and McLaughlin alleged that he was dismissed because of their association with Local 1663 of the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO. Neither teacher had yet achieved tenure.

In two additional Counts, Local 1663 and the parent union, through their officers and on behalf of all their members, sought an injunction requiring the defendants to cease and desist from discriminating against teachers who distribute union materials and solicit union membership.

The District Court granted the defendants' motion to dismiss the complaint, holding that plaintiffs had no First Amendment rights to join or form a labor union, so that there was no jurisdiction under the Civil Rights Act.[2] The District Court's memorandum opinion did not consider the alternative defense presented in the motion that defendants were immune from suit under the Illinois Tort Immunity Act (Ill. Rev. Stats. 1967, Ch. 85, Sec. 2-201). Concluding that the First Amendment confers the right to form and join a labor union, we reverse on the ground that the complaint does state a claim under Section 1983.

It is settled that teachers have the right of free association, and unjustified interference with teachers' associational freedom violates the Due Process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Shelton v. Tucker, 364 U.S. 479, 485-487. Public employment may not be subjected to unreasonable conditions, and the assertion of First Amendment rights by teachers will usually not warrant their dismissal. Keyishian v. Board of Regents, 385 U.S. 589, 605-606; Garrity v. New Jersey, 385 U.S. 493, 500; Pickering v. Board of Education, 36 U.S. Law Week 4495. Unless there is some illegal intent, an individual's right to form and join a union is protected by the First Amendment. Thomas v. Collins, 323 U.S. 516, 534; see also Hague v. C.I.O., 307 U.S. 496, 512, 519, 523-524; Griswold v. Connecticut, 381 U.S. 479, 483; Stapleton v. Mitchell, 60 F.Supp. 51, 59-60, 61 (D. Kan. 1945; opinion of Circuit Judge Murrah), appeal dismissed, 326 U.S. 690. As stated in N.A.A.C.P. v. Alabama, 357 U.S. 449, 460:

> "It is beyond debate that freedom to engage in association for the advancement of beliefs and ideas is an inseparable aspect of the 'liberty' assured by the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, which embraces freedom of speech."

Even though the individual plaintiffs did not yet have tenure, the Civil Rights Act of 1871 gives them a remedy if their contracts were not renewed because of their exercise of constitutional rights. Johnson v. Branch, 364 F.2d 177 (4th Cir. 1966), certiorari denied, 385 U.S. 1003; Bomar v. Keyes, 162 F.2d 136 (2d Cir. 1947), certiorari denied, 332 U.S. 825; Smith v. Board of Education of Morrillton School District No. 32, 365 F.2d 770 (8th Cir. 1966); Rackley v. School District Number 5, Orangeburg County, S.C., 258 F.Supp. 676 (D. S.C. 1966); Williams v. Sumter School District Number 2, 255 F. Supp. 397 (D. S.C. 1966).

[1] Section 1983 of Title 42 of the U. S. Code provides:
"Every person who, under color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage, of any State or Territory, subjects, or causes to be subjected, any citizen of the United States or other person within the jurisdiction thereof to the deprivation of any rights privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws, shall be liable to the party injured in an action at law, suit in equity, or other proper proceeding for redress."

[2] The District Court granted McLaughlin, an Indiana citizen, leave to file an amended complaint for breach of contract, asserting diversity of citizenship, but McLaughlin chose to appeal.

Just this month the Supreme Court held that an Illinois teacher was protected by the First Amendment from discharge even though he wrote a partially false letter to a local newspaper in which he criticized the school board's financial policy. Pickering v. Board of Education, 36 U.S. Law Week 4495. There is no showing on this record that plaintiffs' activities impeded "the proper performance of [their] daily duties in the classroom." Idem at p. 4498. If teachers can engage in scathing and partially inaccurate public criticism of their school board, surely they can form and take part in associations to further what they consider to be their well-being.

The trial judge was motivated by his conclusion that more than free speech was involved here, stating:

> "The union may decide to engage in strikes, to set up machinery to bargain with the governmental employer, to provide machinery for arbitration, or may seek to establish working conditions. Overriding community interests are involved. The very ability of the governmental entity to function may be affected. The judiciary, and particularly this Court, cannot interfere with the power or discretion of the state in handling these matters."

It is possible of course that at some future time plaintiffs may engage in union-related conduct justifying their dismissal. But the Supreme Court has stated that > "Those who join an organization but do not share its unlawful purposes and who do not participate in its unlawful activities surely pose no threat, either as citizens or as public employees." Elfbrandt v. Russell, 384 U.S. 11, 17.

Even if this record disclosed that the union was connected with unlawful activity, the bare fact of membership does not justify charging members with their organization's misdeeds. Idem. A contrary rule would bite more deeply into associational freedom than is necessary to achieve legitimate state interests, thereby violating the First Amendment.

Illinois has not prohibited membership in a teachers' union, and defendants do not claim that the individual plaintiffs engaged in any illegal strikes or picketing.[3] Moreover, collective bargaining contracts between teachers' unions and school districts are not against the public policy of Illinois. Chicago Education Association v. Chicago Board of Education, 76 Ill.App.2d 456, 222 N.E.2d 243 (1966). Illinois even permits the automatic deduction of union dues from the salaries of employees of local governmental agencies. Ill. Rev. Stats. 1967, Ch. 85, Sec. 472. These very defendants have not adopted any rule, regulation or resolution forbidding union membership. Accordingly, no paramount public interest of Illinois warranted the limiting of Steele's and McLaughlin's right of association. Of course, at trial defendants may show that these individuals were engaging in unlawful activities or were dismissed for other proper reasons, but on this record we hold that the complaint sufficiently states a justiciable claim under Section 1983. There is nothing anomalous in protecting teachers' rights to join unions. Other employees have long been similarly protected by the National Labor Relations Act. See National Labor Relations Board v. Jones & Laughlin, 301 U.S. 1, 33.

[3]In Illinois, strikes and certain picketing by public employees are enjoinable. Redding v. Board of Education, 32 Ill. 2d 567, 207 N.E. 2d 427 (1965).

The second ground of defendants' motion to dismiss was that they are protected against suit by the Illinois Tort Immunity Act (Ill. Rev. Stats. 1967, Ch. 85, Sec. 2-201).[4] Under the Supremacy Clause, that statute cannot protect defendants against a cause of action grounded, as here, on a federal statute. Legislators and judges have broad immunity under Section 1983 because in enacting that statute Congress did not intend to overturn their pre-existing defense. Tenney v. Brandhove, 341 U.S. 367, 376; Pierson v. Ray, 386 U.S. 547, 554-555. However, other officials, such as present defendants, retain only a qualified immunity, dependent on good faith action. Pierson v. Ray, supra, at p. 555; Note, The Doctrine of Official Immunity under the Civil Rights Acts, 68 Harv. L. Rev. 1229, 1235-1236 (1955); Note, The Proper Scope of the Civil Rights Acts, 66 Harv. L. Rev. 1285, 1299 (1953). Even under the Illinois Act, immunity is conditioned upon a showing of good faith (Baum, Tort Liability of Local Governments and Their Employees: An Introduction to the Illinois Immunity Act, Ill. Law Forum (1966) 981, 1003-1004), and there has been no hearing on that question. In this Court and in their brief below the defendants also rely on common law immunity, but we rejected a similar contention in Progress Development Corp. v. Mitchell, 286 F.2d 221, 231 (7th Cir. 1961), where it was held that common law immunity did not extend to members of the Deerfield, Illinois, Park Board charged with discriminating against Negroes. Unless they can show good faith action, the reach of that decision extends to the present defendants who are alleged to have discriminatorily discharged Steele and McLaughlin for their union membership. To hold defendants absolutely immune from this type of suit would frustrate the very purpose of Section 1983. Jobson v. Henne, 355 F.2d 129, 133 (2nd Cir. 1966).[5] At best, defendants' qualified immunity in this case means that they can prevail only if they show that plaintiffs were discharged on justifiable grounds. Thus here a successful defense on the merits merges with a successful defense under the qualified immunity doctrine.

Finally in this connection, it should be noted that immunity was sub silentio denied to the school officials involved in the Johnson, Bomar, Smith, Rackley and Williams cases, supra; see also Board of Education v. Barnette, 319 U.S. 624, 637-638.

The judgment of the District Court is reversed and the cause is remanded for trial.

[4]Sec. 2-201 provides:
"Except as otherwise provided by Statute, a public employee serving in a position involving the determination of policy or the exercise of discretion is not liable for an injury resulting from his act or omission in determining policy when acting in the exercise of such discretion even though abused."

[5]As shown in the Jobson case (355 F.2d at p. 134, note 11), part of Duzynski v. Nosal, 324 F.2d 924 (7th Cir. 1963), on which defendants rely, turns on the absence of state action. No such defense is available here. The remainder of Duzynski, like Phillips v. Nash, 311 F.2d 513 (7th Cir. 1962), certiorari denied, 374 U.S. 809, is concerned with persons protected by judicial immunity.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ARBITRATION

between

LAKEVIEW EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

and

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF LAKEVIEW SCHOOL DISTRICT

OPINION AND AWARD

The hearing in this matter was held February 17, 1968, in the Board office, Battle Creek, Michigan. Both parties filed briefs and the Board was granted leave to file a reply brief. All briefs were timely filed and the reply brief received on June 1, 1968.

Jurisdiction of the undersigned is derived by joint selection of the parties pursuant to their collective bargaining agreement.

Present and representing the parties were:

Marshall D. Garvey, Attorney for the Board

Theodore Swift, Attorney for the LEA

ISSUE

1. Is the issue arbitrable?

2. Did the Lakeview Board of Education violate the collective bargaining agreement between the parties by assigning Gerald Phillips, Dale Crawford, John Hageman, Margaret Collins, Jerry Yeast, Lois Dowman, Gladys Stauffer, John W. R. Moffett, Carol L. Culp, teachers in the Highland Junior High School, to study hall assignment ranging from one to three days per week during their planning periods and in addition to their regular assignments without additional compensation? If so, what is the appropriate remedy?

PERTINENT CONTRACT PROVISIONS

ARTICLE I

Recognition

* * * * *

Excluded are superintendent, assistant superintendent, curriculum coordinator, principals, assistant principals, guidance directors, director of special services, also all office, clerical, custodial, maintenance, plant and cafeteria employees. The term "teacher" when used hereinafter in the agreement, shall refer to all employees represented by the Association in the bargaining or negotiations unit as above defined, and references to male teachers shall include female teachers.

* * * * *

ARTICLE III

Professional Rights and Responsibilities Procedures

* * * * *

B. If any teacher has a complaint regarding any condition of employment, such complaint shall be dealt with through the provisions hereof unless it is covered by the Michigan Tenure Act.

* * * * *

D. All complaints, other than tenure, shall be adjusted through the following procedures:

* * * * *

(e) Level Five

Any complaint not resolved at "Level Four" may be submitted to arbitration by either the Lakeview Board of Education or the Lakeview Education Association under the following conditions:

(1) The matter to be arbitrated must concern the application or interpretation of this agreement either as to the meaning of its terms or as to the rights of either party under these terms or as to whether some action which has been taken is justified according to these terms.

(2) The matter to be arbitrated must be one which the Board of Education can legally allow to be submitted to an arbitrator for final determination under the laws of the State of Michigan.

(3) The party choosing to submit any unsettled complaint to arbitration must notify the other party in writing within fifteen calendar days of the conclusion of Level Four of this procedure. Such notification shall identify the complaint and the issue and shall state what part or parts of the contract is involved. Any complaint not submitted to arbitration within the time herein provided shall be deemed withdrawn.

(4) The parties shall choose a permanent impartial arbitrator at the commencement of the term of this contract, who shall conduct all arbitration proceedings hereunder so long as he continues to be acceptable to both parties. If such arbitrator becomes unacceptable to either or both parties appropriate written notice shall be sent to the arbitrator and the opposite party and he shall thereupon conclude his services by rendering decisions on any complaints pending that have already been heard by him. The parties shall meet within five days after any such notice to mutually agree upon a replacement for the permanent impartial arbitrator.

(5) The arbitrator may interpret this agreement and apply it to the particular case submitted to him but he shall, however, have no authority to add to, subtract from or in any way modify the terms of this agreement nor shall he have any authority to limit or change any policies, practices or rules except as they may involve an application or interpretation of this agreement. Nor shall he have any authority to formulate or add any new policies or rules nor substitute his discretion for the Board's or Administration's discretion in cases where the Board or Administration is given discretion by this agreement.

(6) At the time of the arbitration hearing either party shall have the right to examine and cross examine witnesses and to make a written record of the proceedings.

(7) No claim against the Board including claims for back wages by an employee covered by this agreement or by the Association shall be valid for any period prior to thirty working days from the date when the complaint out of which such claim arises was first filed in writing with the Administration.

(8) All costs incurred in connection with the preparation and presentation of each case shall be paid by the party incurring such costs. The expenses of each witness and the compensation of any witness for either party shall be paid by the party producing such witness. The arbitrator's fees and expenses shall be paid by the party against whom the award is rendered and all other expenses shall be borne by the party incurring them. The arbitrator shall designate for the purpose of this section, the party against whom the award is rendered.

(9) The arbitrator's decision shall be final and binding upon the Board, the Association, and the employee or employees involved.

E. The parties hereto agree that these proceedings shall be kept as confidential as may be appropriate at any level.

F. Any complaint filed on or after the first day of June, shall, if practicable, be resolved prior to the beginning of the following school year. In this case the term school days shall be defined to include all days of the week other than Saturday, Sunday and legal holidays and is not restricted to working school days.

G. Any party in interest may be present at meetings at Level Three, Level Four or Level Five of the procedure upon notification to either the Association or the Board. A "party in interest" is a teacher filing a complaint and also any person or persons who might be required to take action or against whom action may be taken in order to resolve the complaint.

H. When a complaint under these proceedings is resolved in favor of the teacher(s), the Board of Education shall make full reimbursement to that teacher of any wages, benefits or other monies or professional advantage that was lost, if any.

I. Either party may after 24 hour notice to the other party be represented by persons other than those designated in the procedure at Levels Four and Five only.

J. All meetings between the parties under this Article III at Level Five shall be held outside of school hours unless an arbitrator requires that the hearing be held during school hours. In the event this occurs, then up to seven representatives of the Association including "parties of interest" shall be given released time from their duties under this contract without loss of compensation. In the event the Association representatives including "parties of interest" exceed seven, then the hearing must be held outside of school hours.

ARTICLE VII

Teaching Conditions

* * * * *

B. It is desirable that all teachers have a planning period during the school day; however, consideration must be given to the length of the teaching day, and the length of the noon hour as factors deserving attention as changes are considered.

* * * * *

ARTICLE XI

Professional Compensation

* * * * *

G. Teachers who teach a class beyond the normal five classes shall be compensated for the extra class at a rate of seventeen (17) percent of their teaching salary.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Grievants, who are teachers at Highland Junior High School, have a study hall assignment from one to three days per week, varying according to individual teacher, in addition to teaching five classes per day. Teachers generally have planning periods at the junior high and high school level. It is not clear whether other junior high teachers have interrupted planning periods where other duties are assigned, but for the purpose of this proceeding, it may be assumed that they do. The Grievants do not work beyond the hours of the regular school day. Planning periods or study halls are equal in time to a class period. The administration tries to rotate the study halls every eight weeks, but since some teachers at this school have planning periods when there is no study hall, they are never assigned to study halls. Pupils have physical education classes two or three days per week and study hall at the same hour on alternating days. This system has been in effect in the junior high schools at Lakeview since 1959 without extra compensation. Teachers at the high school level and at Beard Junior High teach a combination of five classes and study halls and are considered as carrying a normal load of five classes. Classes are for this purpose equated to study halls. At Beard Junior High it has not been necessary for teachers to use planning periods for study hall assignments due, apparently, to a lower pupil-teacher ratio and study halls are part of the five regular class assignments. There was some claim that the difference in treatment between junior high and high school is justified by longer total hours worked by the high school teachers. The evidence does not bear this out and the normal hours worked are substantially equal within a few minutes.

Article VII B has remained the same in the 1966-1967 contract, which was the first agreement between the parties, and the current agreement. The teachers tried unsuccessfully in the current agreement to make planning periods mandatory for all junior high school and high school teachers. Teachers in the elementary school system do not have planning periods.

Article XI G was introduced for the first time in the current agreement. In previous years some high school teachers taught an extra class during their planning period without additional compensation.

The Union in negotiation proposed that classes taught beyond the normal load be compensated at 12% of the contracted pay per semester. The administration proposed 15% of the annual contract for one extra class per school year. The cost of this proposal was not included in the Union's proposal cost sheet since it was not known how many teachers would be involved. The Union letter to the Michigan Mediation Board requesting fact finding estimated the proposal at $11,000.00 on the basis of six teachers at the high school and one or two at the junior high school level. It appears that no cost estimate was included for teachers in the position of Grievants. Nor is there evidence that such costs could be estimated or that the number of teachers who would handle study halls during planning periods was known. There is no evidence that teachers in this category were specifically discussed.

In the course of negotiations Fact Finding was instituted and as a part of the resulting settlement (Board Exhibit 7) Schedule B, Paragraph 5 of the tentative agreement provided: "The Board of Education can pay 17 per cent additional compensation for those teachers working in an extended work day within the amount previously set aside in the budget for this purpose." Mr. Brophy testified that this referred to the number of extra teachers the Board was considering for six positions and was in the area of $9,000.00 to $10,000.00. He also estimated that the cost of the demand by Grievants would be approximately $4,800.00 for the year.

After millage was rejected by the voters, the parties continued negotiations to attempt to lower costs without affecting changes in contract terms. Part of this was an agreement to eliminate some of the extra classes as originally planned.

Mr. Vandervoort for the LEA agreed that the extra classes including the one at the junior high could be eliminated. The minutes regarding discussions on changes were made a part of the agreement in order to make the agreement possible within the operating income of the District.

The two teachers at the high school who teach an extra class are required to stay an extra or 7th period to cover their planning period, as is the shop teacher in the junior high who teaches an extra class. The shop teacher does not require and does not use this period for planning. Grievants do not have an extra period on the premises of the school.

CONTENTIONS OF PARTIES

The Board contends:

1. The grievance is not arbitrable since it seeks pro rata payment instead of 17% specified in Article XI G and to do this would be to amend or modify the contract which is beyond the arbitrator's power under the agreement.

2. Article VII B does not guarantee a planning period and there is a past practice of having junior high teachers take study hall assignments during planning periods on a rotating basis.

3. The LEA attempted to negotiate mandatory planning periods in the current agreement without success.

4. The language of Article XI G was not intended to cover assignments to study halls during release time.

5. Article XI G was only intended to cover an extended work day involving six class periods and a planning period every day. LEA cost estimates prove that this is factual.

6. Article XI G is specific and does not permit prorating by the arbitrator.

7. After the failure of millage, an agreement made to cut costs indicates that the LEA representative believed that only extra teaching class assignments were involved in Article XI G.

8. The grievances must be denied and costs assessed to LEA.

The Lakeview Education Association contends:

1. Pro-ration does not modify or amend the contract, it merely applies the contract formula realistically. The Board has done this in other situations as revealed by the record, when it pro rated two weeks pay for a teacher who handled an extra class until millage failed. If the argument has any validity, Grievants should be paid 17% for the whole period worked. The "Trilogy" Supreme Court cases make clear that any grievance is arbitrable unless there is clear and forceful evidence of intent to exclude it from arbitration. There is none in this case, particularly in view of the breadth of the contract definition of a grievance.

2. LEA failed to negotiate mandatory planning periods in all cases. LEA maintained and the Board agreed that five hours of teaching in the Junior high school and High school was a full schedule. Study halls were and are treated as classes for this purpose. If study halls were to be treated otherwise, it was the Board's duty to make this clear as it did not do in negotiations or in the agreement itself.

3. The term teacher does not distinguish between Junior high and High school teachers. Superintendant TeSelle's answer to the grievance is clear proof that no distinction is intended in Article XI G.

4. Study halls are accepted as classes in the High school and Woodrow Junior High (transcript, page 10).

5. Article I, Section 2, of the Michigan Constitution - The equal protection of the law guarantee, compels this result.

6. The argument of equalization of time between High and Junior High teachers is both irrelevant and not factual.

7. The nine Grievants should be paid the amount shown on Board Exhibit 6 for the first semester and a similar compilation made for the second semester.

OPINION

I. We must first determine the threshold question of arbitrability. It is always a pertinent inquiry unless waived expressly or by conduct constituting proper grounds for estoppel. The LEA asserts that under the Trilogy doctrines (Warrior and Gulf, et. al.) a grievance is arbitrable unless there is clear and forceful evidence of contractual intent to exclude it from arbitration. The Board asserts that the Trilogy Doctrine is a caveat to the courts to submit such cases to the arbitrator and does not constitute a mandate that even in such cases the arbitrator must proceed on the merits without considering arbitrability and further the doctrine has no application where no court action is involved. The position of both parties is supported by considerable authority. My own view is that unless a court has passed on arbitrability affirmatively, the issue is necessarily before the arbitrator and that this may be true even in cases where a court has ordered arbitration, since implicitly the jurisdictional issue may have been deferred to the arbitrator by the court on the theory that his "greater experience" in labor relations issues was bargained for by the parties.

The thrust of the Board's position on arbitrability is that Article XI G of the contract provides for 17% of the yearly salary for an additional class and therefore since only one to three days per week is involved in the grievance, pro-ration of a class is sought and to grant this would mean that the arbitrator would be modifying or amending the agreement rather than interpreting it. Certain preliminary matters must be considered. It is of course clear that the grievance seeks an interpretation or construction of the application of the agreement. The problem is one that the Board can legally submit to arbitration, since it seeks an interpretation of what is an extra class under Article XI G. There is no claim that the grievance was untimely filed or submitted to arbitration. The matter was properly submitted to the undersigned (Article III D (e) 1-4). Under Article III D(e)(5), the arbitrator is limited to the interpretation and application of the agreement to the facts submitted and properly before him. He may not add to, subtract from, or modify the agreement, nor limit or change any policy, practice or rule except as they are involved in the application or interpretation. The arbitrator may not formulate, add policies or substitute his discretion for that of the Board or Administration where they properly have such discretion. To which your current arbitrator adds, "Amen", he would not want such power. Nevertheless, the duty is plainly present to determine whether the remedy sought forecloses arbitrability because not expressly articulated in Article XI G. This article neither specifically provides for, nor does it negative pro-ration. The salary referred to is an annual salary which is paid on a weekly basis. It is clear that pro-ration in this sense occurred when a certain high school class was discontinued after two weeks because of the millage defeat. The parties pro-rationed payment because there was no other practical or even legal way to proceed. Surely the teacher could not be paid for the entire year because the class was terminated without fault on his part; nor could he legally or practically be expected to forego remuneration. The parties did not deal with this subject, apparently because it did not occur to them as a problem. It does not follow that they therefore affirmatively provided for no pro-ration by default. Such a construction is exceedingly technical and there is no showing in the history of negotiations that it was intended. It could only be justified by express language providing that there could be no pro-ration or by implication from cogent circumstances not present here. Furthermore, if there were merit in a monetary claim, if an "either or" result is required it would be more equitable to require full payment than to deny any payment. The contract is written succinctly with no attempt to fully explicate its application under all circumstances. To apply the agreement as requested would be to arrogate form over substance and to induce the parties to write an encyclopedia rather than a memorial of their basic agreement and simply compound their problems. I therefore hold that the grievances are arbitrable and that this ruling constitutes an interpretation of the agreement and not a modification or creation of a new pay scale.

II. The Lakeview Education Association as the proponent of the grievance has the burden of proof on the merits of this issue.

It is apparent that Article XI G requires interpretation. LEA has continuously sought daily planning periods for all Junior and Senior High School teachers. This demand was not granted under Article VII B in the current contract, although both parties, throughout the history of negotiations, expressed the desirability of extending planning periods to such teachers within budgetary practicality. It is equally clear, as reflected in the various minutes of the negotiation, that both parties viewed a normal class load as five classes per day in both junior and senior high school (minutes of negotiation, LEA Exhibits 1a, b, c, d).

Furthermore, the evidence shows that study hall sessions have been included in the definition of classes as evidenced by the fact that a combination of five classes and study halls has been treated as a full teaching load at both the High School and Woodrow Junior High. On the other hand, junior high teachers have been carrying from one to three study periods in addition to five classes without any extra pay since 1959, and teachers at the high school have taught extra classes, prior to the current contract, without any additional pay.

There is no direct evidence that the extra study periods were discussed as a basis for extra payment, the discussion centering on high school teachers carrying a sixth class. What then was the intendment of Article XI G?

The Superintendent of Schools first answer to the grievance needs consideration in this respect. In his first answer, he stated that Article XI G was intended for teaching a 6th period class during the day at the high school level and that this was extended to the junior high. He goes on to say that the negotiated contract did not grant additional free time during the school day to elementary and junior high teachers.

It is clear that a study hall has been equated to a class and therefore the case would not be substantially different if Grievants were teaching additional classes one to three days per week. A study hall can hardly be a class at Woodrow and not at Highland! The latter part of the answer is not responsive either, since it is not a question of granting additional free time, but of payment for additional classes. For example, the situation would not be covered by Article XI G if Grievants were assigned other duties which did not constitute "classes".

The second answer of the Superintendent on December 6, 1967, apparently followed a meeting with the professional problems committee and denied the grievance on the additional ground that the Grievants were not teaching a full extra class as intended by Article XI G. The difficulty with this answer is that it assumes the technical position later assumed by the Board on the arbitrability question and is an attenuated interpretation of the article not warranted by the language used. In effect, this answer means that if teachers were for some reason assigned extra teaching assignments on a continuing basis of one to three classes a week in the junior high schools instead of study halls, no extra pay would be due. I find no such agreement by the parties. While I am convinced that the parties did not deal specifically with study halls in addition to five regular classes, Article XI G covers such situation by its language. Nor is the fact that no money value was placed on such situations in negotiations decisive. It is entirely possible either that the precise situation was overlooked, or that since the number of such cases was not clear in advance, no estimate could be made. In either case the scope of the language clearly requires payment for extra classes above the regular schedule. Mr. Brophy's comment in LEA Exhibit 1(F) (July 25, 1967 minutes, page 13) to the effect that there could have been unintentional oversights in his schedule, but any formula agreed upon between the parties would be applied to people overlooked, is appropriate for consideration. In brief, once the basic principle is established contractually, it applies to all affected, even though some may not have been directly considered when the basic principle was established. The problem affects nine Grievants and a limited amount of expenditure. There is no contractual or other justification for treating them differently because they teach at Highland Junior High than if they taught at Woodrow or the High School. The notion that the study hall time equalizes time between junior high and high school is not factual as established by the record and even if it were an appropriate argument, which it is not, it still discriminates between those at Highland who must handle extra classes (study hall) and those at Highland, Woodrow and the High School who do not. This is central to a determination of intent and is not merely an equitable consideration.

I am not impressed with the fact that teachers paid for teaching an extra class on a regular basis are required to remain a seventh period as a study period. This is a requirement of the administration which can be applied to Grievants, or not, as the administration sees fit and therefore is an ephemeral basis for distinction. In any event, if study halls are in fact necessary, Grievants must do the necessary work at home.

The grievance here deals with teachers assigned to extra classes for an extended period of eight or more weeks and the disposition is not intended to deal with "ad hoc" arrangements to cover isolated single class assignments nor is the ruling intended to serve as a basis of claim for perfect equality in all assignments as a contractual requirement.

In the light of the above I shall order Grievants reimbursed on a pro-rata basis as set forth in the award.

The arbitration proceeding has been superbly presented and briefed by both counsel and they are to be congratulated on the quality of the representation of their respective principals. From my past experience with the parties and from the record before me, I am entirely convinced that both sides acted entirely in good faith in the belief that the views they expressed fully represented the basic intention of the parties and it should be obvious from the time required to try and to decide this matter that the issue was very difficult and supported by cogent arguments on both sides. However, I am convinced after most careful study of the record that the result reached is justified by both the contract and surrounding circumstances which give meaning to the written terms of the contract.

LEA has sustained its burden of proof and the award is against the Board.

AWARD

I. The grievance is arbitrable.

II. The Lakeview Board of Education violated the agreement by assigning Grievants to an extra study hall assignment for several weeks from one to three days per week during their planning periods and in addition to their regular assignments of five classes per day, without additional compensation. The Lakeview Board of Education shall pay Grievants Gerald Phillips, Dale Crawford, John A. Hageman, Margaret Collins, Jerry Yeast, Lois Dowman, Gladys Stauffer, John R. Moffett and Carol L. Culp, teachers in the Highland Junior High School, the amounts set forth in Board Exhibit 6 of this proceeding for the first semester of the school year 1967-1968 and the amounts calculated by the same pro-rata formula for study halls handled above their five classes in the second semester. The Arbitrator's fee is assessed against the Lakeview Board of Education.

The Arbitrator retains jurisdiction in the event the parties disagree as to the meaning or application of the Award or the formula for payment to Grievants.

DECISION

Statement of Case

On June 12, 1967, Massachusetts Teachers Association, herein called the Association, filed a petition with the State Labor Relations Commission, under Chapter 149, Sections 178 G thru N of the General Laws, herein called the Law, for its certification as representative for the purposes of collective bargaining of certain employees of Town of Ashburnham School Committee herein called "Ashburnham".

On November 21, 1967, Westminster Teachers Association, herein called the Association, filed with the Commission, under the Law, for its certification as representative for the purposes of collective bargaining of certain employees of Town of Westminster School Committee, herein called "Westminster".

The petitions and accompanying notices of hearing were duly served.

Pursuant to notices, a hearing was held in Leominster before Chairman Michael J. John on January 11, 1968. Full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses and to introduce testimony bearing upon the issues was afforded to all parties.

At the hearing both cases were tried together because, although involving two separate municipal employers, the issue involved was the same.

At the hearing, counsel for the Commission, at the request of the Petitioners in each case, moved to amend each petition by striking out the unit suggested in each petition and substituting therefor the following suggested appropriate units:

MCR-326:

"The employee employed as the elementary school Principal by the Town of Ashburnham School Committee, excluding all other employees of said School Committee and the Ashburnham - Westminster Regional School District."

MCR-375:

"The employee employed as the elementary school Principal by the Town of Westminster School Committee, excluding all other employees of the said School Committee and the Ashburnham - Westminster Regional School District."

Both Motions were allowed.

Statement of Findings of Fact

1. The Ashburnham - Westminster Regional School District administers and has exclusive control of the public school education of all children from grades seven thru twelve, through the Ashburnham - Westminster Regional School Committee.

2. That the Towns of Ashburnham and Westminster each have their separate respective School Committees which administer and have exclusive control of the public school education of all children from grades one thru six.

3. That the "Union Superintendent" is the Superintendent of the Regional School System, and is also the Superintendent of the Elementary School System in each community with the responsibility to report to the respective school committees, as the case may be.

4. That Mr. Joseph Aveni is the Principal of the Westminster Elementary School System and the sole person so employed in that classification.

5. That Mr. Ralph A. Curran is the Principal of the Ashburnham Elementary School System and the sole person employed in that classification.

6. That both Mr. Aveni and Mr. Curran hold the highest Civil Service positions within their respective school systems as Elementary School Principals.

7. Both Mr. Aveni and Mr. Curran as Principals, have supervision over the teachers within their jurisdiction and have the responsibility to complete status and/or evaluation reports of their subordinates to the School Committee through the Superintendent.

8. That there are approximately forty (40) subordinate teachers in each elementary system, and each Principal is responsible for the preparation of the budget for his respective department; that each Principal can recommend granting or withholding of pay increments by recommendation to the respective School Committees.

9. That both School Committees have recognized the subordinate teachers in the appropriate bargaining unit of teachers, with the Massachusetts Teachers Association designated as the exclusive bargaining agent.

10. That the Massachusetts Teachers Association does represent the teachers and administrators of the Regional School District as the exclusive bargaining representative.

11. That the collective bargaining agreements have been entered into between the Massachusetts Teachers Association as the employee organization and the Regional School System, and the respective community School Committees as Municipal Employers, relative to wages, hours and conditions of employment.

12. That the two elementary school Principals involved herein are in no way included in any of the said collective bargaining agreements.

13. That both elementary school Principals are members of the Massachusetts Teachers Association, but however, were in no way participants in the collective bargaining negotiations, either on the part of the Municipal Employers or on the part of the employee organizations.

14. That these Principals do screen teacher candidates for entrance into the school systems, and do hear grievances in the first instance of all subordinate teachers and employees.

15. That these Principals make written factual reports relative to employees to the Superintendent. The Superintendent makes the final determination as to what action should be taken, and recommends same to the respective School Committees.

16. The Principals do not have the right to hire, fire, suspend or discipline. Their responsibility extends to written reports to the Superintendent who is responsible for the final action to be recommended to the School Committee.

17. Neither of the Principals was or is consulted by either School Committee, nor by the Superintendent in regard to the proposals or matters relating to labor relations which were discussed or to the negotiations prior to the consummation of the collective bargaining agreement.

Issues

1. Whether or not a single-man unit is appropriate within the meaning of the Municipal Collective Bargaining Law.

2. Whether or not the elementary school Principals involved herein are executives within the meaning of the Municipal Collective Bargaining Law.

Conclusions

I. THE MUNICIPAL COLLECTIVE BARGAINING LAW DOES NOT INCLUDE SINGLE-MAN UNITS

The Commission is of the unanimous opinion that the statute relating to collective bargaining for Municipal Employees by its own language implies the requirement that there be more than one person in an appropriate bargaining unit. The word, "employee", whenever used in the context relating to the right to organize is used in the plural. The express intent of the statute is to allow employees, i.e., "to bargain collectively",--"to engage in concerted activities", -- "mutual aid", -- "representative of the majority" -- all connote plurality, rather than individuality.

Looking towards Chapter 150A in the private sector on the State Labor Relations Law, the question of a single-man unit is expressly provided for.

> S2 (9) "the term 'one-man unit' means a single employee of an employer who employs more than one employee in the same occupation within the commonwealth."

We have interpreted that section in the Cabot Theatre case to require at least two employees in the unit, employed by the employer in the same job classification.

We therefore find that one-man units in cases where the Municipal Employer employs only one in a job classification is inappropriate and for this reason the petitions (MCR-326) and (MCR-375) should be dismissed.

Although conclusions as set forth above should be decisive in this matter, we are compelled because of the uniqueness of this case to determine the status of these employees with the organizational structures of their various school systems.

II. THESE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL PRINCIPALS ARE NOT EXECUTIVES WITHIN THE MEANING OF THE MUNICIPAL COLLECTIVE BARGAINING LAW

The both cases are similar and the considerations somewhat identical.

For an employee to be classified as a bona fide executive within the meaning of the statute, we find that he must consistently and continuously be engaged in the exercise of discretion and independent judgment on his own account relative to the management of the department and consequently his fellow employees.

There is no question in our minds that these Principals have supervisory functions. The very nature of their positions and their express duties require the direction of their subordinate employees in the implementation of the policies and programs as decided by the School Committees for the major mission of the school systems--the education of the children in grades one thru six of their respective communities.

In other school systems which included employees in the middle school and high school levels, these elementary principals would have been included in the "Administrators Unit". See our Decision in the City of Springfield, City of Pittsfield and City of Peabody cases.

The sole reason for the proposed denial of collective bargaining rights in these cases is that these elementary school Principals are the only persons in the highest job classifications left in the school systems due to the creation of a Regional School District.

Although they do complete valuation reports, and although the first step in the application of a grievance procedure for their subordinates commences with them, their express duties and functions are limited expressly to the ultimate and overriding authority of the Union Superintendent. They merely report to the Superintendent all pertinent matters relating to the function, requirements and needs of their respective systems. It is the Union Superintendent who possesses the attributes of the executive with the discretion and judgment to take and formulate the final present and/or future action in a situation. In many cases the recommendation of the Principal was disregarded.

We do not believe that these elementary school Principals should be denied the right to benefits under the statute because of the circumstances in these matters. The systems are small, containing approximately thirty to forty teachers each. We believe that the intention of the statute and the rights of these two petitioners would be effectuated if they were included in the overall unit of school teachers in their respective elementary school systems.

No petitions for certification have been filed with this Commission in each Community relative to the elementary school teachers. However, because of the reasons set forth above, if the question were to be raised before us, we would be compelled to declare that a unit of all elementary classroom teachers including the Elementary School Principal would be an appropriate one.

Opinion

After having either read and/or heard the entire record in this case, the Commission finds:

(1) That the units suggested in both petitions are inappropriate for the purposes of collective bargaining;

(2) That both petitions filed herein are hereby dismissed.

SO DIRECTED.

The hearing consumed two (2) days, the first session being held on April 9, 1968 in conference quarters of the American Arbitration Association located in Detroit and the second taking place on April 19, 1968 at the Macomb County Health Center located in Mt. Clemens, Michigan. A single grievance was scheduled for hearing but the Board challenged the arbitrability of the dispute under the terms of the Agreement between the parties dated September 1, 1967 (Joint Ex. #1). The issues on arbitrability and the primary grievance were both presented and heard.

I - The Threshold Issue of Timeliness

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Grievance #1 (Joint Ex. #2) is dated, on its face, 10-17-67. After proceeding through the process (with vicissitudes that have bearing on the merits but are not involved in the dispute over timeliness), the dispute remained unresolved and was moved to the arbitration step by the Association in a letter to the Superintendent dated December 14, 1967 (Assoc. Ex. #1), which reads as follows:

"In accordance with the Master Agreement, Article XXV, Paragraph F, I would like to meet with you next Tuesday, December 19, 1967, at 4:00, for the purpose of selecting an arbitrator for the Sandra Gunden grievance.

Sincerely"

On December 15, 1967, the Superintendent replied (Assoc. Ex. #2), as follows:

"I was utterly astounded to receive your letter of December 14 suggesting the selection of an arbitrator for the Sandra Gunden grievance, I am unable to understand or appreciate your motives in agitating an injudicious discord.

Unfortunately, in your position as a member of the negotiating team, you have been unable to grasp the true spirit of collective negotiation. The image portrayed by your Association was one of trust and respect, devoid of all negatively conceived and hidden agendas. An obvious lack of discretion in attempting to force ingestion of inappropriate materials down one's gullet (although with enough force this may be possible) can do nothing but cause a condition odious to all.

I have neither time nor patience to persist in carrying this incident to any greater extreme. If, after examining your conscience, you find that you no longer can live within the spirit of that which was intended in the Master Agreement; if you are now trying to tell me that the mutual respect and trust and understandings we had at the negotiation table are no longer valid, then, I would say to you that you are doing an injustice to the School District, to the staff, and to the students and I'll have no part of it. If you want to push for arbitration you will have to do it on your own."

On December 29, 1967, the Association submitted a formal demand for arbitration to the American Arbitration Association. The Board representative did not receive a copy of this document until January 22, 1968. This, the School Board asserts, violates Rule 7th of "Voluntary Labor Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association" and, as a consequence, challenges the arbitrability of the primary matter in dispute.

Pertinent Rules & Provisions Cited by the Parties

a) From the Current Agreement (Joint Ex. #1):

"Article XXV - Professional Grievance Procedure

"F. If the Association is not satisfied with the disposition of the grievance by the Board, or if no disposition has been made within the period above provided, the grievance may be submitted to arbitration before an impartial arbitrator. If the parties cannot agree as to the arbitrator, he shall be selected by the American Arbitration Association in accord with its rules which shall likewise govern the arbitration proceeding. The Board and the Association shall not be permitted to assert in such arbitration processing any ground or to rely on any evidence not previously disclosed to the other party. The arbitrator shall have no power to alter, add to or subtract from the terms of this Agreement. Both parties agree to be bound by the award of the arbitrator."

b) From AAA Rules

"7. Initiation Under an Arbitration Clause in a Collective Bargaining Agreement--Arbitration under an arbitration clause in a collective bargaining agreement under these Rules may be initiated by either party in the following manner:

(a) By giving written notice to the other party of intention to arbitrate (Demand), which notice shall contain a statement setting forth the nature of the dispute and the remedy sought, and...."

The Board's Position

The Board contended that Section F (quoted above) makes it mandatory that the selection of the arbitrator be made in accordance with the Rules of the American Arbitration Association which, by reference, are made a part of the Agreement. Since Rule #7 (also quoted above) calls for the moving party to give the other side a written notice of the demand, this becomes an obligatory requirement of the Labor Contract. In this case, the Association submitted a defective request for arbitration because the Board was not notified until almost a month after the demand was made.

The arbitrator was asked to dismiss the grievance as untimely.

The Association Position

Association Ex. #2 was cited as evidence that the Board repudiated its obligation to participate in arbitration. Furthermore, Rule #7 spells out no time-limits and the notice was given on January 22, which, in the Association's opinion, satisfies the procedural requirements.

The Union asked that the Board's request be denied.

Discussion

The arguments advanced by the Board are entirely without substance and border on the capricious. The Association notice of December 14 (Assoc. Ex. #1) clearly expressed an "intention to arbitrate" the specific dispute in this case. This grievance (Joint Ex. #2) spells out the remedy requested. The Board hardly can cry: "Surprise!" If this was not enough the Board did receive a copy of the precise demand submitted to the American Arbitration Association. This took place prior to the selection of the arbitrator. It cannot reasonably be held that the matter is non-arbitrable on the grounds of the objections raised by the Board.

THE AWARD

The Board's objections are dismissed and Grievance #1 is declared to be arbitrable.

II - The Primary Issue: Grievance #1

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Grievant, Sandra Gunden, applied for employment as a probationary teacher in the District shortly before May 10, 1967. She was scheduled to graduate with a BA degree, which she did on June 5, 1967. However, in the course of matriculating, she had accumulated an excess of 23 credit hours over and above those required to earn her degree. At the time of the employment interview referred to herein, the grievant inquired whether or not these credits would apply to gain her placement in the BA plus 15 hours Salary Range which pays an annual premium of $300.00 over the BA Salary Range. The interviewing Board agent signified inability to answer authoritatively but assured the grievant that he would seek a ruling on the request which would be conveyed to her by mail. Shortly thereafter, on May 10, 1967, Miss Gunden received the following communication from the Superintendent (Assoc. Ex. #5):

"Please find enclosed your teaching contract for the 1967-68 school year. It is my understanding that you have some hours beyond that required for your certificate and Bachelor's Degree. By the time school starts this Fall, if you have at least 15 hours over and above that required to meet the certification requirements, we will be able to place you on the higher certification step of our salary schedule. You will note that this contract will be adjusted when the new 1967-68 Master Contract has been negotiated and ratified.

Please sign and return both copies of this contract to this office. Your copy will be mailed to you when it has been signed by the Superintendent."

As indicated in the foregoing document, an individual employment contract was enclosed (Assoc. #4). This document established her pay at $5,600.00 (the BA starting rate) with the following addendum: "This contract subject to adjustment according to appropriate position on 1967-8 Master Contract when ratified".

The 67-8 Agreement was duly entered into on 9-1-67. In it the starting salary for BA is set forth as 6,300.00; for BA + 15 hours, it is $6,600.00. On November 9, 1967, the Grievant received her revised contract from the Board, reflecting her status under the new Labor Agreement (Assoc. #9). This placed her at the start of the BA schedule, rather than BA + 15 hours to which the Grievant claims she is entitled.

The Association's Position

The Grievant testified to the sequence of developments just described in the episode out of which the grievance arose. She added that, earlier in the day in which she had the Chippewa Valley interview, she had also been interviewed at the Warren Consolidated School District. The salary scale in this latter District was somewhat higher than at Chippewa Valley. She received a number of offers, including one from Warren as well as in the school system where she presently works. Her decision to select Chippewa Valley was influenced by the assurance in the 5-10-67 letter (Assoc. Ex. #5) which accompanied the Chippewa Valley contract offer. The witness admitted that she knew Warren would not give the extra credits which she sought. The Labor Agreement specifically ruled such treatment out unless the 15 hours were post-graduate. However, she had no knowledge of pay practices elsewhere, which prompted her inquiry of Chippewa Valley and reliance on the written answer which she received.

Association President Fette stated that he had been a teacher in the school system since the Fall of 1964. He is the chief negotiator and grievance representative. He asserted that he had no knowledge of any intent to limit BA + 15 hours to post-graduate work. He did not know what the past practice was but he assumed that the intent in negotiations was to carry forward the established administrative implementation. In his view, there was no contract-bar to the grievant receiving this recognition. He was not aware of any other teacher in the system gaining the BA + 15 hours column based on hours earned before the degree was conferred.

The witness cited from the Agreement (Joint Ex. #1) certain provisions on which he relied to give substance to the grievant's claim. Among these were:

"Article II - Section J. The provisions of this Agreement concerning the wages, hours, terms and conditions of employment, shall be applied in a manner which is not arbitrary, capricious or discriminatory, and without regard to race, creed, religion, color, national origin, age, sex, marital status...."

The witness argued that denial of BA + 15 to the grievant is contradictive to the 5-10-67 commitment (Assoc. Ex. #5) and, consequently, arbitrary, capricious and discriminatory.

"Article XVII, Section E. No teacher shall be disciplined, reprimanded, reduced in rank or compensation or deprived of any professional advantage without just cause. Any such discipline, reprimand or reduction in rank, compensation or advantage, including adverse evaluation of teacher performance asserted by the Board or representatives thereof shall be subject to the professional grievance procedure hereinafter set forth. All information forming the basis for disciplinary action will be made available to the teacher."

In this case, the Association contended, the grievant was reduced from the rank which had been accorded her through the hiring offer.

"Article XXVIII - Section D. This Agreement shall supersede any rules, regulations or practices of the Board which shall be contrary to or inconsistent with its terms. The provisions of this Agreement shall be incorporated into and be considered part of the established policies of the Board."

Whatever the past practice might have been, the terms of the present Agreement do not spell out that the 15 hours above the BA must be post-graduate. The contract simply says that 15 hours, apart from those required for the degree, must be earned. This could be before or after graduation. Therefore, the grievant and all others who might be in a similar situation are entitled to compensation at the BA + 15 column.

The Union argued that the Superintendent had written the 5-10-67 letter (Assoc. Ex #5) of his own volition. He was clearly in a position to state that the 15 hours MUST be after the degree - had he deemed that the established procedure. Instead, he saw fit to entice the grievant with blandishments which now are supposed to have said other than the meaning plainly conveyed. In responding, the grievant turned her back on offers which were more attractive than the system's BA salary provisions. She did this in confident expectation of getting BA + 15. Today, she lost better opportunities without realizing on the promises which were voluntarily given her.

The Association argued that no meeting had taken place at Step D, as required under the contract provision thereon (Article XXV - Section D) which says: "Within five (5) school days the Superintendent or his designee shall meet with the Association on the grievance and shall indicate his disposition of the grievance in writing within three school days of such meeting." In addition, Section F (already quoted in the Threshold Issue) bars either side from asserting before the arbitrator any ground or evidence not previously disclosed to the opposite party. Therefore the Association objected most strenuously to consideration of the Superintendent's letter to the grievant dated 11-2-67 (Bd. Ex. #1). Since there was no Step D meeting, this, the Association declares, could not be considered as "disposition" after "such meeting". Extending its argument from this premise, the Association urged that all evidence as to possible past practice be ruled inadmissible due to the contention that this would be ground or evidence not disclosed during the grievance procedure as the Board's defense in this case.

The Agreement, in Article XXVIII, Section C provides that "Any individual contract between the Board and an individual teacher, heretofore executed shall be subject to and consistent with the terms and conditions of this Agreement and any individual contract hereafter executed shall be expressly made subject to and consistent with the terms of this or subsequent Agreements to be executed by the parties. If an individual contract contains any language inconsistent with this Agreement, this Agreement, during its duration, shall be controlling."

The Association is the Bargaining Agent. There can be no bargaining between the Board and individual teachers. In this case, the Association insists that the Superintendent, on 5-10-67, merely expressed what the Agreement reflects on its face and that the grievant, like any teacher in her situation, qualifies for the status about which she now grieves.

To support its contention, the Union pointed out that the Salary Schedule headings had changed in the current Agreement from the form they had taken in the 1966-7 Agreement. Presently, they read (from Joint Ex. #1):

Non-Deg. less than 106 hrs.	Non-Deg. 106-119 hours	Degree No Cert.	Cert. B. A.	Cert. B. A. 15 hrs.	Cert. M. A.	Cert. M. A. 15 hrs.	Cert. M. A. 30 hrs.

In 1966-7, they appeared as follows (Assoc. Ex. #3):

Non-deg. less than 106 hrs.	Non-deg. 106-119 hours	Degree No Cert.	B. A.	B. A. plus 15 hrs.	M. A.	M. A. plus 15 hrs.	M. A. plus 30 hrs.

The significant change is that, in the fifth column, the word "plus" has been dropped. Since this is so, the Association maintained that the present terms apply as presently written. There was, however, no claim advanced nor evidence presented that the heading modification was discussed in negotiations. On the other hand, Board Witness Girard had admitted that occasions had arisen when teachers with identical qualifications had received different salaries. This indicates that no consistent policy had applied in the past and, consequently, there was not even a practice on which the Board could rely for possible interpretation.

The Association asked to be upheld in its contention and that the grievant should be awarded the BA + 15 rating for the 1967-8 school year.

The Board's Position

The Board traced the history of the early processing of the grievance as follows:

Grievance #1 was filed as of Tuesday, October 17, 1967. A meeting on the matter was held on Tuesday, October 23, 1967, between Association President Fette and Elementary Principal Custer. Mr. Custer discovered that the grievance was unsigned and, although he recorded his answer referring the grievance to the Superintendent's level, he returned the document to Mr. Fette so that it could be properly signed. This was to conform with the procedure directed by Article XXV, Section B, which states that: "The grievant may invoke the formal grievance procedure on the form in annexed Schedule "C", signed by the grievant and a representative of the Association." (Emphasis added by Board). Mr. Fette placed the grievance in the interoffice mail to go to Miss Gunden. Through error, it was delivered to the Superintendent who on Wednesday, October 24, 1967, returned the grievance to the Association President with the following covering letter (Bd. Ex. #4):

"Recently during a conference in my office we had occasion to discuss Miss Gunden's position on the salary schedule. At that time I indicated to you that, to the best of our knowledge, all of our teachers are on the salary schedule at the proper step. Also, I stated that should Miss Gunden be able to document the fact that she did, in effect, earn 16 hours after she had met all course requirements for certification and a degree, she would be able to be placed on the Bachelor's Degree plus Certificate plus 15 hours category, first year teacher schedule. When it has been established through official transcripts that she did indeed earn 15 hours after having met the requirements mentioned above, she will be placed at the appropriate position on the salary schedule and this, of course, would be retro-active.

"If you elect to invoke the formal grievance procedure on the set form as in Schedule "C", such form shall be signed by both the grievant and a representative of the Association. I am returning herewith the unsigned grievance form dated 10/17/67.

Very truly yours."

On Monday, October 30, 1967, the grievance was resubmitted to the Superintendent with the grievant's signature affixed, but with no accompanying Association representative signature. The Superintendent once more communicated with Miss Gunden on the apparent deficiency, sending her the following letter on November 2, 1967 (Bd. Ex. #1):

"Dear Miss Gunden:

"I am in receipt of Schedule "C" - Professional Grievance Report as of 10/30/67. Please note that if you elect to invoke the formal grievance procedure, it is necessary to have the grievance signed by both a representative of the Association and the grievant. The statement of grievance which was sent to my office is: Miss Gunden be placed on schedule, retro-active to September 1, 1967.

"A brief review of our salary schedule follows: A teacher who has a degree and a certificate is qualified to earn $6,300.00 during the first year. A teacher who has a degree, a certificate, and has earned 15 hours after she has received her degree or certificate would be entitled to earn $6,600.00 during the first year. My position has always been that at the point where the degree and certificate has been earned but not received, a teacher would qualify for the Certificate - Bachelor status. This has happened in a number of cases, particularly with non-degree teachers during the first semester, and therefore they would be qualified for degree pay in the second semester.

"In your case, if you earned 15 hours after the time that you were fully qualified for a teaching certificate, and fully qualified for a Bachelor's degree, you would qualify for the $6,600.00 step on our salary schedule. A person could have a Bachelor's degree in Liberal Arts with 124 semester hours, and then decide to go into teaching. To obtain the proper majors and minors and education courses, this person might take an additional 30 hours, making his total semester hours 154 before he qualified for the certificate. Such a person would be placed at the $6,300.00 step on our salary schedule. Even with 154 semester hours of work, he was not qualified to teach prior to the 154 semester hours, and therefore would not be qualified for the $6,600.00 step.

"The intent of our salary schedule is to pay $6,300.00 for a teacher who has a Bachelor's degree and a certificate. To encourage a person to go on to school and get a permanent certificate, we make another allowance after the teacher earns an additional 15 hours. This is a financial inducement to encourage our teachers to go to school. In summary, if you are able to establish that you did earn 15 hours after you were fully qualified for the certificate and the Bachelor's degree, you will be eligible to be placed on the $6,600.00 step of the salary schedule.

"I trust that this will clarify our position and clear up any misunderstandings that may exist.

"Sincerely yours,"

Mr. Fette, under cross examination, conceded that an Association representative's signature was required to validate a grievance. He further stated that he had seen the letter of 11-2-67 (Bd. Ex. #1), sent to the grievant. The reason that no counter-signature had been added was that Miss Gunden was an Executive Board Member and, as such, her signature as grievant also sufficed to fill the requirement of representative. However, the Superintendent testified that he did not know the grievant's signature fulfilled both needs and had thought Mr. Fette's signature was also required.

The Board contended that the 11-2-67 letter (Bd. Ex. #1) was correspondence on the grievance in the normal course of consideration and, further, that, in the meeting referred to in the 10-24-67 letter (Bd. Ex. #4), the position set forth in the letter to Miss Gunden had been expressed to Mr. Fette. Finally, the Superintendent had met with the grievant late in November, around Thanksgiving, and had fully detailed the Board's position. Inasmuch as each and all of these contacts and exchanges were specifically directed at the grievance herein under consideration, the Board argued that it had satisfactorily fulfilled its disclosure obligations under the Agreement and that its exhibits and evidence were admissible.

The Board explained that candidates for a teaching degree must qualify by taking certain mandatory, preparatory courses. As a result, a student who starts out as a major in Engineering, Divinity or other specialized vocation but who switches in mid-stream to teaching, would find that his initial major accumulated certain credit hours to his benefit which do not count towards the teaching degree. Such a person, after taking the additional courses required for certification, would wind up in precisely the same situation as did Miss Gunden: when the degree was earned the candidate would have gained many excess credit hours which were not required for the degree.

The Salary Schedule set forth in Appendix "B" of the Agreement (Joint Ex. #1), embodies many implied, but plain and uncontrovertible meanings. This schedule actually sets forth the salaries to be paid under certain qualifying conditions. Nevertheless, none of the specified amounts are identified as money, through dollar-signs. No one could deny that the sums set forth are meant to and do represent the various money-amounts. Again, nowhere does this table state that these dollar figures represent a fixed time-lapse to be covered. But no one can deny that each and all are statements of school year annual salaries. Another well understood representation is the vertical column progression of salaries in ten (10) stages. These do not anywhere acknowledge or affirm that the progression basically reflects a teacher's longevity of service in the system. This, however, is exactly the fact and is beyond contention. Finally, the horizontal column structure sets forth still another form of progression; this one being recognition of increased teacher value through higher educational attainments in the specific professional field. With reference to the dispute at issue here, the abbreviated titles at the column headings, imply long held and accepted understandings. Thus, the fourth column is headed "Cert." with "B.A." appearing below "Cert." means that the teacher has been certified by the Michigan Department of Education to teach in the school systems. "B.A." means that in addition the individual has a recognized degree in teaching. The next column is headed: "Cert." (with the same meaning) "B.A." (with the same additional meaning) and "15 hrs." which means 15 additional credit hours of progress after the B.A. and certificate have been attained. Similarly, the columns following after, set forth, in each instance, higher salary ranges in recognition of higher educational attainment after having achieved the preceding level.

The schedule thus analyzed, appears in the Agreement as follows:

"Chippewa Valley Schools

As against this, the 66-7 schedule headings were presented somewhat differently, as shown in Assoc. Ex. #3, already quoted. The changes were made without discussion and with no intention on either side to change effect. The thought was simply that the substitute form more succinctly expressed the identical meaning implied by the 66-7 headings. In any case, in the years prior to the 66-7 Agreement (when formal negotiations were first undertaken in conformance with procedures authorized by PERA) the Board minutes, adopting salary schedules had unmistakably spelled out intent by designating the contested column heading as: BA + Prov. Cert. + 15 hours. This was meticulously spelled out in 1965 (Bd. Ex. #10); in 1964 (Bd. Ex. #9); in 1963 (Bd. Ex. #8); in 1962 (Bd. Ex. #7); in 1961 (Bd. Ex. #6), and in 1960 (Bd. Ex. #2).

Lucine Girard, a teacher with the District, testified that she had been a member of the Association negotiating team on the 1967-8 contract. She had submitted an affidavit (Bd. Ex. #12). This statement reads as follows:

"I (Lucine J. Girard) of (Chippewa School District) School District, being first duly sworn, hereby state that I have been a (teacher) in this School District for (12) years and am familiar with the computation of the salary schedule for this district and have general knowledge of computation of salary schedules in other districts and hereby state that it is specifically true with this district's computation and generally true through the State that hours earned for extra compensation above a B.A. Degree are not counted until after the degree and certification are earned."

In testimony, she affirmed that the affidavit had been freely given and reflected her personal understanding of extra credit hour application. She disclaimed actual knowledge of past practice and recited at least one instance purporting to demonstrate that a teacher had in the past, been paid at variance to the schedule at the time.

High School Principal Pardike testified that he had been with the Chippewa Valley System for eight (8) years. For the first six (6), he had been a teacher; for the most recent two (2), he was a principal. As a teacher, but before enactment of PERA, he had been active in the representational efforts of the teachers' organization. He had served on the committee for a number of years, frequently as spokesman. Once he was Chairman of the Salary Committee, again, V.P. of the local organization and finally, President. He had intimate familiarity with the status of the relationship and had been a prime mover in shaping results, as far as possible under the restrictions which then existed. Throughout his tenure as teacher and representative in the System, he had always known and officially recognized that the requirement for B.A.; 15 hours pay was that a B.A. degree PLUS a certificate PLUS 15 credit hours AFTER the B.A. were mandatory. This witness was on the Board negotiating team in 1966-7. There was no change made or, even, proposed in these qualifications. Similarly, he was on the Board Committee in 1967-8. Again, no change was made, suggested or requested. All that occurred was that the heading form was modified to express the intent somewhat more plainly. The intent never varied at all.

The Board argued that the implications which it reads into the current column headings are, actually, the only true interpretation which could be given, in the absence of any evidence that the parties had knowledgeably adopted changes. Such implied meanings are contemplated by the Agreement. Article III specifically provides for them to have force and effect. The exercise by the Board of its rights is "limited only by the specific and express and implied terms of this Agreement...." (Emphasis added by Board). Thus, clearly, the arbitrator not only has the authority, he has the responsibility to resolve this dispute by interpreting the disputed terms within the meaning which they indubitably imply.

Under the only interpretation which the Board contends can be forthcoming, the grievance must be denied. This is so, says the Board because otherwise the clear obligation to place the grievant at the start of B.A. would be ignored and the contract violated, with all other teachers being discriminated against.

The Board asked that the grievance be rejected.

Discussion

It seems appropriate that this opinion should be prefaced by comment on the purpose and utilization of the grievance process and arbitration. This appears to be timely because collective bargaining and its complex ramifications are, obviously, only in the rooting stage in the Public Sector. It is of consequence, therefore, that the intent and mechanics be underscored, if mutually salubrious results are to flow out. The primary reason for existence of the grievance process is to provide for just resolution of real or fancied differences through orderly means which dispose of problems as promptly as possible. In other words, a dispute between the parties is like an abcess on the body of the relationship which should be removed before it festers into cancer. Now, since this is true, it follows that the parties are responsible to act on and move grievances through the process without procrastination and indeed within whatever time limits might apply. Also, if sincere efforts are put forth to settle issues, the parties would practice full development of their positions in the earliest possible stages so that, when all the facts become apparent, agreement might be facilitated. In any case, when the parties fail to achieve internal solutions and resort to an arbitrator, they are entitled to protection against surprise: the grounds on which the other side relies and the evidence, if not the exhibits and precise testimony, should be known. These time limits and disclosure requirements are merely means, servicing the end of prompt and just settlements. They are not chess-moves, designed to checkmate decisions and, thus, completely nullify the very purpose of the process.

In this case, both sides resorted to technical objections which if upheld, would either have prevented any hearing at all or would have effectively prevented the arbitrator from making any decision without risk of exceeding his authority. Having "no power to alter, add to or subtract from the terms of this Agreement", he would be hard put to assess a valid interpretation after refusing to hear or take into account evidence without which, possibly, no appropriate conclusion could be reached. In the first, or Board, objection this has already been dealt with as absolutely barren of merit. There are, as a matter of fact, no time limit controls whatsoever in the grievance process as it is constructed, which could cause a grievance to be declared untimely. The initial filing and subsequent appeals could, literally, be made without restraint as to lateness. The only time limits are for hearings and answers (or an off-setting time allowance for such to take place) where the single effect is to position the grievance for further movement. Section I, which calls for strict observance of "the time limits" is as close to an empty and meaningless provision as has come to this arbitrator's attention within recent memory. The Association contends that meetings, at least, are compulsory, and with this the arbitrator does agree. However, the Association reads too much into the contract when it seeks to bar from consideration the disputed letter of 11-2-67 (Bd. Ex. #1) from the Superintendent to the Grievant. The position of the Association is, in effect, that nothing can be presented to the arbitrator which the parties have not disclosed to each other in grievance meetings. The most normal way for such revelations to occur would, naturally, be in meetings, But communications, submitted in furtherance of the process of a particular grievance, are most certainly not barred under the broad requirement of "ground" or "evidence" which has been "previously disclosed to the other party".

This case took off with a confused and sputtering start. The original filing was without required signatures. The Principal who heard and answered the matter did not waive the called for endorsements. By agreement, the Association President undertook to obtain them. Through error, the faulty grievance was directed to the Superintendent. He returned it for rectification, with a covering letter of 10-24-67 (Bd. Ex. #4). This document, of itself, lays a foundation for ground to be relied on by the Board in the hearing. It is, indisputably, a disclosure made in the course of processing this grievance. Further, when the signed grievance was resubmitted with only Miss Gunden's signature affixed in the grievant's signature line but with no signature in the Association representative's line, the Superintendent wrote the letter of 11-2-67 (Bd. Ex. #1), requesting that the apparent deficiency be corrected. In this communication, the grounds on which the Board relies were expanded in detail and included the declaration about established implementation and intent. Since these policies are a matter of public record and, even before institution of formal negotiations, since PERA, were matters of, at least, discussion and factual (even if one-sided) resolution between the parties, it cannot be said that the Association was euchered out of knowledge of the ground and evidence on which the Board relied. In any event, since Grievance #1 (Joint Ex. #2) was faulty, inasmuch as Miss Gunden failed to re-sign the grievance on the endorsement line provided for the Association representative, and since the record shows that the Superintendent was not informed that she, as an Executive Board member, was authorized by the Association to provide such approval for herself, the Superintendent's failure to hold a meeting in this case cannot be held against him: the grievance appeared to be defective and not subject to hearing until properly signed. Thereafter, the Board waived the objection when the grievance went through the next Step and, finally, came before the arbitrator. Under these circumstances, it is apparent that the Association, which failed to correct the technical shortcomings on signatures so as to reinstitute normal processes leading to a hearing, waived its rights to the Step D hearing when it appealed to Step E while still technically delinquent. This is rejected by the arbitrator as an adequate defense of its position that the disclosure requirements were evaded by the Superintendent.

The evidence and arguments in this case flow in two directions. One line of approach bases the grievant's claim on the Superintendent's letter of 5-10-67 (Assoc. #5), in which, it is argued, he gave assurances which beguiled her into accepting the Chippewa Valley offer over better offers from elsewhere, if only B.A. status was involved. The second line of reasoning is that whether or not the 5-10-67 letter had been written, the grievant is entitled to recognition as B.A.; 15 hrs. because the Agreement, itself, provides this placement for her or anyone else in her circumstances. The first argument is, obviously, more limited and contained within the broader spectrum of the contention based on the Agreement. This latter aspect will be dealt with first.

The heading for column 5, which is subject to interpretation, must be read by the arbitrator within its ascertainable meaning as given it by the parties through their mutual understanding and application. In this case, it has been established that, although the words in the title were changed, neither side sought a change in established meaning when the current Agreement was negotiated. Inevitably, therefore, parol evidence must be considered to determine what this might have been--for, assuredly, the contract cannot be changed by mere accident, minus the will of either side in negotiations. This history leads to only one conclusion. Prior to PERA - type negotiations, the prevailing policy (despite possible occasional exceptions) was as contended by the Board. The crucial 15 hours had to be earned after the BA degree was earned. In the first formal contract negotiations (1966-7), this policy was adopted as the contract standard. Since no change was requested, contemplated or knowledgeably effected in the 1967-8 negotiations, the standard remains as heretofore. The testimony of Mr. Pardike was most persuasive to this end. On the other hand, Mr. Fette and other Association witnesses confessed no knowledge of past application, although admitting no change was sought in negotiations from whatever that might have been. At the most, Mrs. Girard merely proved that the rule had its exceptions in the years before PERA. This, however, did not indicate such a mixed approach so as to emasculate the plain fact that the policy prevailed and, as such, carried over into the formal contracts with the Association.

With respect to Miss Gunden's claim, based on the letter of 5-10-67 (Assoc. Ex. #5), the arbitrator finds that, indeed, she was given assurances that she would be eligible for the BA - 15 hrs. rating. This was but another example of policy-deviation which had been indulged in prior to PERA. The significant difference now is that the Association, as an equal party to the Agreement, could prevent the administration from carrying out such promises, especially if it felt that such individual treatment was aimed at undermining its bargaining authority. Such, apparently, is not the case in this instance. The Association position is that the commitment must be honored.

This is so ordered.

THE AWARD

The School Board is directed to place the grievant at the first step of the BA - 15 hrs. column and to compensate her for the difference between the BA rate which she was accorded and the BA - 15 hrs. rate to which she is individually entitled.

WASHTENAW COMMUNITY COLLEGE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION,
Charging Party

TRIAL EXAMINER'S DECISION AND RECOMMENDED ORDER

APPEARANCES:

For the Respondent College: Jackson And Lamb
by Paul E. Jackson, Esq.

For the Charging Party: Foster, Campbell, Lindemer & McGurrin, by Webb A. Smith, Esq.

The above-captioned matter came on for hearing before the undersigned trial examiner of the Labor Mediation Board, at Ann Arbor, Michigan on May 17, 1968, pursuant to a charge of refusal to bargain which was filed on March 28, 1968 by the Washtenaw Community College Education Association against the Washtenaw Community College. On the basis of the entire record made at the hearing and the post-hearing briefs submitted by the parties, the undersigned hereby makes the following findings of fact, conclusions of law and recommended order:

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The College is a public employer within the meaning of Act 336, Public Acts of 1947, as amended (Public Employment Relations Act, hereinafter referred to as PERA). The Association is a labor organization within the meaning of PERA.

The charge alleges the following to be a Section 10 (e) unfair labor practice in violation of the duty to bargain as defined in PERA Section 15:

"The Employer has violated, and continues to violate Section 15 of the Public Employment Relations Act in that its administrators have refused, and continue to refuse, to bargain in good faith. Specifically, the Employer was asked on October 5, 1967, November 8, 1967, January 12, 1968, January 19, 1968, February 15, 1968 and February 16, 1968 to provide the Association with the following information:

"1. The point allocation chart provided for each instructor employed during the 1966-1967 and 1967-1968 school year and used by the Employer to determine the salary to be paid to said instructor. Said formula is required by Article III A of the existing Collective Bargaining Agreement of the Employer.

"2. Copies of Pages 1, 2 and 3 of the Employer's job application form in which the training, background and qualifications of each instructor employed during 1966-1967 and 1967-1968 are listed and upon which basis the points are allocated to determine salary.

"3. A list of the salaries actually paid to each instructor during the school year 1966-1967 and 1967-1968.

"All of the above items are required by the Association to enable it to perform its mutual obligation to bargain in good faith and to resolve questions arising under the contract. Said information is not readily available to the Association nor is the same privileged or confidential.

"The refusal to produce the requested information constitutes a continuing violation by the Employer of its statutory duty to bargain in good faith."

The College defends its refusal to furnish such information on a number of grounds. It asserts that (A) items one and two are confidential and personal as between the College and the individual instructor; (B) item three is available to the Association from a reading of the minutes of meetings of the College Board of Trustees which are sent to the Association every month and are available to the public for inspection in the College library; (C) items one and two are beyond the scope of the kinds of information which the College agreed (in the current collective bargaining agreement) to provide, and (D) the College has in fact met and conferred with the Association with regard to whether it would turn over the above information, thereby satisfying its duty to bargain in good faith, since PERA Section 15 does not require that an agreement be reached or a concession be made.

A. Confidential and Personal Nature of the Documents:

The undersigned has studied the point allocation chart and the first three pages of the employment application form used by the College. The contract in effect between the parties sets a minimum and a maximum salary for instructors. The range between the two is a wide $6,000. The College administration is permitted to assign new instructors to a specific salary within the range. The administration, under the terms of the contract, uses a detailed point allocation chart in setting the actual salary. The major categories for awarding "points" are experience, educational attainment, certificates and licenses, skill-related activities, occupational and/or professional affiliations, breadth and depth of experience, and "special elements of consideration." It is obvious that some of these necessitate subjective evaluations. I conclude the contents of the point allocation charts of the instructors represented by the Association are well within the scope of subject matters as to which the College must bargain with the Association. If the Association is to properly police its contract it must be given access to the point allocation charts of the individual instructors. Otherwise the College could carry out the contract in an arbitrary manner.

Likewise, the Association can not intelligently review the College's use of the point allocation charts unless it can compare them with the data set forth on the instructor's job applications. On the job application form the instructor sets forth the following data:

1. Name
2. Address
3. Date of birth
4. U.S. citizen?
5. Social security number
6. Marital status
7. Number and ages of dependents
8. Height
9. Weight
10. Status of health
11. Number of days absent in past year due to illness
12. Community and civic activities
13. Student activities or clubs applicant is interested in sponsoring
14. Educational, technical and professional organizations in which applicant holds membership, license and/or registration
15. Areas in which qualified to teach
16. Areas of specialized training and/or experience that would make a significant contribution to applicant's teaching
17. Details concerning undergraduate education
18. Details concerning graduate education
19. Special training, licenses, or certificates held
20. Details concerning prior work experience

The first ten, or perhaps eleven, of these items are of a personal nature and not directly relevant to the point allocation charts. However, the remaining items, which occupy most of the space on the job application form, are quite impersonal and are manifestly relevant to the charts. They are the primary source of information used by the College in filling in the new instructors' charts. The College, so far as this record reveals, has at no time proposed a limited inspection or production of the job applications so as to permit the Association to administer its contract while still maintaining the confidentiality of the individual instructors' private lives. Such a partial production of the job applications, limited to items twelve through twenty, would have satisfied the duty to bargain, in my opinion, since there was no compelling reason why the Association had to know the highly personal information contained in the first eleven items. Since the requested records contained substantial material which was relevant to the Association's legitimate purposes in administering its contract, the College was legally bound to produce that information. While the College, in my opinion, was entitled to segregate the purely personal material before producing the records, it can not justify its unqualified refusal to produce any part of the records on the rationale that certain items were of a purely personal nature.

The College, in its brief, calls attention to Mich. CL '48, sections 38.458 (Township Civil Service Act) and 38.412 (g) (County Civil Service Act), both of which provide that employee "service records" shall be confidential and not open for public inspection. It also calls attention to Mich. CL '48, section 421.11 (b) (Michigan Employment Security Act) which provides that records concerning benefit rights of employees are confidential. The argument is then made that since the legislature has come out in favor of confidentiality of records wherever it has had occasion to legislate on the subject, it follows that PERA ought to be interpreted in harmony with the mind of the legislature.

There is, apparently, no statute regulating access to job applications kept by community colleges. It is arguable that the very absence of such a statute suggests a legislative intent to permit public access to employee records. In any event, the issue here is not whether the general public has a right of access to the College's job applications but whether the exclusive, certified bargaining agent of all the instructors has a PERA section 10 and 15 right to inspect such employee records as are needed by it in order for it to competently represent the employees in matters affecting wages or conditions of employment. I conclude it has such a right and that the statutes cited in the College's brief provide no basis for ruling otherwise.

B. Availability of Salary Figures in Minutes and Library:

The College provides the Association with the minutes of all its public meetings. The minutes are also available for public inspection in the College library. Under these circumstances I see no reason why the College's refusal to compile a list of instructors with the salary paid to each should be deemed to violate its duty to bargain. The Association was in no real way impeded by the College's position. Therefore, the refusal to comply with the request to produce a list of salaries was not an unfair labor practice.

C. Contract Clause re Providing Information:

Article VII B (2) and (3) of the collective bargaining contract between the parties requires the College to furnish to the Association all information prepared for public release and the agenda for each meeting of the Board of Trustees (together with all normal attachments, including the minutes of past meetings). While the contract does not provide for furnishing of other relevant data which is not "prepared for public release", neither does the contract contain a waiver of the Association's statutory right to such data. In the absence of a clear and unequivocal waiver, I conclude that the Association's statutory right to require production of information is not diminished by a contract clause wherein the College agrees to produce certain kinds of information.

D. Discussion of the Request for Information as Satisfying Duty to Bargain About It:

The College points out that committees representing the two parties have met and discussed the question of furnishing to the Association the data which is the subject of this case. The argument is made that there is no PERA duty to agree, only to confer in good faith. That argument misapplies the statute. PERA does not require the employer to concede on any particular contract term which is the subject matter of the bargaining process. However, the duty to furnish information is part and parcel of the fundamental duty to bargain. This duty is not just one more negotiable subject matter of the bargaining process. The employer is no more free to disagree over whether it will provide the exclusive bargaining agent with relevant data needed to intelligently bargain than it is free to disagree over whether it will recognize and confer with the exclusive bargaining agent.

Having rejected the College's defenses to its admitted refusal to provide the point allocation charts and job application forms, the undersigned concludes that the College has refused, and continues to refuse to bargain in violation of PERA section 10(e) by its refusal to provide such information which is relevant to the administration of the contract. It is, accordingly, recommended that the Board enter an Order as follows:

RECOMMENDED ORDER

Washtenaw Community College, its Board of Trustees, administrators, agents and successors, shall

1. Cease and desist from refusing to bargain collectively with Washtenaw Community College Education Association.

2. Take the following affirmative action which, it is found, will effectuate the policies of PERA.

(a) Upon specific request, provide Washtenaw Community College Education Association with the point allocation charts, relevant portions of job application forms, and any other records in its possession which are relevant to salaries or conditions of employment.

(b) Post, wherever notices to instructors are customarily posted, copies of the attached Notice, affixed on top of copies of the Board's Decision and Order, for a period of thirty (30) consecutive days. The Notices shall be signed by each trustee of the College.

(c) Take reasonable steps to prevent the removal or defacement of said Notice.

(d) Notify the Board within twenty days of receipt of this Order what steps the College has taken to comply therewith.

IN THE MATTER OF

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE JOHNSON CITY CENTRAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, Employer,

and

JOHNSON CITY TEACHERS ASSOCIATION,

Petitioner,

and

JOHNSON CITY FEDERATION OF TEACHERS,

Intervenor.

CASE No. C-0135

DECISION

Petitioner, Johnson City Teachers Association sought certification as the negotiating representative of the entire professional staff of the Johnson City Board of Education, excluding the superintendent of schools, the administrative assistant to the superintendent, the director of pupil services and the business administrator.[1]

The job titles in the unit proposed by the petitioner are principal, vice principal, coordinators, directors, special teachers, classroom teachers, guidance teachers, nurse teachers, dental hygienists and psychologists.

The employer, Johnson City Board of Education, in the proceeding before the Director of Representation, contended that there should be three units, one consisting of principals and vice principals of which there are nine, the second consisting of coordinators and directors which number eleven, and a third basic unit of teachers. In fact, prior to the commencement of this proceeding the employer had determined such three units to be appropriate for the purpose of collective negotiations, but no employee organization was recognized as the negotiating representative for any one of these units.

The intervenor, Johnson City Federation of Teachers, contended that there should be a basic unit of teachers which would exclude principals, vice principals, coordinators and directors, and it is such a unit that the intervenor seeks to represent.

The Director of Representation in his decision determined that there should be two units, one consisting of principals and vice principals, the other including coordinators and directors with the teachers.

Both the public employer and the intervenor have appealed to this Board from the Director's decision. Both appellants assign the same error to said decision; namely, the inclusion of directors and coordinators in the same negotiating unit with the teachers.

[1] All the parties agree that the above job titles be excluded from any negotiating unit.

The appellants argue that the coordinators and directors are supervisors and should not, therefore, be included in the same negotiating unit with teachers.

The coordinators are assigned to Grades 7 through 12. A coordinator is assigned to a specific discipline such as English, Social Studies, Science, Mathematics, Home Economics or Industrial Arts and coordinates the instruction in that subject supervising all of the teachers assigned to teach that subject. The coordinator participates in curriculum planning, the selection of textbooks, assists teachers in planning lessons and in evaluating students. It is also the function of the coordinator to evaluate the performance of the non-tenure teachers under her supervision. The testimony in the record is uncontroverted that the recommendation of the coordinator has always been followed by the principal and school superintendent. The coordinator who testified at the hearing below stated that she had recommended against retention of approximately two teachers each year for the past ten years and her recommendations were followed. Generally, the coordinator attends classes taught by tenured teachers only by invitation or at the specific request of the administration, and in the latter case, would file a written report.

The directors work in Grades 1 through 8 and direct instruction in such subjects as Art, Music and Physical Education. They perform the same evaluating function with respect to non-tenure teachers as do the coordinators, and the testimony is clear that the recommendations of the directors have been accorded the same regard as the recommendations of the coordinators. The coordinators and directors also schedule classes and assign the teaching load to the teachers under their supervision, and they would be the person to whom the teacher would first discuss any complaint or grievance that might arise.

The decision of the Director of Representation below recognized that the coordinators and directors do have some supervisory function but concluded that since at least 50% of the time of coordinators and directors is spent in teaching and they share the same fringe benefits as the teachers that they are more closely related to teachers than to administration.

On the facts in this case, we disagree. The evaluating function of the coordinators and directors plus their position in the complaint or grievance procedure would, in our opinion, give rise to such a conflict of interest as to preclude their being joined in the same unit as the teachers.

We do not ignore the fact that the coordinator and the director who testified at the hearing stated that they desired to be included in the same unit with the teachers and that some 221 teachers signed a petition indicating support for the unit sought by petitioner. Certainly the desire of the employees involved is entitled to consideration in unit determination. However, we are not persuaded that this indicia of a felt community of interest should be determinative in view of the conflict of interest referred to above and in the absence of any evidence as to the circumstances surrounding the signing of such petition.

Accordingly, we find that the coordinators and directors should be in the unit with principals and vice principals for purposes of collective negotiations.

THEREFORE, IT IS DETERMINED THAT there shall be two units of professional employees of the employer, as follows:

UNIT I

Included: All classroom teachers, special teachers, guidance teachers, nurse teachers, dental hygienists and psychologists.

Excluded: All other professional and administrative personnel.

UNIT II

Included: All principals, vice principals, coordinators and directors.

Excluded: All other professional and administrative personnel.

FURTHER, IT IS ORDERED THAT an election by secret ballot shall be held under the supervision of the Director of Representation among the employees of the employer in the two units determined above to be appropriate, UNLESS the petitioner or intervenor submits to the Director of Representation, within seven days from the date of receipt of this decision, dues deduction authorizations and other evidences sufficient to satisfy the requirements of Section 201.6(h)(1) of the Rules for certification without an election.

Dated: Albany, New York

IN THE MATTER OF THE ARBITRATION

BETWEEN

CLINTONDALE PUBLIC SCHOOLS
BOARD OF EDUCATION

AND

CLINTONDALE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

OPINION
GRIEVANCE NO. 1-67/68

DUDLEY E. WHITING, ARBITRATOR

APPEARANCES

FOR THE BOARD

Charles Wright III
Charles Bode
John J. Dubinsky

FOR THE ASSOCIATION

Charles W. Somers
Tom Patterson
Santo L. Urso
Robert H. Warren

GRIEVANCE NO. 1-67/68

The grievance reads:

"Mr. Urso teaches Intermediate and Elementary Music. His supplementary contract is for Junior High concerts but does not include elementary music."

BACKGROUND

Santo L. Urso, Jr. has been a teacher in Clintondale Public Schools since 1963, occupying the position of Music Instructor. Prior to the first contract between the parties, pursuant to Board policy, he received a supplementary pay contract providing $100.00 extra pay for two instrumental music concerts for the school years 1964-1965 and 1965-1966. The statement of Board policy did not specify any school level or grade in listing such concerts as an activity for which supplemental pay was allowed.

The parties entered into an agreement dated May 25, 1966, effective July 1, 1966, which provided a Supplemental Pay schedule containing the following:

"D.	Activities, Junior High School
	2. Music concerts (Band)	$400
I.	Elementary (Band)	200"

Urso received a Supplementary Contract thereunder for "Concerts $400.00". He was assigned to teach instrumental music in the junior high school and in an elementary school and participated in concerts at both schools.

An agreement made on September 5, 1967 provided a Supplemental Pay schedule which contained the following:

"D.	Junior High School	Percentage
	2. Music concerts (instrumental)	6
E.	Elementary (instrumental)	4

For the school year 1967/68, a teacher assigned an activity listed herein, will receive compensation for that activity based on the stated index herein...."

Urso was assigned to teach in the Junior High School and the Price Drive Elementary School and to participate in conducting concerts (instrumental) in both schools. He was offered a Supplementary Contract for 1967/68 for "Instrumental Concerts $417.00". He refused to sign it and filed the grievance involved herein. Meanwhile he has performed the assignments in both schools.

It appears that $417.00 represents the 6% supplemental pay provided for music concerts under Part D - Junior High School. The grievance also seeks 4% ($252.00) supplemental pay provided by Part E - Elementary. At the hearing the Association also claimed, on behalf of the grievant, an additional $200.00 as supplemental pay for Elementary (Band) provided in the prior contract for the school year 1966-1967.

DISCUSSION

The claim for pay under the prior contract is not cognizable because it is not raised by the grievance, which states "date grievance occurred Sept. 25, '67," and under Article XVI - E - 5 it is only the grievance that is submitted to arbitration.

The provision in the Supplemental Pay schedule of the 1967 contract, that "a teacher assigned an activity listed herein, will receive compensation for that activity based on the stated index herein", is not ambiguous and the arbitrator is without power to change it. Thereby when Urso was assigned to perform two of those activities, and it is undisputed that he was so assigned, he became entitled to the compensation provided therein for each of such activities.

The basic position of the Board is that, in music, teaching necessarily entails supplemental concert work and it has never been the practice to allow more than one supplemental pay in this field.

Practice which conflicts with the language of the agreement does not change the agreement, nor empower the arbitrator to change it, and either party may at any time insist upon conformity with the agreement rather than the practice, only retroactive claims being barred thereby.

Moreover, prior to the 1966 agreement the supplemental pay policy did not specify separate items of pay for elementary and junior high school activities, so the practice thereunder would not necessarily govern the application of separate contract pay items therefor. Thus the only relevant practice shown was the payment to Urso under the 1966 agreement. This cannot be treated as a long and consistent or established practice.

Under these circumstances I am constrained to sustain the grievance.

Dated at Detroit, Michigan this 22nd day of May, 1968.

Negotiation Agreements

A WRITTEN AGREEMENT

BETWEEN THE

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH

AND THE

SALT LAKE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION (NEA)

AGREEMENT

This AGREEMENT is made and entered into by and between SALT LAKE CITY BOARD OF EDUCATION (hereinafter called the "Board") and the SALT LAKE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION (hereinafter called the "Association") this ninth day of August, 1968.

The Board and the Association recognize that providing a high quality education for the children of Salt Lake is the paramount objective of the School District. In doing this it is understood that:

The Board is elected by the qualified electors of the School District as the governing body of the School District and, as such, possesses all powers delegated to a board of education or to a school district by the Constitution and laws of the State of Utah, together with the duties imposed thereby.

The Superintendent is the chief executive officer of the Board, and as such, administers the affairs and programs of the School District as provided by law and Board policy.

While providing education of the highest possible quality for the pupils of the School District is a shared responsibility, it is recognized that teachers have the major role in direct contact with pupils; therefore, the high morale of the teaching staff, which depends on the willing services of well qualified teachers who are satisfied with the conditions provided by the Board, is a necessity for the best education of the children.

Attainment of the objectives of the educational program conducted in the Salt Lake City Public Schools requires mutual understanding and cooperation between the Board and the Association. To this end, negotiations in good faith between the Board and the Association with a free and open exchange of views are desirable.

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties agree as follows:

ARTICLE 1

Definitions

1.1 The term "teacher" as used in this Agreement shall refer to all regularly assigned teachers in the negotiaton unit as defined in Article 3, Recognition.

1.2 The term "Board" as used in this Agreement shall mean the Board of Education of the Salt Lake City School District in the City and County of Salt Lake and State of Utah.

1.3 The term "Association" as used in this Agreement shall mean the Salt Lake Teachers Association.

1.4 The terms "School District" and "Salt Lake City Public Schools" as used in this agreement shall mean the Salt Lake City School District in the City and County of Salt Lake and State of Utah.

1.5 The term "Superintendent" as used in this Agreement shall mean the Superintendent of Schools of the Salt Lake City School District in the City and County of Salt Lake and State of Utah.

1.6 The term "school year" as used in this Agreement shall mean the period of time from the first day of opening institute in the fall, through the closing of the schools of the district in the spring as established by the official school calendar.

ARTICLE 2

General

2.1 This agreement shall by reference in each individual teacher's contract be deemend to be a part thereof.

2.2 The Board shall continue its policy of not discriminating against any teacher on basis of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, marital status, or membership in any teacher organization.

2.3 Teachers have the right to join any lawful organization for their professional or economic improvement and for the advancement of public education.

2.4 The instruction process is the primary function of the teacher and supporting personnel should arrange their work to enhance this process insofar as possible.

2.5 The Association shall continue to admit persons to membership without discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, or marital status.

2.6 The Association shall have the right to request that particular matters within its area of interest be placed on appropriate agendas for official board meetings, and the Board will notify the Association with respect to the placement of such items on particular agendas and of the action taken. The Board will provide the Association with the agenda and information as to subjects to be considered at official board meetings. It is understood that this excludes all items to be considered in executive sessions of the Board.

2.7 No change, recision, alteration or modification of this Agreement in whole or in part shall be valid unless the same is ratified by both the Board and the Association and endorsed in writing hereon.

2.8 This Agreement shall be governed and construed according to the Constitution and Laws of the State of Utah.

2.9 The Board and Association recognize that the Board has certain powers, discretions and duties that, under the Constitution and Laws of the State of Utah, may not be delegated, limited or abrogated by agreement with any party. Accordingly, if any provision of this Agreement, or any application of this Agreement to any teacher covered hereby shall be found contrary to law, such provision or application shall have effect only to the extent permitted by law, but all other provision or applications of this Agreement shall continue in full force and effect.

2.10 In case of any direct conflict between the express provisions of this Agreement and any Board or Association policy, practice, procedure, custom or writing not incorporated in this Agreement, the provisions of this Agreement shall control.

ARTICLE 3

Recognition

3.1 It is agreed that all members of the teaching staff of the Salt Lake City Public Schools constitute what the parties hereto believe to be an appropriate unit for purposes of negotiating terms and conditions of employment as contemplated by Section 34-1-9, Utah Code Annotated, 1953. The Board agrees to recognize the Association as the exclusive representative of all members of said teaching staff upon being furnished with satisfactory evidence that a majority of said members have designated or selected the Association as their representative, as contemplated by Section 34-1-9, Utah Code Annotated, 1953; provided, however, that any individual member of said teaching staff or a group of said members shall have the right at any time to present grievances to the Board; and provided further nothing herein shall be so construed as to deprive any individual of his rights under Chapter 16, Title 34, Utah Code Annotated, 1953 (Utah Right to Work Law). It is agreed that the teaching staff shall not include the following:

Nurses
Psychologists
Social Workers
Coordinators
Principals
Assistant Principals Specialists
Directors
Administrative Assistants
Assistant Superintendents
Superintendent

3.2 Such recognition, once effective as to the unit described above, shall be effective during each year of the term of this contract, or any renewal thereof. If within ninety days prior to December 31 of any year good cause exists to believe that a majority of the members of the unit have not designated or selected the Association as their representative, the Board shall be furnished by the Association with satisfactory evidence of such designation or selection by such majority, failing which the Association shall not be recognized as the representative.

ARTICLE 4

Annual Negotiations

4.1 After approval and execution of this Agreement and upon request by the Association to the Board or by the Board to the Association, after January 2 of each year during the term of this Agreement, the Board and the Association will negotiate as provided in Article 5; provided, however, that such negotiations shall terminate not later than May 1 of each year, unless extended by mutual consent.

ARTICLE 5

Procedures for Annual Negotiations

5.1 Initiating Negotiations

5.1.1 Written requests for negotiations between the Board and the Association may be submitted by either party on such matters to include but not limited to teachers' salaries, wages, hours and conditions of employment. Such request will specify the subject matter to be considered and will include the specific written proposal or proposals to be negotiated.

5.1.2 A written response will be made within ten days of the receipt of any such written request.

5.1.3 Negotiations will be conducted at times and places mutually agreeable to the negotiators named by each party; provided, however, that the first meeting shall be held within ten days of such written response.

5.2 Conducting Negotiations

5.2.1 The Board and the Association agree to negotiate in good faith endeavoring to give direction to their respective negotiating teams during negotiations in an effort to reach agreement concerning such matters.

5.2.2 The Association and Superintendent or his designee shall together review preliminary budgetary information affecting revenue and expenditures as soon as they are available for the ensuing year. Further, they shall work together to develop a preliminary budget proposal for presentation to the Board.

5.2.3 During negotiations, the Board and the Association teams will present relevant data, exchange points of view, and make proposals and counter proposals. The respective teams will endeavor to reflect the positions of the Board and Association. Upon request of either party, the other will make available for inspection its records and data pertinent to the subject of negotiations.

5.2.4 Either party may, if it so desires, utilize the services of outside consultants and may call upon professional and lay representatives to assist in the negotiations.

5.2.5 If negotiations are scheduled during the school day, the negotiators shall be released from their regular duties without loss of pay unless mutually agreed otherwise. Qualified substitute teachers will be provided as needed.

5.2.6 Negotiations shall be conducted in closed sessions unless both parties agree to the contrary.

5.2.7 During negotiations as described in 5.1, 5.2, and 5.3 of this Article, releases to news media or otherwise shall be made only as agreed to jointly.

5.3 Joint Study Committees

5.3.1 The negotiators for the Board and the Association are empowered to create joint study committees.

5.3.2 Consultants may be used if deemed necessary by either party.

5.3.3 If meetings of joint study committees are scheduled during the regular school day, members of such committees shall be released from their regular duties without loss of pay unless mutually agreed otherwise.

5.3.4 Recommendations and reports of joint study committees are advisory in nature.

5.3.5 Upon completion of its study and submittal of a written report on the subject assigned to it, a joint study committee shall be considered dissolved, and once dissolved, no such committee shall be reactivated except by mutual consent of the negotiating teams.

5.3.6 The above statements do not preclude the creation of any committee authorized by the Association or the Board to conduct an independent study on any subject.

5.4 Adopting Agreements

5.4.1 Any agreements reached through the aforementioned procedure (Article 5-2) shall be reduced to writing and shall be approved by the Board and the Association and shall be signed by the properly designated officers of the Board and the Association.

5.5 Mediation

5.5.1 If the negotiations described in Sections 5.1 and 5.2 have reached an impasse, the issues in dispute shall be submitted to mediation for the purpose of inducing the Board and the Association to make a voluntary agreement. Both parties calling on the State Board of Education and the Utah Education Association for assistance will make all efforts to mediate the difference.

5.5.2 In the event that the parties are unable to agree, a mediation panel shall be established with one representative appointed by the State Board of Education, one appointed by the Utah Education Association, and one appointed by these two shall be on the panel of three (3) persons and shall act as chairman.

5.6 Conducting Mediation

5.6.1 The format, dates and times of meetings will be arranged by the mediator and such meetings will be conducted in closed sessions.

5.6.2 The mediator will meet with the Board and the Association, either separately or together.

5.6.3 To the extent that tentative agreements are reached as a result of such mediation, the procedures provided in Section 5.4.1 shall apply. If mediation fails in whole or in part, the mediator shall report the issues which remain in dispute to the respective parties.

5.6.4 The costs for the services of the mediator, including per diem expense, if any, and actual and necessary travel expenses, shall be shared equally by the Board and the Association.

5.7 Fact Finding

5.7.1 If the mediation in Section 5.5 has failed to bring about agreement on all issues, either the Board or the Association may request that the issues which remain in dispute be submitted to a fact finder. In the event that the parties are unable to agree on a fact finder, the fact finder shall be selected in the manner provided in Section 5.5 for selecting a mediator.

5.7.2 The fact finder will have the authority to hold hearings and make procedural rules.

5.7.3 All hearings by the fact finder shall be held in closed sessions and no news release shall be made concerning progress of such hearings.

5.7.4 Within a reasonable time after the conclusion of such hearings, the fact finder shall submit a report in writing to the Board and the Association only, and shall set forth in the report his findings of fact, reasoning, and recommendations on the issues submitted. The report shall be advisory only and binding neither on the Board nor the Association.

5.7.5 Within five school days, unless mutually agreed upon otherwise, after receiving the report of the fact finder, the Board and the Association will meet to discuss the report. No public release shall be made until after such meeting.

5.7.6 The respective parties shall take official action on the report of the fact finder no later than fifteen days after the meeting described in Section 5.7.5 above.

5.7.7 To the extent that tentative agreement is reached on the issues in dispute as a result of such fact finding, the procedures provided in Section 5.4.1 shall apply.

5.7.8 The costs for the services of the fact finder, including per diem expense, if any, and actual and necessary travel expenses, shall be shared equally by the Board and Association.

5.7.9 Either party may request that an official stenographic record of the testimony taken at the fact finding hearings be made and a copy of any transcript shall be provided to the fact finder. The party requesting a stenographic record shall pay the costs thereof except that if the other party shall request a copy of any transcript it shall share the entire cost of making the stenographic record.

ARTICLE 6

Grievance Procedure

6.1 Definitions

6.1.1 A "grievance" is a claim based upon an event or condition which affects the welfare or conditions of employment of a teacher or group of teachers and/or the interpretation, meaning or application of any of the provisions of this agreement. It is expressly understood that a claim based upon an event or condition which does not affect the welfare or conditions of employment of a member of the Unit described in Article 3 above shall not constitute a grievance.

6.1.2 An "aggrieved person" is the person or persons making the claim.

6.1.3 A "party in interest" is the person or persons making the claim and any person who might be required to take action or against whom action might be taken in order to resolve the claim.

6.2 Purpose

6.2.1 The purpose of this procedure is to secure, at the lowest possible administrative level, equitable solutions to grievances which may from time to time arise. Both parties agree that these proceedings shall be kept as informal and confidential as may be appropriate at any level of the procedure. All parties shall cooperate and act in good faith to resolve the grievances.

6.2.2 Nothing herein contained will be construed as limiting the right of any aggrieved person to discuss the matter informally with any appropriate member of the administration and having the grievance adjusted, provided the adjustment is consistent with the terms of this Agreement. The Association shall have the opportunity to be present and to state its views at any level in the grievance procedure beyond LEVEL ONE.

6.3 Procedure

6.3.1 Level One. The aggrieved person shall first discuss the grievance with the principal or immediate superior, either directly or through the Association's Faculty Representative, with the objective of resolving the matter, at which time the aggrieved person (1) may discuss the grievance personally, (2) may request that the Association's Faculty Representative accompany him, or (3) may request that the Association's Faculty Representative act in his behalf.

6.3.2 Level Two

6.3.2.1 If the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level One, or if no decision has been rendered within ten (10) school days after presentation of the grievance, he may file the grievance in writing with the Chairman of the Association's Committee on Professional Rights and Responsibilities (hereinafter referred to as the "PR&R Committee") within five (5) school days after the decision at Level One or fifteen (15) school days after the grievance was presented, whichever is sooner. Within five (5) school days after receiving the written grievance, the Chairman shall refer it to the Superintendent of Schools.

6.3.2.2 The Superintendent or his agent shall represent the administration at this level of the grievance procedure. Within ten (10) school days after receipt of the written grievance by the Superintendent, the Superintendent or his agent shall meet with the aggrieved person in an effort to resolve it.

6.3.2.3 If the aggrieved person does not file a grievance in writing with the Chairman of the PR&R Committee and the written grievance is not forwarded to the Superintendent within thirty (30) school days after the aggrieved person knew or should have known of the act or condition on which the grievance is based, then the grievance shall be considered as waived. A dispute as to whether a grievance has been waived under this paragraph shall be subject to arbitration pursuant to Level Three.

6.3.3 Level Three

6.3.3.1 The parties hereto recognize that under existing Utah law a present agreement to arbitrate future disputes is wholly unenforceable. Accordingly, it is understood and agreed that neither party shall have the right to initiate or require the other party to participate in or bear the expenses of any arbitration proceedings unless as agreement in writing for the submission of a particular dispute to arbitration shall have been concluded. Within ten (10) school days after receipt of the written request for submission to arbitration, the Board and/or its designee or the Association and/or its designee shall respond in writing indicating whether it consents to submit the grievance to arbitration.

6.3.3.2 In the event that it is mutually agreed to submit the grievance to arbitration, the Board and/or its designee and the Association and/or its designee shall within ten (10) days make all efforts to agree upon a mutually acceptable arbitrator and shall obtain a commitment from said arbitrator to serve. If the parties are unable to agree upon an arbitrator or to obtain such a commitment within the specified period, an arbitrator shall be selected in accordance with Section 5.5.1.1 of this agreement.

6.3.3.3 The arbitrator so selected shall confer with the Board and/or its designee and the Association and/or its designee and hold hearings promptly and shall issue his decision not later than twenty (20) calendar days from the date of the close of the hearings or, if oral hearings have been waived, then from the date the final statement and proofs are submitted to him. His decision shall be in writing and shall set forth his findings of fact, reasoning and conclusions on the issues submitted. He shall be without power or authority to make any decision which requires the commission of an act prohibited by law or which is violative of the terms of this Agreement.

6.3.3.4 The costs for the services of the arbitrator, including per diem expenses, if any, and actual and necessary travel and subsistence expenses, shall be borne equally by the Board and the Association.

6.4 Rights of Teachers and Representation

6.4.1 No reprisals of any kind shall be taken by either party or by any member of the administration or the Association against any party in interest, any School Representative, any member of the PR&R Committee or any other participant in the grievance procedure by reason of such participation.

6.4.2 Any party in interest may be represented and/or accompanied at all stages of the grievance procedure by an appropriate person of his own choosing. The Association Faculty Representative shall be such representative at Level One if so chosen.

6.5 Miscellaneous

6.5.1 If, in the judgment of the appropriate association representatives, a grievance, affecting a group or class of teachers, not resolvable at Level One, representatives of the Association may submit such grievance in writing to the Superintendent directly and the processing of such grievance may be commenced at Level Two.

6.5.2 Decisions rendered at Levels One, Two and Three of the grievance procedure shall be in writing setting forth the decision and the reasons therefor and shall be transmitted promptly to all parties in interest and to the Association.

6.5.3 All documents, communications and records dealing with the processing of a grievance shall be filed separately from the personnel files of the participants.

6.5.4 To facilitate operation of the grievance procedure, necessary forms for filing, for serving notices, for making appeals, for making reports and recommendations, and other necessary documents will be jointly prepared and distributed by the Superintendent and the Association.

6.5.5 The Board agrees to make available to the aggrieved person and his representative, all pertinent information not privileged under law, in its possession or control and which is relevant to the issues raised by the grievance.

6.5.6 When it is necessary at LEVEL TWO or LEVEL THREE for a representative, or representatives, designated by the Association, to attend a meeting or a hearing called by the Superintendent, or his designee, during the school day, the Superintendent's Office, shall so notify the principal of such Association representatives, and they shall be released without loss of pay for such time as their attendance is required at such meeting or hearing.

6.5.7 The sole remedy available to any teacher for any alleged breach of this Agreement or any alleged violation of his rights hereunder shall be pursuant to the grievance and arbitration procedure, provided, however, that nothing contained herein shall deprive any teacher of any legal right which he presently has.

ARTICLE 7

Leaves of Absence

7.1 Any teacher may apply for leave of absence without salary for the following reasons: compulsory military service, maternity, temporary transfer of spouse, further study, and other reasons. The granting of such leave of absence does not bind the Board to re-employ the person nor to return him to his previous position except when stated otherwise by law. The teacher, as specified above, is assured of Professional consideration in filling vacancies that may occur after he notified the Board that he desires to return to service.

7.2 Sick-leave Benefits

7.2.1 All teachers employed by the Board shall be entitled to the sick-leave benefits hereinafter stated for personal illness or serious illness in the immediate family. (a) husband, wife. (b) daughter, son who are residing in the home. (c) father, mother who are residing in the home. (d) any other person residing in the teacher's household who may have assumed the roles indicated in b and c.

7.2.2 The annual sick-leave allowance for nine-month employees shall be ten days at full pay with a maximum cumulative allowance of 180 days. Medical verification may be required.

7.2.3 One additional day of annual sick-leave will be added for each additional month served beyond the regular school year of nine months, including teachers participating four weeks or more of summer employment with a maximum cumulative allowance of 180 days.

7.2.4 Sick-leave may be extended beyond the limitations noted above in special instances. These special instances will require case studies to be presented by the individuals, the Association, department heads, and/or principals through the usual channels to the proper committee of the Board.

7.2.5 For new teachers employed by the Board, allowance for sick-leave shall not be operative until the individual has reported for duty.

7.2.6 The sick-leave allowance during the year of service for teachers whose employment is subsequent to the beginning of the school year and for those who terminate their services prior to the expiration of such year shall be pro-rated according to the ratio that the number of days of possible service bears to the total number of days of service during that contract year for teachers of the particular classification with which the teacher is identified.

7.2.7 Upon retirement, a teacher shall be allowed an amount of money equal to 15 per cent of the value of his accumulated sick-leave based on his annual salary at the time of retirement.

7.3 Personal Leave

7.3.1 All teachers under contract may be allowed leave from their responsibilities chargeable to their sick-leave allowance, without loss of pay for a maximum of two days during each school year for such personal reasons as:

7.3.1.1 Funerals (not covered under bereavement)

7.3.1.2 Weddings

7.3.1.3 Community service obligations

7.3.1.4 Religious holidays

7.3.1.5 Serious emergencies subject to approval of the principal

7.3.1.6 Serious illness of immediate family members not living in the home (immediate family as defined under bereavement leave). See 7.5.

7.3.1.7 One day leave to receive a college degree

7.3.1.8 One day leave to attend the graduation of a member of the teacher's immediate family from a high school or post high school institution. (Immediate family as defined under bereavement leave.)

7.4 Personal Injury Benefits

7.4.1 Whenever a teacher is temporarily absent from school and temporarily unable to perform his duties as a result of personal injuries incurred in the scope and course of his employment, he will be paid his full salary for the period of such temporary absence not to exceed his accumulated sick leave. After such time the daily rate fixed by the State Industrial Commission will take effect.

7.5 Bereavement Leave

7.5.1 Any teacher under contract with the Board shall be entitled to a nondeductible leave of absence from service as necessary in the event of a death in his or her immediate family.

7.5.1.1 Up to five days leave in event of a death in the teacher's immediate family. Immediate family shall mean: (1) husband and wife, (2) father, mother, brother, sister, son or daughter or persons who have assumed these roles, (3) or other persons for whom the teacher has assumed responsibility.

7.5.1.2 One day for funeral plus not more than two days travel time, is necessary, for brother-in-law, sister-in-law, daughter-in-law, son-in-law, mother-in-law, father-in-law, grandchildren and grandparents.

7.6 Temporary Leave

7.6.1 Teachers shall be granted the following non-deductible temporary leaves of absence with pay during each school year:

7.6.1.1 The time necessary for appearances in any legal proceeding connected with the teacher's employment or with the school system or in any other legal proceedings if the teacher is required by law to attend. (Less any remuneration received for such service.)

7.6.1.2 The Superintendent, or his designee, may grant permission to teachers to attend educational meetings without loss of pay.

7.6.1.3 Application for leaves of absence under this Article are to be submitted in advance to the principal for clearance.

7.7 Compulsory Military Service

7.7.1 Teachers employed by the Board of Education who leave for service in the Armed Forces shall be granted a military leave of absence. Such leave of absence shall be for three months following honorable discharge from the service. Requests for reinstatement in the employ of the Board of Education may not be granted if made more than three months after discharge from the Armed Services.

7.7.2 Teachers on military leave will receive upon re-employment by the Board of Education the same salary which they would have received had they continued in the service of the Board, i.e., they shall have the benefit of salary increments granted the regular teachers in their absence and shall be subject to reductions, if any, imposed upon the teachers.

7.7.3 Teachers who enter the services of the American Red Cross in time of national emergency on full-time basis will be entitled to military leave with all the privileges granted those who enter the Armed Forces.

7.7.4 Military leaves of absence will be granted only on the basis of the official orders or letters of appointment which must be filed in the office of employee personnel.

7.8 Maternity Leave.

7.8.1 A married woman may be granted a maternity leave of absence up to two years and, upon request, be released from the terms of her contract without prejudice. Requests for such leave of absence must be made by the teacher herself, or by her physician, not later than four months prior to the time of the anticipated birth of the child. With a thirty-day clause in her contract, this means that the maternity leave must become effective not later than three months prior to the time of the anticipated birth of the child. A medical statement as to anticipated delivery date may be required.

7.8.2 Where a known pregnancy exists, a teacher should not sign a contract nor begin a new year of teaching.

7.8.3 Evidence of falsification with respect to date of termination as outlined in the Rules and Regulations of the Board may result in referral for unethical conduct.

7.9 Sabbatical Leave

7.9.1 Sabbatical leave for professional employees is provided under the following regulations:

7.9.1.1 Applicants must have completed a minimum of six consecutive years of teaching experience before being eligible for a sabbatical leave.

7.9.1.2 Applications made upon forms to be furnished by the Board shall be filed at least sixty days before the date upon which the sabbatical leave is to begin.

7.9.1.3 No person is to be given such leave of absence more often than once in seven years.

7.9.1.4 Not more than ten professional employees are to be absent on sabbatical leave at any one time.

7.9.1.5 The applicant will receive $1,250 per semester, payable $250 per month during the period of absence from service. Payment will be made for a maximum of two semesters.

7.9.1.6 A person who accepts a sabbatical leave of absence must signify intentions of returning to the Salt Lake City School System for two years. Such a person is assured re-employment, and upon return, the teacher shall be placed on the appropriate step in the salary schedule as though such teacher had not been on leave.

7.9.1.7 In case a teacher who has taken advantage of sabbatical leave fails to return to service as provided above, all monies received from the Board while attending school are to be returned to the Board including the insurance premiums paid by the Board for the benefit of the teacher.

7.9.1.8 All teachers on sabbatical leave shall be entitled to all insurance benefits provided by the Board at the expense of the Board.

7.10 Attendance at Conventions

7.10.1 Leaves of absence, with or without pay, shall be granted for the purpose of attending conventions, workshops, committee meetings, etc.

7.10.2 The following policy has been outlined for determining teacher attendance at conventions:

7.10.2.1 Program is to be coordinated by the director of employee personnel.

7.10.2.2 Travel will be by car whenever feasible, four passengers to the car, with driver reimbursed at 9¢ per mile.

7.10.2.3 Per diem allowance will be $20.

7.10.2.4 Specialists, principals, and Association may nominate candidates for subject matter conventions.

7.10.2.5 Teachers may nominate themselves.

7.10.2.6 The Board will continue to grant permission to the Association to send representatives to organizational conventions such as TEPS, Classroom Teachers, NEA, etc.

7.10.2.7 If it is deemed advisable, permission may be granted to teachers to attend conventions at their own expense after the budget has been encumbered.

ARTICLE 8

Salaries

8.1 Salary Policy

8.1.1 Effective August 29, 1968, the salary schedule for all teachers covered by this Agreement shall be as set forth in Appendix A which is made a part of this Article by this reference.

8.1.2 Salary negotiations for 1969-70 will be negotiated according to Articles 4 and 5 of this Agreement.

8.1.3 Teachers assigned to summer programs or leadership in curriculum development which extend beyond the "B" Commitment shall receive additional compensation at their regular rates of pay.

8.1.4 The Board and Association agree that matters concerning additional compensation for duty beyond the regular school day need continuing study and investigation. These will be taken up by the District Improvement Council for possible recommendation.

8.1.5 A District salary policy for teachers covered by this Agreement shall be set forth in Appendix B which is made a part of this Article by this reference.

8.2 Criteria for Additional Credit Allowance

8.2.1 Recognizing that professional growth is a continuing responsibility of the professional throughout his career, the Salt Lake City School District has established intermediate salary lanes between degrees for those teachers who complete advanced study.

8.2.2 The following guidelines have been provided for determining placement on any of these lanes:

8.2.2.1 As a general rule only university credit approved by the District Certification Review Committee, graduate or undergraduate, earned after the degree and certification will count.

8.2.2.2 When credit is rejected by the district, the employee may request a review by the full District Certification Review Committee.

8.2.2.3 Credit must be verified by official transcripts and approval of the District Certification Review Committee.

8.2.2.4 Credit may be earned in residence, in the continuing education program, or by home study.

8.2.2.5 The District should assume leadership in cooperation with the universities in setting up in-service programs to fit the needs of the District and carrying college credit.

8.3 A substitute teacher's salary schedule. See Appendix C

8.4 Placement on Salary Schedule

8.4.1 New teachers employed by the Board of Education shall receive such recognition for experience prior to entering the employ of the Board of Education as is approved by the Coordinator of Certificated Personnel. Salary increments shall begin from the approved number of years of experience.

8.4.2 After a teacher has been employed by the Board, advancement on the salary schedule because of experience shall be in accord with the following definition of a year of experience. A year of experience shall be counted as follows:

8.4.2.1 Any teacher who is regularly employed full time and who actually works in any one fiscal year a number of days equal to or greater than one-half of the number of work days in the fiscal year for the class of employees with which he is associated.

8.4.2 Adjustments in salaries due to completion of additional training will be made at the time re-employment contracts are sent out and at the September and October meetings of the Board.

8.4.4 Teachers new to the Salt Lake City School District may be given credit for previous experience equal to nine years and in addition may be allowed up to three years for military experience. The present formula for evaluating teaching experience is as follows:

8.4.4.1 Up to 5 years -- full credit. 6 years -- 5 years allowed. 7 or 8 years -- 6 years allowed. 9 or 10 years -- 7 years allowed. 11 or 12 years -- 8 years allowed. 13 or more years -- 9 years allowed.

8.4.4.2 Military experience is evaluated as follows: 6 months to 17 months -- 1 year. 18 months to 29 months -- 2 years. 30 months or more -- 3 years.

ARTICLE 9

Teacher Protection

9.1 Teacher Protection From Assaults

9.1.1 Any teacher party to any assault in connection with his employment shall immediately make a written report of the circumstances thereof to his principal and shall make supplemental written reports attaching copies of any summons, complaint, process, information, indictment, notice or demand served upon him in connection with such assault within five days after he has been served therewith, and reporting the final disposition of any such proceeding.

9.1.2 Such reports will be forwarded to the Board through the Superintendent's Office and, in the event civil or criminal proceedings are brought against the teacher, the Board will comply with any reasonable request by the teacher for information in the Board's possession not privileged by law or policy of the District and relevant to the incident reported.

9.1.3 If criminal or civil proceedings are brought against a teacher alleging that he committed an assault in connection with his employment, such teacher, after making the reports described in Section 9.1.1 above, may request the Board's cooperation in the preparation of his defense. Upon receipt of such request, the Board will instruct its attorney to consult with the teacher's legal counsel and cooperate with him in the preparation of the teacher's defense, insofar as the interests of the teacher and the District are not conflicting.

9.1.4 Nothing in this Article shall prejudice any action that the Board might otherwise take regarding the teacher's employment status.

9.1.5 To the extent, and only to the extent, that the District may be liable for the teacher's conduct under applicable Utah Law, the Board agrees to provide liability insurance coverage for the benefit of the teacher, such coverage to be of the same scope and nature, and with the same limits, as liability insurance carried by the District for its own protection, pursuant to the provisions of the "Utah Governmental Immunity Act."

9.1.6 The Board and the Association reaffirm their support of Board of Education policy regarding discipline of pupils. All pupils are to be busy at education work as directed by teachers and principals. Routine problems of control are the responsibility of the teacher in the classroom and the principal in the building. It is expected that proper order be maintained at all times in all school activities. Such disciplinary actions as are necessary may be taken by teachers and principals to achieve this purpose. Such measures of pupil self-government should be encouraged and granted as will result in growth of good behavior on the part of the pupils. (Chapter 30, Title 63, Utah Code Annotated 1953.)

ARTICLE 10

Teacher Evaluation

10.1 Evaluation of a teacher's performance shall be conducted in accordance with acceptable personnel practice. The teacher will be fully informed by the principal as to how such evaluation shall be conducted.

10.2 Teachers will be given a copy of any evaluation report and will discuss such report with the person preparing it before it is submitted to the permanent central office teacher's file. After such review, the teacher shall affix his signature to indicate that he is aware of the contents of the report. Such signature does not necessarily indicate agreement with the content of such material.

10.3 Participation in other than school activities shall not constitute a valid basis for evaluating a person's classroom teaching performance category.

10.4 Evaluation procedures for teachers covered by this Agreement shall be as set forth in Appendix D which is made a part of this Article by this reference.

ARTICLE 11

Teacher Files

11.1 All teacher permanent central office files shall be maintained under the following conditions:

11.1.1 All materials placed in the permanent central office teacher's file subsequent to initial employment materials shall be available to the teacher at his request for inspection.

11.1.2 Material originating within the School District and which is derogatory to a teacher's conduct, service, character or personality shall not be placed in a teacher's file unless the teacher has had an opportunity to read the material. The teacher shall acknowledge that he has read such material by affixing his signature on the actual copy to be filed. Such signature does not necessarily indicate agreement with the content of such material.

11.1.3 The teacher shall have the right to answer any material filed, and his answer shall be reviewed by the director of employee personnel and attached to the file copy.

ARTICLE 12

Professional Behavior

12.1 Teachers are expected to comply with rules, regulations, and directions adopted by the Board or its representatives which are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Agreement, provided that a teacher may refuse to carry out an order which threatens physical safety or well-being.

12.2 The Board recognizes that the Code of Ethics of the Education Profession is considered by the Association and its membership to define acceptable criteria of professional behavior. This Code of Ethics is Appendix E to this Agreement and is made a part of this article by this reference. The Association shall deal with ethical problems in accordance with the terms of such Code of Ethics of the Education Profession.

12.3 The Association recognizes that abuse of sick leave or other leaves, chronic tardiness or absence, willful deficiencies in professional performance, or other violations of discipline by a teacher reflect adversely upon the teaching profession and create undesirable conditions in the school. Alleged breaches of discipline or the Code of Ethics of the Education Profession shall be promptly reported to the offending teacher and to the Association. The Association shall use its best efforts to correct breaches of professional behavior by any teacher and, in appropriate cases, shall institute proceedings against the offending teacher.

12.4 A teacher, if he chooses, will be entitled to have present a representative of the Association when he is being reprimanded, warned or disciplined of any infraction of rules or delinquency in professional performance. When a request for such representation is made, no final action will be taken with respect to the teacher until such representative of the Associaton is present.

12.5 No teacher shall be disciplined, reprimanded, reduced in rank or compensation or deprived of any professional advantage without just cause. Any such discipline, reprimand or reduction in rank, compensation or advantage, including adverse evaluation of teacher performance asserted by the Board or representative thereof shall be subject to the professional grievance procedure as set forth in Article 6. All information forming the basis for disciplinary action will be made available to the teacher and the Association.

ARTICLE 13

Transfers and Assignments

13.1 Voluntary Transfers and Assignments

13.1.1 No later than March 1st of each year, the Personnel Superintendent shall post in all school buildings a list of the possible vacancies which will occur during the following school year.

13.1.2 Teachers who desire a change in grade and/or subject assignment or who desire to transfer to another building shall file a written statement of such desire with the Personnel Superintendent, not later than March 15th. Such statement shall include the grade and/or subject to which the teacher desires to be assigned and the school or schools to which he desires to be transferred, in order of preference.

13.1.3 No later than May 10th of each school year, the Personnel Superintendent shall post in all school buildings a supplemental list of known vacancies which will occur during the following school year.

13.1.4 No later than May 20th, teachers may file an application for reassignment or transfer to positions listed on the supplemental list of vacancies.

13.1.5 Where feasible, assignments of new teachers in the school system shall not be made until all pending requests for reassignment or transfer have been acted on.

13.1.6 The Personnel Superintendent shall make available to the Association requested information pertaining to individual reassignments and/or transfer.

13.1.7 In the determination of requests for voluntary reassignment and/or transfer, the convenience and wishes of the individual teacher will be honored to the extent that they do not conflict with the instructional requirements and best interests of the school system. If more than one teacher has applied for the same position, the teacher best qualified for that position shall be appointed, and, qualifications being substantially equal, seniority in the school system shall control.

13.2 Involuntary Transfers and Assignments

13.2.1 The Board and the Association recognize that some involuntary transfer of teachers from one school to another or reassignment within a school is unavoidable. They also recognize that under normal circumstances transfer or reassignment of teachers should be held to a minimum. Therefore they agree as follows:

13.2.1.1 Notice of an involuntary transfer or reassignment shall be given to teachers as soon as practicable and, under normal circumstances, not later than June 1.

13.2.1.2 When involuntary transfer or reassignment is necessary, volunteers from among those affected will be transferred or reassigned first. A teacher's area of competence, major and/or minor field of study, quality of teaching performance, and length of service in the Salt Lake School District will be considered in determining which teacher is to be transferred or reassigned.

13.2.1.3 An involuntary transfer or reassignment will be made only after a meeting between the teacher involved and the Personnel Superintendent, at which time the teacher will be notified of the reasons therefor. In the event that a teacher objects to the transfer or reassignment at this meeting, upon the request of the teacher, the Association will meet with the Board's representative to discuss the matter.

13.2.1.4 Openings in the school system will be discussed with the teachers being involuntarily transferred or reassigned. Such teachers may request the positions to which they desire to be transferred. Teachers being involuntarily transferred or reassigned shall have preference over those seeking voluntary transfer or reassignment. In consideration of involuntary transfers, those best qualified for a particular position shall receive priority, and, qualifications being substantially equal, seniority in the school system shall control.

13.2.1.5 The Personnel Superintendent shall make available to the Association requested information pertaining to individual reassignments and/or transfers.

13.2.1.6 Teachers who elect the "B" schedule must consider themselves as being available for transfer and changes in placement, or assignment, as necessary.

13.2.1.7 Transfers during the school year will be held to a minimum.

13.2.1.8 Teachers who are sixty years of age will not be transferred except under unusual circumstances or by their request.

13.2.1.9 Teachers and administrators will be consulted before a decision is made.

13.2.1.10 Transfers will not be automatic but based on needs.

ARTICLE 14

Termination Procedures

14.1 Orderly Dismissal Procedures

14.1.1 Before any teacher may be dismissed for any cause, he shall be given a written notice 15 days prior to the effective date of dismissal signed by the Superintendent or his representative, stating the causes for dismissal. Such written notice may be delivered in person or sent by registered mail addressed to the teacher at his last known post office address. A copy of the "Personnel Procedures for Certificated Employees" shall be included with the notice.

14.1.2 After receipt of such notice the teacher shall at his option be entitled to hearings before (1) the Superintendent of Schools, (2) the appropriate committee of the Board of Education, and (3) the Board of Education. The teacher may call the Association, school staff, and such other witnesses as he may deem necessary. Said hearing shall commence within 30 days after receipt of such notice.

14.1.3 If the interests of the school or schools require it for sufficient and just cause, a teacher may be suspended pending a hearing and the rendering of a decision.

14.1.4 Any hearing held for the dismissal of a teacher shall be concluded by a decision in writing within ten days after the termination of the hearing. An official copy of such decision shall be furnished the teacher affected within five days after the decision has been rendered. The Association and principal will be notified of the decision.

14.1.5 In all cases where the final decision is made in favor of the teacher, the charge or charges against him shall be expunged from the records. If, pending final decision as to his dismissal, such teacher has been suspended and, therefore, has suffered loss of salary, he shall be reimbursed in full for the time lost.

14.2 Reduction of Staff

14.2.1 Whenever it becomes necessary to decrease the number of teachers in the school district because of a decrease in the number of pupils attending schools in the district, or because of the discontinuance of a particular service, the Board of Education may suspend as many teachers as may be necessary at the close of the school year. Notice of such action shall be given to the teacher concerned by May 1.

14.2.2 In the event of such staff reduction, teachers shall be suspended in the inverse order in which they were employed, provided, however, that no contract teacher may be suspended under the provisions herein contained while a probationary teacher is retained or employed to render a service which a contract teacher is certificated and competent to render.

14.2.3 No teacher suspended as aforesaid shall be prevented from securing other employment during the period of such suspension.

14.2.4 Teachers thus suspended shall be reinstated to continuing status in the inverse order in which they were suspended if and when positions become vacant or when positions are created for which such teachers are qualified and are available within a reasonable length of time. Such teachers shall be given notice far enough in advance for them to accept the invitation to return.

14.3 Release from Contract

14.3.1 An individual teacher contract may be terminated by mutual agreement between the Board and the teacher at any time. An individual teacher contract may also be terminated by 30 days notice except during the 30 day period of time prior to opening institute in the fall.

14.3.2 Liquidated damages of $100 shall be assessed against any teacher who has failed to comply with paragraph 14.3.1 above.

ARTICLE 15

Teaching Hours and Teaching Load

15.1 The regular school day for Elementary and Junior High teachers begins at 8:30 a.m. and closes at 4:00 p.m. For High School teachers the regular school day begins at 8:15 a.m. and closes at 4:00 p.m. Teachers scheduled to begin their regular teaching duties earlier, or to continue until a later time will not be required to be on duty longer than the total hours of the regular day without additional compensation or compensatory time off, except as is provided in Section 15.3 below. The principal shall have authority to permit teachers divergence from the regular school day.

15.2 The work year of teachers covered by the classroom teachers' salary schedule (other than new teachers who may be requested to attend presession orientation meetings) shall be determined by the official school calendar. Teachers shall be paid additional compensation for employment prior to or after the dates scheduled on the official school calendar. The compensation is to be determined on the basis of the teachers' current salary schedule.

15.3 The principal, in consultation with the School Improvement Council, will make decisions relating to faculty meetings and evening meetings in each school.

15.4 Professional or in-service meetings are conducted on a district level on Tuesdays or Wednesdays by specialists. Attendance at any of these meetings is voluntary but encouraged. Specialists should schedule in-service meetings with the Director of Curriculum and Instruction in order that conflicts can be avoided. Notice of in-service meetings will be listed in the SATURDAY LETTER and principals are expected to inform faculties of meetings being held that are of concern or interest to them. These meetings will not extend beyond 5:00 p.m.

15.5 The fourth Monday of each month is reserved for meetings of the Salt Lake Teachers Association except that in December it shall be the third Monday.

15.6 All teachers shall have an uninterrupted daily duty-free lunch period. The lunch period for high school and junior high school teachers shall be the same length as the students'. The lunch period for elementary school teachers shall be no shorter than a period five minutes less than the students' lunch period. Teachers shall be permitted to leave the building during their lunch periods. The school office will be notified when a teacher plans to be out of the building during this time.

15.7 Teachers shall be permitted to leave the school during unassigned periods with the permission of the principal.

15.8 The principal and the School Improvement Council in elementary schools will develop wherever feasible a schedule to provide each teacher with a daily planning period.

15.9 The Board and Association agree that matters concerning class size, flexible scheduling, maximum teaching load and other related subjects, need continuing study and investigation. These will be taken up by the District Improvement Council for appropriate recommendation.

ARTICLE 16

Vacancies in Other Than Classroom Teaching Positions

16.1 The Administration shall be responsible for making available job descriptions for personnel in administrative, supervisory, teaching, and auxiliary assignments. A manual will be developed which will include the official title, function, responsibility and authority, typical duties, and specification profile of each job classification. A copy of the current salary schedule will be included in the manual. This manual, when developed, shal be placed in the faculty room, library, or other appropriate place in each school or department.

16.2 Teachers who desire consideration for vacancies in other certificated positions may submit a letter of application to the Assistant Superintendent in Charge of Personnel.

16.3 The Assistant Superintendent in Charge of Personnel shall acknowledge promptly in writing the receipt of such application.

ARTICLE 17

Teacher Facilities

17.1 Each school will have the following facilities:

17.1.1 As soon as possible space will be provided in each classroom in which teachers may safely store instructional materials and supplies, provided that the Board shall not be held to be the insurer of the teachers' personal belongings stored in such space.

17.1.2 A desk and chair for each teacher will be provided except in unusual circumstances.

17.1.3 As soon as possible well-lighted and clean teacher rest rooms will be provided for both men and women.

17.1.4 As soon as possible a work room for teachers will be provided containing equipment and supplies to aid in the preparation of instructional materials.

17.1.5 As soon as possible a furnished room will be provided to be used as a faculty lounge. Such room will be in addition to the aforementioned teacher work room.

17.1.6 Telephone service other than the office telephone will be available to teachers. Business use of this phone shall have priority.

17.1.7 As soon as possible parking facilities will be provided at each school for staff.

17.2 When new schools are constructed, they will include teacher facilities of the nature noted above.

ARTICLE 18

Use of School Facilities

18.1 The Association will have the right to use school buildings for meetings, without cost, as approved by the appropriate administrative office provided that such meetings do not interfere with the normal operation of the school.

18.1.1 Meetings of Association groups within a school shall be arranged for in advance through the office of the principal.

18.1.2 General Association meetings shall be arranged for by request to the Department of Buildings and Grounds.

18.2 The Association will have the right to place notices, circulars and other material on designated school bulletin boards and in teachers' mail boxes.

18.2.1 Authorized representatives of the Association will assume responsibility for posting or distributing of material for the Association.

ARTICLE 19

Cooperating Teachers
and
Teacher Instructional Specialist

19.1 All teachers who are assigned student teachers from any of the training institutions shall be compensated according to the policy of each institution and this amount is to be matched by the Board of Education, payable at the conclusion of the student teaching experience.

19.2 It is realized that revisions and adjustments must be made in pilot studies from time to time, therefore, the Board and the Association agree to such expansion of the Teacher Instructional Specialist pilot study as may be mutually developed. It is understood that a comprehensive evaluation of all aspects of the program will be made during the 1968-69 school year under the direction of the District Improvement Council. Following the evaluation, the District Improvement Council will make recommendations regarding the program.

ARTICLE 20

Summer School Program

20.1 Positions in the Salt Lake City Summer School and continuing education programs shall be filled first by teachers regularly employed in the School District who have elected the "B" schedule.

20.2 In filling such positions, consideration shall be given to a teacher's area of competence, experience, major and/or minor field of study, quality of teaching performance, attendance record, and length of service in the School District. If qualifications are substantially equal, length of service in the School District will be the determining factor.

20.3 All openings for positions in these programs shall be advertised as early as possible so interested teachers may apply.

20.4 The Assistant Superintendent of Personnel shall acknowledge promptly in writing the receipt of such application.

20.5 Teachers currently employed and who plan to return to the district shall have preference.

ARTICLE 21

Times of Salary Payment and Payroll Deduction

21.1 Each teacher shall have, at the time contracts are offered, the option of being paid 1/12 of his total annual salary on the first of each month commencing October 1, and continuing for 12 months, or to be paid 1/10 of his total annual salary commencing October 1 and continuing for 10 months with the 10th payment to be received by July 1. It shall be understood that the Board will retain $100 to cover liquidated damages where an individual teachers' contract is broken. The $100 will be paid to the teacher who has chosen the 10 month option on September 1. If the first day of the month falls on a Saturday, Sunday, holiday, or day of a recess period, the pay will be due on the last work day preceding the first of the month. The payments for July and August will be mailed to the employee provided an address has been filed in the office of the Clerk-Treasurer for that purpose.

21.2 Upon authorization from the teacher, the Board agrees to make payroll deduction for, but not limited to the following: professional dues for SLTA, UEA, NEA, UCIE, Credit Union, Insurance, Welfare Association, and United Fund.

ARTICLE 22

Insurance

22.1 The Board shall continue to make available to teachers and their dependents, group insurance for hospital, surgical, and extended medical benefits and life insurance as provided by Policy No. 140 36 H entered into with the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States or an an equivalent or better policy hereinafter entered into. The employee shall have, also, the benefit of such group insurance during the summer vacation period and until the beginning of the next official school year, provided the employee shall have completed service for the full period of this contract.

22.2 This policy shall be reviewed annually by the Association and the Board and adjusted to current medical and hospital charges.

ARTICLE 23

Annuities

23.1 In addition to the foregoing salary provisions, all employees who elect to obtain an annuity contract and file such written election in the office of the Clerk-Treasurer on or before September 10 and January 10 of each year, and conditioned upon the employee remaining in the employment of the Board for the term of his employment, shall be entitled to a non-forfeitable annuity contract from a company of his election, with premiums paid by the Board in amounts elected. The Board shall charge the employee and deduct from the current school year's final salary payment to the employee the annuity premium paid for any month or months for which the employee has drawn and been paid unearned sick leave.

23.2 It is understood and agreed between the Board and the employee that the annuity premium payments by the Board, hereinabove provided for, are not in substitution of or in lieu of additional salary for which the Board is in any way obligated to the employee and the employee at no time during the contract period has the right to additional salary in excess of the amount provided for in his contract in the event the annuity contract is cancelled at the request of or as a result of any action taken by the employee.

23.3 While it is intended that the annuity premium payments to be made by the Board will be tax exempt to the employee, pursuant to the provisions of Section 403 (1)(1)(a), Internal Revenue Code, as amended by Public Law 87-370, Section 3(a)* (3), approved October 4, 1961, it is understood and agreed that the Board does not guarantee the non-taxability to the employee of such premium payments from tax withholding under the Federal Insurance Contribution Act. It is further understood and agreed that the Board does not in any way guarantee the annuity contract.

23.4 Continuation of employee annuity premium payments by the Board throughout subsequent contract school years shall be entirely within the discretion of the Board.

23.5 In the event the employee is released during the school year, the Board's obligation hereunder to pay annuity premium payments will terminate, effective as of the date of employment release and the annuity contract purchased on behalf of such employee will be surrendered by the Board to such employee.

23.6 The teacher will receive an annual notice of his yearly salary and the amount of his annuity with his contract.

ARTICLE 24

District Improvement Council

24.1 The District Improvement Council shall be composed of four members designated annually by the Association, the Superintendent or his designee and three persons designated by him annually. The chairman will be determined annually by the Council.

24.2 The District Improvement Council shall meet at least once a month during the school year to discuss and study subjects mutually agreed upon relating to the school system.

24.3 The District Improvement Council is empowered to appoint committees to study and report upon subjects agreed upon by the Council. On completion of its study and report on the subject assigned to it, each committee shall be considered dissolved, and once dissolved no committee shall be reactivated except by the Council.

24.4 The clerical expenses of the District Improvement Council and its subcommittees shall be paid by the Board.

24.5 Representatives on the District Improvement Council shall be released from school duties for monthly meetings of the District Improvement Council without loss of salary. Members of subcommittees may also be excused without loss of pay.

ARTICLE 25

School Improvement Council

25.1 A School Improvement Council shall be established in each school from the faculty of that school to provide for orderly and professional means of improving the educational program and conditions within the school.

25.2 Minimum Membership on the Council will be as follows:

25.2.1 Elementary Schools: One representative from the primary grades. One representative from the intermediate grades. The SLTA Faculty Representative. Principal.

25.2.2 Junior High Schools: One representative from the non-academic subject areas. One representative from the academic subject areas. The SLTA Faculty Representative(s). Administrative staff -- principal and/or administrative assistant. Representative from the counseling staff. Faculty advisor to student government (if other than administrator).

25.2.3 Senior High Schools: One representative from the non-academic subject areas. One representative from the academic subject areas. SLTA Faculty Representatives. Representative from counseling staff. Administrative staff -- principal and/or assistant administrators.

25.2.4 Additional participation or representation on the Council will be determined by the Council as needs arise.

25.3 Teacher representatives will be elected by the teaching staff. The counselors will elect their representative. The faculty advisor to student government is usually appointed by the principal.

25.4 It shall be possible for individual members of the Council to introduce any items of business or points of view to be considered by the Council.

25.5 The activities of the Council shall be reported to all members of the staff during subsequent faculty meetings.

25.6 The Council should meet monthly and oftener if business dictates. The Chairman will be elected by the Council. The operating procedures of the Council will be determined by the Council.

25.7 The Council work shall not carry over into the administration of policies and programs.

25.8 Items beyond the scope of the School Improvement Council may be referred to the District Improvement Council in writing by the chairman of the School Improvement Council.

ARTICLE 26

Maintenance of Standards

26.1 This Agreement shall not be interpreted or applied to deprive teachers of professional advantage heretofore enjoyed unless expressly stated herein.

26.2 General contract duties of any teacher or the general contract responsibilities of any teaching position in the School District will not be substantially altered or increased without prior consultation with the Association.

ARTICLE 27

Duration

27.1 The provisions of this agreement will be effective upon ratification and will continue and remain in full force and effect until July 1, 1969. Said agreement will automatically be renewed and will continue in full force and effect for additional periods of one year unless either the Board or the Association gives written notice to the other not later than ninety (90) days prior to the aforesaid expiration date or any anniversary thereof of its desire to reopen this agreement and to negotiate over the terms of a successor agreement.

ARTICLE 28

Binding Effect

28.1 This Agreement shall be binding upon the parties and their respective successors during its existence; provided, however, that the parties recognize that the Board cannot, and does not, commit the expenditure of funds not appropriated or levied, or otherwise available. Accordingly, the obligations of the Board and the District hereunder are subject to and conditioned upon availability of public funds to implement this or any successor agreement.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereunto set their hands and seals this 20th day of August 1968.

1. Pay for teachers of remedial reading is $180 higher than the schedule for regular classroom teachers.
2. Pay for teachers of special classes and speech-correction teachers is $390 higher than the schedule for regular classroom teachers.
3. Pay for counselors is 1/18 higher than the schedule for regular classroom teachers. Services of counselors are required before and/or after the regular school term for ten days.
4. Pay for athletic coaches in the senior high school is $480 higher than the schedule for regular classroom teachers.
5. Teachers assigned to summer school, leadership in curriculum development, or other extra curricular duties, shall receive compensation at their regular rates of pay.

APPENDIX B

Salary Policy

A "multi-track" salary schedule has been adopted by the Board of Education. Advancement on the salary schedule is based on training, experience, and commitment. Increments to an established maximum implies growth in efficiency through a program which combines continued preparation and on-the-job practice.

The Salt Lake City School District has established a salary schedule structure which attempts to provide professional salaries for professional employees. The bachelor's degree provides a minimum base from which all professional salaries are derived.

The salary structure known as the "inverted" triangle provides the pattern for salary determination. This provides:

1. Increments for successful teaching experience.

2. Increments for increased training at significant levels of attainment such as, bachelor's degree plus 30 and 60 quarter hours, master's degree, master's degree plus 45 quarter hours, and doctor's degree.

3. That increased training will also result in an increase in the number of experience increments allowed to reach the maximum.

4. For doubling the base salary at some point of training and experience.

The "A" and "B": salary concept provides for additional increments based on a full commitment to the educational program of the School District, plus additional pay for extended time, additional services, and leadership roles. This salary structure also provides a choice whereby teachers, who for personal reasons are unable to accept additional tasks, may be relieved of such responsibilities.

Contract teachers have the privilege of choosing between the "A" and "B" schedules. This choice is to be made annually, with an understanding of what is expected. Examples of activities and responsibilities in addition to the regular classroom teaching which are common to both the "A" and "B" schedules are:

1. Membership on, but not chairman of, local building committees, such as: Program Committees, Professional Committees, Social Committees, etc.

2. Club sponsorship related to teaching assignment such as: Language Clubs, Model United Nations, Pep Club, etc.

3. Supervision of students during the school day, according to district policy, such as: Halls, Assemblies, During structured period, if necessary, etc.

4. Attendance at meetings according to district policy, such as: Principal's meetings, meetings called by specialists, etc.

In addition to the common responsibilities outlined for teachers on both "A" and "B" schedules, those teachers who elect the "B" schedule will be expected to fulfill responsibilities in the areas indicated. Examples of such additional activities and responsibilities are:

1. Act as cooperating teachers in the student teaching program.

2. Be available for transfer and changes in placement or assignment, as necessary, such as: To staff new schools; adjustments because of enrollment changes; to balance staff to meet specific needs of various schools; to promote professional growth; to establish student teaching centers; etc.

3. Serve on district committees, such as: Curriculum Development, Personnel Policies, Professional Relations, Institute Committees, etc.

4. Serve in innovative teaching situations where qualified and interested: Within the school of present assignment; by transfer to other schools or projects.

5. Chairmanship of local Building Committees, such as: Program Committees; Professional Committees; Social Committees, etc.

6. Accept leadership roles in professional organizations, such as: officers in local teachers organization; committee chairmanship, association faculty representative. It is expected that all teachers who elect the "B" schedule will affiliate with professional organizations.

7. Accept leadership roles in in-service training programs at the building level, such as: Department heads; curriculum development or research responsibility; etc.

8. Accept local leadership responsibilities in such activities as: building Audio-Visual coordinator; sponsorship or competitive student activities other than athletics; Junior Safety patrol sponsor; member of the School Improvement Council.

9. Club sponsorship, not related to teaching assignment, where qualified and interested, such as: bowling clubs, ski clubs, activity clubs, etc.

It is the intent of the "B" schedule program that the administrative staff, principals, specialists and the professional organizations will cooperate to assure an equitable distribution of responsibilities and will avoid the assignment of one teacher to several areas of responsibility.

Probationary teachers may, if they so desire, volunteer for service in areas where they are interested and qualified.

APPENDIX C

Schedule of Pay for Substitute Teachers

Class I

Teachers whose training is less than that required of a certificated teacher or certificated teachers with fewer than three years of experience will be paid $16.00 per day.

Class II

Teachers who have qualified for teaching certificates, whose certificates have lapsed, but who have had three or more years of teaching experience will be paid $18.00 per day.

Class III

Retired teachers or teachers who are fully certificated and have had three years or more of teaching experience will be paid $20.00 per day.

APPENDIX D

Teacher Evaluations

The term "evaluation" is used to describe the philosophy, criteria, and procedures by which professional judgments are made regarding each teacher's performance. The several reasons for periodic staff evaluations are:

1. To upgrade through professional counseling and supervision the performance of all classroom teachers.

2. To identify standards and conditions of professional service in the school system.

3. To provide a simple, permanent record of the quality of each employee's service.

4. To provide a basis for judgment with respect to the continued employment of the teacher.

5. To provide principals with a uniform instrument on which to make evaluations.

A. Probationary Teachers

Teachers who begin teaching in the Salt Lake School District without previous teaching experience must have a probationary period of three years.

Teachers who begin teaching in the Salt Lake City Schools after having had three or more years of teaching experience will have a probationary period which may vary from one to three years.

All teachers entering or returning to the System must be placed on first year probation for the first year, excepting those returning from sabbatical leave.

At the end of the first year those teachers whose work is considered to be outstanding will have their probationary status terminated and be considered as contract teachers.

At the end of the third year those teachers who are re-employed will be placed on contract status.

The above procedures may apply at any time after the total experience outside of Salt Lake City, plus that in Salt Lake City, exceeds three years.

1. Procedures for Evaluation

a. By January 15 of each year the principal will submit an evaluation of all probationary teachers assigned to his school provided they have been employed for at least two months.

b. On April 15 of each year the principal will submit a second evaluation for:

(1) All probationary teachers whose status has changed significantly since January.

(2) All teachers whose evaluations were "less than satisfactory" in January.

2. Procedures Following Evaluation

Teachers serving on probation shall be subject to the provisions of the annual probationary contract. "If in the judgment of the Board, the teacher is at any time during the term of his contract guilty of misconduct or insubordination or is incompetent or is not doing work satisfactory to the Board, or the retention of the teacher is not in the best interest of the schools, the teacher may be dismissed in accordance with Article 14 of this Agreement."

The following procedures will be used.

a. First-year probationary teachers whose work is considered to be unsatisfactory may be dismissed upon thirty days' notice after suitable attempts have been made to improve the performance of the teacher.

b. Second and third-year probationary teachers whose work is considered to be unsatisfactory shall be so notified in writing not later than February 1, by the Director of Employee Personnel.

c. Each written notice shall be followed by conferences between the director and the teacher; the specialist and the teacher; and the principal and teacher. The deputy superintendent in charge of curriculum should be invited to these conferences. The purpose of these conferences shall be to outline with the teacher ways and means for the improvement of his work. He shall be given careful, sympathetic, constructive help.

d. The teacher may call upon specialists for assistance. He also may have opportunity to visit an outstanding teacher in a comparable position as an aid to improving his work. He may be granted a change of assignment if such change is possible and is deemed wise.

e. Teachers whose ratings are unsatisfactory in January will be notified by the Office of Employee Personnel that the quality of their work is in question. Specialists will be alerted to the need for improvement for these teachers. If improvement is not indicated on the April 15 evaluations, and if re-employment will not be offered to them, they must be so notified by May 1.

f. At the termination of the probationary period of three years, a teacher shall be given status as a contract teacher or shall not be re-employed. However, any employee of the Board has the right to appeal as outlined in Article 14-1-2.

B. Contract Teachers

1. Evaluation Policy

Contract teachers are subject to evaluation at any time it is felt necessary to do so and may, as a result of the evaluation, be re-assigned to probationary status or proceedings for dismissal may be implemented.

a. A contract teacher whose work is considered unsatisfactory shall be notified in writing. The first notice shall be given not later than February 1. If a second notice is necessary, it shall be given not later than May 1. Failure to receive written notice of unsatisfactory work shall be construed to mean that the teacher will be recommended for employment for the ensuing school year with the regular salary increase provided for in the salary schedule for the position.

b. Each notice of unsatisfactory work shall be made in triplicate. One copy shall be mailed to the teacher and one to the principal. The third copy shall be retained in the individual's folder.

c. Each written notice shall be followed by conferences between the director and teacher; the specialist and teacher; and the principal and teacher. The deputy superintendent in charge of curriculum should be invited to these conferences. The purpose of these conferences shall be to outline with the teacher ways and means for improvement of his work. He shall be given careful, sympathetic, constructive help.

d. The teacher may call upon specialists for assistance. He also may have opportunity to visit an outstanding teacher in a comparable situation as an aid to improving his work. He may be granted a change of assignment if such change is possible and deemed wise.

e. If, following notice of unsatisfactory work, the contract teacher shows sufficient improvement, he shall be allowed one year following the second notice to bring his work up to a satisfactory standard.

f. Any contract teacher notified in writing that his work is unsatisfactory shall have the right to a hearing before the department head. He may be accompanied by his counselor or his representative. Such hearings shall be at the option of the teacher, who may call such witnesses as he desires. The principal, specialists involved, and others may be called as witnesses if necessary.

CODE OF ETHICS OF THE EDUCATION PROFESSION

Adopted by the NEA Representative Assembly, July 1968
Pending Adoption by the SLTA Representative Assembly, Fall 1968

PREAMBLE

The educator believes in the worth and dignity of man. He recognizes the supreme importance of the pursuit of truth, devotion to excellence, and the nurture of democratic citizenship. He regards as essential to these goals the protection of freedom to learn and to teach and the guarantee of equal educational opportunity for all. The educator accepts his responsibility to practice his profession according to the highest ethical standards.

The educator recognizes the magnitude of the responsibility he has accepted in choosing a career in education, and engages himself, individually and collectively with other educators, to judge his colleagues, and to be judged by them, in accordance with the provisons of this code.

PRINCIPLE I

Commitment to the Student

The educator measures his success by the progress of each student toward realization of his potential as a worthy and effective citizen. The educator therefore works to stimulate the spirit of inquiry, the acquisition of knowledge and understanding, and the thoughtful formulation of worthy goals.

In fulfilling his obligation to the student, the educator --

1. Shall not without just cause restrain the student from independent action in his pursuit of learning, and shall not without just cause deny the student access to varying points of view.

2. Shall not deliberately suppress or distort subject matter for which he bears responsibility.

3. Shall make reasonable effort to protect the student from conditions harmful to learning or to health and safety.

4. Shall conduct professional business in such a way that he does not expose the student to unnecessary embarrassment or disparagement.

5. Shall not on the ground of race, color, creed, or national origin exclude any student from participation in or deny him benefits under any program, nor grant any discriminatory consideration or advantage.

6. Shall not use professional relationships with students for private advantage.

7. Shall keep in confidence information that has been obtained in the course of professional service, unless disclosure serves professional purposes or is required by law.

8. Shall not tutor for remuneration students assigned to his classes, unless no other qualified teacher is reasonably available.

PRINCIPLE II

Commitment to the Public

The educator believes that patriotism in its highest form requires dedication to the principles of our democratic heritage. He shares with all other citizens the responsibility for the development of sound public policy and assumes full political and citizenship responsibilities. The educator bears particular responsibility for the development of policy relating to the extension of educational opportunities for all and for interpreting educational programs and policies to the public.

In fulfilling his obligation to the public, the educator --

1. Shall not misrepresent an institution or organization with which he is affiliated, and shall take adequate precautions to distinguish between his personal and institutional or organizational views.

2. Shall not knowingly distort or misrepresent the facts concerning educational matters in direct and indirect public expressions.

3. Shall not interfere with a colleague's exercise of political and citizenship rights and responsibilities.

4. Shall not use institutional privileges for private gain or to promote political candidates or partisan political activities.

5. Shall accept no gratuities, gifts, or favors that might impair or appear to impair professional judgment, nor offer any favor, service or thing of value to obtain special advantage.

PRINCIPLE III

Commitment to the Profession

The educator believes that the quality of the services of the education profession directly influences the nation and its citizens. He therefore exerts every effort to raise professional standards, to improve his service, to promote a climate in which the exercise of professional judgment is encouraged, and to achieve conditions which attract persons worthy of the trust to careers in education. Aware of the value of united effort, he contributes actively to the support, planning, and programs of professional organizations.

In fulfilling his obligation to professional employment practices, the educator --

1. Shall not discriminate on the ground of race, color, creed, or national origin for membership in professional organizations, nor interfere with the free participation of colleagues in the affairs of their association.

2. Shall accord just and equitable treatment to all members of the profession in the exercise of their professional rights and responsibilities.

3. Shall not use coercive means or promise special treatment in order to influence professional decisions of colleagues.

4. Shall withhold and safeguard information acquired about colleagues in the course of employment, unless disclosure serves professional purposes.

5. Shall not refuse to participate in a professional inquiry when requested by an appropriate professional association.

6. Shall provide upon the request of the aggrieved party a written statement of specific reason for recommendations that lead to the denial of increments, significant changes in employment, or termination of employment.

7. Shall not misrepresent his professional qualifications.

8. Shall not knowingly distort evaluations of colleagues.

PRINCIPLE IV

Commitment to Professional Employment Practices

The educator regards the employment agreement as a pledge to be executed both in spirit and in fact in a manner consistent with the highest ideals of professional service. He believes that sound professional personnel relationships with governing boards are built upon personal integrity, dignity, and mutual respect. The educator discourages the practice of his profession by unqualified persons.

In fulfilling his obligation to professional employment practices, the educator --

1. Shall apply for, accept, offer, or assign a position or responsibility on the basis of professional preparation and legal qualifications.

2. Shall apply for a specific position only when it is known to be vacant, and shall refrain from underbidding or commenting adversely about other candidates.

3. Shall not knowingly withhold information regarding a position from an applicant or misrepresent an assignment or conditions of employment.

4. Shall give prompt notice to the employing agency of any change in availability of service, and the employing agent shall give prompt notice of changes in availability or nature of a position.

5. Shall not accept a position when so requested by the appropriate professional organization.

6. Shall adhere to the terms of a contract or appointment, unless these terms have been legally terminated, falsely represented, or substantially altered by unilateral action of the employing agency.

7. Shall conduct professional business through channels, when available, that have been jointly approved by the professional organization and the employing agency.

8. Shall not delegate assigned tasks to unqualified personnel.

9. Shall permit no commercial exploitation of his professional position.

10. Shall use time granted for the purpose for which it is intended.

Description and Analysis

AGENCY SHOP, SALARY COMPROMISE RECOMMENDED IN INKSTER, MICHIGAN

The fact-finder in the case involving an impasse in negotiations between the Inkster, Michigan, Board of Education and the Inkster Federation of Teachers, Local 1068, ruled that the union should be awarded released time for its president and an agency shop clause in the new agreement. The issue of health insurance was remanded to further negotiation since the fact-finder had insufficient data upon which to base an opinion.

In the salary impasse, complicated by the district's precarious financial position, a compromise salary package which would cost an estimated $125,000 was recommended, $160,000 less than the union proposal and $37,000 more than the Board offer. The recommended salary increases ranged from $500 to $1,000 per teacher. The fact-finder provided that "if the parties do not accept these recommendations, a Michigan Treasury Department official should come to Inkster and examine any available records which may shed light on the dispute concerning Inkster's financial liability."

AGENCY SHOP UPHELD BY MICHIGAN COURT

The Circuit Court for the County of Wayne, Michigan, ruled that an agency shop clause "is a valid bargainable issue in contract negotiations between public employees and employers," and does not conflict with the Teacher Tenure Law.

Article II of the agreement between the Southgate Community School District and the Southgate Education Association provides that all teachers as a condition of continued employment shall pay either membership dues and assessments of the Association, MEA, and NEA, or pay a representation fee equivalent to this amount. "In the event the representation fee shall not be paid, the Board upon receiving a signed statement from the Association indicating the teacher has failed to comply with this condition, shall immediately notify said teacher that his services shall be discontinued at the end of the current semester."

The Court ruled that "such provision in an agreement serves the purpose of allocating indiscriminately the cost of representation for collective bargaining among all those participating in the benefits received. Such a provision eliminates the 'free riders.'" "The Tenure Act permits in explicit language the discharge of an employee 'for reasonable and just cause.' The Board and the Association have determined that non-compliance with provisions of Article II of said contract, namely the agency shop provisions, constituted reasonable and just cause for discharge. All fell within the limits of permitted collective bargaining under P.E.R.A. and do not conflict with the Tenure Act."

SANCTIONS ILLEGAL IN NEW JERSEY

The Supreme Court of New Jersey upheld the decision of the Superior Court that sanctions imposed by the Union Beach Teachers Association and the New Jersey Education Association against the school system of the Borough of Union Beach were illegal. In so ruling, the Court likened the sanctions activities to a strike. The teachers claimed that they merely resigned and that the refusal of others to accept employment in the system was inherently different from a quit. In response, the Court stated: "The public demand for services which makes illegal a strike against government inveighs against any other concerted action designed to deny government the necessary manpower, whether by terminating existing employments in any mode or by obstructing access to the labor market. Government may not be brought to a halt." (Emphasis added.)

MICHIGAN ADMINISTRATORS HAVE BARGAINING RIGHTS

The Michigan Labor Mediation Board ruled in the Hillsdale Community Schools case that supervisory employees have bargaining rights under PERA. The Board declared, "Section 9e is incorporated into PERA only for standards of unit determination and to provide a prohibition against supervisors and executives being included in the same unit with employees they supervise. There is no prohibition against supervisory units. . . ." Further, the school board contention that the Hillsdale Community Schools Principals and Supervisory Association was ineligible because of its affiliation with the Michigan Education Association, the parent organization of many teacher associations, was denied. The Labor Board ruled that "there is no more basis for restricting the choice of bargaining agent to one not representing the rank and file employees here, than there is in restricting that choice respecting craft, technical or professional employee units. Just as professional, craft and technical employees are not restricted in their choice of bargaining representative, supervisory employees should also not be so restricted."

The unit proposed by the principals' organization was found to be appropriate, including "high school, junior high, and elementary school principals, curriculum coordinator, reading coordinator, ESEA coordinator, cooperative education coordinator, head librarian, and physical education director; excluding: teachers, superintendent, assistant superintendent, business manager and all non-certificated employees." A representation election was ordered.

CITY COUNCIL ORDER NOT APPLICABLE TO TEACHERS

The Superior Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts ruled that the provision for cash payment for unused sick leave upon retirement in the Agreement between the Quincy Teachers Association and the School Committee is valid and enforceable.

The City of Quincy held that this provision was contrary to the regulation governing sick leave for city employees under Council Order No. 378, "accumulated sick leave does not carry any monetary value to be granted on termination of service."

The Court held that this Order is not applicable to teachers since the school committee and not the city council "has complete authority to set the terms of compensation for the teachers." The general laws state that "a town by by-law and a city by ordinance . . . may establish the hours, days and weeks of work and the hours, days and weeks of leave without loss of pay . . . for any or all employees of such town or city other than those appointed by the school committee;. . ." (Emphasis added.)

PLANNING PERIOD REPLACES ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION FOR GUIDANCE COUNSELORS

The arbitrator in Godwin Heights, Michigan, ruled that the Board of Education was within its rights in allotting guidance counselors a planning period in lieu of additional compensation previously received.

In the negotiations between the Board of Education and the Godwin Heights Education Association in the spring of 1966, the basis for additional compensation for guidance counselors was considered. The Association, "by deliberate and express agreement, . . . rejected education and experience as bases for additional compensation, and required that counsellors receive additional compensation because of the additional hours of work they performed." Article 12 of the Agreement states that "the Board may each year enter into additional contractual agreements with teachers for extra duties beyond their normal daily teaching assignment." Thus, the Board was not compelled to make such additional assignments, and when extra hours were no longer assigned to guidance counselors, no additional compensation was due.

ADULT EDUCATION UNIT FOUND APPROPRIATE

The Director of Representation of the New York Public Employment Relations Board found that the adult education teachers in the White Plains schools should be included in a separate unit from the K-12 teachers "since their terms and conditions of employment are different, and are determined in a different manner."

It was determined that teachers in all three of the adult education programs, manpower development and training (MDT), adult basic education (ABE), and traditional adult education (TAE), have a substantial community of interest regardless of the number of hours worked or coterminous employment in the regular K-12 program. The appropriate unit shall include "all classroom teachers, shop teachers, and guidance personnel who are employed in the adult education program."

It was ordered that the petition for certification filed by the White Plains Federation of Adult Educators, Local 1787, would be dismissed unless amended within 21 days to specify the unit deemed appropriate. Further, the White Plains Teachers Association, bargaining agent for K-12 teachers, could not seek certification until it produced evidence that "it will restrict employee participation in the affairs of the unit deemed herein to be appropriate to persons employed within such unit."

CONTRACT BAR FOUND IN RIVER ROUGE, MICHIGAN

Two petitions for decertification of the River Rouge Education Association were dismissed by the Michigan Labor Mediation Board. On January 3, 1967, the Labor Board certified the Association as exclusive bargaining representative for the River Rouge teachers. The petition filed by the River Rouge Federation of Teachers on December 27, 1967, was dismissed as untimely because it was filed within the certification year.

The Federation filed a second petition on January 3, 1968. The Board found that an agreement reached in September and subsequently implemented but not reduced to writing and signed until December 29, 1967, served as a contract bar. The Federation contended that since several drafts were prepared before the final document was signed, there was continuous bargaining up to the time of signing. The Board ruled that the changes in the various drafts were not "material enough to change the bargain between the parties." "A bargain was made in September, implemented thereafter, and was reduced to writing before the end of the certification year." The second petition was therefore also dismissed as untimely.

Data and Statistics

SOME OF THE HIGHEST SALARIES SCHEDULED FOR TEACHERS, 1968-69

A beginning salary of $7,000 or more with the bachelor's degree has been adopted by at least 35 school systems for 1968-69. One district has a maximum scheduled salary of $14,716 for the master's degree; one has a scheduled maximum of $16,704 for the highest preparation recognized below the earned doctor's degree.

Almost 7 percent of all teachers in public elementary and secondary schools are employed in 137 school systems whose salary schedules compare with those of other professional employees with similar educational requirements. The salary schedules of the 137 districts meet each of these three arbitrary criteria:

1. A minimum salary of $6,500 or more at Step 1 of the bachelor's degree scale

2. A maximum of $12,000 or more for the master's degree or equivalent

3. A maximum of $13,000 or more for the highest preparation recognized below the doctor's degree.

Scheduled salaries are exclusive of long-service or merit increments beyond regularly scheduled maximums.

In 261 other reporting systems, one or two of the three criteria mentioned above are met, but not all three. These 398 systems are the only ones from which information was received by the NEA Research Division in connection with its 1968-69 salary schedule studies; no doubt schedules of other systems meet the criteria, but their enrollments are too small to be included in the survey, or they did not furnish schedule documents.1/

1/ National Education Association, Research Division. Salary Schedules for Teachers, 1968-69. Research Report 1968-R13. Washington, D.C.: the Association, 1968. 122 p.

Salary schedule information was obtained from 1,794 systems with enrollments of 1,200 or more, and from 133 selected suburban systems in high-income areas with enrollments of 1,000 or more. Most of the 398 systems are located in suburban communities near or adjacent to large metropolitan areas. However, some of the large city districts appear in the list this year, notably Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, Long Beach, Chicago, Detroit, New York, Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Milwaukee, Montgomery and Prince George's Counties, Maryland, Baltimore and Baltimore County, Maryland, and Fairfax County, Virginia.

For the 137 systems which meet all of the criteria mentioned earlier (shown in Group I of Table 1), the mean scheduled salary in 1968-69 for a beginning teacher with a bachelor's degree is $6,805; the median is $6,800 with 40 schedules at the median. The mean maximum scheduled salary for the master's degree for the 137 systems is $12,977; the median, $12,920. Eleven reported scheduled maximums of $14,000 or more for the master's degree salary class.

For the highest preparation level recognized below the earned doctor's degree, the mean scheduled maximum for the 137 districts is $14,262; the median, $14,100.

Of the 137 systems, 101 provide a salary classification for the doctor's degree; the mean scheduled maximum salary for these districts is $14,963. Of the 101 schedules, 13 have maximums of $16,000 or higher for the doctor's degree.

The maximum beginning salary scheduled among the 398 systems whose schedules meet one or more of the three criteria is $7,500. Three Alaska districts have higher starting salaries, but because of the cost-of-living differential in Alaska, these salaries are not considered comparable with those scheduled in other parts of the United States. A beginning salary of $6,500 or more is scheduled by 310, or 77.9 percent, of the 398 systems.

The maximum scheduled salary for the master's degree or equivalent among the 398 systems is $14,716; the maximum for the highest preparation level recognized below the earned doctorate is $16,704; for the earned doctor's degree, $17,201.

Of the 398 systems which meet one or more of the three criteria, 268 specify the six-year preparation level as the highest below the earned doctor's degree, and 101 specify seven years of preparation. Some of the latter group recognize the same maximum for both the doctor's degree and the 7-year equivalency.

A separate salary class is specified for the doctor's degree in 209 schedules; maximum salaries for this class are shown in column 7 of the listing. Since very few classroom teachers possess the doctor's degree, it is not a realistic salary classification for identification of maximum salaries, and means and medians were not computed for this preparation level. Maximum scheduled salaries for the earned doctorate, however, range from $10,700 to $17,201 for the 209 systems which have a separate salary class for this preparation level.

The maximum salaries shown in the attached system-by-system listing are exclusive of long-service increments beyond the regularly scheduled maximums. Of the 398 systems shown, 147, or 36.9 percent, provide for long-service increments; the amounts are not shown in the listing.

Regularly scheduled maximums may be exceeded by merit increments in 51 of the 398 systems, some by definitely scheduled amounts and some by board action with no amounts stated in the schedule. Only 69, or 17.3 percent, derive their schedules on an index or ratio basis. This is about the national average for all reporting systems.

When classified by the arbitrarily selected high-salary criteria already mentioned, schedules of the 398 systems are divided as follows:

1. In 137 all three criteria are met: bachelor's degree minimum, $6,500 or more; master's degree maximum, $12,000 or more; and maximum scheduled salary for the highest preparation recognized below the earned doctor's degree, $13,000 or more.

2. In 39, both the master's degree maximum and the maximum for the highest recognized preparation level below the earned doctorate meet the criteria, but the bachelor's degree minimum is less than $6,500.

3. In 53, both the bachelor's degree minimum and the maximum for the highest preparation level below the doctorate meet the criteria, but the master's degree maximum is below $12,000.

4. In 32, a minimum of at least $6,500 is provided at the bachelor's degree level, as well as a maximum of $12,000 or more for the master's degree, but the maximum scheduled salary for the highest preparation level below the earned doctorate is less than $13,000.

5. Thirty-one provide a maximum of $13,000 or more for the highest preparation level recognized below the doctorate, but do not meet either of the other two criteria.

6. Eighteen provide a maximum salary of $12,000 or more for the master's degree, but do not meet either of the other two criteria.

7. In 88 schedules, the minimum for the bachelor's degree is $6,500 or more, but neither of the other two criteria is met.

It cannot be overstressed that Table 1 does not list all of the public school systems in the United States which have salary schedules high enough to meet all three of the arbitrary criteria adopted for this tabulation. It lists only those systems from which salary data were received in time to be included. Since many school systems were still negotiating salary contracts for 1968-69 at the time this tabulation was made, they necessarily are excluded.

INTRODUCTION

On September 3, 1968, Dr. Edward B. Fort, Superintendent of Schools for the Board of Education, hereinafter to be referred to as the Employer, and Mrs. Catherine H. Jackson, President, Inkster Federation of Teachers, Local 1068, hereinafter to be referred to as the Union, sent a joint telegraph to Mr. Hyman Parker, Chief Mediation Officer for the Labor Mediation Board, which stated the following:

REQUEST IMMEDIATE FACT-FINDING ON ISSUES OF DIFFERENCES BETWEEN US
INCLUDING WAGES AND AGENCY SHOP

On September 4, 1968, the Labor Mediation Board designated the undersigned ". . .as its Hearings Officer and Agent to conduct a fact-finding hearing pursuant to Section 25 of Act 176 of Public Acts of 1939, as amended, and the Board's Regulations and to issue a report with recommendations with respect to the matters in disagreement."

Hearings were held at the Inkster Board of Education offices on September 4 and 5, 1968, at which time both parties to this dispute were afforded full opportunity to present testimony, evidence and arguments. At the September 4 hearing both parties agreed that the following unresolved issues should be submitted to fact-finding inasmuch as failure to agree on them had constituted the main obstacle to a successful negotiation of a new contract.

1. RELEASED TIME FOR THE UNION'S PRESIDENT
2. AGENCY SHOP (PROFESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY CLAUSE)
3. SALARY SCHEDULE FOR 1968-69
4. BLUE CROSS-BLUE SHIELD BENEFITS

DISCUSSION AND RECOMMENDATIONS

1. RELEASED TIME FOR THE UNION'S PRESIDENT

The previous Agreement (1967-68) between the parties provides the following in Article II Section 3 (B):

> The President of the Federation shall receive one (1) day per week released time . . .

The parties stipulate that this released time is used for union activities which are, primarily, the investigation and processing of contractual grievances. The Employer's position is that 2 days of released time per month is sufficient for this purpose. Moreover, the Employer notes that the payment of a substitute for the Union's President will only compound the Board's financial difficulties which are outlined in detail below.

The Union's rejoinder to this argument is twofold. In the first place, the Union points out that the payment of a substitute teacher constitutes an extremely small percentage of the Board's budgetary allotment for substitute teachers (the latter totaling $55,000). Secondly, the Union maintains that the released time contract provision has enabled the Union to investigate and resolve more grievances before it becomes necessary to invoke the final steps of the contractual grievance procedure.

I recommend that the parties continue the past practice concerning released time which is incorporated in Article II Section 3(B) of the agreement. There seems to be little dispute regarding the fact that both parties have been the beneficiaries of this clause. The uncontradicted evidence is that the Union President has been able to deal with many grievances which, in the absence of the released time practice might have festered and thus proved troublesome. Moreover, the cost of the necessary substitute teacher is extremely small.

If the Union President does not have sufficient time to carry on such Union business, there exists the possibility of shorter absences during the day which will present administrative difficulties.

And, of course, the cost involved in grievances which become exaggerated and more complicated as the result of Union's inability to deal with them at an early stage can be both costly and inconvenient to the Union and the Employer. In this connection it should be noted that the Union President must visit 10 school buildings in order to carry out her functions under Article II Section 3(B).

I do not believe that the parties have been unwise in negotiating that clause in the Agreement. I, therefore, recommend that the past practice concerning released time be continued.

2. AGENCY SHOP (PROFESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY CLAUSE)

The Union has proposed that a "Professional Responsibility Clause", be incorporated in the 1968-69 Agreement. This clause provides that any member of the bargaining unit who has not joined the Union [within 30 days after his employment or the execution of the Agreement, whichever is later] ". . . shall pay to the Union a sum equal to the Union dues and assessments established by the Union for each school year and shall execute an authorization permitting the deduction of such sums. . ." The clause further provides that payment of such sums does not constitute Union membership. Also included is the obligation for the Employer to require authorization and the obligation for the Employer to deduct from the employee's pay check and transfer such sums to the Union on a monthly basis.

This proposal is, of course, the agency shop. The Union argues for the acceptance of the agency shop on the ground that it represents all members of the bargaining unit and that it services them all equally. Therefore, runs the argument, all members of the unit should contribute to the expenses involved in representation. In this connection, the Union notes that, in addition to expenses involved in collective bargaining, contract administration and fact-finding, it has utilized the resources of both the Michigan Federation of Teachers and the American Federation of Teachers. Moreover, the Union has represented the interests of Inkster teachers in legislative hearings.

Secondly, the Union emphasizes the fact that the representation vote in favor of Local 1068 was "overwhelming" and that during the past year 163 of the 225 bargaining unit employees were members of the Union. Although there are only 175 bargaining unit employees this year it is undisputed that the Union continues to have approximately the same percentage of members as last year. Thus, the Union argument is that the agency shop is also warranted because most of the bargaining unit employees pledged their allegiance to the Union. To permit a small minority to escape payment of what is in effect a service fee penalizes the Union majority.

Thirdly, the Union notes that the Board of Education has already negotiated an agency shop clause with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Union, that agency shop clauses have been negotiated in Allen Park, East Detroit and Hamtramck, and that 100 out of 500 contracts negotiated by the Michigan Education Association contain agency shop clauses. Therefore, according to the Union, the acceptability of the agency shop in Michigan public schools is well demonstrated and the prevailing pattern argues in favor of an agency shop provision in the Inkster Contract.

While noting that it has not set its face against the agency shop principle for all time, the Employer states that the payment of such sums should not be the responsibility of the Board and that it does not wish to be involved in "coercing" nonunion teachers to pay Union dues. Further, the Employer notes that the difficulties arising out of the current round of negotiations emphasize the disadvantages of a Union security clause for the Employer. In essence this argument is that Union militancy in the face of the Employers' financial situation does not presage a successful relationship in the future.

I am persuaded that the Union's position on this subject is the more meritorious of the two. In the circumstances of this case, it would seem that the very large percentage of Union membership noted above somewhat undercuts the Employers' argument that coercion would result from negotiation of the agency shop in Inkster. Moreover, the Union has vigorously represented the interests of all regardless of Union affiliation or lack thereof. In these circumstances of this case it is unfair for some employees to escape the financial obligations that belong to Union members when the benefits are negotiated equally for both groups of employees.

(It should be noted that the Union's proposal does not contemplate discharge as a sanction to be imposed in the case of an employee who resists payment. Union Counsel has specifically stated that, in the event of a violation of the "Professional Responsibility Clause" the Union would seek judicial enforcement of the clause and not discharge of the employee.)

To sum up, I am not persuaded by the Employer's arguments concerning coercion. I would think that the Labor Mediation Board's decision in Oakland County Sheriff's Department Case No. C-66-F-63 (1968) has put to rest the argument that the agency shop is "coercive" in its impact on nonunion members. For, in that case it was held that the agency shop is not coercive within the meaning of the Michigan Public Employment Act.

Therefore, in light of the Union's large membership, its vigorous representation of all bargaining unit members, and the hardship that a contrary recommendation would impose upon Union members, I recommend that the parties incorporate the Union's agency shop proposal in their 1968-69 contract.

3. SALARY SCHEDULE FOR 1968-69

The starting salary for a teacher with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Inkster in 1967-68 was $6,000. Increments of $300 are provided at each of 7 following steps. For the last 3 steps the teacher receives a $400 increment and at the last (11th) step each teacher received an additional $400 increment in February, 1968.

The starting salary for a teacher with an MA degree is $6,400. The exact same increment pattern noted above applies to the MA teacher.

Thus, the maximum salary in 1967-68 for a BA teacher was $9,600 and for an MA teacher, $10,000.

The Union has proposed that the starting salary for a teacher with a BA degree consists of $7,200 with all increments being $400. This would make the maximum salary for a BA teacher $11,200. The starting salary under the Union's scheme for an MA teacher would be $7,700 with the exact same pattern for increments. Thus, the maximum salary for the MA teacher would be $11,700.

The Employer has countered this proposal with an offer of a $500 across the board increase. This would make the BA starting salary $6,500 and the maximum, $10,000. The MA salary spread would go from $6,900 to $10,500.

The Employer's salary proposal would cost $88,074. The Union estimates the cost of its proposal to be approximately $285,000.

The foremost difficulty in resolving this dispute is that the Fact-Finder is caught in the horns of a fundamental dilemma. On the one hand, acceptance of the Employer's proposal will make Inkster teacher salaries uncompetitive with surrounding communities. This is especially true insofar as the more experienced teachers are concerned.1/ Comparability is one of the important factors to be weighed by the Fact-Finder. Inkster's teachers ought not to be placed in the position of receiving grossly inferior pay rates. Further, the teachers ought not to be placed in the position of subsidizing the school district.

On the other hand, a disproportionate number of experienced teachers who receive large increments makes Inkster's salary costs more burdensome than is the case in surrounding communities. Even more significant is the fact that Inkster has the poorest property tax base of any surrounding community and that a school district deficit in the previous year required a loan from the State in July, 1968. Blending into the Employer's financially precarious picture is House Bill No. 3332, which was signed by Governor Romney on May 17, 1968. This law provides in part that ". . . a school district receiving an emergency loan under the provisions of this act shall balance its budget in the fiscal year immediately following the fiscal year for which it receives an emergency loan, or, following recommendation by the State committee on reorganization of school districts, shall be reorganized by the State Board of Education."

Thus, there is the prospect that the Inkster school district will be dissolved if it runs another deficit and that, as provided in Section 15 of the law, a "contiguous" district will conduct Inkster's school business in the future.

My intent is to issue recommendations which preserve the Inkster school district or which, in any event, do not add substantially to its financial burdens. But I must reconcile such a concern with the fairness and equity which Inkster teachers deserve. For the image of all teachers is ill served by substandard salaries.

The fundamental problem involved in balancing the equities in this case is that neither the Union, employer or Fact-Finder know the full extent of Inkster's current financial liability. It is indeed possible that the Inkster Board would be dissolved without any raise for teachers. Moreover, the Employer acknowledges that its present offer of $88,074 might itself create a deficit; yet it remains willing to implement that offer.

On the other hand, there are certain facts which are available. One of these is that the Employer's budget estimates are not an entirely accurate reflection of the monies that the Board will receive in 1968-69. Although the Employer uses the accrual method of accounting, which is supposed to show 100% of the property tax collection as revenue, it has subtracted 15% of this amount in calculating what is available for salary increases on the ground that "experience" indicates that only 85% is actually collected.

But, in the first place, this is a pessimistic estimate because in the last two years for which records are available (1965-66 and 1966-67) the percentages have been 86.6 and 87.4 respectively. And the pattern from 1961 through 1967 reflects a continuously higher percentage of taxes collected.

1/ A portion of Union Exhibit 5 which indicates comparative salaries is attached as part of the Appendix.

More significant, however, is the fact that each year (from 1961 through 1967) the Inkster School District collects approximately 50% of delinquent property taxes. On an average, this amounts to between $80,000 and $90,000. However, this year's collection of delinquent taxes should be slightly lower in light of the above-noted higher collection of the current levy in recent years. But, of course, the higher collection of the current levy should compensate for the lower collection rate for delinquent taxes.

To repeat, Inkster's method of accounting should show 100% of the current levy without deductions for delinquent taxes this year and without additions for the previous years' delinquent taxes which will be collected this year. But if those deductions and additions were combined with the current levy actually collected the amount of revenue should be just about the same as the revenue which should be reflected through Inkster's accounting method. Thus, under either Inkster's own accounting methods or on the basis of a reliable statement of available cash in '68-'69 the Employer has considerably underestimated its revenue.

But, as noted above, the current financial liabilities are unknown. The Union takes the position that since the State Treasurer - in a letter of July 19, 1968 addressed to Dr. Fort - declared the Employer's insolvency to be $705,000 and since Inkster received a loan in that amount, there is no current liability. But the Employer relies upon a February 14, 1968 Auditor General Report which estimated that Inkster's July, 1968, deficit would be $902,000. To no avail the Employer relied upon this report in its negotiations with the State Treasurer which preceded the above-noted letter and loan.

The Board's current audit is not yet prepared.

Therefore, taking into account all of the above-noted facts and arguments, I make the following recommendations:

1. The Union should accept the Employer's offer of a $500 increase for the first 9 steps of the salary schedule for both BA and MA teachers. Thus, the starting salary for BA teachers should be $6,500 and for MA, $6,900.

2. A new 12th step on the salary schedule should be created. BA teachers in this step should receive an increase of $900. Thus, their salary would be $10,500. MA teachers in this step should receive an increase of $1,000. Thus, their salary would be $11,000.

3. Both BA and MA teachers on the 10th and 11th steps should receive increases of $600 and $700 respectively.

4. Teachers with an educational specialist degree should receive a $100 differential.

5. The parties have not supplied me with information concerning insurance benefits which is sufficient to make a rational judgment at this time. Therefore, Blue Cross-Blue Shield benefits should be the subject of negotiation between the parties.

6. The Union should have the right to reopen the Agreement on all economic issues in February, 1969. At that time the audit will be available for inspection and the parties will have a more complete picture of the Employer's financial position.

7. If the parties do not accept these recommendations, a Michigan Treasury Department official should come to Inkster and examine any available records which may shed light on the dispute concerning Inkster's financial liability.

While my recommendations do not make Inkster's teachers' salaries entirely competitive, they provide substantial increases for the more experienced teachers and, at the same time, they do not unduly jeopardize the Employer's finances. I estimate that my proposals will cost the employer $125,000 - $40,000 in excess of its present offer. There is no evidence before the Fact-Finder to support the conclusion that these recommendations will cause the Inkster school district to run a deficit. There is no evidence that $88,074 is the only offer which is compatible with the District's survival.

What is clear is that the teachers must receive a salary which is reasonably equitable. If the Union's estimates prove correct in February additional increases can be negotiated. If, on the other hand, existing liabilities exceed all revenue actually received during '68-'69, the District will probably be dissolved in the absence of other savings.

I believe that the tragedy of Inkster and the educational opportunities available to its children - with or without dissolution - is largely attributable to the absurd manner in which Michigan and other states finance education. In my judgment, Inkster's reliance upon its poor property tax base is the primary reason for the current dispute in progress. Until the State of Michigan resolves to finance public education through its tax base, poor districts like Inkster will be in turmoil. Consideration of new procedures to cope with teacher stoppages such as compulsory arbitration or stiffer strike penalties - while they have a secondary importance - miss the heart of the matter.

Only if and when Michigan takes on the financial responsibility for state-wide public education itself can the Inkster school district and its teachers hope for a realistic solution to its problems.

STATE OF MICHIGAN

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF WAYNE

JEAN SMIGEL, JOHN STARR, MARY JONES and PHYLLIS RUMLEY, several of a class similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

vs.

Civil Action No. 118, 812

SOUTHGATE COMMUNITY SCHOOL DISTRICT, a Public Corporate Body; SOUTHGATE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, a Voluntary Unincorporated Association; DONALD KOUBA, JACK FRUCCI, JOHN DOE AND JANE DOE, Defendants.

OPINION

AT A SESSION OF SAID COURT held in the City-County Building, Detroit, Michigan on the 22nd day of November, 1968.

PRESENT: Hon. Thomas J. Foley, Judge of the Third Judicial Circuit

This matter comes before this Court by way of Complaint with Order to Show Cause why Defendants should not be restrained from enforcing the provisions of a certain contract entered into by the parties in September, 1968.

Plaintiffs are teachers in the Southgate Community School District. Paragraph 21 (g) of the Complaint sets forth that the plaintiffs are in fact members of "a rival to defendant association."

Defendant Southgate Education Association (hereinafter referred to as The Association) has served as collective bargaining representative for teachers employed by the Defendant Southgate Community School District (hereinafter referred to as The Board) since 1966. The Association was duly elected by a majority of teachers in the bargaining unit and certified by the Labor Mediation Board as the bargaining representative pursuant to provision of the Public Employment Relations Act, being Act 379 of P.A. 1965 (hereinafter referred to as PERA).

Following certification in February, 1966 The Association and The Board did enter into extensive negotiations culminating in a collective bargaining agreement.

Plaintiffs have accepted all the benefits emanating from the negotiated agreement. Some plaintiffs refuse to join The Association or pay the service or representation fee provided under Article II of the agreement.

Article II of the Agreement provides:

"ARTICLE II–MEMBERSHIP, FEES AND PAYROLL DEDUCTIONS

All teachers as a condition of continued employment shall either:

1. Sign and deliver to the Board an assignment authorizing deduction of membership dues and assessments of the Association (including the National and Michigan Education Associations) and such authorization shall continue in effect from year to year unless revoked in writing between June 1 and September 1 of a given year. Such sums shall be deducted during the eight (8) consecutive pay periods commencing the 1st pay of October from the salary of all teachers authorizing deductions and remitted within thirty (30) days to the Association. Teachers joining the Association at the beginning of the second semester and signing and delivering to the Board an assignment authorizing deduction of said membership dues, may have dues for that semester deducted from the six (6) consecutive pay periods commencing the 1st pay of February, or

2. Sign and deliver to the Board an assignment authorizing deduction of a representation fee equivalent to the dues and assessments of the Association (including the National and Michigan Education Associations). Such sums shall be deducted during the eight (8) consecutive pay periods commencing the 1st pay of October from the salary of all teachers authorizing deductions and remitted within thirty (30) days to the Association. Teachers beginning their employment at the beginning of the second semester and signing and delivering to the Board an assignment authorizing deduction of said representation fees may have fees for that semester deducted from the six (6) consecutive pay periods commencing the 1st pay of February.

   Any teacher who wishes to pay cash for this fee must pay the full amount to the Treasurer of the S.E.A. within thirty (30) days of the commencement of employment.

   In the event the representation fee shall not be paid, the Board upon receiving a signed statement from the Association indicating the teacher has failed to comply with this condition, shall immediately notify said teacher that his services shall be discontinued at the end of the current semester. The Board shall follow the dismissal procedure of the Michigan Tenure Act. The refusal of said teacher to contribute fairly to the costs of negotiation and administration of this and subsequent agreements is recognized as just and reasonable cause for termination of employment. However, if at the end of the semester, the teacher, or teachers, receiving the termination notice shall then be engaged in pursuing any legal remedies contesting the discharge under this provision before the Michigan Tenure Commission, or a court of competent jurisdiction, such teacher's service shall not be terminated until such time as such teacher or teachers have either obtained a final decision as to the validity or legality of such charge, or such teacher or teachers have ceased to pursue the legal remedies available to them by not making a timely appeal of any decision rendered in said manner by the Tenure Commission, or a court of competent jurisdiction."

Article II or the so called "agency shop" provision is no longer a novel provision in agreements between bargaining agents and public employers in the State of Michigan, but, on the contrary, the principle has become an acceptable method of creating stability in public employee-employer relationships. Board of Education of the Schools of the City of Inkster, 263 GERR F-1 (Sept. 23, 1968); Oakland County Sheriff's Department, SLMB Case No. C 66 F-63 (Jan. 8, 1968), 1968 Labor Opinions 1, 227 GERR F-1 (Jan., 1968); City of Warren v. Local No. 1383, International Association of Fire Fighters, (Macomb Circuit Court No. S 67-33111); Clampitt v. Board of Education of the Warren consolidated Schools, 256 G E R R E-1.

P.E.R.A. at Section 423.208, CL 1948 provides:

"Sec. 9. It shall be lawful for public employees to organize together or to form, join or assist in labor organizations, to engage in lawful concerted activities for the purpose of collective negotiation or bargaining or other mutual aid and protection, or to negotiate or bargain collectively with their public employers through representatives of their own choice."

Thus the legislature approved not only the right of public employees to organize into labor organizations, but gave further recognition to the age-old process of collective negotiation or bargaining.

"Agency Shop" has been a bargainable issue in the collective bargaining process for many years and has received recognition as having a stabilizing influence upon employer-employee relations. Railway Employees Department vs. Hanson, 351 U.S. 225 (1955); NLRB v. General Motors Corporation, 373 U.S. 734; Tremblay v. Berlin Police Union, 232 G E R R D-1 (February 19, 1968).

In Tremblay, supra, the Supreme Court of New Hampshire was confronted with a collective bargaining agreement which required all policemen to authorize dues deductions to be paid over to a union. The Court noted that the clause, as here, "imposes a financial obligation only," and did not require union membership as a condition of employment. Termination of employment was authorized only for non-payment of such moneys. The Court therein stated:

"In the present case the police commissioner and the union have, in effect, declared under the collective bargaining agreement that union security is a reasonable requirement for the efficient and orderly administration of the police department. . . . this is a decision they have the right to make. . . . Our conclusion is that this union shop clause as construed is valid. . . ."

This Court thus finds that the so called "Agency Shop" is a valid bargainable issue in contract negotiations between public employees and employers.

The claim that an agency shop provision violates statutory law in that it forces one to join a union, and is discriminatory, is without merit. Such provision in an agreement serves the purpose of allocating indiscriminately the cost of representation for collective bargaining among all those participating in the benefits received. Such a provision eliminates the "free riders." Roberts' Dictionary on Industrial Relations (1966).

In City of Warren v. Local No. 1383, International Association of Fire Fighters, supra, the Court was faced with the discharge of twenty-five firemen who refused to make payment pursuant to an agency shop provision calling for payment of dues to the union or a service charge. The City maintained it could not discharge because of limitations on discharge under the Civil Service Act.

Judge Noe stated in part:

"Addressing ourselves to the specific point as to whether the dues as such should be collected from all members of the department under the factual situation in this case, it is the Court's interpretation that whether the terminology of union shop is used or agency shop, the payment of dues is certainly a part of the union security arrangments arrived at during the collective bargaining agreement. This does not require that those not desiring to become members of the union join the union, but only that they contribute, consistent with the union members, their share of the cost of maintaining the union, consistent with the benefits which they derive from the contract itself. Any other interpretation of Section 10 (P.E.R.A.) or any of its clauses, if extended to invalidate negotiated provisions of the collective bargaining agreement, would utterly destroy the rights of public employees to bargain through representatives of their own choice, or a union, and would completely destroy the exercise of their right to bargain collectively as set forth in P.E.R.A. and particularly Section 9.

An interpretation of Section 10 of the Act was principally directed to interference, restraint and coercion by an employer with the rights of the employees, and was not intended to be extended to non-discriminatory contractual c(l) auses, the outgrowth of terms arrived at by mutual agreement of the City and the chosen representatives (or union) of a majority of employees in the employee unit involved. No precise expression of the legislature intending to invalidate union security agreements appears."

Thus it is concluded that the agency shop provision, proper in itself, does not require union membership and is not discriminatory in violation of the provisions of P.E.R.A.

This Court's attention is directed to the provisions of the Teachers Tenure Act, being 38.101 CL 1948 et seq., wherein it is provided in part;

"Section (1) discharge or demotion of a teacher on continuing tenure may be made only after such charges, notice, hearing, and determination thereof, as are hereinafter provided. . . ."

It is claimed that a tenure teacher cannot be discharged for non-compliance with the agency shop provision because of the above mentioned provision of the Teacher Tenure Act.

Such an argument presupposes a contradiction in the terms and purposes of P.E.R.A. and the Teachers Tenure Act.

The latter promotes good order and welfare of the state and school system by preventing removal of capable and experienced teachers at personal whims of changing office holders. Rehberg v. Board of Education of Melvindale, 330 M 541.

The purpose of P.E.R.A., under which agency shop provisions may be bargained, is to benefit the employees with a sound, secure, unified approach to employee representation. Thus we see a common unified goal precluding an interpretation of the tenure act urging a conflict with P.E.R.A.

The Board and the Association have entered into a contract for the purpose of establishing certain standards of conduct necessary on both sides. Article II of the contract provides for the so-called agency shop requiring the payment of dues or a service fee. Further, provision is made for termination of employment upon refusal to comply with the provisions set forth.

Any action which would weaken the bargaining power of the Association and tend to reduce its strength is very well a proper subject for the parties to consider as reasonable grounds for discharge. Such activity disturbs the delicately balanced relationships between the bargaining parties, thus creating hardships greater in magnitude than provisions such as those setting forth hours of attendance and responsibilities in the classroom. Violation of these provisions certainly could be interpreted by the parties and Tenure Commission to constitute reasonable grounds for discharge under Article IV, Section I of the Tenure Act.

The Tenure Act permits in explicit language the discharge of an employee "for reasonable and just cause." The Board and the Association have determined that non-compliance with provisions of Article II of said contract, namely, the agency shop provisions, constituted reasonable and just cause for discharge. All fell within the limits of permitted collective bargaining under P.E.R.A. and do not conflict with the Tenure Act.

This Court is aware that procedures of appeal have been set up in the Teachers Tenure Act. To subject a teacher to discharge and the subsequent cumbersome procedures seeking to test the foregoing conclusions would constitute an unreasonable burden. Thus this Court has undertaken to answer the dispute.

The remaining provisions of the contract between the Board and the Association have been examined. Plaintiffs' allegations that the agency shop is discriminatory is found to be without foundation.

Plaintiffs Order to Show Cause why an injunction should not issue restraining the defendants, their respective officers, agents, employees, members from applying the provisions of the collective bargaining agreement, specifically Article II, Memberships, Fees and Payroll Deductions, Section A, is denied.

NEW JERSEY SUPREME COURT DECISION IN CASE OF UNION BEACH BOARD OF EDUCATION v. NEW JERSEY EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

SUPREME COURT OF NEW JERSEY
A-16 September Term 1968

BOARD OF EDUCATION, BOROUGH OF UNION BEACH, etc.

Plaintiff-Respondent,

v.

NEW JERSEY EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, a corporation, etc.,
UNION BEACH TEACHERS ASSOCIATION, FREDERICK L. HIPP and three other individual defendants,

Defendants-Appellants.

Argued October 8, 1968 – Decided November 25, 1968.

On appeal from the Superior Court, Chancery Division, Monmouth County, whose opinion is reported in 96 N.J. Super. 371 (Ch. Div. 1967).

Mr. Saul Z. Cohen, of the New York bar, argued the cause for appellants (Mr. Peter M. Fishbein, Mr. Murray J. Laulicht, Mr. Donald H. Wollett, Messrs. Kaye, Scholer, Fierman, Hays and Handler, of the New York bar, of counsel; Mr. Joseph N. Dempsey and Mr. Cassell R. Ruhlman, Jr., attorneys).

Mr. Theodore W. Geiser argued the cause for respondent (Messrs. Pindar, McElroy, Connell and Foley, attorneys).

Mr. Norman Mesnikoff argued the cause for Monmouth County Chapter, American Civil Liberties Union of New Jersey, amicus curiae (Mr. Lee Holley, of counsel).

Mr. Thomas P. Cook argued the cause for State Federation of District Boards of Education, amicus curiae.

The opinion of the Court was delivered by WEINTRAUB, C. J.

Plaintiff Board of Education (herein Board) obtained a judgment, after a plenary trial, restraining certain activities by defendants and directing them, in effect, to undo actions already taken. The trial court's opinion is reported in 96 N. J. Super. 371 (Ch. Div. 1967). We certified defendants' appeal before argument in the Appellate Division.

The Board is a public body, N.J.S. 18A:10-1, charged with the conduct of the public school system in the Borough of Union Beach. Defendant New Jersey Education Association (NJEA), with a membership of about 57,000, represents teachers and administrators in public schools in New Jersey. Defendant Union Beach Teachers Association (UBTA) represented 46 of the 47 full-time teachers employed by the Board at the time of the events about to be related. It is affiliated with NJEA, and NJEA is affiliated with a national organization, the defendant National Education Association (NEA), with more than a million members. Defendant Haller was the president of UBTA, and the other individual defendants are officers or representatives of NJEA.

I.

In February 1967 a dispute arose between the secretary of the Board and defendant Haller, president of UBTA. Haller was a teacher in plaintiff's system but had not yet acquired tenure. On March 14, 1967 the Board met to consider teacher contracts for the following school year and decided not to offer one to Haller and two other nontenure teachers who were active in UBTA. Haller was so notified on March 29. UBTA held a special meeting of its membership on March 31 at which a lengthy resolution was adopted listing 17 grievances.

The trial court found the resolution to be a sham in its assertion of alleged grievances, which finding is not, however, pivotal in the decision of the case. The grievances had not been presented before and no effort had been made to pursue established grievance procedures. The real controversy, which comes within the general terms of the 17th alleged grievance, involved the Board's decision not to reemploy Haller and the two other teachers. Indeed, at the meeting of March 31 representatives of NJEA scored the decision of the Board not to reemploy a nontenure teacher without giving a reason and on that basis urged the teachers to submit resignations en masse. At the Board's meeting of April 4 Haller presented the "grievance" resolution described above, and also the resignations of 36 of the 47 teachers, to be effective on June 3, about two weeks short of the end of the school term. The Board called upon the teachers to withdraw their resignations. A few did, and on April 17, the Board accepted the remaining 31 resignations.

Meanwhile, on April 12 UBTA resolved that "sanctions be imposed" against the Board and requested NJEA to follow suit. On April 21 the NJEA resolved to "impose sanctions" on the Board, and gave wide circulation to its resolution.

We interrupt the chronology to explain what defendants mean by "sanctions." In 1962 the NEA resolved:

> "The National Education Association believes that, as a means of preventing unethical or arbitrary policies or practices that have a deleterious effect on the welfare of the schools, professional sanctions should be invoked. These sanctions would provide for appropriate disciplinary action by the organized profession.
> The National Education Association calls upon its affiliated state associations to cooperate in developing guidelines which would define, organize, and definitely specify procedural steps for involking sanctions by the teaching profession."

In its "Guidelines" NEA states:

> "As used by a professional education organization, sanctions mean censure, suspension or expulsion of a member; severance of relationship with an affiliated association or other agency; imposing of a deterrent against a board of education or other agency controlling the welfare of the schools; bringing into play forces that will enable the community to help the board or agency to realize its responsibility; or the application of one or more steps in the withholding of services."

With reference to "sanctions" imposed by NEA upon a school district, the "Guidelines" include the following "types of sanctions":

> "3. Notification to certification and placement services of unsatisfactory conditions of employment for educators.
> 4. Warning to members that acceptance of employment as a new teacher in the school district would be considered as unethical conduct and could lead to discharge from and future refusal of membership in the national professional association.
> 5. Advice to members presently employed that, if their private arrangements permit, they should seek employment elsewhere."

As to a member of NEA who is guilty of "unethical" conduct, the "sanctions" authorized are private or public censure, suspension from membership or expulsion from membership.

The "Guidelines" deal with the imposition of "sanctions" by a local education association and also by a state association. As to an offending member, the "sanctions" are those just listed, i.e., private or public censure, suspension or expulsion. As to the school districts, the local education association and the state association also impose "sanctions," and we quote the following from the "Guidelines" with respect to such action at the state level:

> "3. Notification to state and national accrediting agencies of professionally unsatisfactory conditions in a school district;
> 4. Withholding of placement services, when the state association maintains a placement office; notice to public and private placement agencies of unsatisfactory conditions in a school district and request to observe professional disapproval;
> 5. Notification to members of association of unacceptable conditions for employment in such district and the professional significance of accepting or refusing employment in a school district against which sanctions have been invoked."

In harmony with the "Guidelines," NJEA made wide distribution of its notice of imposition of "sanctions" on the school district, sending notices to its 57,000 members, to the presidents and placement directors of all teacher colleges in New Jersey, to like officials and others connected with state preparatory colleges in Pennsylvania, New York, West Virginia, Connecticut, Delaware and Maryland, and to all state association executive secretaries. It sent sanction notices to building representatives in selected key districts surrounding plaintiff school district. It also sent a letter to teachers considering employment by the Board, warning that "If a contract is signed by you while professional sanctions are in effect at Union Beach, you will be in violation of the professional code of ethics."

All of the notices referred to above quoted NEA Resolution 66-16, which reads:

> "A violation of sanctions by a member of the profession is a violation of the 'Code of Ethics of the Education Profession.' Therefore, the offering or accepting of employment in areas where sanctions are in effect should be evaluated in terms of the Code, and local, state, and national associations should continue to develop procedures for disciplining members who violate sanctions."

NJEA proclaimed through the local press that it would be "a violation of the professional code of ethics for any teacher to accept employment in Union Beach or for any administrator to offer employment in Union Beach as long as the sanctions which had been invoked were in effect."

II.

It has long been the rule in our State that public employees may not strike. We recently refused to hold that teachers are beyond that ban, saying in In re Block, 50 N. J. 494, 499-500 (1967):

> " * * * Nor can defendants claim a right to strike under the State Constitution, Art. I, Par. 19, upon the thesis that they are in private employment because teaching can be pursued under private auspices. We rejected the relevancy here of the distinction between 'governmental' and 'proprietary' functions in Delaware River and Bay Authority, supra, 45 N. J., at 146.
> "When government undertakes itself to meet a need, it necessarily decides the public interest requires the service, and its employees cannot reverse or frustrate that decision by a concerted refusal to meet that need. In any event, teachers are ill-situated to profit from the distinction we have rejected, since the maintenance of a free public school system is mandated by the State Constitution itself. Art. VIII, Sec. 4 Para. 1."

And we have rejected the notion that public employees may resort to strike because they think their cause is just or in the public good. So, in discussing the contempt sentences imposed in In re Buehrer, 50 N. J. 501, 508 (1967), we said:

> " * * * Defendants say the trial court gave no weight to their claim that they struck and defied the order because of a frustration born of an inability to obtain for the school system what they believed it had to have. The prosecution disputes this claim of high purpose. The trial court of course did not evaluate the teachers' demands upon the Board, and neither do we. The notion that some higher right justifies concerted defiance of law can have no role in the courtroom. It cannot excuse; on the contrary, it emphasizes the deliberate nature of the violation. Nor can it meliorate the wrong, especially when the plea comes from public servants who should set the good example."

Defendants deny there was a "strike." They seek to distinguish the usual concerted refusal to work from what transpired here. As to the teachers employed by the Board, defendants say they merely resigned as of a future date, and with respect to the interference with the Board's recruitment of replacements, defendants, as we understand them, say a refusal to accept employment is inherently different from a quit. But the subject is the public service, and the distinctions defendants advance are irrelevant to it, however arguable they may be in the context of private employment. Unlike the private employer, a public agency may not retire. The public demand for services which makes illegal a strike against government inveighs against any other concerted action designed to deny government the necessary manpower, whether by terminating existing employments in any mode or by obstructing access to the labor market. Government may not be brought to a halt. So our criminal statute, N.J.S. 2A:98-1, provides in simple but pervasive terms that any two or more persons who conspire "to commit any act" for the "obstruction of * * * the due administration of the laws" are guilty of a misdemeanor.

Hence, although the right of an individual to resign or to refuse public employment is undeniable, yet two or more may not agree to follow a common course to the end that an agency of government shall be unable to function. Here there was such collective action by agreement both as to the quitting and as to new employment. As to the mass resignations, an agreement to that end must be inferred from the very adoption by the members through their teachers union of the program of sanctions which, despite some verbal obscurity in this regard, quite plainly imports an understanding to withdraw services when the union officialdom "imposes sanctions" upon a school district. The use of "unethical" in condemning new employment because of working conditions must mean it also "unethical" to continue an existing employment under the same conditions. The full understanding must be that upon the imposition of sanctions, all services will be withdrawn. We have no doubt that the agreement to strike was not articulated because of the established illegality of that course. In any event, if it should be thought the plan did not include the obligation to quit in connection with the imposition of sanctions, we think it clear that the teachers entered into an agreement to quit when they voted in favor of mass resignations and then executed 36 of them. Although the Board accepted the resignations and we do not ask that that work stoppage be ended, we are satisfied the stoppage was concerted action to an illegal end.

And with respect to blacklisting of the school district and the scheme of "sanctions" upon teachers who offer or take employment with a "sanctioned" school board, it can escape no one that the purpose is to back up a refusal of others to continue to work. At a minimum the object is to withhold additional services a school district may need to discharge its public duty, which, as we have said, is no less illegal. Such an illegal agreement may come into being at the time of the strike or may antedate it. If individuals enter into a union or association on terms that upon the occurrence of some stipulated event or signal they will impede government in its recruitment of services, that very arrangement constitutes an agreement the law denounces. An agreement not to seek, accept, or solicit employment in government whenever the upper echelon of the union makes a prescribed pronouncement is, no less than an accomplished shut-down, a thrust at the vitality of government, and comes within the same policy which denounces a concerted strike or quit or slowdown or other obstruction of the performance of official duties.

The several actions taken pursuant to the so-called "Guidelines" are thus illegal even if tested in isolation from each other. But of course the so-called imposition of "sanctions" upon the Board, the mass resignations, and the threat of "sanctions" upon teachers who offer or accept new employment, are all part and parcel of a single illegal plan to block government.[1]

That the conventional terminology of a "strike" nowhere appears is of no moment. The substance of a situation and not its shape must control. A doctrine designed to protect the public interest is equal to any demand upon it. It does not yield to guise or ingenuity.

Defendants complain of the following passage in the trial court's opinion (96 N. J. Super. at 382):

> "The actions taken by all of the defendants constituted a coercive activity designed for the sole purpose of compelling the board to act in accordance with their desires. As such it was in violation of Art. I, par. 19 of the 1947 New Jersey Constitution as interpreted by our Supreme Court."

They say that to bar all "coercive activity" intended to "compel" a board to act as they want it to act is so broad, and imprecise, as to deny them their right of speech in violation of the First and Fourteenth Amendments. Individuals, severally or in association, of course have the right to denounce a public body, its officers, and its programs, in the most searing terms, and even with a wide margin of error. See New York Times Co. v. Sullivan, 376 U. S. 254, 11 L. ed. 2*d* 686 (1964); Garrison v. Louisiana, 379 U. S. 64, 13 L. ed. 2*d* 125 (1964); Rosenblatt v. Baer, 383 U. S. 75, 15 L. ed. 2*d* 597 (1966); Ashton v. Kentucky, 384 U. S. 195, 16 L. ed. 2*d* 469 (1966); *St. Amant v. Thompson, U. S.*___, 20 L. ed. 2*d* 262 (1968). Such condemnation may indeed be "coercive" and be intended to "compel" a public agency to bow to the wishes of the critics. It is the right of the individual, and it serves equally the collective interest of society, thus to bring government before the bar of public opinion, thereby to alter its course.

But although citizens, individually and in association, may thus seek to "coerce" a public body to their wish, there is no right to achieve that end by disabling the public body from acting at all. There is no right to "compel" government to change its ways by blocking the administration of the law until it yields. And this is all the trial court condemned. It is perfectly clear from its opinion that by "coercive activity" it meant the scheme of sanctions before it

[1] Defendant Hipp, Executive Director of NJEA, accurately said on an earlier occasion, as the trial court noted (96 N. J. Super. at 381):

"Legality may not be the crucial issue. The argument that extreme sanction is legal while a strike is not is not impressive. Both involve withdrawal of service and in both children miss certain expected schooling. The extreme sanction of resignation of teachers and blackballing of the district, even though it may be legal, can have a far more devastating effect upon children than the typical brief teachers' strike. In my book any work stoppage, legal or illegal, is a strike. A strike is a sanction and extreme sanction is a strike."

which was intended thus to disable the Board from performing at all by depriving it of necessary personnel. This is evident when the criticized passage is read in the context from which it was lifted, and is made crystal clear by the closing portion of the trial court's opinion which expressly holds only that defendants may not pursue their "sanctions" against the school district or the teachers, must withdraw the "sanctions," and must inform all of the recipients of the notice of "sanctions" that the court has adjudged them to be illegal. The trial court expressly added that "There is no intention, however, of restraining defendants from exercising the right of free speech concerning what they think the conditions are in the Union Beach school system." See 96 N. J. Super. at 392-393. The judgment as entered thus confines the restraint,[2] and of course it is the court's judgment, rather than its opinion, which is under review.

What reappears in defendants' argument is a protest that "sanctions" are no more than an expression of disapproval of conditions in the school district and of the conduct of the Board. It is difficult, even in the abstract, to take that view of the terms used. Far from importing a mere denunciation of men and their work, the "imposition of sanctions" imports the imposition of a penalty. Odd though it is, and presumptuous too, for a private group to "impose sanctions" upon government, that is precisely the power defendants claimed to exert, and the "Guidelines" make plain that the penalty intended is the deprivation of public services.

The imposition of "sanctions" was the stipulated signal for unlawful activity. The right to utter even a pleasantry may be lost if it is the agreed call for lawlessness. It need hardly be said that freedom of speech does not include the right to use speech as an instrument to an unlawful end. Delaware River and Bay Authority v. International Organization of Masters, etc., 45 N. J. 138, at 149-150 (1965). As was said in Giboney v. Empire Storage and Ice Co., 336 U. S. 490, 502, 93 L. ed. 834, 843-844 (1949), and repeated in Cox v. Louisiana, 379 U. S. 536, 555, 13 L. ed. 2d 471, 484 (1965), "it has never been deemed an abridgment of freedom of speech or press to make a course of conduct illegal merely because the conduct was in part initiated, evidenced, or carried out by means of language, either spoken, written or printed."

And we see no substance to defendants' claim that there was no proof of injury and therefore relief should have been denied. This proposition rests upon two bases. One seems to be that an exercise of the constitutional rights of speech and association cannot be restrained unless public injury has been achieved. The other is the maxim that equity will relieve only for irreparable injury.

To begin with, there was harm in that thirty-one teachers resigned en masse some two weeks before the end of the school term, and although the Board managed to obtain replacements, it was put to that burden. Moreover, there was interference with the process of recruitment until the temporary injunction issued. Further, one cannot discount the inherent possibility that defendants succeeded in limiting the Board's choice of new employees even though they failed in their effort to dry up the source. At any rate, this is not a case where the right to speak or to assemble is sought to be denied because there might ensue some unintended breach of peace or other unintended public harm. Rather here the conduct was designed to accomplish a public injury. Although a court in its discretion may decline to deal with a vacant threat, it hardly lies with defendants to insist their plan of sanctions is hollow and their claim of power an empty boast. And so, too, with respect to the rule that equity will act only if the injury is irreparable, the maxim does not mean that equity will withhold its hand until a threatened harm is done. It means only that equity will leave the parties to a remedy at law if money damages will adequately compensate for the wrong.

Finally, we see no basis for invoking the clean-hands doctrine. It is enough to say, as the opinion of the trial court adequately reveals, that the doctrine will not be invoked when to do so will injure the public. It would be absurd to subject the public to the wrongs of defendants merely because the Board too may have acted improperly.

III.

The passage we quoted above from the trial court's opinion included the statement that defendants' illegal activity "was in violation of Art. I, par. 19 of the 1947 New Jersey Constitution as interpreted by our Supreme Court." Defendants say we have never held the Constitution prohibits a strike by public employees. The [2]The judgment reads:

"(1) all defendants are permanently restrained and enjoined from making any press releases, notices, or statements that 'sanctions' have been or are being applied to the plaintiff;

(2) the defendants, Union Beach Teachers Association, New Jersey Education Association and National Education Association, are hereby permanently restrained and enjoined from in any way threatening censure, expulsion or any other action against any member of the teaching profession who accepts a position with the plaintiff;

(3) the defendants, New Jersey Education Association and National Education Association, are enjoined to distribute to each person or agency to whom each of them distributed the 'Notice of Professional Sanctions' the following notice:

'The Superior Court, State of New Jersey, after full hearing, has determined that the "Notice of Professional Sanctions" imposed by the New Jersey Education Association and the Union Beach Teachers Association upon the Borough of Union Beach, New Jersey, in the spring of 1967 was an illegal act on the part of both the local and the state organizations.

Further, the Court has ordered that the local and state organizations, as well as the National Education Association, be restrained and enjoined from in any way threatening censure, expulsion or any other action against any member of the teaching profession who accepts employment as a teacher in the Borough of Union Beach, New Jersey.

In addition, the New Jersey Superior Court has permanently restrained and enjoined Union Beach Teachers Association, New Jersey Education Association and National Education Association from making any press releases, notices or statements that "sanctions" have been or are being applied in the Borough of Union Beach, New Jersey.

Because the imposition of such "sanctions" was illegal, the Court has directed New Jersey Education Association and National Education Association to publish and distribute this notice of the Court's determination upon as wide a basis as the "Notice of Professional Sanctions" was originally distributed.'

(4) There is no intention in this judgment to restrain the defendants from exercising their right of free speech concerning what they think the conditions are in the Union Beach School system."

criticism is correct. In fact we expressly left the question open in Delaware River and Bay Authority, supra, 45 N. J. at 148.

Of course, unless some statute purported to authorize such a strike, it would not help defendants if the ban rested in the common law rather than the Constitution. No such statute existed when this case was tried. Since then the Legislature has adopted Chapter 303 of the Laws of 1968, and its history invites the question whether the statute impliedly authorized a strike by public employees. At the oral argument defendants conceded the statute carries no such implication, and we agree for the reasons we will presently state. This being our view, the constitutional question need not be faced. Nonetheless, the climate is such that we should decide the question now so that it will be clear whether the Legislature is restrained in this sensitive area by the provisions of Article I, par. 19.

Article 1, par. 19 reads:

> "Persons in private employment shall have the right to organize and bargain collectively. Persons in public employment shall have the right to organize, present to and make known to the State, or any of its political subdivisions or agencies, their grievances and proposals through representatives of their own choosing."

Literally, this provision is one of grant to employees rather than of restraint upon them. It purports only to secure the stated rights of private and public employees from legislative denial. That the rights thus secured as to the public employee are less than those assured the private employee does not mean the Legislature may not close the gap in whole or in part. Surely we need not add to the literal reading of the provision to give it sense, for the provision is meaningful without embellishment. This being so, we see no basis to say the provision was intended to deny the Legislature the power to grant public employees rights which could be given them in the absence of this provision.

It of course is essential to the constitutional promise of an ordered society that government shall be able to govern, and we may therefore assume the Legislature could not legislate the branches of government into idleness. Strikes do tend to bring government to a halt. Yet it need not follow that the Legislature could not find strikes to be tolerable within certain areas and limits. As to a public service the Constitution does not expressly require to be furnished, the Legislature, which may withdraw the service, may find some interruption should be permitted. And even where the Constitution requires a public service to be rendered, as in the case of free public schools, Art. VIII, Sec. 4, Par. 1, there may be room for legislative judgment as to what interruptions are compatible with the fulfillment of that mandate.

Nothing in the proceedings of the Constitutional Convention suggests the delegates thought Article I, Par. 19, disabled the Legislature from adding to the stated rights of employees. On the contrary, a proposal that strikes by public employees be prohibited was withdrawn when the sponsor was assured the common-law prohibition against such strikes would continue notwithstanding the adoption of Article I, Par. 19 and that an attempt to embed that rule in the Constitution would likely lead to a lengthy quarrel. See 1 Proceedings of the New Jersey Constitutional Convention of 1947, pp. 660-661.[3] We ought not to imply a restraint upon the legislative power which the Convention did not adopt despite an awareness of the issue.

We should not be thought to recommend legislative departure from the common-law rule. On the contrary we remain satisfied that any concerted action which obstructs or disables government runs strongly against sound public policy. Rather the question is whether this judge-made law is beyond legislative disagreement, and we hold only that it is not. More precisely, we hold that Article I, Par. 19 does not itself embody the judge-made view, and does not prevent the Legislature from according public employees rights the Legislature could have granted if that provision were not in the Constitution. But the subject is so vital that we will not attribute to the Legislature an intent to depart from the common law unless that intent is unmistakable. Hence we said in Delaware River and Bay Authority, supra, 45 N. J. at 148:

> " * * * While we are not prepared to accept and do not pass on the Authority's contention that a legislative grant to certain classes of public employees, of full collective bargaining rights including the right to strike, would be violative of Article 1, par. 19, we are entirely satisfied that such a grant, being a sharp departure from prior law and policy, must be deliberately expressed and is not to be implied."

We turn then to Chapter 303 of the Laws of 1968. It provides for certain procedures to deal with labor disputes in the public area. It amended c. 100 of the Laws of 1941, N. J. S. A. 34:13A-1, et seq., which had dealt only with labor disputes in the private sector. As initially proposed, Chapter 303 would have amended section 8 of the 1941 act to read (the amendments are italicized):

> "Nothing in this act shall be construed to interfere with, impede or diminish in any way the right of private employees to strike or engage in other lawful concerted activities. [Nothing in this act shall be construed to change or enlarge the rights of persons in public employment as set forth in Article I, Paragraph 19 of the Constitution of the State of New Jersey.]"

---

[3]In this regard, the Delegate Nathan L. Jacobs, now a member of our Court, said (the essence of Amendment No. 25 referred to in this exerpt is now Art. I, Par. 19):

'Mr. Orchard referred to assurances from the floor. I don't know just who is in a position to give him such assurances, but I would like to express my personal opinion as to the two issues which he raised.

First, in so far as the right of the State to regulate public utilities is concerned, I don't think there is any question that it has that right now. It has exercised it; that right will continue, and will not in any wise be altered by the proposed Amendment No. 25.

In so far as the issue as to whether publicly employed persons have the right to strike against the State is concerned, whatever law there is on the subject is uniform to the effect that publicly employed persons have no right to strike against the State. I am certain that proposed Amendment No. 25 will not in any wise alter that phase of the law as it now exists."

The bracketed sentence was deleted from the bill before adoption so that section 8 of the 1941 act remained amended solely by the insertion of "private" before "employees."

Since Chapter 303 provided for "collective negotiations" between public bodies and representatives of their employees, the Governor was concerned lest the deletion of the bracketed sentence might be read to import in "collective negotiations" a right to strike.[4] The Governor accordingly withheld his approval and proposed this amendment:

> "Nothing in this act shall be construed to alter the obligations and duties of persons in public employment under Article I, paragraph 19 of the Constitution of the State of New Jersey as the same has been interpreted by the courts of this State, particularly as bearing upon the absence of a right to strike. This act shall not be construed to confer upon public employees any rights not expressly granted by this Act."

This amendment was one of a number, relating to sundry aspects of the bill, which the Governor proposed. The Legislature declined to adopt these amendments and overrode the Governor's "conditional veto."

We are satisfied the Legislature's refusal to accept the amendment does not suggest the Legislature intended the implication the Governor sought to foreclose. Apart from the fact that the Legislature may have quarreled with other recommended amendments rather than this one, the Legislature could well have rejected this amendment for the same reason it had deleted the sentence of the original bill which is bracketed in the excerpt quoted above, i.e., that in other respects the bill could be said to give public employees rights beyond those granted by Article I, Paragraph 19, and that any possible inference that a right to strike was intended was adequately negated by the insertion of the word "private" in the reference to the right to strike in the preceding sentence. Finally, in declining to adopt the Governor's amendment, the legislators could well have relied upon our assurance in Delaware River and Bay Authority, quoted above, 45 N. J. at 148, that a grant of a right to strike "must be deliberately expressed and is not to be implied."

IV.

The Board asks for an award of counsel fees. An award is not authorized by R. R. 4:55-7, as the Board frankly acknowledges. It urges an award to relieve the taxpayers of the burden of this litigation. We are not persuaded to depart from the rule.

The judgment is affirmed.

[4]The Governor's "conditional veto" message reads:

"First, of paramount concern to me is the fact that the bill, as presently drafted, appears to suggest that public employees have a right to strike, contrary to long-established judicial interpretations of the New Jersey Constitution. Whether by indirection or otherwise, the Legislature in a last-minute amendment struck from Senate Bill No. 746 language disavowing any intention upon its part of enlarging upon the rights of public employees under the Constitution. That deletion, considered in conjunction with certain other provisions of the bill, implies that public employees may engage in work stoppages. The Public and School Employees' Grievance Procedure Study Commission developed a concept of collective negotiations which embraces a bundle of bargaining rights up to but not inclusive of the right of public employees to strike. But for the defects noted in the act, I would assume the Legislature intends that the term 'collective negotiations' be given no greater scope than did the Study Commission. If, however, the Legislature intends more, it should be clearly understood that the Governor of this State will not become a willing partner. I have suggested language which will remove all doubt as to the intention of Senate Bill No. 746 on this subject."

DECISION AND ORDER

The importance of the issues presented in this case caused us to request the Trial Examiner who heard the case to issue a Report of his Findings (which he did on February 23, 1968) to be used as a basis for oral argument by the parties and the several amici curiae.[1] All parties filed exceptions to certain aspects of the Trial Examiner's findings.

We consolidated this case with City of Detroit and Government Accountants and Analysts Association, Case No. R67 D-125, for oral argument, as some issues were common to both cases. On April 1, 1968, we heard oral argument.

We have delayed a decision on the issues presented because it appeared that the Legislature might, by statute, determine the structure of collective bargaining units under the Public Employment Relations Act. As the Legislature did not act,[2] it is incumbent upon this Board to interpret the scope of bargaining units under PERA.

The instant case arose when the Hillsdale Community Schools Principals and Supervisory Association (PSA), a labor organization under the Act, sought an election in a proposed bargaining unit:

> "High school, junior high, and elementary school principals, curriculum coordinator, reading coordinator, ESEA coordinator, cooperative education coordinator, head librarian, and physical education director; excluding: teachers, superintendent, assistant superintendent, business manager and all non-certificated employees."

The Hillsdale Education Association (HEA) is a labor organization which is recognized by the School District as exclusive bargaining agent for the District's non-supervisory certificated teachers.

The School District opposes the petition on the grounds that: (1) Supervisors and executives have no rights to collective bargaining under PERA; (2) assuming, arguendo, that PERA allows such rights to principals and other supervisors, this Board should deny such rights as a matter of public policy; (3) the proposed unit is inappropriate because it contains six staff specialists who are supervised by seven principals, also included in the unit; and (4) PSA may not be certified as exclusive representative of principals and teachers' supervisors, since it is affiliated with the state organization (MEA) which is the parent organization of many teacher organizations, including the organization of teachers in the petitioner's District.

We now turn to a discussion of the issues individually.

[2]HB 4161 passed in the House of Representatives, but did not pass the Senate.

1. The unit of supervisors.

The Trial Examiner, in his Report, rejected the School District's position on this issue, consistent with our decision in Saginaw County Road Commission, 1967 Labor Opinions 196. During oral argument, the School District and certain amici curiae prayed that we reverse Saginaw and hold that supervisory employees are excluded from statutory coverage.

We have studied the briefs and arguments urging reversal of our position, but we are not persuaded that the Saginaw decision is contrary to proper construction of PERA.

Our duty as described in Section 13 of PERA is to:

> ". . . decide in each case, in order to insure public employees the full benefit of their right to self organization, to collective bargaining and otherwise to effectuate the policies of this act, the unit appropriate for the purposes of collective bargaining as provided in Section 9e of Act No. 176 (Labor Mediation Act) . . . " (Emphasis supplied)

From this section, the argument is made that "employees," as used in 9e, specifically excludes executives and supervisors; that is, "employees" as used in Section 9e is defined in Section 2 (e) of LMA.[3] However, this argument ignores the use of "public employee" in Section 13 of PERA. "Public employee" is defined in Section 2 of PERA and not in Section 2 (e) of LMA. PERA, Section 2, does not exclude supervisors or executives from the provisions of PERA as does its counterpart in LMA.

Section 9e is incorporated into PERA only for standards of unit determination and to provide a prohibition against supervisors and executives being included in the same unit with employees they supervise. There is no prohibition against supervisory units except by virtue of LMA's Section 2 (e), which is not included by specific mention in PERA.

The School District maintains that our interpretation of the statutes ignores the canon of construction that statutes which have the same general purpose should be read in para materia as constituting one law, especially where there is specific reference from one statute to the other.[4] The purpose of this canon of statutory construction is to avoid a strict construction of one statute which defeats the main purpose of another statute or statutes relating to the same subject.[5]

However, this construction of two statutes dealing with the general subject of labor relations is subject to being made more specific by other canons of construction. Expressio unius est exclusio alterius restricts the effect of a statute to the area specifically mentioned, i.e., public employment relations. Expressum facit cessare tacitum means that "when the law designates the actors none others can come upon the stage."[6] PERA is restricted to public employees, which term is defined in the Act.

We affirm our Saginaw decision and adopt the Trial Examiner's Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law on this issue.[7]

2. Public policy

The School District devotes a substantial portion of its brief to urging the adoption of a policy that supervisors should not be allowed rights under PERA. Our Saginaw decision was based on statutory construction, not policy. The School District's argument is that "the policy as well as the letter of the law is a guide to decision."[8]

We recognize this Board's responsibility as guardian of public policy discussed in National Labor Relations Board v. Atkins & Company, 331 U.S. 398 (1947). While there are certain areas of policy to be considered in every matter, this policy should not be used to frustrate the intent of the Legislature as we interpret it. Thus, it would be inconsistent for us to find supervisory status encompassed within the definition of "public employees," and then deny that status because we believed that the policy should be to the contrary.

We do note that competent authorities have expressed the opinion that supervisory personnel in the public sector have characteristics which differ from supervisors in private employment.[9]

---

[3]The customary basis for prohibition of supervisory units is found in the definition of employee, which excludes supervisors. If supervisors are not employees, they cannot avail themselves of the provisions of the Act.

[5]City of Detroit, supra.

[6]Taylor v. Michigan Public Utilities Commission, 317 Mich. 400 (1922).

[7]We find no merit to the contention that the principals in the instant case are distinguishable from the traffic director supervisor in Saginaw because principals have a policy function. This argument is a non sequitur if supervisors are not excluded from the definition of employee. We note that the New York State Public Employment Relations Board has included principals and assistant principals in bargaining units, stating that: "Principals act merely as conduits rather than as decision makers." Board of Education, Union Free School District and Depew Teachers Organization, Inc., 255 GERR C-2 (1968). Similarly, see Metropolitan Transit Authority, 48 LRRM 1296 (Mass. Labor Relations Board, 1961). We also dismiss the argument concerning Governor Romney's veto of HB 3388, which bill would have amended PERA to allow the inclusion of police supervisors in the bargaining unit with patrolmen. The issue raised by the bill was solely the inclusion, or exclusion, of police supervisors in the same unit with the rank and file. Police supervisors had, on the enactment of PERA, the privilege to engage in concerted activities, including the choice of an exclusive bargaining representative in a designated unit.

[8]Note: "Interstate Immorality: The Mann Act and the Supreme Court," 56 Yale L.J. 718 (1947).

[9]See, for example, Slavney, "The Public Employee—How Shall He Be Represented in Collective Negotiations?" Governor Rockefeller's Conference on Public Employment Relations, 269 GERR E-1 (1968). Mr. Slavney observes at p. E-4: "I think most of us here would admit that supervisors in public employment are for the most part different than supervisors in the private sector, not only in the concept of employer loyalty but also in the performance of identifiable supervisory functions. Under a civil service system, the authority supervisors might have with regard to the hire, transfer, suspension, layoff, recall and promotion is subject to more stringent review than in private employment. Further, in civil service, employees performing normal supervisory duties have the same rights and protections as do rank and file employees with respect to tenure, job security and civil service grievance procedures, and normally their salary increments and increases have a distinct relationship to increments and increases granted to nonsupervisory personnel. These factors tend to create a community of interest with employees supervised rather than with management." See, also, New York Public Library, 69-1 ARB Sec. 8067 (Yagoda, 1968).

These differences, far from disqualifying public employment supervisors from representation, make a stronger case for allowing supervisors separate bargaining units, particularly when they are not excluded from the definition of "employee."[10]

There is a common interest among school boards, superintendents, principals and teachers to provide "a superior education for the nation's youth."[11] All of those parties work professionally toward the same goal.

We adopt the Trial Examiner's Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law on this issue.

3. Appropriate Unit

The Trial Examiner found that the petitioned for unit was appropriate although it contained purported principal supervision of the staff specialists. We affirm the Trial Examiner's Findings that the nature of the supervision was not sufficient to invoke the prohibition against supervisors being included in units with those employees they supervise.

The evidence reveals that the supervision is mere routine direction not requiring the exercise of independent judgment. In its Hotel Olds[12] decision, the Michigan Supreme Court mandated this Board to find appropriate the largest unit of common interests. The Court adopted language of the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission in its decision in Salem Hospital Corporation, 19 LRRM 1245 (1946):

> "In designating the bargaining units as appropriate, a primary objective of a commission is to constitute the largest unit which, in the circumstances of the particular case, is most compatible with the effectuation of the purposes of the law and to include in a single unit all common interests."

Regarding the unit in question, we find a community of interest between the staff specialists and the principals. There are similarities in administrative duties, professional skills and working conditions. Additionally, we agree with the Trial Examiner's conclusion that the staff specialists' distinct community of interest is insufficient to separate them from the principals.

Thus, we find the petitioned for unit appropriate for collective bargaining purposes under PERA.

4. MEA domination of PSA

The School District argues here that the parent organization (MEA) exercises an overwhelming degree of control over its affiliates, particularly respecting collective bargaining policy. Also, it is alleged that it is impossible for PSA to be truly independent within the MEA organizational framework. Where both the principals' and teachers' organizations are MEA affiliates, the School District maintains that there is a conflict of interest where principals are the first step in the grievance procedure. Hence, if the MEA exercises such a degree of control over its affiliates, it will control the initial stage of the grievance procedure. The Trial Examiner agreed with the School District's contentions.

Perhaps this situation may arise, but it is speculative. We are charged with the duty to protect the organizational rights of all public employees. Where, as here, principals are public employees, we should not restrict their free exercise of Sec. 9 rights, which includes the selection of a collective bargaining representative. City of Escanaba, 1966 Labor Opinions 451. The petitioning organization must, however, proceed with the normal proof establishing itself as a labor organization within the terms of the Act.[13]

Similarly, there is no more basis for restricting the choice of bargaining agent to one not representing the rank and file employees here, than there is in restricting that choice respecting craft, technical or professional employee units. Just as professional, craft and technical employees are not restricted in their choice of bargaining representative, supervisory employees should also not be so restricted.

We agree with the principles enunciated by the New York State Labor Relations Board:[14]

> "We also have noted that the 'conflict of loyalties', allegedly resulting from the selection of the same representative by supervisory or protection employees and by rank and file employees, is a misnomer; that it arises, if at all, from the employees' fundamental right of association, which exists independent of statute; that the denial of all rights under the Act to one of the two groups of employees provides no solution; and that any problems which arise can and should be adjusted and resolved in the collective bargaining process, when, and if, that eventually occurs."

The Wisconsin Employment Relations Board was confronted with a similar problem in Association of Engineers of Milwaukee, 58 LRRM 1571, 1573 (1964). At issue was the inclusion or exclusion of Municipal Engineers and Architects in a unit of non-supervisory employees.

The Wisconsin Board took note of the supervisors in the petitioning organization's membership. The Board, however, enunciated the principle that in a representation case, the issue of employer interference by reason of supervisors who are members of an organization seeking to represent non-supervisory employees should be determined on the facts of each case, not on membership per se. The Board stated:

> "The function of the Board in a representation proceeding is to determine whether or not a question of representation exists, to take evidence with respect to the appropriate collective bargaining unit and with respect to the employees eligible to participate in the election if one is ordered by the Board. It is now our opinion that the Board should not, in a representation proceeding, question the internal affairs of an organization, which the Board is satisfied exists for the purpose of representing municipal employees in conferences and negotiations with municipal employers on matters pertaining to wages, hours and conditions of employment.

"Therefore, in a representation proceeding, we do not believe that we should impose conditions on any organization seeking to represent municipal employees, which conditions would limit the right of such organizations to establish rules for the acquisition, retention and rejection of membership. To do so in a representation proceeding would impinge on the voluntary nature of such organizations.

"If it can be established, in a prohibitive practice proceeding, that any labor organization which has been selected as the collective bargaining representative of municipal employees in an election conducted by the Board, that the rules and regulations of such an organization interfere with the rights of employees . . . or that supervisory employees have dominated that organization and thus interfered with the rights granted to the employees, we will, among other remedies, set aside the certification."

We agree with the interpretation of the Wisconsin Board (now Commission) which administers a statutory system similar to our own. Like the Wisconsin Commission, we propose to examine each petition for supervisory units, case by case, and to exclude from units ineligible employees.

Before this position is interpreted as allowing the organization of "vice presidents" mentioned in the Packard[15] case, we note that there is a level at which organization must end.[16] That level consists of "executive" employees, and is limited to those employees who formulate, determine and effectuate management policies.[17]

The application of this exclusion is not necessary in this case because there is no evidence that the employees in the proposed unit act in any other manner than as resource people in collective bargaining or as conduits for labor relations policy established without their participation. We do not consider that employees who serve the employer at the first step of the grievance procedure are within the executive category by reason of that responsibility. Thus, we do not feel that our determination impinges upon management's right to have trusted personnel act in its behalf in formulating, determining and effectuating policies[18] and in collective bargaining.

We conclude that the bargaining unit appropriate for the purposes of collective bargaining in this case is:

"High school, junior high, and elementary school principals, curriculum coordinator, reading coordinator, ESEA coordinator, cooperative education coordinator, head librarian, and physical education director; excluding: teachers, superintendent, assistant superintendent, business manager and all non-certificated employees."

Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED that an election shall be held pursuant to the attached Direction of Election.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS

NORFOLK, SS.

SUPERIOR COURT
In Equity
No. 92653

QUINCY TEACHERS ASSOCIATION, ET AL

vs.

THE CITY OF QUINCY, ET AL

FINDINGS, RULINGS AND ORDER FOR DECREE

1. The court finds and rules that an actual controversy has arisen and is specifically set forth in the pleadings within the meaning of G. L., C.231A, S.1 as amended. The material facts are not controverted and they are set forth in a "Statement of Agreed Facts", signed by the parties (Exhibit 2).

2. The central issue underlying the controversy concerns the validity of the provision for cash payment for unused sick leave, as set forth in ARTICLE XI of the contract entered into on March 22, 1967, pursuant to the provisions of G.L., C.149, S.178G-N inclusive, by and between the petitioner, Quincy Teachers Association (Teachers) and the individual petitioners as they are members of the school committee of the City of Quincy. (Emphasis supplied). The pertinent language of said ARTICLE XI is as follows:

> "If the employment by the Quincy School system of a member shall cease after his sixtieth birthday because of his retirement or death after he has completed twenty (20) years of professional service in the system, he or his estate, as the case may be, shall be paid an amount equal to his full pay at the time his employment terminates, exclusive of stipends for extra services, for the number of days, not in excess of fifteen (15), of his accumulated and unused sick leave."

3. On June 30, 1967, eleven members of the Quincy School system retired and each has met the provisions of the accumulated sick leave, as provided in said ARTICLE XI. On June 21, 1967, the superintendent of the Quincy School system submitted payroll vouchers for payments to the eleven retiring members in accordance with the above-quoted provision. On July 24, 1967, the respondent Alexander Smith, City Auditor, declined to pay the amount so requested. In June, 1968 there were other members who retired and who have met the aforesaid provisions dealing with accumulated and unused sick leave.

4. The respondents contest the validity of this provision mainly on the following grounds:

(1) The payment of such additional compensation for accumulated and unused sick leave is invalid as a mere gift or gratuity;

(2) This payment of additional compensation contravenes the rules and regulations governing Sick Leave for all persons regularly employed by the City of Quincy, promulgated by the City Manager on June 23, 1954, pursuant to a vote of the city council, as authorized under Council Order No. 378.

The pertinent provision (Paragraph 4-G) of said rules and regulations is as follows:

> "Accumulated sick leave does not carry any monetary value to be granted on termination of service".

5. The court rules that the unused sick leave (limited to an accumulation of fifteen days) is not a mere gift or gratuity. It is part of the compensation for services rendered to the school committee. It is provided for and is a part of the contract negotiated through the collective bargaining process. (It is part of a package of benefits for all teachers of the school system). The court rules that it is a reasonable contract provision for the city to pay a maximum of fifteen days' pay to a limited number of qualifying members who have completed twenty years continuous service upon retirement after obtaining their sixtieth birthday.

6. No principle of law is more firmly and clearly established in this Commonwealth than the one dealing with the responsibility for the operation of our public schools. Without any question, the legislature has vested this responsibility in the school committees of the respective communities. In particular reference to the issues relating to this controversy, G.L.s, C.71, S.s 37 and 38 are decisive. The pertinent language in said Section 37 is as follows:

"DUTIES OF SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

It shall have general charge of all the public schools . . . The pertinent language of said Section 38 is as follows:

"DUTIES OF SCHOOL COMMITTEE: ELECTION, etc., OF TEACHERS.

It shall elect and contract with the teachers of the public schools . . ."

It follows from the foregoing that the school committee has complete authority to set the terms of compensation for the teachers.

7. The court rules that paragraph 4-G of the rules and regulations governing sick leave is not applicable to the teachers. G. L.s, C.40, S.21A provides, in part, as follows:

> "A town by by-law and a city by ordinance . . . may establish the hours, days and weeks of work and the hours, days and weeks of leave without loss of pay . . . for any or all employees of such town or city other than those appointed by the school committee; . . ." (Emphasis supplied).

Therefore, there is no "conflict"* between the contract provision and the rule in paragraph 4-G.

8. In conclusion, the court finds and rules that ARTICLE XI of the contract is valid in toto and the City of Quincy is bound to pay each teacher in accordance with the terms and conditions of said ARTICLE XI.

Let a decree be entered accordingly.

OPINION OF THE ARBITRATOR

Grievants are teachers employed by the Board of Education of Godwin Heights Public Schools. This grievance concerns Grievants' claim that they are entitled to additional compensation for services rendered during the 1967-68 school year. The Board of Education denies that Grievants are entitled to the additional compensation they claim.

Grievants, who are certified teachers of the Godwin Heights public school system, have served as guidance counsellors in that school system. Guidance counsellors, as certified teachers, are entitled to the base pay which all certified teachers receive. It has, however, been the established practice of the Board of Education to pay additional compensation to guidance counsellors for counselling work done by them. This additional compensation, prior to school year 1966-67, was sometimes a fixed dollar amount paid to a counsellor for each hour of counselling work, and sometimes a percentage of the base pay of a certified teacher.

During the school year 1966-67, Grievants, as guidance counsellors, received additional compensation equal to 10% of the base pay of a certified teacher. In August 1967 the Board of Education notified by letter all guidance counsellors that during the year 1967-68 the additional compensation which had been paid during the preceding school year would not be paid, and that in lieu of the additional compensation, guidance counsellors would be given a planning or conference period.

Grievants contend that their right to additional compensation for their services as counsellors is established by the past practice of the Board of Education in making payment of additional compensation in 1966-67 and in prior years. They assert that their service as guidance counsellors entitles them to compensation beyond the base pay of a teacher, and that the reduction by the Board in the hours of counselling performed by Grievants cannot affect their right to receive the premium pay to which they consider counsellors are entitled.

The Board of Education contends that in its school system there are no formal requirements for guidance counsellors other than those applicable to certified teachers generally. Any certified teacher, the Board says, may, in the discretion of the Board, be assigned to guidance counselling. Guidance counselling of itself does not entitle the counsellor to additional pay, according to the board, but if a guidance counsellor performs service in excess of the normal hours worked by teachers, then, for the additional time worked, the counsellor receives additional compensation. The Board says that the additional pay given to counsellors in years preceding 1967-68 was directly related to additional services rendered by them. Since, according to the Board, the additional 10% paid to Grievants in 1966-67 represented compensation for an additional hour of service, the Board had the right, in eliminating that additional service for 1967-68 and substituting therefore a planning period, to eliminate the 10% premium pay. The Board contends, further, that past practice in respect of additional compensation to counsellors is irrelevant in any event, since prior to the 1966-67 school year an agreement was entered into between the Board and representatives of the guidance counsellors which expressly provided that the Board would either pay guidance counsellors 10% additional compensation, or give the counsellors a free period for preparation. Thus, says the Board, it had the right to elect to pay the 10% premium, or in the alternative to substitute a planning period in lieu of an hour of counselling service.

The Applicability of Section 7.5 of the Professional Negotiation Agreement

On June 8, 1966 an agreement was entered into between the Board and the Association which set forth the terms and conditions of the employment of certified teachers by the Board. Grievants contend that the Board's denial to guidance counsellors of 10% additional compensation for the school year 1967-68 was in violation of Section 7.5 of the Professional Negotiation Agreement. Section 7.5 provides:

"No teacher shall be disciplined, reprimanded, reduced in rank or compensation or deprived of any professional advantage without just cause. Any such discipline, reprimand or reduction in rank, compensation or advantage, including adverse evaluation of teacher performance asserted by the Board or any agent or representative thereof shall be subject to the grievance procedure hereinabove set forth."

It does not appear to the Arbitrator that Section 7.5 is relevant to this controversy. The compensation certified teachers are entitled to receive is set forth in Appendix B of the Agreement, where appears a 3-year salary schedule covering school years 1966-67 through 1968-69. The Board is, of course, bound by this schedule and has no right to reduce compensation in violation of the schedule. Section 7.5 does not focus on the right of the Board to make changes in the salaries specified in Appendix B. Section 7.5, rather, is focused on the nature of the action which may be taken by the Board in respect of a teacher charged with fault. The section prescribes the rights and obligations of the Board and of a teacher, where the Board considers that the teacher has been guilty of an offense requiring or justifying the imposition of a penalty by the Board. A teacher charged with an offense may be subject to discipline, reprimand, reduction in rank or other penalty. Such an offender, further, may be penalized by a reduction in compensation. Section 7.5 is, in the Arbitrator's view, intended to declare the intention of the parties that a teacher will not be subject to the imposition of any penalty without just cause. Notwithstanding the salary schedule in Appendix B, an offending teacher may be subject to a reduction in compensation or to other penalty, provided that the reduction in compensation or other penalty is "for just cause". Thus, it does not seem that Section 7.5 is correctly construed as an absolute bar to any reduction in the compensation of a teacher. The section provides, rather, that if the Board seeks to reduce the compensation of an offending teacher, it may do so only for just cause.

The present proceeding is in no way concerned with pedagogic fault. There has been, obviously, not the least intimation by the Board that it considers the Grievants as offenders in any respect whatever. Grievants, further, do not consider that they have been charged with fault and have most appropriately made no attempt to demonstrate their innocence of fault. The controversy between the Board and Grievants is concerned solely with questions relating to the rights of the parties under the contractual arrangements entered into between them. The Arbitrator need not determine whether Grievants did or did not offend so as to be vulnerable to a reduction in compensation "for just cause". The question is, rather, whether, having regard for all that has been agreed upon and all that has transpired between the parties, the elimination of additional compensation for 1967-68 was permissible.

Section 7.5 could not resolve the present controversy between the Board and Grievants even if the section were deemed applicable. The section is not an absolute and unqualified prohibition against reductions in compensation. It merely prohibits reductions in compensation "without just cause". Therefore, if the section were applicable, the Board would insist that its elimination of the 10% was for "just cause". Grievants, of course, would deny that this is so and the parties would then be confronted with the necessity of proving the correctness of their positions and claims, precisely as they do now. The Arbitrator, therefore, does not consider that the solution to this controversy is indicated in Section 7.5.

The Nature of Additional Compensation Paid to Counsellors

It does not appear that the additional compensation paid by the Board to guidance counsellors in past years has been given in recognition of significant differences between the guidance work done by counsellors and the classroom work done by teachers. Guidance counselling is, obviously, different in nature from the teaching of a classroom subject. The difference, however, appears to be precisely analogous to the difference between any one subject and another in high school. Thus, there are, obviously, significant pedagogic differences between the teaching of mathematics and the teaching of French, between the teaching of French and the teaching of music, between the teaching of music and the teaching of botany. These differences are, of course, highly significant to teachers as professional persons, but the differences have not been considered as having economic significance. There is no difference in teacher compensation based on differences in the subjects taught.

For a number of years prior to the school year in controversy, guidance counsellors have been paid compensation in excess of the base pay of a teacher assigned to conventional class-room work. It appears, however, that the additional compensation in excess of base pay, has been directly related to the additional time worked by the counsellors. Thus, it may be said that in past years, guidance counsellors, having worked for hours in excess of the hours worked by class-room teachers, were compensated for the additional work done by them. The Arbitrator finds no evidence that additional compensation was paid to counsellors in past years, not in recognition of extra work by them, but in recognition of differences between class-room teaching and counselling. On the contrary, testimony adduced by the Grievants themselves directly relates additional compensation to additional work. Thus, Mr. Miller, one of the Grievants, testified that the counsellors felt that since the teachers were receiving 1/6th of their base pay for working 6 hours per day - that is, working through their preparation period - the counsellors should be similarly paid for working without a preparation period. (Tr. 57-58.)

Even more to the point, the employment contracts with Grievants uniformly recite that payments for counselling are compensation for "additional assignments". (Association Ex.'s 1, Norlin, 3 Miller, 9 Gates.)

The Arbitrator therefore concludes that compensation over teacher's base pay which guidance counsellors have received from the Board was given in recognition, not of significant qualitative differences between counselling and teaching, but, rather, in recognition of the counsellor's right to additional pay for additional hours of service.

Past Practice of the Parties

If the evidence in this proceeding had established that specific sums had been paid continuously to guidance counsellors over a period of years as compensation for their counselling work, or if the evidence had established that, as an alternative, sums precisely ascertainable by formula (rather than specific sums) had been continuously paid for counselling over a period of years, then, in the absence of a clearly negotiated agreement between the parties concerning counselling compensation, Grievants might persuasively argue that the "past practice" doctrine justifies their present demand for additional compensation in respect of 1967-68. If such a past practice had been shown, it might well be reasonable to infer and conclude that though no specific reference to additional compensation had been made in bargaining, both the Board and the Association assumed that, in accordance with the long-established pattern, additional compensation would be paid for counselling. The past practice doctrine does not appear applicable to the present controversy because the established practice of the parties in respect of additional compensation for counselling, exhibits no clearly defined pattern. It appears, on the contrary, that arrangements for additional compensation were negotiated each year. Prior to formation of the Professional Negotiating Committee, these negotiations were between the Board through its representatives, of course) and the individual teachers. Thus, the amount paid to counsellors was in every year related to the hours of counselling work assigned in excess of the established base. The number of excess hours assigned for counselling was a variable, and additional compensation, of course, fluctuated with that variable. During the school years 1963-64 through 1965-66, counsellors were paid not a specific sum per hour, as in previous years, but, rather, 7% of their base pay. In March 1966 the Professional Negotiating Committee, in negotiating additional compensation for the school year 1966-67, requested neither a specific sum per hour, nor a percentage, but rather, one-sixth of their base pay. The Committee, however, decided to accept the Board's offer of 10%.

Thus, past practice in respect of counselling compensation discloses not that counsellors were clearly deemed entitled to additional specific sums annually, or to additional sums precisely ascertainable by a percentage of base, but, rather, that the parties agreed annually on the amount of additional hours that would be worked and that the additional hours worked were compensable. The Arbitrator, therefore, does not consider that a past practice has been demonstrated which possesses sufficient certainty to permit a holding that, on the basis of what was uniformly done in past years, Grievants are entitled to additional compensation for school year 1967-68.

Further, if it be assumed that a past practice had been established with sufficient certainty to support a recovery for additional counselling compensation during school year 1967-68, it is clear that past practice - from which the intention of the parties is inferred - must give way to an express agreement between the parties which precisely covers the matter of such compensation for 1967-68. Where employer and employee expressly and explicitly state their intentions, an inference concerning those intentions based on past practice is plainly not permissible. Whether or not the Board and the Association entered into an agreement expressly covering additional compensation for school year 1967-68 is considered in the following section.

Negotiations Between the Board and the Association in Spring, 1966

In March 1966, Mr. Norman Dice, now Assistant Principal of the senior high school, was chairman of the Professional Negotiating Committee. The Committee had already agreed with the Board on the terms of the contract ("Professional Negotiation Agreement") which covered, among other matters, basic compensation for certified teachers. The Committee understood that though basic teacher's pay was covered by their contract, no agreement had been made in respect of certain special areas. These areas included speech correction, remedial reading, machine shop, guidance counselling and other fields. The Negotiating Committee, consisting of five persons, including Mr. Dice as chairman, and Mr. Miller (one of the Grievants herein), ex officio as president of the Association, examined the question of additional compensation for school year 1967-68. The Committee considered that it might base a demand for additional compensation on any one or more of three factors - time, education or experience. The Committee finally agreed to require that additional compensation to counsellors be based on the additional time required of them. Thus, by deliberate and express agreement, the Negotiating Committee rejected education and experience as bases for additional compensation, and required that counsellors receive additional compensation because of the additional hours of work they performed. The fact of this important agreement appears incontrovertible, since Mr. Dice, chairman of the Negotiating Committee, and Mr. Miller, president of the Education Association, both testified that additional compensation was related to additional time.

The Board urges the significance of its minutes covering a special meeting of June 3, 1966, wherein it is stated that the recommendations of the Assistant Superintendent and the Professional Negotiating Committee concerning compensation for certain additional assignments be approved. The minutes then recite: "Guidance Counsellor - 10% of base or a free period for preparation."

The evidence does not establish that the alternatives stated with such clarity and brevity in the June 3rd minutes were apprehended by the Board and by the Negotiating Committee with equal clarity. The parties were undoubtedly clear that for additional counselling 10% of base would be paid. The evidence does not establish, however, that the Negotiating Committee clearly acknowledged the right of the Board to assign a free period in lieu of the 10%. The right of the Board to determine what additional assignments will be made, if any, appears to have been very clearly retained by the Board in Article 12 of the Professional Negotiation Agreement, which provides that "The Board may each year enter into additional contractual agreements with teachers for extra-duties beyond their normal daily teaching assignment". The parties, therefore, undoubtedly understood that the Board was under no compulsion to make additional assignments, and that the Board could offer or withhold such additional assignments, whichever it pleased. Both parties undoubtedly assumed, prior to the commencement of both the 1966-67 school year and the 1967-68 school year, that additional counselling assignments were being made by the Board because it had elected to do so, not because it was under contractual obligation to do so. Therefore, if prior to the commencement of the 1967-68 school year the Association was notified that no additional hours of guidance counselling would be provided, it must be concluded that the Board was within its rights in giving such notice and that the Association was bound by the notice.

Although the significance of the Board's power to withhold additional counselling assignments was not apprehended by the Negotiating Committee with the clarity conveyed by the alternatives stated in the Board's June 3rd minutes - 10% of base, or a free period of preparation - the Association may be fairly charged with notice of those alternatives by reason of Dr. Herman's letter dated August 31, 1966 to Mrs. Connie McAvoy. In Dr. Herman's letter, he expressly refers to the basis for additional compensation payable to counsellors, and his statement of the alternatives in respect of counsellors' compensation is identical with the statement of the alternatives contained in the minutes of the Board. The Association, of course, had no knowledge of the provision in the Board's minutes relating to compensation, but the Association may be fairly deemed bound by the disclosure made by Dr Herman to the Association's president. The Arbitrator thinks it probable that neither the Association nor the counsellors themselves took any action in respect of the alternatives stated by Dr. Herman, not because the alternative - "a free period of preparation" - was thought trivial and so not attended to, but, rather, because they believed (i) that the Board did in fact possess the alternative rights set forth in Dr. Herman's letter, and (ii) that notwithstanding the alternatives, additional assignments for guidance counselling would in fact be made, so that the counsellors would receive 10% of base in 1967-68 as they had in the preceding school year. It is indeed very probable that the Board availed itself of its right to eliminate additional hours for counselling only because it was compelled to do so by budgetary insufficiency.

For the foregoing reasons, the Arbitrator concludes that the additional 10% of base claimed by Grievants was directly related to additional hours of service; that the Association itself desired that additional compensation be related to additional hours of work, rather than to other factors; that the Board had no obligation to allow additional hours to counsellors, the matter of such allowance being entirely within the Board's discretion, that Dr. Herman's letter of August 31, 1966 to the Association evoked no response because the Board was indeed believed to possess the power in its discretion to withhold additional hours; that the Association is fairly deemed bound by an arrangement entered into with its Professional Negotiating Committee, and by a statement of the arrangement of which the Association was given written confirmation in August 1967; that every member of the Association, including each of Grievants, is bound by the arrangement which was made between the Board and the Association.

Authority of the Superintendent

The Arbitrator considers that the action of the Superintendent of the Board in eliminating the 10% additional compensation was sufficiently authorized by the Board and was in full compliance with law. Although the minutes of the Board's special meeting of August 22, 1967 do not expressly state that the Superintendent is authorized and directed to eliminate additional counselling hours, it does not necessarily follow that the Superintendent's elimination of such counselling was unauthorized and void. The minutes are, by definition, merely a summary of what is said and done. The testimony of the Superintendent sufficiently establishes that the Board directed him to eliminate certain items from the budget, and that the items which might be so eliminated by the Superintendent were specifically identified, one such item being additional counselling hours. Since the Board did in fact authorize the Superintendent to eliminate additional hours of counselling, the action of the Superintendent in effecting that elimination is valid, notwithstanding that the minutes, in referring to the authority given by the Board, make no specific reference to guidance counselling.

Award of the Arbitrator

For the reasons hereinabove set forth, the Arbitrator finds that the action of the Board of Education of Godwin Heights Public Schools, in eliminating additional compensation for Grievants J. R. Miller, Kay Anton, D. E. Norlin and Virginia Gates in respect of the school year 1967-68, was valid and lawful, and the Arbitrator so holds.

STATE OF NEW YORK
PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS BOARD

IN THE MATTER OF

CITY SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF WHITE PLAINS, Employer,

and

WHITE PLAINS FEDERATION OF ADULT EDUCATORS, LOCAL 1787, Petitioner,

and

WHITE PLAINS TEACHERS ASSOCIATION,
Intervenor.

CASE NO. C-0174

DECISION

On January 22, 1968, the White Plains Federation of Adult Educators, Local 1787 (herein referred to as the petitioner) filed, in accordance with the Rules of Procedure (herein referred to as the Rules) of the New York State Public Employment Relations Board (herein referred to as the Board), a timely petition for certification as the exclusive negotiating representative for certain nonsupervisory classroom teachers, shop teachers, and guidance personnel employed in the manpower development and training (herein referred to as MDT), and adult basic education (herein referred to as ABE) programs of the City School District of the City of White Plains (herein referred to as the employer).

A formal hearing[1] in this matter was conducted before a trial examiner of the Board on April 23, May 2, 17, 23, 24, and June 12, 1968. All parties, including the White Plains Teachers Association (herein referred to as the intervenor), were present and represented by counsel.

The employer and intervenor moved to dismiss the petition on the grounds that the petitioner does not qualify for certification under Section 207.3(b) of the Public Employees' Fair Employment Act (herein referred to as the Act). Despite the no-strike affirmation in the instant petition, they contend that the petitioner has failed to sustain its burden of establishing that "it does not assert the right to strike against any government, to assist or participate in any such strike, or to impose an obligation to conduct, assist or participate in such a strike."[2] In support of this contention they point out that, under its constitution and by-laws, petitioner is affiliated with the American Federation of Teachers and the Empire State Federation of Teachers, both of whom in their by-laws provide for contributions from their locals to "defense funds", which allegedly are strike funds. In addition, they claim that published statements of elected officials of both of these latter organizations proclaim the right to strike against government employers. However, there is nothing in the record to show that any such public statements were made with regard to the position of the petitioner. Nor is there anything in the record to establish that petitioner, by its actions, has acted in a manner inconsistent with its no-strike pledge. Accordingly, that pledge cannot be deemed a sham and the motion to dismiss must be denied.[3]

The petitioner, in turn, argues that the intervenor is not an employee organization within the meaning of Section 201.6 of the Act because it is employer dominated. In support of this contention, it points out that some of the management personnel of the employer are members of the intervenor. Also, the petitioner points out that the employer, in its professional handbooks,[4] endorsed membership in the National Education Association, the New York State Teachers Association, the Westchester County Teachers Association and specifically the intervenor, and supported these organizations in various ways such as listing their officers' names in its directory. Until the present time, this has occasioned no problems inasmuch as there has never been any need to delineate, for purposes of collective negotiations, between teachers and "administrators" or "management", or between membership in these organizations for the purpose of collective negotiations or for professional development.

In this regard, I take administrative notice of the fact that for many years these organizations have traditionally served as professional organizations. The record shows that, since passage of the Act and indeed for many months prior thereto. no member of the intervenor who may be deemed to be part of "management" has been permitted any role in the formulation of the demands of the teachers' unit, or in the approval of any agreement in their behalf. The intervenor is neither financially dependent upon the employer nor does it exist merely at the whim of the employer. In addition, there is no evidence in the record to establish that the "primary purpose" of the intervenor is other than the improvement of terms and conditions of employment of teachers. Further, the record does not establish that "management" personnel of the employer dominate the policies of the intervenor. Therefore, I find that the intervenor is an employee organization within the meaning and intent of Section 201.6 of the Act.[5]

With regard to the unit question, the petitioner contends that there should be a separate negotiating unit for all classroom teachers, shop teachers, and guidance personnel who are engaged in the MDT and ABE programs for a minimum of fifteen hours per week, for a period of at least three months.

The employer and intervenor contend that only one unit, consisting of all instructional personnel, is appropriate for purposes of collective negotiations. Indeed, on January 22, 1968, the employer recognized the intervenor as the negotiating representative for all its instructional personnel, including the MDT and ABE teachers and guidance personnel. In the alternative, the employer and intervenor contend that fragmentation of this unit, if deemed necessary, should be on a considerably broader scale than urged by the petitioner and should embrace all adult education teachers and counselors, including those in the traditional adult education (herein referred to as TAE) programs.

The employer is a city school district consisting of one senior high school, three junior high schools, and seven elementary schools. Its adult education activities are carried on in a former elementary school building (the Rochambeau school). Each of the schools has a building principal who reports to the superintendent of schools, except that the title of the head of the Rochambeau school is "Director of Adult Education". There is also an assistant superintendent for administration with staff responsibility for personnel administration and employee relations. The school district employs approximately 550 professionals including 151 teachers, counselors, and supervisors employed in the adult education programs, some 39 of whom also teach in the kindergarten through 12th grade (the K-12 programs). Of these 39, 22 are in the TAE program, 16 are in the ABE program, and one is in the MDT program.

The adult education programs are divided into the TAE programs, mostly evening, which have been carried on for many years, and the relatively new federally funded MDT and ABE programs. The MDT programs are conducted pursuant to the Manpower Development and Training Act of 1962 and have as their objective the vocational training of high school "dropouts" to assist them in their search for regular employment. The ABE programs are conducted pursuant to the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 with the purpose of improving the reading and writing skills of persons 18 years of age and over whose inability to read and write the English language impairs their employability.

Teachers and counselors who are employed in evening programs normally work no more than 9 contact hours per week, while those employed in day-time programs or a combination of day and evening programs normally work 28 to 35 contact hours per week.

The following table lists the approximate number of teachers and counselors in the instructional staff at the Rochambeau school in the three adult education programs, showing the breakdown between those who at the time were working more or less than 15 contact hours per week:[6]

PROGRAM	UNDER 15	15 AND OVER	TOTAL
TAE	71	1	72
ABE	32	8	40
MDT	2	32	34
TOTAL	105	41	146

In addition, there are four supervisors in MDT and one in ABE, all of whom work 15 or more hours per week.

K-12 teachers require and adult teachers do not require state certification to qualify for appointment. The latter apply to the board of education for an adult education certificate upon employment, which is issued locally by the employer after examination as to their qualifications.

Teachers for all three adult programs are recruited from a wide variety of sources including full-time K-12 teachers seeking evening employment to augment their income,[7] and full-time teaching personnel often with special vocational training and experience in a trade for whom their employment as teachers in the MDT and ABE programs is their primary source of income.

The salaries and other terms and conditions of employment are determined by the board of education, except that in the case of the federally supported adult education programs, teacher compensation including salaries and fringe benefits must be approved by Federal and State district officers.[8]

K-12 teachers are paid in accordance with an annual salary schedule having a range of $6,200 for the first year to $10,500 for the 13th year, which provides for automatic annual increments and additional pay for advanced educational degrees. TAE, MDT, and 5] See, e.g., In the Matter of New York State Thruway, Case Nos. C-0021 et. al., (Aug. 23, 1968) (Decision of Director of Representation), affirmed by the Board on Nov. 13, 1968.

6] Apparently the petitioner chose 15 contact hours per week as a convenient reference point to distinguish between full and part-time employees.

7] Generally speaking, K-12 teachers are only available for "part-time" (less than 15 hours) work during the school year, although a number work "full-time" during the summer recess.

8] No party contends that teachers in the federally-supported programs are not employees of the employer. In this regard, the employer apparently can make effective recommendations with regard to terms and conditions of employment.

ABE teachers are all paid an hourly rate (currently $8 per hour) for each hour of contact teaching (as required by the Federal Government). Employer witnesses testified at the hearing that this rate had, from the beginning, been set higher than the hourly rate of comparable K-12 teachers (calculated on the basis of 185 seven-hour days per teaching year) in order to compensate them for the lack of certain fringe benefits. However, there is no extra compensation for advanced education or years of service, and there is no specific mathematical relationship to the K-12 salary schedule. Teachers in K-12 are paid bi-weekly for the preceding ten working days; adult education teachers are paid once a month for a work period that ends approximately four weeks prior to pay-day.

K-12 teachers are tenured and, as a matter of board of education policy, adult education teachers are non-tenured. Thus, the MDT and ABE teachers, unlike the K-12 teachers, are appointed (and reappointed) only for the length of the specific course or courses they are to teach, and may be "dropped" for any reason whatsoever.

K-12 teachers have twenty paid holidays, ten days of sick leave per year, two days for personal leave, sabbatical leave, maternity leave, snow days off, and summer vacation, none of which are available as such to hourly paid personnel who are paid only for the time they actually work.

Hourly personnel (and, of course, K-12 personnel) are eligible for social security, health insurance, and the New York State Teachers Retirement System (although the latter is optional for them, and compulsory for K-12 teachers).

The record shows that K-12 teachers are qualified for, and can transfer to, many adult education teaching positions, but none have ever been required to do so. The record does not show any incidence of transfer from adult education to K-12 programs.

The employer and the intervenor have been parties to a relationship which dates back to the early 1950's, during which matters of concern to all of the employer's teachers have been discussed. However, no written agreement resulted, and there is no evidence in the record to indicate the parties' intention or understanding with respect to the MDT or ABE teachers prior to September, 1967. In 1967, the tenor of this relationship changed and the employer and intervenor, by their respective committees, met on numerous occasions to attempt to reach a professional agreement which would, inter-alia, define the nature and extent of the recognition to be accorded the intervenor.[9]

On September 27, 1967, the president of the intervenor reported to the professional staff that "after nine months of planning and meetings a committee of the [intervenor] and the board of education have reached general consensus on a professional negotiations agreement." On January 22, 1968, as previously noted, the employer by resolution formally recognized the intervenor as the negotiating representative for all instructional personnel.

There followed three successive draft copies of the proposed professional negotiations agreement, the last of which was dated April 18, 1968. Dr. Antin, the assistant superintendent, testified at the hearing that this version had been ratified and adopted by the board of education. It provides for recognition of the intervenor as "the exclusive representative of all professional personnel employed by the board in positions for which the State Education Department requires certification" (emphasis added) Dr. Antin further testified that the significance of this was never discussed in negotiations and had to his knowledge never been interpreted to exclude the adult education teachers, although he conceded that a strict interpretation of the language might so require.

Conflicting evidence was submitted at the hearing concerning the eligibility or non-eligibility of adult education teachers to join the intervenor. Its constitution and by-laws are not clear on the subject but its president apparently considered them ineligible for membership in June, 1967 because at that time he told them that he felt the rules should be changed to make them eligible. Subsequent action by the board of education in "appointing adult education teachers into the White Plains School System," in his opinion, made them eligible to join the intervenor. Moreover, a number actually joined and paid dues to the intervenor and were consulted prior to negotiations, and a representative of TAE (but not MDT or ABE) served on the intervenor's negotiating committee.

In now moving to the merits of the various unit contentions, I will deal first with petitioner's basic position that MDT and ABE teachers should not be included in the same unit as the K-12 teachers. Although all teachers have a common function, namely to teach,[10] the MDT and ABE teachers do not have a substantial community of interest with the K-12 teachers since their terms and conditions of employment are different, and are determined in a different manner. These differences are of sufficient magnitude to preclude their being placed in the same negotiating unit. Among the items that would be of paramount importance in future negotiations to MDT and ABE teachers but would be of little concern to K-12 teachers are job security,[11] automatic salary increments, bi-weekly payroll periods, and the initiation of various fringe benefits such as paid vacations, holidays, and sick leave.[12] Further, it should be noted that for many of the adult education programs the primary requisite is practical experience in the trade or craft being taught as opposed to classroom teaching experience. Thus, it is not surprising that no prior teacher certification is required for employment in the adult education programs, and the approach to training such teachers is markedly different from the method used in K-12 where much emphasis is placed upon advanced degrees and outside conferences and seminars.

Therefore, I find that the MDT and ABE teachers should be separated from the K-12 teachers for purposes of collective negotiations.[13]

There remains the question of whether the TAE teachers should be in the same unit as all other adult education teachers. All adult 9] Prior to this time, the colloquy between the parties consisted of an informal exchange of viewpoints.

10] However, the mission of MDT and ABE is different inasmuch as they teach different types of students having different needs and different immediate goals. Thus, for example, they do not grade their students. In any event, it is clear that "occupational similarities alone do not warrant amalgamation". In the Matter of the Board of Higher Education of the City of New York, Case No. C-0008 (Aug. 9, 1968).

11] See In the Matter of Middle Country Central School District No. 11, Case No. C-0061 (Oct. 25, 1968).

12] In this context, it becomes relevant to note the rather uncertain status of the MDT and ABE teachers in such collective "negotiations" as have transpired in the past.

13] See In the Matter of the Board of Higher Education of the City of New York, supra.

education teachers, whether TAE, MDT, or ABE, are on the same hourly salary plan, are not eligible for tenure, and do not receive most fringe benefits. In short, all the distinctions between the terms and conditions of employment for K-12 and MDT and ABE teachers exist to the same degree for TAE teachers. Although the TAE and certain MDT and ABE teachers work less hours per week than the "full-time" MDT and ABE teachers, they are appointed under the same procedures, employ the same teaching methods, and are subject to the same ultimate supervision. Thus the regular part-time TAE teachers have a substantial community of interest with all other adult education teachers since their terms and conditions of employment are identical and are determined in the same manner.[14] Therefore, inasmuch as these TAE teachers are adequately concerned with terms and conditions of employment, I find that they should be included in the same negotiating unit as all other adult education teachers.

In arguing for the exclusion of the TAE teachers from a general unit of adult education teachers, petitioner places great stress on the following sentence taken somewhat out of context from a previous Decision of the undersigned: ". . . the role of the non-annual lecturer is generally that of a second job holder whose primary allegiance is to some other employer or career".[15] However, in the instant case, as is true with the TAE teachers, 80% of the ABE teachers also work less than 15 contact hours per week. Further, this concept of "the tail wagging the dog" was only one in a series of factors in a highly complex and unique situation at the City University of New York which have no direct bearing on the instant case. As the Board subsequently pointed out in affirming on appeal:

> ". . . the faculty-rank-status personnel are the heart of the University. It might be compromising to their independence and to the very stability of the University for non-tenured instructional personnel, in numbers almost equal to that of faculty-rank-status personnel, to be included in the unit of faculty-rank-status personnel."[16]

It is clear that no such danger will be created here by including regular part-time TAE teachers in a unit of their peers. As the facts cited above make clear, there is nothing in the record to indicate any conflict of interest between those adult educators who teach more and those who teach less than 15 contact hours. Nor does the record indicate that these groups could not negotiate effectively in the same unit. Thus, any significance which might be attached to whether the adult education teachers are "regular part-time" or "full-time" employees is heavily outweighed by the identicality of their terms and conditions of employment.

However, the supervisors in the adult education program must be excluded from the unit of those subject to their supervision. For purposes of unit determination, they must be considered as part of "management" rather than as part of the teaching staff inasmuch as they participate in the selection of teachers, evaluate their performance, and make effective recommendations with respect to their retention or discharge. These duties give rise to such a conflict of interest as to mandate their exclusion from a "rank-and-file" unit.[17]

In finding a separate unit of all adult education teachers to be appropriate, I have not overlooked the fact that some K-12 teachers also participate in the adult education program. I note that there have been no such cases of voluntary interchange of teachers from the adult education program to the K-12 program; indeed, the former need not be licensed public school teachers. Further, there can be little doubt concerning the genuine interest of "moonlighting" K-12 teachers in achieving benefits for their evening as well as their day time work. In this respect, I can perceive no distinction between the "part-time" employee who may work for more than one employer, and the employee who performs dual functions for the same employer.

THEREFORE, IT IS DETERMINED THAT there shall be a negotiating unit of employees of the employer as follows:

Included: All classroom teachers, shop teachers, and guidance personnel who are employed in the adult education program.

Excluded: Director of adult education, assistant director of adult education, all other supervisors, and all other employees.

FURTHER, IT IS ORDERED THAT the petition in this matter shall be dismissed unless petitioner, within 21 days from receipt of this Decision, files an amended petition with the undersigned seeking certification in the unit determined above to be appropriate.[18] In the event such an amended petition is filed, an election by secret ballot will be held under the supervision of the undersigned among the employees in the unit determined above to be appropriate and who were employed by the employer on the payroll date immediately preceding the date of this Decision, unless the petitioner or intervenor submit to the undersigned within seven days from the date of notice of the filing of the amended petition, dues deduction authorizations and other evidences sufficient to satisfy the requirements of Section 201.6(h) (1) of the Rules for certification without an election.[19]

18] Neither at the hearing, nor in its brief, did the petitioner indicate a desire to represent all adult education teachers if such a unit were to be deemed appropriate. Indeed, its constitution and by-laws presently prohibit from membership all teachers who teach less than 15 hours.

19] However, before the intervenor will be allowed to participate in any further proceedings before this Board leading to possible certification, it will be required to produce evidence to the satisfaction of the undersigned that it will restrict employee participation in the affairs of the unit deemed herein to be appropriate to persons employed within such unit. This requirement is limited to the intervenor because of the lack of any evidence in the record to indicate that this problem arises with respect to the petitioner. The above-entitled matters having come on for hearing before Joseph B. Bixler, a Trial Examiner for the Michigan Labor Mediation Board, hereinafter referred to as the Board, at Detroit, Michigan, on February 27, and 28, 1968, the Board having considered the record and briefs in this matter and being fully advised in the premises, hereby makes the following Findings of Fact, Conclusions of law and Direction of Election.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The River Rouge Board of Education is a Public Employer within the meaning of Act 336 of the Public Acts of 1947, as amended by Act 379 of the Public Acts of 1965, M. S. A. Section 17.455, (Public Employment Relations Act), hereinafter referred to as PERA.

River Rouge Federation of Teachers and River Rouge Education Association, hereinafter respectively called Petitioner and Intervenor, are labor organizations within the meaning of PERA.

The Petition in Case R67 L-410 was filed by the Federation on December 27, 1967. The unit requested in this Petition is one described as:

"All certified teaching personnel except those excluded by law as supervisory or executive personnel."

On January 3, 1968, the Federation filed a second Petition in case R68 A-5. The unit requested in this Petition is identical to that quoted above.

On January 3, 1967, this Board certified the River Rouge Education Association as exclusive bargaining representative of a unit of the Employer's teachers described as follows:

"All certified teaching personnel, excluding superintendent, principals, assistant principals, director of special services, director of guidance and counseling, office manager, athletic director, director of federal projects, and department chairman."

The units petitioned for and the certified unit are essentially the same, and the parties at the hearing stipulated that the certified unit is appropriate.

Contentions of the Parties:

The Employer and the Intervenor contend that:

1. The petition filed in Case R67 L-410 is untimely as it was filed within the certification year.

2. There is a contract bar to an election in this case pursuant to Section 14 of PERA. This contention is based on two agreements advanced as a bar:

(a) On September 17, 1967, the parties reached agreement on terms of a collective bargaining agreement.

(b) A collective bargaining agreement was completely written and signed by all necessary parties on December 29, 1967.

The Petitioner contends that:

1. The petition filed December 27, 1967, in Case R67 L-410 is not untimely because Section 14 of PERA only prohibits direction of election within the year following a valid election.

2. An election is not barred by Section 14 of PERA because neither the School Board nor the employees in the unit ratified the agreements offered as a bar.

The Timeliness of the Petition in Case R67 L-410 Filed on December 27, 1967.

The contention of Intervenor and Employer in regard to this petition is well taken. This Board, in City of Bay City, 1967 Labor Opinions 155, determined that petitions filed during the certification year are untimely. This Board further determined in the Bay City case that the certification year begins to run "when the Board's Certification of Representation is issued."

Here, since the Certification of Representation was issued on January 3, 1967, the year would not expire until January 2, 1968. As the petition in Case R67 L-410 was filed within the period, it is untimely and is hereby dismissed.

Contract Bar.

The second election petition, Case R68 A-5, while not filed within the certification year, is challenged as barred by a collective bargaining contract pursuant to Section 14 of PERA that there be "in force and effect a valid collective bargaining agreement which was not prematurely extended and which is of fixed duration. . ."

Employer and Intervenor must demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Board two conditions precedent to a contract bar: (a) a valid collective bargaining contract in force and effect; and (b) a contract of fixed duration.

A review of the bargaining history of the contract advanced as a bar discloses that Intervenor and Employer negotiated throughout the spring and summer of 1967. On September 5, 1967, the date scheduled for school to open, the teachers did not return to work. During the next two weeks, there were intensified negotiations between the parties, followed by fact finding.

On September 16, 1967, the parties commenced a marathon bargaining session which ended, at 2:30 a.m., September 17, 1967, in a document which was an agreement in memorandum form initialed by both parties' negotiators. Six of the seven school board members assembled and ratified the agreement in executive session. Later the same day, September 17, the teachers represented by the Intervenor ratified. The Intervenor and Employer commenced the task of reducing the agreement to writing.

Intervenor and Employer advance the memorandum of agreement initialed by the negotiators, as a contract bar. This memorandum contains summary statements of agreements on areas of prior disagreement, to-wit: "Dues deduction in"; "Academic freedom out"; 2 year agreement."

This memorandum may be adequate evidence of agreement reached, but it is inadequate to serve, by itself, as a contract bar to an election. The summary statements are not sufficient to guide the parties in their day-to-day collective bargaining relationship. Standing alone, the memorandum does not satisfy the requirements of Section 14.

The first draft of the written contract was distributed on December 5, 1967, with copies furnished to individual members of the Board of Education. The minutes of the December 12, 1967, meeting of the School Board disclose that the written document was distributed on December 5 and ratified by the Board.

Petitioner attacks the contract and its ratification by charging that the official minutes of the meeting of the Board of Education held December 12 are incorrect. Through witnesses who attended the school board meeting on December 12, Petitioner has attempted to establish that there was no discussion of the contract at this meeting, and that no vote on its ratification was taken. Thusly, Petitioner attempts to impeach the records of an official legislative body.

We have discovered no case which directly affirms or denies the power of a state administrative agency to go behind the official records of a legislative body to determine whether action disclosed by the official records was in fact taken. There are, however, court decisions involving an interested individual's right to impeach such records.

In Wheat v. Van Tine, 149 Mich. 314 (1907), the court said:

"Parol evidence is not admissible to contradict the record of the proceedings of the common council. It is admissible, however, to show facts omitted therefrom. The failure of a clerk to properly enter such proceedings cannot affect the rights of individuals who have acted upon the faith of the action of the council, in fact duly taken, but not recorded."

It has been held that a school district speaks only through its minutes and resolutions, and that official records may not be impugned by mental reservations of persons present, including members of the legislative body. All attacks on such records must be directed to action taken by the legislative body but omitted from the records of the meeting where the action was, in fact, taken. Travener v. Elk Rapids Rural Agricultural School District, 341 Mich. 244 (1954).

On December 12, 1967, an official record was made, approved at the next board meeting and published in a newspaper of general circulation on January 25, 1968. Petitioner's attempted impeachment would prove abortive in court. We have no greater power than a court, if, indeed, we have equal power.

Following the preparation of the draft contract, Intervenor's bargaining team and counsel reviewed the draft "page by page" on December 19, 1967. Certain changes were made, resulting in a form of the document signed by both parties on December 29, 1967.

Petitioner avers that the December 29 document does not conform with the contract ratified by the school board on December 12; hence may not serve as a contract bar.

The contracts of school districts, which are municipal corporations, are presumed valid. Rasmussen v. Lincoln Park School District, 4 Mich. App. 278 (1966); Attorney General ex rel. McRae v. Thompson, 168 Mich. 511 (1912); Holloway v. Ogden Township School District, 62 Mich. 153 (1886).

While the act of executive of a contract by members of a school board, or by the board's agent, will not, by itself, create an enforceable contract (Cowley v. Harrisville Township School, 130 Mich. 634 (1902); Hazen v. Lerche, 47 Mich. 626 (1882); Vreeland v. School District No. 2, Monguagon Township, 264 Mich. 212 (1933)), the acceptance of the benefits of an executed contract, even though not formally ratified, creates a ratification or estoppel (Crane v. Bennington Township School District No. 6, 61 Mich. 299 (1886); Jones v. Iosco School District No. 3, 110 Mich. 363 (1896); Laughlin v. Jackson City School District No. 17, 98 Mich. 523 (1894); McLaughlin v. Board of Education of Fordson School District of the City of Dearborn, 255 Mich. 664 (1931).

Here, the teachers performed, and are performing, services and are being paid for such services. Performance and payment is pursuant to the terms of an oral agreement made in September, reduced to writing and executed in December. Even though the document had not been ratified at the school board meeting of December 12, 1967, the contract binds the River Rouge Board of Education and by action of the Board and the teachers for whose benefit it was negotiated has become a contract which serves as a contract bar.

Examples of performance are salary, personal days, Blue Cross, sick leave, and posting. The contract was in force and effect, as well as valid and enforceable.

Another theory advanced to attack the validity of the contract is the three forms of the written contract prepared in December. It is averred that the form of the contract signed on December 29, differs materially from the document ratified by the school board on December 12. Therefore, urges Petitioner, there was continuous bargaining to the time of the signing. Even then, continues the Petitioner, there was doubt because in January the parties signed a memorandum of clarification.

If we were to adopt such a theory, the collective bargaining process in the public sector would become fraught with delicate nuances not found in private sector bargaining, and, we are certain, not intended by the Legislature.

It is common practice—and often the only practical method—to agree on a contract, present the agreed items to the employer's board of directors or executive officials, and the union membership, for ratification, and then prepare the written document which becomes, on execution, the contract which controls the working conditions during the term.

We do not agree with the contention that the changes which were made between the conclusion of bargaining and the execution of the contract were material enough to change the bargain between the parties.

The activity in which the parties engaged was mutual activity to make the written contract reflect the agreement reached in September.

Changes in wording are not a continuation of bargaining in private industry bargaining. Neither should they be so construed in the public sector, despite the complexity of statutory regulation.

A bargain was made in September, implemented thereafter, and was reduced to writing before the end of the certification year.

The contract is a complete document regulating the employment relationship.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the petitions in Case No. R67 L-410 and Case No. R68 A-5 be dismissed.

Negotiation Agreements

AGREEMENT

DEARBORN 8 BOARD OF EDUCATION

and

DEARBORN 8 ADMINISTRATORS ASSOCIATION

This agreement, entered into this _____day of _____, 1968, by and between the Board of Education of School District No. 8 Fractional of the City and Township of Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Michigan, hereinafter called the "Board," and the Dearborn 8 Administrators Association, hereinafter called the "Association."

WITNESSETH

WHEREAS, the Board and the Association recognize and declare that providing a quality education for the children of Dearborn 8 is their mutual aim; and

WHEREAS, educational administrators should be particularly qualified to assist in suggesting and developing policies and programs designed to improve educational standards; and

WHEREAS, the Board agrees to bargain in good faith with the Association as the representatives of its administrative personnel with respect to hours, wages, and other conditions of employment; and

WHEREAS, the parties, following extended and deliberate professional negotiations, have reached certain understandings which they desire to memorialize;

IN CONSIDERATION of the following mutual covenants, it is hereby agreed as follows:

ARTICLE I - RECOGNITION

SECTION A

The Board hereby recognizes the Association as exclusive bargaining representative of all administrators below the level of Deputy Superintendent.

The term "Board" when used hereinafter in this Agreement shall refer to the legally elected representatives of the school district and/or its officially designated representatives.

The term "Administrator" when used hereinafter in this Agreement shall refer to those persons employed by and authorized by the Board to recommend for hiring, firing, and/or supervising professional staff members and other personnel.

SECTION B

The Board agrees not to negotiate with any administrators organization other than the Association for the duration of this Agreement. Nothing contained herein shall be construed to prevent any individual administrator from presenting a grievance and having the grievance adjusted without intervention of the Association, if the adjustment is not inconsistent with the terms of this Agreement.

SECTION C

Within thirty (30) days of the beginning of their employment hereunder, administrators may sign and deliver to the Board an assignment authorizing deduction of membership dues or assessments of the Association (including the National Education Association and the Michigan Education Association). Such sum shall be deducted as dues from the regular salaries of such administrator in 5 equal installments and remitted not less frequently than monthly to the Association.

ARTICLE II - ADMINISTRATOR RIGHTS

SECTION A

The Board hereby agrees that every administrator shall have the right freely to organize, join and support any organization for the purpose of engaging in professional negotiations, mutual aid, and protection. As a duly elected body exercising governmental power under code of law of the State of Michigan, the Board agrees that it will not directly or indirectly discourage or deprive or coerce any administrator in the enjoyment of his rights which have been conferred by the laws of the State of Michigan or the Constitution of the State of Michigan or the Constitution of the United States. The Board further agrees that it will not discriminate against any administrator with respect to hours, wages, or conditions of employment by reason of his membership in an administrative organization or collective professional negotiations with the Board, or his institution of any grievance, complaint or proceeding under this Agreement, or with respect to any other conditions of employment.

SECTION B

The Association shall have the privilege to use school building facilities at all reasonable hours for meetings and other activities in accord with proper procedures.

SECTION C

The Board agrees to furnish to the Association, in response to reasonable requests from time to time, all available public records concerning the financial resources of the district, tentative budgetary requirements and allocations, and such other public records as will assist the Association in developing intelligent, accurate, informed and constructive programs on behalf of the administrators and the students, together with public records which may be necessary for the Association to process any grievance or complaint.

Reproduction permitted by the Dearborn #8 Administrators Association and Michigan Education Association

ARTICLE III - PROFESSIONAL COMPENSATION

SECTION A

The salaries of administrators covered by this Agreement are set forth in Appendix A which is attached to be incorporated in the Agreement. Such salaries shall remain in effect for the one-year term of this Agreement; provided, however, that upon written notice to the other party at least sixty (60) days prior to the first day of May of this Agreement, either party may request the opening of negotiations of such salary schedule for the next school year.

SECTION B

Administrators shall be entitled to, and receive, without loss of compensation, holidays according to a schedule which will be dependent upon the adoption of the 1968-1969 school calendar by the Board of Education. The schedule will use the same guidelines as the 1967-1968 schedule and will be similar in nature.

SECTION C

An authorized representative of the Association, and/or the grievant, engaged during the school day in the established grievance procedure, shall be released from regular duties without loss of pay.

SECTION D

The Board may allow administrators to attend appropriate annual State or National conferences and meetings. Approval may be given by the Board, using the following guidelines:

1. Written request to the Superintendent of Schools stating pertinent data concerning the conference.
2. Written statements of anticipated and actual expenses.
3. Length of absence.
4. A written and/or oral report of the conference, as requested by the Board, shall be given within 10 days after returning from a conference. Additional time may be granted by the Superintendent when necessary.
5. Salary will continue while an administrator is in attendance at an authorized conference.

The Board further agrees that all expenses for attendance at authorized conferences and meetings, including transportation, lodging, meals, conference registration and other incidental expenses, shall be paid by the Board, and that such attendance, including time spent in transit, shall not be charged to an administrator's leave-day bank, and that no administrator shall suffer any loss of compensation for such authorized attendance or travel. Any administrator absent in excess of the authorized length of absence shall be docked one day's pay for each day of excess absence. Emergency situations resulting in excess absences may be given special consideration by the Board.

SECTION E

Administrators shall be reimbursed at the rate of $.10 per mile when using their personal vehicles in the conduct of authorized school and school related affairs.

SECTION F

All administrators shall be allowed a duty-free lunch period away from their school or office not to exceed one hour.

SECTION G

If there are substantial changes proposed in the duties of any existing administrative position the Association shall have the opportunity to discuss, with the Board, the possible modification of the job description. Should it be mutually agreed that the job responsibilities have been significantly increased, the salary for such modified job description may be negotiated. In emergency situations such discussion and negotiation may take place following such modification.

ARTICLE IV - WORKING CONDITIONS

SECTION A

The provisions of this Agreement and the wages, hours, terms and conditions of employment shall be applied without regard to race, creed, religion, color, national origin, age, sex, or membership in or association with the activities of any employee organization. The Board and the Association pledge themselves to seek to extend the advantages of public education to every student without regard to race, creed, religion, sex, color or national origin and to seek to achieve full equality of educational opportunity for all pupils.

SECTION B

Notwithstanding their employment, administrators shall be entitled to full rights of citizenship and no religious or political activities, not limited by law, of any administrator or the lack thereof shall be grounds for any discipline or discrimination with respect to the professional employment of such administrator.

SECTION C

The very nature of school administration requires that, from time to time, administrators will make recommendations to the Board or its authorized representative regarding the program of the school, the conditions of buildings, grounds, equipment and material, and other factors important to the efficient management of a school plant or program. It is expected that such recommendations will be given careful consideration and expeditious handling.

Requisitions for equipment, materials and supplies necessary to the operation of the school and its program will be given prompt attention and will be answered in writing stating whether the requisition has been approved or not. Replies to requisitions which have been disapproved shall state the reason for such disapproval.

SECTION D

Each administrator shall have a parking space for his personal vehicle. For those administrators who desire it, such parking space shall be designated by a suitable sign or marker, erected and maintained by the Board, clearly reserving such space for the vehicle of said administrator.

SECTION E

The Board agrees that no member of the Association employed as a principal or assistant principal shall represent the Board in any negotiating or collective bargaining session with representatives of any other employee's bargaining agent. Such agreement will not hinder the participation of principals and assistant principals as consultants to the Board's bargaining team.

SECTION F

Both parties agree that efficient and capable management of the district's schools and curricular programs is their common goal. The superintendent may, when he deems it appropriate, recommend to the Board any additional administrative positions. It shall be the responsibility of the Association to bring such needs to the attention of the Superintendent and supply him with the necessary pertinent data.

ARTICLE V - LEAVE DAYS

SECTION A

All administrative personnel shall be allowed leave days without loss of pay according to the schedule in Article V.

SECTION B

Each administrator shall be permitted to accumulate, without limit, one (1) leave day per month (maximum of ten days) each school year in an accumulative leave-day bank.

SECTION C

Five (5) personal business leave days per school year will be granted in addition to Section B above. Any unused days will be added to the leave-day bank at the end of the school year.

SECTION D

A leave-day bank shall be established for each administrator in the following manner:

Administrators shall be credited only with leave days earned during the year. Any leave days accumulated at the close of the year shall be carried forward, as a balance, at the start of the next year. If an administrator is absent in excess of his earned leave-day bank, deductions, in the amount equal to one (1) day's pay for each day of excess absence shall be made from his salary check in the pay period following such excess absence. Reimbursement shall be made for such deductions at the end of the year if the administrator has earned leave days to his credit.

SECTION E

Absences which may be charged to an administrator's leave-day bank are as follows:

1. Administrator's personal illness or emergency illness in the immediate family.
2. Death in the immediate family, relatives, or close friends.
3. Administrator's own wedding or wedding in the immediate family.
4. Personal business or emergencies.

SECTION F

Qualifications for use of leave days.

1. Administrator's personal illness or emergency illness in the immediate family.
   a. Personal illness.
   b. Emergency illness in the immediate family (when no other arrangements can be made for necessary care). The time allowable shall not exceed five (5) working days. (Immediate family defined in 2-a below).
2. Death in the immediate family, relatives, or close friends.
   a. The immediate family includes spouse, children, father, mother, father-in-law, mother-in-law, grandfather, grandmother, brothers, sisters, and any other relatives or friends for whose funeral arrangements the administrator is responsible.
   b. The time allowable for each situation shall not exceed five (5) working days.
   c. Attendance at funerals of close relatives (other than the immediate family as defined in 2-a above), and friends. The time allowable shall not exceed three (3) working days.
3. Administrator's wedding or immediate family's wedding.
   a. The administrator's own wedding. The time allowable shall not exceed five (5) working days.
   b. Attendance at weddings in the immediate family. The time allowable shall not exceed three (3) working days.
4. Personal business or emergency.
   a. Leave days for personal business must be requested in writing in advance through the office of the Superintendent of Schools, or his designated representative, and must be given in ample time. Requests for leave days for personal business prior to, or immediately following, a holiday, and/or vacation shall be kept at a minimum and may not necessarily be granted.
   b. Other items of a nature of emergency approved by the Superintendent of Schools, or his designated representative.

SECTION G

Half-day Absences: Administrators reporting at the beginning of their work period shall be counted as absent one-half (1/2) day if they are forced to leave their work assignment because of illness or emergency situation any time after having been present three (3) hours, and the absence charged to their leave bank.

SECTION H

Jury Duty: Any administrator called to jury duty shall be considered to be fulfilling a basic duty of citizenship and, therefore, shall be on regular pay status, less the amount paid the administrator by the court for said jury duty. Absence for jury duty shall not be charged to the employee's leave-day bank.

SECTION I

Absences with pay not chargeable against the administrator's leave-day bank shall be granted for the following reasons:

1. Visitation of special programs in other schools and attendance at regional or state educational conferences as representatives of subject area departments, including sports clinics or curriculum study groups, may be approved. Said approval originates with a written request from an administrator for approval by the Board. Normally, only one representative will be approved for each visitation or conference. Requests must be made with sufficient time for adequate consideration for approval. Reimbursement of expenses for participation under this section is not the responsibility of the Board.

2. Time necessary to take selective service physical examination, not to exceed one day per year.

3. Administrators injured in the course of their job, said injury recognized under the provisions of the Michigan Workmen's Compensation Act. When said injury is the result of an accident, assault, or negligence on the part of the school district, the Board will continue pay at the daily rate per contract, less the amount paid by Workmen's Compensation, for a period up to a maximum of one hundred (100) days' pay.

4. Jury duty (see Article V, Section H).

5. Court appearance or when an administrator has been subpoenaed as a witness, less the amount received by the administrator for such court appearance.

   Any case of assault upon an administrator, while acting in a legal manner within the jurisdiction of his assignment, shall be promptly reported to the Board in writing or its designated representative. This representative shall then so inform the Board as soon as possible. The Board will provide legal counsel to advise the administrator of his rights and obligations with respect to such assault and shall render all reasonable assistance to the administrator in connection with handling of the incident by law enforcement and judicial authorities.

6. Items covered in Article III, Section D.

ARTICLE VI - LEAVE OF ABSENCE

SECTION A

Provisions for Leave of Absence: It shall be the policy of the Board to grant leaves of absence to administrators for the following reasons as listed and defined below:

1. Health

   a. Personal illness (physical or mental).
   b. Care of sick member of immediate family.

2. Maternity

3. Study in an institution of recognized rank.

4. Travel and work experience related to education.

5. Military service.

6. Sabbatical leave.

7. Any other leave deemed appropriate by the Board of Education.

8. Campaign for or serve in public office.

9. Peace Corps or National Teacher Corps (NTC).

SECTION B

Eligibility for Leave: Any administrator who has completed two or more years of service in the school district is eligible for a leave of absence (exception - military and sabbatical leaves).

SECTION C

Length of Leave: The original leave of absence may be for the remainder of a semester, the remainder of a school year, or for a complete school year. A leave of absence may be extended for one semester or one year upon written request made to the Board of Education. A leave of absence shall not end during a semester except by special permission.

SECTION D

Procedure for Application: All applications for a leave of absence shall be submitted, in writing, to the Board, who shall process said application. Applications shall be filed at least sixty (60) days before the first day of school. Failure to provide such notification will result in the denial of the request. Emergencies may be given consideration. An extension to a leave shall be requested at least one month before the termination of the original leave.

SECTION E

Status During Leave of Absence:

1. Except where otherwise provided, all leaves of absence shall be without pay.

2. Leave-day bank shall remain as of the balance at the beginning of the leave. The employee shall return on the same level of the salary schedule as of the beginning of the leave of absence.

3. Partial years shall be pro-rated according to procedures approved by the Board of Education.

4. Leave days and holidays shall not accrue during a leave of absence.

SECTION F

Return to Duty:

1. A leave of absence is granted with the expectation of the employee returning to an assignment at its termination. Since each position is usually manned during a leave of absence either by a temporary or permanent employee, it is therefore necessary to know the intent of the person on leave to make necessary arrangements. Therefore, it is the responsibility of an employee on leave of absence to give written notice to the Superintendent of Schools not less than sixty (60) days before the resumption of duty or the termination of leave, whichever is the later date. Failure to give such notice releases the Board of the responsibility of providing an assignment and employment.

2. The Board cannot guarantee the return of any employee to a specific building, grade level, or special assignment at the conclusion of a leave of absence. Every possible effort will be made to return an employee to the same or comparable assignment as that held prior to going on leave. "Returning tenure" administrators shall receive preference over first-year administrators.

3. The Board will require medical clearance when the leave has been for emotional or mental purposes. When advisable, the Board may require a physical examination when the condition would indicate it is needed. The Board shall pay for any required physical examination.

SECTION G - MATERNITY LEAVE

Maternity leave of up to one (1) year shall be granted, commencing not later than the end of the fifth (5th) month of pregnancy, except that when this date falls within one school month of the end of the semester, the administrator may be permitted to complete the semester. Return from such leave will be no earlier than six (6) weeks after the termination of the pregnancy. A female administrator adopting a child may receive a similar leave which shall commence upon entry of an order terminating the rights of the natural parents by the probate court. An administrator returning from leave provided in this paragraph shall be placed on that step of the salary schedule from which she went on leave.

SECTION H - MILITARY SERVICE

Any administrator who is required to serve in either active or inactive training duty or service in the Armed Forces of the United States will be given a leave of absence subject to the conditions herein. Seniority will accumulate during the period of such leave. Upon termination of such leave, the administrator shall be offered re-employment in his previous position or position of like seniority, status and pay, unless the circumstances have so changed as to make it impossible or unreasonable to do so, in which event he will be offered such employment in line with his seniority as may be available which he is capable of doing at the current rate of pay for such work provided he meets the following requirements:

1. He has not been dishonorably discharged.

2. Is physically able to do the work.

3. Reports for work within ninety (90) days of the date of such discharge or ninety (90) days after hospitalization continuing after discharge for not more than one (1) year. (Maximum time allowance is fifteen (15) months).

SECTION I - SABBATICAL LEAVE

1. Authorization

a. Sabbatical leave of absence may be granted to members of the administrative staff of Dearborn Township District #8. The granting of such leaves is subject to the approval of the Board, upon recommendation of the Superintendent, when in its considered judgment the professional competence and welfare of the schools will be benefited.

b. The rules and regulations of the Dearborn Township District #8 Sabbatical Leave Program shall be interpreted in accordance with Section 572, School Code of 1955--M.S.A. -15.35572.

2. Eligibility and Qualifications

a. Any administrator employed by the district who meets the qualifications shall be eligible to apply for Sabbatical Leave subject to the following conditions and requirements.

1) Applicant must hold a Life or Permanent Certificate.
2) Applicant must have seven (7) consecutive years of satisfactory service as a full-time employee in the district.
3) Sabbatical leaves of absence may be granted to not more than one (1) administrator in any one year.
4) Sabbatical leave may be granted for one (1) full semester or two (2) full consecutive semesters.
5) The applicant signs an agreement to return to service with the Dearborn Township District #8 Board of Education immediately on termination of his sabbatical leave and to continue service for a period of not less than one (1) year (unless causes beyond his control prevent it). Failure to comply must result in a refund of any compensation received from the Board while on leave plus interest at the annual rate of five (5) per cent. The refund shall be repaid within two (2) years of termination date of the sabbatical leave.

3. Purpose of Sabbatical Leave

a. Sabbatical leave is given to administrators to permit them to improve their ability to render educational service. Such improvement is usually achieved by formal study, research, and travel.

b. The following information shall be presented in the application:

1) For formal study - A program of study at an accredited college or university should be briefly outlined.
2) For research - A program of research under the guidance of competent research personnel should be briefly outlined.
3) For travel - A written plan, including the proposed itinerary, shall be submitted.
4) For other reasons - A written plan shall be submitted stating the professional objectives which are sought.

4. Application Requirements

a. Written application for sabbatical leave must be filed with the Superintendent not later than October 1st for a second semester leave; by April 14th for a first semester leave.

5. Requirements and Status While on Sabbatical Leave

a. Financial Policies.

1) Compensation for a staff member on sabbatical leave shall be one-half (1/2) of the salary he would receive were he not active staff status.
2) Payment of salary to a staff member on sabbatical leave shall be made in accordance with provisions of the Board for payment of salary to other members of the regular staff.

3) On returning from sabbatical leave, the employee shall be entitled to the automatic salary schedule increment as though he had been in continuous service in the school system.
4) The leave-day bank balance shall remain the same as the balance was at the beginning of the leave.

6. Reports Required

a. The Board shall require, and the administrator shall promptly furnish, a written report containing sufficient information to enable the Board to determine that the leave is being utilized in the approved manner. In the event the Board shall find that the administrator is not fulfilling the agreement, the entire sum paid to the administrator shall become immediately refunded to the Board. Failure to comply or refund any monies due shall be cause for the Board to take appropriate legal action.

7. Status Upon Returning

a. At the expiration of a sabbatical leave, the administrator shall be restored to his position or to a position of like nature, seniority, status, and pay, unless otherwise mutually agreed.

8. Recognition of Longevity

a. All other factors being equal the person with the greatest longevity shall be granted the leave if such leave is to be granted.

b. A written report shall be given to the Board within ten (10) days after reporting back to work.

ARTICLE VII - TERMINATION OF SERVICES

SECTION A

An administrator who terminates employment with the Board under the provisions of retirement shall also be eligible for severance pay on the basis of pay for one-half of the accumulated days in the administrator's leave-day bank. In case of death, the severance pay shall be paid to the estate of the administrator on the basis of pay for the accumulated days in the administrator's leave-day bank. Retirement shall be defined as age 55 or above, or a minimum of thirty (30) years' service, in district.

SECTION B

An administrator who terminates employment with the Board in accordance with the Michigan Teacher Tenure Act shall be eligible for severance pay on the basis of pay for one-half of the accumulated days in the leave-day bank, up to a maximum of thirty (30) days' actual pay.

SECTION C

An administrator who is discharged or who terminates his employment without at least sixty (60) days' notice of termination, or whose work record is unsatisfactory, shall not be eligible for benefits identified in Section A or B above. Special consideration shall be given for emergencies that may arise involving the voluntary termination of employment and the sixty (60) days' notice provision may be waived without penalty to the administrator.

SECTION D

All payments made under the provisions of this article shall be made at the rate of pay of the last full-time assignment of the employee in the school district.

ARTICLE VIII - INSURANCE PROTECTION

SECTION A

The Board shall provide Blue Cross Hospitalization, full coverage up to and including Family, Semi-Private, Master Medical, for each administrator.

SECTION B

The Board shall provide, without cost to the administrator, group life insurance protection which shall pay to the administrator's designated beneficiary the sum of $5,000 upon death with provision for double indemnity in the event of accidental death.

ARTICLE IX - EVALUATION OF ADMINISTRATORS

SECTION A

The Board recognizes that the process of evaluating administrative personnel is a complicated and difficult task requiring a thorough knowledge of both the skills being evaluated and the process by which such skills can be adequately measured. Because such knowledge and ability is, in itself a unique skill requiring specialized training and experience, the Board designates the superintendent of schools and any other administrative person that he may select to evaluate all administrators once a year prior to March 1.

SECTION B

All evaluations of any administrator shall be discussed with the administrator in question and shall be reduced to writing. The administrator shall receive a copy of each evaluation and a copy shall be placed on file in the Board office and be held in confidence and handled in an ethical manner.

SECTION C

No administrator shall be disciplined, reprimanded, reduced in rank or compensation, or deprived of any professional advantage without just cause. Any such discipline, reprimand, or reduction in rank, compensation or advantage, including adverse evaluation of administrator performance or violation of professional ethics asserted by the Board or any agent or representative thereof, shall be subject to the grievance procedure as provided in this contract.

ARTICLE X - VACANCIES, PROMOTIONS AND TRANSFERS

SECTION A

The Board shall give written notice of any administrative vacancies in the district to the Association. In selecting personnel to fill such vacancies, the Board with candidates of substantially equal qualification, will give preference to employees within the district and will also accord due weight to the years of service of each applicant with the district, whether as an administrator or otherwise. Vacancies shall be filled on the basis of the experience, competency and qualifications of the applicant, length of service in the district, and other relevant factors.

SECTION B

The Board recognizes that it is desirable in making assignments to consider the interests and aspirations of its administrators. Requests by an administrator for transfer to a different position or building shall be filed in writing with the Superintendent. The applicant shall set forth the reasons for transfer, the building or position sought and the applicant's qualifications. Such requests shall receive reasonable consideration by the Board.

SECTION C

An applicant with less service in the district shall not be awarded such position unless his qualifications shall be substantially superior. Service in the district, for purposes of this Agreement, shall mean continuous employment in the district, including substitute service, irrespective of tenure status, and shall include all periods when the administrator was on sabbatical or professional leaves of absence.

SECTION D

An involuntary transfer will be made only in case of emergency or to prevent undue disruption of the instructional program or to improve the operation of the district. The Board shall notify in writing the affected administrator and the Association of the reasons for such transfer. If the administrator objects to such transfer for the reasons given, the dispute may be resolved through the professional grievance procedure. When feasible, the Board agrees to transfer volunteers first. When involuntary transfers are necessary, the administrator's professional background and other qualifications shall be considered in determining which administrator is to be transferred. Administrators being involuntarily transferred will be transferred, if possible, to a comparable position and such transfer shall not result in a reduction of salary. An involuntary transfer will be made only after a meeting between the administrator involved and the Superintendent, at which time the administrator will be notified of the reason for the transfer.

SECTION E

Administrators shall be employed as administrators and made subject to the provisions of the Tenure Act.

ARTICLE XI - CREATION OF NEW POSITIONS

SECTION A

The Board shall give written notice of any new administrative position to be created to the Association.

SECTION B

Within ten (10) working days after the position has been filled the Board shall notify the Association in writing of the salary and duration of contract for such position.

SECTION C

The Association may within twenty (20) working days request in writing that the Board negotiate the above items.

SECTION D

The Board shall begin negotiation within twenty (20) working days of the request. The parties may extend this time limitation by mutual agreement.

SECTION E

Retroactive pay resulting from such negotiation shall commence sixty (60) working days after the first working day.

ARTICLE XII - PROTECTION OF ADMINISTRATORS

SECTION A

If any administrator, while acting in a legal manner as an administrator within the jurisdiction of his assignment, is complained against or sued, the Board will provide legal counsel and render all necessary assistance to the administrator in his defense. It shall be the responsibility of the administrator to bring any such complaints to the attention of the Board in writing as soon as possible.

SECTION B

Time lost by an administrator in connection with any incident mentioned in Section A of this Article shall not be charged against the administrator.

SECTION C

The Board shall reimburse administrators for any loss, damage or destruction of clothing or personal property of the administrator, while acting in a legal manner as an administrator. If an administrator is injured while acting in a legal manner as an administrator, expenses incurred for medical, surgical, and hospital care, in excess of those covered by hospitalization insurance provided by the Board, will be the responsibility of the Board.

ARTICLE XIII - GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE

SECTION A

The ultimate goal of a grievance procedure is to sincerely endeavor to resolve the problem at the first possible step. Every effort must be exhausted at each step before appealing to the next step.

SECTION B

A grievance is an unsettled complaint by a member of the bargaining unit, or by the Association on its own behalf, concerning:

1. Any alleged violation of this Agreement.
2. Any alleged violation of the policies, rules or regulations of the Board concerning conditions of employment.
3. Any disciplinary action.
4. Any alleged violation of any rule of law.

SECTION C

No grievances which claim back wages or other financial reimbursement by an employee covered by this Agreement, or by the Association, against the Board of Education, shall only be valid for a period of ten (10) working days prior to the date the grievance was first filed in writing. All back wages claimed shall have been earned.

SECTION D

If an appeal is not taken from a decision at any step of the following grievance procedure to the next step within five (5) working days of such decision, it shall be considered disposed of on the basis of the latest decision and not subject to further review or appeal.

SECTION E

Any administrator with a grievance, or the Association on its own behalf, may file a written statement of his grievance with the deputy superintendent within ten (10) working days from the initial time of the incident. Once a grievance has been filed it may not be altered except that the grieving party may delete items from the grievance.

SECTION F

Within ten (10) working days of receipt of the grievance, the deputy superintendent shall meet with the administrator, or his representative, in an effort to resolve the grievance. The deputy superintendent shall render his decision in writing and shall deliver one copy thereof to the grievant or his representative within ten (10) working days of such meeting.

SECTION G

If the administrator, his representative, or the Association is not satisfied with the decision of the deputy superintendent, or if the deputy superintendent fails to render a decision within the prescribed time, the administrator and/or the Association may appeal the grievance to the superintendent by filing notice thereof in writing within five (5) working days of receipt of the deputy superintendent's decision, and provide copies of all previous decisions and charges to the superintendent.

Within ten (10) working days of receipt of the grievance, the superintendent shall meet with the administrator, or his representative, in an effort to resolve the grievance. The superintendent shall render his decision in writing and shall deliver one copy thereof to the grievant or his representative within ten (10) working days of such meeting.

SECTION H

If the administrator, his representative, or the Association is not satisfied with the decision of the superintendent, or if the superintendent fails to render a decision within the prescribed time, the administrator and/or the Association may appeal the grievance to the Board of Education by filing notice thereof in writing within five (5) working days of receipt of the superintendent's decision, and provide copies of all previous decisions and charges to the Board of Education.

The administrator and/or the Association upon its request shall have the right to a formal hearing before the Board, either public, or private, at the option of the administrator.

The Board shall review the grievance at a regular meeting, a special meeting, or an executive session within twenty (20) working days from the time of the hearing. The Board shall render its decision in writing and shall deliver one copy to the administrator and one copy to the Association within ten (10) working days of such meeting.

SECTION I

If the administrator, his representative, or the Association is not satisfied with the decision of the Board, or if the Board fails to render a decision within the prescribed time, the administrator and/or the Association may process and appeal to the Michigan State Labor Mediation Board, which may or may not involve "Fact Finding" as the plaintiff may desire. The administrator or his representative shall notify the Board of Education, in writing, within ten (10) working days of the hearing authorized in Section H above, of such decision to appeal to the Labor Mediation Board and shall file such appeal within ten (10) working days following such notification. A copy of the original grievance and the written decisions at each step shall be provided for the State Labor Mediation Board. The Board of Education shall give ample consideration to the decision and/or recommendations of the State Labor Mediation Board and notify the Association of its decision.

SECTION J

If the Association is not satisfied with the decision of the Labor Mediation Board, or if the Board of Education fails to abide by the decision of the Labor Mediation Board, the Association may submit the grievance to arbitration before an impartial arbitrator selected by the parties. The Association shall notify the Board of Education, in writing, within ten (10) working days following the decision of the Labor Mediation Board, of its intent to submit the grievance to arbitration. If the parties cannot agree as to the arbitrator within fifteen (15) working days of the Association's notification, he shall be selected by the American Arbitration Association in accordance with its rules. The hearing before the arbitrator shall be governed by the rules of American Arbitration Association. The arbitrator shall have no power to alter, add to or subtract from the terms of this Agreement. Both parties agree to be bound by the award of the arbitrator and agree that judgment thereon may be entered in any court of competent jurisdiction.

SECTION K

The cost of any arbitration under this Article shall be borne by the parties on an equal basis. (Only official bills submitted by the arbitrator shall be considered as costs under this section.)

SECTION L

All records of grievances shall be kept entirely separate from the personnel files of the administrators, and no reference shall be included in such files to the fact that any administrator has initiated, pursued, failed to pursue, abandoned, or in any other way participated in proceedings under this Article.

SECTION M

If any administrator for whom a grievance is sustained shall be found to have been unjustly discharged, suspended or disciplined, he shall be reinstated with full reimbursement of all professional compensation lost. If he shall have been found to have been improperly deprived of any professional compensation, benefit or advantage, the same or its equivalent in money shall be paid to him.

ARTICLE XIV - NEGOTIATION PROCEDURES

SECTION A

It is contemplated that matters not specifically covered by this Agreement but which apply to rates of pay, wages, hours of employment or other conditions of employment shall be subject to professional negotiations between them from time to time during the period of this Agreement upon request by either party to the other. The parties agree to co-operate in arranging meetings, selecting representatives for such discussions, furnishing necessary information and otherwise constructively considering resolving any such matters.

SECTION B

In the event the salary schedule is opened for negotiation, by either party, as provided in Article III of this Agreement, the parties will promptly negotiate for the purpose of reaching an agreement upon a revised salary schedule for the next year. The parties will likewise begin negotiations for a new agreement covering wages, hours, terms and conditions of employment of administrators employed by the Board.

SECTION C

In any negotiations described in this Article, neither party shall have any control over the selection of the negotiating or bargaining representative of the other party, and each party may select its representatives from within or without the school district.

SECTION D

It is recognized that no final agreement between the parties may be executed without ratification by a majority of the Board and by a majority of the membership of the Association, but the parties mutually pledge that representatives selected by each shall be clothed with all necessary power and authority to make proposals, counter proposals, and concessions in the course of negotiations or bargaining, subject only to such ultimate ratification.

ARTICLE XV - MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

SECTION A

This Agreement shall supersede any rules, regulations or practices of the Board which shall be contrary to or inconsistent with its terms. It shall likewise supersede any contrary or inconsistent terms contained in any individual administrator contracts heretofore in effect. All future individual administrator contracts shall be made expressly subject to the terms of this Agreement. The provisions of this Agreement shall be incorporated into and be considered part of the established policies of the Board.

SECTION B

Copies of this Agreement shall be printed at the expense of the Board and presented to all administrators now employed or hereafter employed by the Board.

SECTION C

If any provisions of this Agreement or any application of the Agreement be found contrary to law, then such provision or application shall not be deemed valid and subsisting except to the extent permitted by law, but all other provisions or applications shall continue in full force and effect.

SECTION D

It is the administrator's responsibility to be neat and well-groomed at all times when engaged in school responsibilities. It is the responsibility of the Board and/or its designated representatives to discuss any abuse of this responsibility with the individual involved. Any refusal to co-operate or repeated incidents after warning shall be subject to disciplinary action as outlined in this contract.

SECTION E

Essential records required as a part of employment shall be provided by the administrator. Examples, but not limited to these, are: teaching certificates, transcripts of college credits, health examinations, report of TB skin test or x-ray, etc. Failure to provide these records is subject to disciplinary action as outlined in this contract.

SECTION F

Disciplinary action may include, but is not limited to, written and/or verbal reprimand, docking of a day's wages, suspension, or other appropriate action.

The following reprimand procedures are to be established:

1. Verbal reprimand.
2. Written reprimand.
3. Docking of a day's wages and suspension.
4. Repeated offenses will result in loss of position and/or termination of employment.

SECTION G

Realizing that it is desirable for administrators to be cognizant of current philosophies, trends and techniques, the Board may provide in-service work shops for all administrators in areas deemed necessary, and assume responsibility for expenses for such in-service work shops.

SECTION H

In order to improve communications which are vital to a well-run school district, regular meetings will be held between the administrative personnel and the Board. Such meetings shall be held at least four times during each school year.

All meetings and discussions will be general in nature and shall not circumvent any areas of communications or any authority of the superintendent of schools. These meetings will be called by the superintendent when requested by the Board or by Administrative personnel.

SECTION I

Both parties agree that continued progress in this school district depends upon the good will of the administrators and the Board of Education. Good will is not to be taken for granted--it is to be earned and preserved by scrupulously giving fair treatment to all. We will treat each other with dignity, respect and fairness in all facets of the employment relationship.

ARTICLE XVI - DURATION OF AGREEMENT

THIS AGREEMENT shall be effective as of July 1, 1969 and shall be in effect until June 30, 1969. This contract shall further automatically extend from year to year thereafter, unless one hundred and twenty (120) days prior to any anniversary date either party gives to the other, in writing, notice of an intention to terminate or modify this Agreement.

ARBITRATION AND PUBLIC EMPLOYEES*

Joseph Stone, Attorney-Arbitrator

To those in the field, it always comes as somewhat of a surprise that the arbitration process is either not understood or misunderstood. On several occasions this year, I have spoken to trainees of the Civil Service Commission very much along the lines of today. These talks have been directed toward labor people within the government who are dealing with personnel problems, who have been brought in by the Commission for a quick course in labor management relations. I give them a little talk in arbitration–the process, and what it constitutes. It's always an "eye-opener" that there is such a lack of understanding about it.

For those of you who are at all familiar with the process, perhaps my opening remarks may appear to be somewhat fundamental. But I think that before we discuss in any way its role or function, perhaps we ought to understand what the arbitration process is. It is a very old process. . . .

Those of us who do arbitrating hear enough screams from losing parties to know that, at least, we are not universally cutting the issue in half. Sometimes you have to and you have sound reasons for doing so, but in any event, it is not universally done despite allegations to that effect. The process has been utilized through the centuries.

I was very much interested–about three weeks ago there was an article in the Wall Street Journal. Apparently, a group of Rabbis had relied on Judaic law through the centuries to call together an arbitration session involving a slum, or several slum landlords and their tenants; and despite their absence of any subpoena power, they had taken whatever pressures they could generate as a consequence of their position in religious positions to get jurisdiction over these landlords, and they had worked out a settlement for the particular problem here.

In a labor relations sense, while there has been some arbitration through the years, in a very broad way, arbitration has really caught on since World War II. During the war, for those of you old enough to remember, the right to strike had been effectively abrogated.

But once you take away the right to strike, at least in a private sector, then you have no bargaining power on the part of an employee group. As a consequence of that, various boards were set up in various industries with the parent board, the War Labor Board. You had various boards in the maritime industry and construction industry and various other sectors to make sure that unwarranted employer action did not take place, or at least, that there be some kind of avenue provided for working out problems that arose in the industrial field.

It's interesting to note that many of the outstanding arbitrators of today got their start at that time with government agencies and are alumni of such agencies. But the utilization of the governmental agencies acting in a sense as arbitration boards instilled in both labor and management some readiness to accept arbitration in the years that have followed, so that today it's a highly accepted technique in private industry.

Now, what are we talking about when we talk about the arbitration process? Essentially, arbitration is nothing more than a trial or a hearing at which a conflict of views or positions are being resolved. All of you I'm sure, see enough TV with Judd for the Defense, Mr. Marshall, Perry Mason, and all the other wonderful characters who are involved in courtroom scenes generally starting somewhere around 25 minutes to the hour which end up in about 5 minutes to the hour with the culprit apprehended, as a result of brilliant cross examination, etc.

In a sense, the arbitration process is not much different. Arbitration is a trial, I've said. It's a trial very much along the lines of a courtroom trial; however, it is less formal.

Let me spend a few moments really outlining what an arbitration hearing would look like in a private sector. Generally speaking, it takes place in a hotel room or a meeting room in the office of a company, or in some governmental agency room set aside either by the Federal Conciliation Mediation Service or a State Mediation Service.

It is a room that has no American flag and no jury box. Normally, the tables are very much like the ones you are sitting at–sometimes without the green felt. Very often in a T-shape, with the arbitrators sitting here, the table going down there, union people on one side, management people on the other side. Most often they are represented by attorneys, sometimes represented by their union officials or their company personnel managers.

The arbitration starts with, normally speaking, an opening statement by the "moving" party. Now the moving party is the party which has to prove something first. It is normally the union. The unions file the grievance. They are complaining about "X" and they are saying that "X" constitutes a violation of the collective bargaining agreement. They are the moving party because they have to prove "X". The union comes in and makes an opening statement first. The opening statement may or may not be followed by an opening statement by the company or the management people. Management may reserve the right to make an opening statement after the union's case is in.

*Presented at the Seminar on Professional Negotiations in Public Education, Montgomery County Education Association, Rockville, Maryland, September 28, 1968.

After the opening statement, the union then proceeds to put on its case in the usual, traditional technique of witnesses and of presenting documentation. They examine the witness through direct examination. The company representative then cross-examines. The union lawyer then comes back for rebuttal testimony, and then the company for testimony, and very often, the arbitrator gets into the picture somewhere along the line because he wants to clarify for himself exactly what the testimony is about.

After a series of witnesses have been put on by the union and the union is satisfied it has established its case through its witnesses and through its documentation the other party–normally the company or management–tries to, in effect, destroy the union's case. They do it in the same way the union has put on its case, mainly through witnesses and documentation with the same procedure of examination and cross-examination, etc.

Normally speaking, you have very strict rules of evidence in a court of law. These rules of evidence are not slavishly followed in arbitration. The whole atmosphere is one of greater informality, both with respect to the atmosphere of physical set-up, itself as well as to the procedure being followed. Therefore, you will have testimony coming in very often in an arbitration that you wouldn't not have coming in in a court of law.

The safeguard primarily is that in an arbitration you do not have a jury and you do not have any appellate procedure whereby after a decision is rendered, it is then going up to a review court. Moreover, your arbitrator normally speaking is a man who has some training and experience has some knowledge and some expertise in evaluating testimony, so that both the materiality and relevancy of the testimony that he's hearing, which in a court may not be heard, is something that he can determine with a fair degree of accuracy overall.

Once the testimony and documentation has been submitted by both parties, you often have closing arguments. A sound closing argument ties together what the respective parties think they have proved factually, with what their theories and contentions and legal positions may be. There is a weaving together of the whole story.

It's a sales argument essentially that will try to demonstrate to you how persuasive and how valid their position is and how invalid the opposing party's position is. During this closing argument, they may make reference to other decisions of arbitrators which they have found in the books.

With respect to that particular aspect, that courtrooms more often follow previous decisions, or much more influenced by a previous decision. Arbitrators are not bound by a previous arbitrator's decision, even their own, and to a large extent may not follow it. However, I'm sure that where you have a novel or complex problem, and there is a decision by an arbitrator who is a highly regarded arbitrator, at least you're going to read the arbitrator's decision most carefully and if you are going to differ with it, you are going to make sure that your reasons appear pretty sound to you . . .

The arbitrator's decision is binding. There is no court review of any kind and nobody else has the right to say aye or nay to it–with one exception. You go into court to get an enforcement of an arbitration's decision, where the other party or the losing party refuses to go along with the decision. A court of law will enforce an arbitrator's decision.

In a very limited number of cases, where it can be demonstrated that there may have been fraud of some kind in the rendering of this decision, or if the arbitrator has substantially exceeded his authority to arbitrate any particular issue, then a court will intervene. But these are rare indeed. This, then, is the arbitration process, as we know it today.

I have given you a rather broad-brush view of this. Before we go on to assess the function of the arbitration process in public employment, perhaps we ought to do one further thing and that's to try and delineate arbitration process as a tool–from conciliation and mediation which are the other tools and techniques that are available and are sometimes confused in the minds of the public.

Conciliation is generally the first process that occurs in a labor management situation. It occurs at the time when the parties are in negotiation and have not yet had an agreement executed. The conciliator is essentially a wise or knowledgeable person in the labor management field, who has been through a lot of negotiations and a lot of management companies and unions. Because of his knowledge of a particular industry or problems that they are having, because of his knowledge of the people involved, he is very helpful.

The parties very often can work through a third party in ways they can not work face-to-face. In terms of jockeying for position for negotiation, the conciliator is a man who is there during negotiations, "flying by the seat of his pants", who is trying to be as helpful as he can possibly be–from anything like messenger boy service to some cajoling, perhaps to some advising.

It is difficult really to have an understanding of the role unless you're there watching how a conciliator works but that's essentially what he is doing. Maybe a "midwife" would be a good description, I don't know.

Once the conciliator's services have been utilized, but for one reason or another the parties have been unable to get together, they may move on to the mediation process. A mediation in many ways resembles the arbitration process. It's more of a fact-finding and advisory type of operation. The mediators actually make recommendations for resolving the impasse that has occurred, but these recommendations are not binding unlike arbitration where they are.

The mediator may be able to suggest a new path the parties themselves have not tried or he may be able to bring certain pressures to bear by virtue of the fact that a neutral third party looks at this situation in a particular way. Then, of course, if mediation doesn't do the trick, in some cases in private sector you can move on to arbitration.

Arbitration, however, for new terms in an agreement is not as widespread a technique or tool, as it is in a grievance procedure field which I will get to later. Nevertheless, if the parties so wish they can agree on arbitrating whatever their impasse is. Once that decision is rendered it's a binding and final decision. We should have some idea as to the arbitration process and where it fits in in the labor management picture as a tool. What is its function? What role does it have in terms of the kind of thing you are discussing in today's negotiations? Well, let's start back a little before we get to that question. I had lunch today with a number of people at a function in the course of which I had a few moments speaking with a highly regarded attorney in town here, who has the reputation of being a great liberal, etc.

"Well, Joe," he said, "I wasn't with the teachers last year on the strike. They were striking against an injunction."

Now this is the legal way to look at it. I suggested to him that perhaps we are looking at it a little superficially when we look at it that way. Perhaps, I said, we ought to at least philosophically think of one thing. Let us suppose that the avenue for airing employee complaints is not there, there is no avenue, there's no acceptable substitute for a strike, then what do employees do?

Strikes will always occur in the absence of an acceptable substitute for airing employee complaints. I think they will occur whether the law forbids them or not, and witness around the country, though the law does forbid them and the strikes occur. And they will occur, either in the traditional form of a strike or, if sanctions become so harsh that at least the outward manifestations of a strike are eliminated, mass slowdowns, mass resignations, mass sick leave and other work stoppages will occur.

In the absence of acceptable substitutes, the frequency with which strikes in the public sector will occur, will increase. When you have a strike, you have a community emergency situation. People are annoyed. Children don't go to school, garbage isn't collected and other things happen and the public gets quite annoyed. And you then have all kinds of demands by the public for suppression of the employees, or for a seeking of alternatives as to how to handle this situation.

You could handle it in many ways, I suppose. You could suppress the strike and break it. You face the problem of whether or not you have these other manifestations of resignation. Or you could seek legislation to meet the particular problem that is at hand. But then you are going to end up with the weirdest collection of laws on the books designed to meet particular problems.

I think there is a more realistic approach. This is not in terms of legislation to meet the particular problems, or in terms of suppression, but in terms of having the parties, themselves, agree. There must be established some technique for at least fact-finding as to what the issues and facts are and then moving on from there.

Experience with fact-finding bodies very often instills in the parties a desire to make some kind of arrangement for the settlement of disputes from a long-range point of view to avoid the same kind of crisis they have just come through. The day when the employer is the final arbitor as to what will be has just been abandoned in the private sector. The employer has become an advocate of his possessions, and this experience which we have had in the private sector where there has been a seeking-out of techniques for the settlement of their disputes by neutral, impartial third persons who have been mutually selected, is a process which I think is perfectly adaptable to public employment.

I visualize no reason why this cannot take place. As a matter of fact, we are beginning to see the utilization of fact-finding bodies, beginning to see the utilization of arbitration, at least on the federal level. Under Executive Order 10988, arbitration is one of the techniques being used.

Before anybody raises the question about it, federal arbitration is still of an advisory nature. I have sat in on 3 in determining applicable units, and after 3 or 4 days of hearings, have written long, 20-page decisions—all of which were advisory to the head of the agency.

If the opinion is well written and well reasoned, the arbitrator has done a conscientious job, then it's awfully difficult for the head of an agency to come and say "the heck with that," or "I'm not going to follow it" because then he's got some very sticky questions to answer—at least to the public.

I'm aware of the fact that some objection has been raised that arbitration in a sense would constitute a delegation of governmental authority to a person not authorized under law to be resolving questions. I have just indicated that advisory arbitrations under Executive Order 10988 are rendered and I see no reason why they could not be rendered at different levels. At least in that area, there can be no real basis for that kind of objection.

There may be other areas in which an arbitration decision does not, in any real true sense of the word, constitute a turning-over of governmental authority. For example, let's take the area of imposing discipline on a teacher for one reason or another. The teacher agrees that the discipline imposed was unwarranted. The case is heard by an arbitrator who decides "yes" or "no" as to whether discipline should have been imposed or not imposed. I don't believe there is a sound basis for concluding that we are thereby turning over governmental authority.

This whole area, it seems to me, is one which could utilize some exploration, but I have no question in my own mind that there are vast areas of employer or management decisions that lend themselves to the arbitration process without a giving-up of governmental authority that is imposed on this particular individual by law.

Now how does the arbitration process work as I think you are going to have to utilize it? One of your largest areas involves strikes where there is a complaint being made about employer action involving employees—good old fashioned grievances. This is the largest area which gives rise to strikes—even in a public sector.

The private sector's experience, and the handling of that type of grievance has virtually eliminated that whole area of strikes. The work stoppages have been eliminated during the course of collective bargaining agreement by virtue of grievance machinery that calls for a final determination by an impartial third party.

Normally, the grievance procedure that is set up in a collective bargaining agreement irrevocably calls for a two-three-four step process, whereby at least in a factory situation, for example, you would have the employee talking to his foreman. If they can't resolve the issue, then they go to step 2, where the head of that department will be talking to a union representative. If that can't be resolved it will then go to the plant manager, international representative of steelworkers or somebody at that level. Then if they can't resolve it the arbitrator handles it.

But where you have a final determination made by an impartial person, work stoppages have virtually been eliminated and I think this would be equally true in the public sector to a large extent.

Assuming you have obtained arbitration as a process in the settlement of a dispute in your agreement, then the whole arbitration process gives meaning, vitality and life to the agreement. An agreement is as good as the parties make it. To the extent that it defines the obligations and responsibilities of the parties, which they both agree to and work under, then everything is fine. But once the parties disagree, or once the parties will not live up to some provisions in an agreement, then the agreement becomes worthless. This is where the arbitration process comes in to give meaning and substance to the agreement the parties themselves have worked out.

It would come as a surprise to you that thoroughly intelligent, highly articulate people very often write agreements that, at least, in part, would say something that is quite different from what they intended. It may say one thing on page one, and something else on page twelve, that is inconsistent. Immediately a situation arises where the company says "My rights are set forth on page one, and the union says, "No, what I have to do is set forth on page twelve."

The arbitrator at this point has the problem of resolving what the intention of the parties was at the time they executed this agreement. He may go back to the negotiation process itself in trying to find out what was being sought and what was being rejected.

The arbitrator's sole function is to give meaning to the intention of the agreement. He may have to resolve inconsistencies by reading the agreement as a whole. He may have to give meaning to a substance which otherwise does not have meaning if a particular position is upheld. But all of these activities, give a vitality and substance to an agreement which would otherwise be a dead letter—at least in this area.

Also, the arbitrator is your enforcement arm. Suppose the agreements were clear, and one party says, "The heck with it, I'm not going to do it." I suppose you could have a strike because there is generally some kind of a loophole but the very purpose of the arbitration provisions is eschew strikes. You then "grieve" by filing a grievance.

Let's say the company has breached the agreement. If you can demonstrate this to the arbitrator, and he upholds the grievance, you have something to take to court for enforcement. There would not be a work stoppage because of the dispute. So enforcement of the agreement is aided and abetted tremendously by the arbitration process.

Arbitration also shapes the manner in which the agreement is implemented. The very fact that there is a provision to have a third party look over the shoulder of each party, as to how they are going to carry out their obligations under the agreement, makes for a very careful second-look as to what you are going to do.

If the company is about to take an action, it's got to be aware of the fact that somebody else is going to take a look at it. On the union side, also, the fact that a third party is going to look at a situation, may dampen the ardor of some union people or some union officials from making a lot of frivolous and phony claims.

The arbitration process is not the most expensive process in the world, but by the same token, arbitrators do get paid, time and energy have to be expended, people get off from work and are very often compensated by their respective bodies, so that the union is in no position to just scream "bloody murder" about everything. It gets too expensive to do so, and they have to be making choices.

The very way that the agreement is implemented by this vague presence of a third party arbitrator who is going to be making a final decision, if called upon, in a way shapes the conduct of a party.

The arbitration process also constitutes a safety valve for letting off a lot of steam. It takes a lot of the steam out of a situation that otherwise could fester and become tense. By the time a hearing is over, if the arbitrator has been smart enough to get in a word to salve the consciences or the feelings of the parties, they can leave the hearing without the kind of animosity that may be created in other than a combat situation where everybody recognizes that certain kind of conduct is more permissible perhaps than at other times.

People are always surprised that lawyers seem to be so combative at the trial and so friendly after the trial. I think this is part of the psychology of the situation. So that the hearing, itself, offers the opportunity for letting off steam.

Somebody within the three-quarters of an hour used the term "human relations". Basically this is what labor relations are—human relations. I suggest to you if you read the newspaper on the labor-management situation and don't understand what is going on, that perhaps you start looking for the politics of the situation to find out what is going on.

Politics plays a tremendous role. The union is a political organization with its own internal politics. The company is a political organization with its interplay of people and situations.

Very often things are happening that require a decision which nobody wants to make. The arbitrator is a natural. Everybody agrees to let him make the decision. The losing party always has someone to point to. It represents an opportunity for an outsider to be blamed for the situation. Don't minimize this. There may be a time when blaming an outsider may be a very healthy thing.

So the arbitration process has these various functions, all of which are salutary in terms of the human relations situation.

I think that the successful development of grievance procedures terminating in arbitration of a binding nature has probably been one of the crowning achievements of collective bargaining in this country and witness the fact that your work stoppages have virtually been eliminated. I think that one of the reasons, if not the main reason, for this tremendous success is the fact that better than 90% of the estimated 150,000 collective bargaining agreements in this country provide for binding arbitration at the end of a grievance procedure. I would suggest to you, based on this experience, that there is a responsibility on the part of negotiators in the public sector, both union and management, to adopt and to utilize these techniques that have proven so successful.

Now, all I can say at this point is, "Anyone for arbitration?"

Description and Analysis

NEW JERSEY BOARDS MAY BREAK AGREEMENTS TO BETTER EDUCATIONAL WELFARE OF PUPILS

The New Jersey Commissioner of Education found that the Newark Board of Education was within its rights in unilaterally rescinding the promotion procedures which were included in the agreement with the Newark Education Association.

The Board felt that the educational welfare of the pupils was threatened by the shortage of Negro administrators in the city schools. In an attempt to correct this situation, the Board rescinded its established promotion list and created a promotional pool from which candidates were to be selected. Appointments were awarded on a temporary acting basis to persons who had not been on the prior eligibility list.

The Commissioner ruled that while a board is legally and morally bound to comply in good faith with the terms of an agreement entered into with its employees, "it cannot be foreclosed thereby from exercising its discretionary authority to take appropriate and necessary unilateral action when the educational welfare of the pupils requires such action." However, a board may so act "only in the face of a real threat or obstacle to the proper operation of the school system, or in an emergency of equal importance."

ARKANSAS MUNICIPALITIES NOT REQUIRED TO BARGAIN WITH EMPLOYEES' UNIONS

The Arkansas Supreme Court reversed the decision of the Sebastian Chancery Court that the City of Fort Smith was required to bargain with a union representing City sanitation department employees.

The right of public employees to join a union and the right of a union to present grievances to city officials were recognized. The decision of the Chancery Court that the employees dismissed because of union membership be reinstated was affirmed.

In concurring with the majority opinion, Justices Byrd and Jones and Chief Justice Harris maintained that municipal employees do have the right to bargain collectively but have no recourse to the courts should the city refuse their request. The concurring opinion is in accord with the opinion of Attorney General Joe Purcell, September 25, 1968, with respect to a contract entered into by the Arkansas Department of Labor with a union representing its employees. The Attorney General, citing the Potts and Norwalk Cases, found that public employees have the right to membership in labor unions without the right to strike, and in the absence of statutory prohibition, collective bargaining agreements are permitted.

EVIDENCE OF MEMBERSHIP REQUIRED FOR NEW YORK CERTIFICATION WITHOUT ELECTION

The New York Public Employment Relations Board certified the Amityville Teachers Association as exclusive bargaining agent for the teacher unit in Union Free School District No. 6, Towns of Babylon and Oyster Bay.

The Association was certified without an election on the submission of authorization cards by 55 percent of the eligible employees Each card indicated membership in the Association and designation of the Association as exclusive representative in negotiations.

The Amityville Federation of Teachers submitted cards signed by 10 percent of the eligible employees, a sufficient percentage to prevent certification without an election. The Federation was not successful in blocking certification of the Association because the cards submitted merely indicated designation of the Federation for negotiation purposes, and did not include evidence of membership.

MASSACHUSETTS TEACHER IMPROPERLY DENIED SABBATICAL LEAVE

The arbitrator in the Chicopee, Massachusetts, grievance case ruled that a teacher who had taught in the system since September 1959, and had been granted two leaves of absence for maternity reasons was eligible for sabbatical leave.

The agreement between the Chicopee School Committee and the Teachers Association provides that in order to be eligible for a sabbatical leave, a teacher must have "completed at least seven (7) consecutive full school years of service in the Chicopee School System. . . ."

Following each of her brief maternity leaves, the grievant had returned to the system as a substitute and was subsequently reinstated to regular full-time status. The arbitrator found that "her employment each year as a regular and as a substitute teacher was sufficiently 'substantial' (e.g. in this case, well more than one-half of each year) to the degree that her employment reasonably is concluded to have been 'continuous,' and hence consecutive and full in nature."

It was determined that the grievant had been improperly denied sabbatical leave, and should be considered as eligible for consideration for the following year.

INDIVIDUAL SALARY NEGOTIATIONS FOR PSYCHOLOGISTS PREVENTED BY AGREEMENT

The AAA arbitrator found that the Board of Education of Yorktown Central School District No. 2 violated its agreement with the Yorktown Faculty Association when it negotiated psychologists' salaries on an individual basis.

The Agreement did not include salary provisions for psychologists, but stated that the Association represented a unit of "all certified personnel" with exceptions specifically mentioned. The arbitrator found that psychologists are properly represented by the Association and ruled "that the Board should negotiate forthwith with the Association on the question of terms and conditions of employment for psychologists." He stated that the provisions need not be the same as those for other employees, so long as they are determined through negotiations between the two parties.

MILLAGE INCREASE RECOMMENDED BY SWARTZ CREEK FACT-FINDER; AGENCY SHOP AND SCHOOL CALENDAR ARE NEGOTIABLE

The Michigan Labor Mediation Board fact-finder in the impasse in negotiations between the Swartz Creek Board of Education and the Swartz Creek Teacher Association found that agency shop and school calendar are negotiable items which should be included in the agreement. Other recommendations included released time for the Association president, payment for exceeding class size maximum, starting salary of $6,675 for the first year of the agreement, to be raised to $7,375 for the second year, and payment of $6.00 or 1/6 of base salary for emergency substitute duty by regular teachers, driver training, and summer school assignments.

A millage increase was recommended. There has been no millage election since 1963, and "Swartz Creek is 17th out of 21 Genessee County school districts in utilizing available tax resources." The issues of special services and deferred payment upon retirement for length of service to the system were suggested as guidelines for future programs and were not recommended for inclusion in the current agreement. On the remaining issues of special committees and pay for coordinators, the parties were near agreement, and further bargaining was suggested.

Data and Statistics

NEGOTIATION AGREEMENTS, 1967-68

The analysis of the negotiation agreements which were filed in the NEA Research Division depository of agreements for 1967-68 has provided the summary table below.

There are two basic types of agreements, procedural and comprehensive. Procedural agreements contain combinations of three basic elements: (a) recognition of an organization or an elected negotiating committee as representing a unit of employees for negotiation purposes, (b) negotiation procedures and (c) procedures for the resolution of impasse. Comprehensive agreements may include all or some of the items found in procedural agreements, but in addition contain specific items negotiated and agreed upon by the parties, such as salary schedules, leave policies, and other items relating to personnel and conditions of employment.

For 1967-68 the depository of agreements contains 2,225 agreements from 2,212 school systems. The additional 13 agreements were obtained from school systems which filed more than one agreement; for example, in Winchester, Massachusetts, one agreement was filed for the Winchester Teachers Association and another was filed for the Winchester Principals Group. Each group negotiates separately with the school board.

This year's analysis covers 685 more agreements than the 1966-67 Survey; the number of procedural agreements increased by 480, and the number of comprehensive agreements increased by 205. The number of systems filing more than one agreement increased from 9 to 13. States which had comprehensive agreements for the first time during 1967-68 were Indiana, Maryland, Montana, Virginia, and the District of Columbia. Summary tables for 1966-67 agreements were reported in the November 1967 (Vol. 1, No. 3) issue of the Negotiation Research Digest.

The following table presents the numbers and types of agreements by state, by national affiliation of the recognized organization, by enrollment strata, and by regions (see below).

Judicial Decisions, Opinions, and Statutes

PETITIONERS,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
FRANKLYN TITUS, SUPERINTENDENT OF THE NEWARK BOARD OF EDUCATION and THE NEWARK BOARD OF EDUCATION, ESSEX COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENTS.	:

For the Petitioners, Bracken and Walsh
(Joseph F. Walsh, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondents, Victor A. DeFilippo, Esq.

In a decision dated October 22, 1968, the Commissioner remanded this matter for further consideration by both parties. In his decision the Commissioner pointed out that the ratification by the teachers' association of respondents' new promotion policy, which had been assured at the time of the hearing, had not in fact been realized and that as a result issues not raised or argued at the hearing of this matter emerged. The Commissioner took the position, therefore, that, in the light of this development, the parties should be afforded an opportunity to resolve the controversy or to be heard on the new issues raised before his final adjudication.

Apparently this course of action had no appeal to either side, both of whom preferred that the Commissioner decide the dispute without further attempts to work out a mutually agreeable solution. An appeal to the State Board of Education from the decision of the Commissioner to remand was filed on October 30, 1968. The State Board of Education, in a decision rendered November 13, 1968, remanded the matter to the Commissioner with a directive to render a decision within one month.

The factual situation underlying this controversy, the issues raised thereby, and the contentions of the parties have been set forth in detail in the Commissioner's interlocutory decision of October 22, 1968, and will not be repeated herein. Said decision is specifically incorporated herein and made an integral part of that which follows.

At a conference of counsel held November 20 at the Division of Controversies and Disputes, Trenton, agreements were reached that (1) this matter be submitted on the pleadings, argument and exhibits offered in connection with the original petition filed on August 19, 1968, supplemented by pertinent excerpts from minutes of the Board of its meetings on June 30, 1967, July 1, 1967, and July 11, 1968; (2) the decision herein be confined within the issues raised in the original pleadings and the further issues raised in the Commissioner's decision of October 22, 1968; (3) the membership of the N.T.A. did not ratify the proposal of its negotiating team and that such rejection occurred subsequent to the hearing on September 13, 1968; and (4) the Federal Court action alluded to on page 1 of the Commissioner's decision to remand was instituted after rather than prior to the filing of the petition herein on August 19, 1968. It should be noted further that neither party felt any necessity for inclusion of the Newark Teachers' Association as a party nor has that organization at any time requested leave to intervene in these proceedings.

Included in the adopted rules and regulations of the Newark Board of Education are rules setting forth the procedures by which promotions are made to administrative and supervisory positions. Such promotion procedures are included in an "Agreement between the Newark Board of Education and the Newark Teachers' Association covering the period Feb. 1, 1967 to Feb. 1, 1970" (hereinafter "the agreement"). Petitioners contend that in changing the promotion practices, respondents violated their own rules and the agreement made with the staff.

There is no question of the right of the Board to make rules for the government of the school (N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1), but what of its power to enter into an agreement with its teachers covering matters of employment? The Commissioner is already on record that a board of education has an affirmative duty to meet with employee representatives and an obligation to take into account and give full consideration to their proposals with respect to salaries, working conditions and the general welfare of the employees. Perth Amboy Teachers Association v. Perth Amboy Board of Education, 1965 S.L.D. 159. Moreover, the State Board of Education by resolution dated March 2, 1966, has required each board of education to develop, in cooperation with its staff, a procedure for the disposition of grievances and to file and keep on record a written copy of such procedure. In the Commissioner's judgment, such action can extend by mutual consent to agreement on other matters involving employment, working conditions and similar mutual concerns. The Legislature has also recognized the existence of such agreements in its recent enactment of Chapter 303, Laws of 1968, the Employer-Employee Relations Act, wherein it provided:

> "Nothing in this act shall be construed to annul or modify, or to preclude the renewal or continuation of any agreement heretofore entered into between any public employer and any employee organization * * *."

A further question to be answered is whether the incumbent Board, which came into being on July 1, 1968, is subject to an agreement which was made by a predecessor and to which it was not a party.

The excerpts from the minutes referred to in stipulation (1) above disclose that each Newark Board of Education since the formulation of the agreement with the N.T.A. has taken formal action to adopt its terms. The 1967-68 Board at its first meeting on July 1, 1967, adopted "the Rules, By-Laws and Regulations for the Government of the Public Schools as codified February 1, 1963, with amendments and deletions made through June 30, 1967." These rules and regulations included modifications based on the agreement, supra. The 1968-69 Board took similar action at its initial meeting on July 1, 1968. Moreover, at no point in their defense in this matter have respondents asserted in any way that they do not consider themselves a party to the agreement made by their predecessor, or that they have not continued to accept and enjoy the benefits of such agreement. On the contrary, all acts of the Board and its officers in dealing with the appropriate negotiating officers of the Association, and the negotiation of a revised promotion procedure itself, lend support to the clear acceptance by all parties of the viability of the agreement. It is therefore the conclusion of the Commissioner that for the purposes of the decision herein he will accept the subject agreement as a proper basis for the claims made by petitioners.

Respondent Board saw fit, however, to suspend its rules governing promotions and to formulate a new procedure aimed at producing certain results which it believed would effect desirable changes in the school system. It suspended the eligibility lists, appointed persons not on any list to vacancies in a temporary acting status, and adopted a new procedure creating a promotional pool. Petitioners, although placed in the new pool, lost the advantage they had acquired by being on an eligibility list, and as a result filed this action to preserve the rights they claim.

Respondents defend their action on the grounds of educational necessity and statutory right. They contend that a condition had developed which was thwarting the satisfactory operation and development of the public schools in the city and as such required appropriate corrective action. They point out that they attempted to effect such corrective measures within the framework of the agreement with the majority representative and had reason to believe at the time of the hearing herein that those efforts had been successful. But whether or not the N.T.A. ultimately approved the proposed alteration in the promotion policy, respondents contend that the change had to be made in the best interests of the school system and that they were within the scope of their statutory powers in taking such action outside the terms of the agreement. They cite the powers and duties to make rules ascribed to boards of education in N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 and assert that the actions herein are in accord with that statute. Respondent Board argues further that all of its teachers are employed under its own rules, as provided in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4 and are subject to all of the regulations of the Newark Board of Education. It cites its rule 103.28 which provides:

> "Any rule of the Board may be suspended by a two-third majority of the entire Board * * *."

It contends that the action to adopt the new promotion procedure at its August 1968 meeting was accomplished by the invoking of such rule.

Petitioners disagree and contend that the Board breached its contractual obligations, and in so doing violated both the law and its own rules. They maintain that respondents' action was grounded in a purpose to appoint non-white personnel to administrative and supervisory positions and although such a result might be held to be desirable, under the circumstances herein it constitutes an unlawful discrimination based upon race and violates the rights of the petitioners.

We come then to the basic issue in this appeal. What is the legal effect of the Board's rules and of the agreement between the Board and the N.T.A. upon the statutory powers delegated to the Board by the Legislature? Since it has been held that the Board may enter into an agreement governing matters of employment and working conditions with the majority representative of its professional staff, can the Board by such an action and instrument give away or abdicate the responsibilities and duties assigned to it by law?

With respect to the Board's suspension and modification of its rules governing promotion, it is well established that a Board is not bound by its rules and may alter them as it deems necessary or appropriate. Greenway v. Board of Education of Camden, 1939-49 S.L.D. 151, affirmed State Board of Education 155, affirmed 129 N.J.L. 46 (Sup. Ct. 1942), 129 N.J.L. 461 (E. & A. 1943); Flagg v. Board of Education of Newark, 1963 S.L.D. 65, 69. It is to be noted that petitioners had not acquired any vested rights by being on a promotion eligibility list. Placement on such a list did not guarantee promotion or remove the necessity for the Board to make appointments to particular positions by formal action. None of petitioners had been so appointed and therefore none had acquired rights which were subsequently rescinded by Board action. Placement on the eligibility list entitled them at best to be considered for future vacancies, and that consideration was preserved when their names were automatically placed in the new promotion pool.

The Legislature of New Jersey has a mandate under the state constitution to provide for a thorough and efficient system of free public schools. New Jersey Constitution, Article VIII, Section IV, paragraph 1. In carrying out this duty the Legislature has seen fit to delegate the operation of the public schools to local district boards of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:10-1 To accomplish its purpose the Legislature has further invested boards of education with broad discretionary powers with respect to the day-to-day functioning of the schools within their jurisdiction. That authority is clearly expressed in N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1:

"The board shall –

c. Make, amend and repeal rules, not inconsistent with this title or with the rules of the state board, for its own government and the transaction of its business and for the government and management of the public schools and the public school property of the district and for the employment, regulation of conduct and discharge of its employees * * *; and

d. Perform all acts and do all things, consistent with law and the rules of the state board, necessary for the lawful and proper conduct, equipment and maintenance of the public schools of the district."

The board's powers with respect to rules governing its professional staff are more expressly enunciated in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4:

"Each board of education may make rules, not inconsistent with the provisions of this title, governing the employment, terms and tenure of employment, promotion, and dismissal, and salaries and time and mode of payment thereof of teaching staff members for the district, and may from time to time change, amend or repeal the same, and the employment of any person in any capacity and his rights and duties with respect to such employment shall be dependent upon and governed by the rules in force with reference thereto." (Emphasis added)

In the Commissioner's judgment these grants of authority do not preclude a board of education from consulting with representatives of its employees with respect to terms of employment, working conditions and like subjects, arriving at mutual understandings, and reducing such consensus to a written instrument of agreement. He does hold, however, that such an agreement, whatever it may be labeled, cannot constitute a surrender by the board of education of its responsibility to conduct the schools in its charge in the best interests of the children to be served. This overriding purpose of the public schools finds clear expression in Bates v. Board of Education, 72 P. 907 (Calif. Sup. Ct. 1903), quoted with approval in McGrath v. Burkhart, 280 P. 2d 864 (Calif. App. 1955) as follows:

" 'The public schools were not created, nor are they supported for the benefit of the teachers therein, * * * but for the benefit of the pupils and the resulting benefit to their parents and the Community at large.' "

As noted above the Legislature in its wisdom has invested each board of education with certain powers, and those powers can be neither increased nor diminished except by the Legislature. Burke v. Kenney, 6 N.J. Super. 524 (Law Div. 1949) A board of education may reach and enter into certain agreements with its employees in the interest of mutual understanding, harmonious relationships or other desirable objectives, but it cannot abdicate or delegate the obligations and responsibilities imposed upon it by law or surrender the authority conferred upon it to enact or amend such rules and regulations as may be needed for the proper and effective operation of the schools. It follows, then, that while a board of education may enter into agreements with its staff and must in good faith hold to and work within that accord, it cannot be foreclosed thereby from exercising its discretionary authority to take appropriate and necessary unilateral action when the educational welfare of the pupils requires such action.

This enunciation of the law is not to be construed to imply that a board of education is not legally and morally bound to comply in good faith with the terms of any agreement consummated with its employees. Nor is a board permitted to enter into such an agreement with the implicit reservation that it can abrogate the terms thereof on any pretext. Such drastic, unilateral action can be sustained only in the face of a real threat or obstacle to the proper operation of the school system, or in an emergency of equal importance.

In the subject instance, the Board deemed it essential to alter its method of selecting and appointing administrative and supervisory personnel for the reason that the educational needs and aspirations of its children and of the community were being thwarted by the dearth of representation by Negro staff members in its leadership councils. Respondents attempted to work out a new procedure to accomplish the desired result within the framework of the agreement with the staff. Apparently they had succeeded in doing so with a representative group, only to find that the membership at large found any change unacceptable. The Board was thus presented with a difficult choice. It could abide by its agreement and make no deviation of any kind in its rules and ignore public demand for change, or it could respond to what it conceived to be the needs of the school system and the desires of the community by modifying a part of its agreement against the wishes of a majority of the teachers' association. Faced with such a Hobson's choice the Board made its decision in terms of its overriding obligation to serve the needs of the children and the community. Under such circumstances the Commissioner finds that the Board's ex parte adoption of new rules despite lack of approval by a majority of the N.T.A. was warranted and appropriate and will be sustained.

It is well established that the Commissioner will not substitute his judgment for that of the appointed representatives of the community who constitute the Board of Education, or intervene in matters which fall within the exercise of its discretion, absent a clear showing of improper conduct. There is no such showing herein. The Commissioner will therefore decline to intervene.

Petitioners also raise but do not press a charge of unlawful discrimination by respondents on the basis of race. On the basis of what was presented by petitioners on this question, it would not be possible for the Commissioner to find that racial discrimination of any unconstitutional dimension was practiced by respondents in this case. The most that was presented by the record before the Commissioner is a clear indication that race was a consideration in the selection of the temporary acting appointees. The Commissioner will make no finding with respect to this issue, therefore, and will restrict himself to the observation that the mere consideration of the factor of race is not per se in conflict with established constitutional principles. Morean v. Board of Education of Montclair, 42 N.J. 237 (1964); see also Fuller, et al. v. Volk, et al., 230 F. Supp. 25 (D.C.N.J. 1964). Petitioners have elected to press this issue under the Federal Civil Rights Act in the Federal District Court, and therefore the Commissioner finds no necessity to deal more fully with this question.

For the reasons stated the Commissioner finds and determines that the action of the Newark Board of Education to suspend its promotion procedure and its eligibility lists and to institute a new system was a reasonable and lawful exercise of its discretionary authority and it is, therefore, sustained.

The petition is accordingly dismissed.

ARKANSAS SUPREME COURT DECISION IN CASE OF FORT SMITH v. AFSCME

CITY OF FORT SMITH v. ARKANSAS STATE COUNCIL NO. 38, AFSCME AFL-CIO et al.

5-4736

Opinion delivered October 21, 1968

Appeal from Sebastian Chancery Court, Fort Smith District, Warren O. Kimbrough, Chancellor; affirmed in part, reversed in part.

James A. Gilker and Daily & Woods, for appellant.

Sam Sexton Jr., for appellees.

J. Gayle Windsor and Henry Spitzberg, amici curiae, for Associated Industries of Arkansas and Arkansas Hospital Association.

Glenn Zimmerman and William G. Fleming, amici curiae, for Arkansas Municipal League.

GEORGE ROSE SMITH, Justice. Under Amendment 34 to the Arkansas Constitution municipal employees have the right to belong to labor unions, but they do not have the right to strike against the government. Potts v. Hay, 229 Ark. 830, 318 S. W. 2d 826 (1958). The principal question here is whether a city is under a duty to engage in collective bargaining with a union representing city employees. This appeal is from a decree holding that the city must bargain in good faith with the union representatives. The other issues in the case are of comparatively minor importance.

The record runs to almost 500 pages, but the controlling facts are not really complicated. Many employees of the city of Fort Smith – the exact number is not now material – joined the appellee union, State Council No. 38 of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO. On June 17, 1968, Jeane Lambie, the state president of the union, sent a letter to the city officials, asking that the union be recognized by the city for the purpose of collective bargaining about wages, hours, and conditions of employment. On the same day Mrs. Lambie appeared at a meeting of the city directors and renewed her request for recognition. No formal action was then taken by the directors.

On the following day the directors unanimously adopted a written statement of policy which declared, among other points, (a), that the determination of hours of work, salary, etc., was the responsibility of the board of directors and not a matter to be negotiated, (b), that a personnel officer had been made available to hear grievances, (c) that city employees do not have a right to strike or to picket, and (d) that should city employees stop work or picket they would be treated as having quit their jobs and would be replaced.

That statement was approved on June 18. On the next day the city administrator (a position similar to that of a city manager) attempted to arrange a series of departmental meetings at which the city directors' statement of policy would be read to the municipal employees. The first meeting scheduled was to have been with the sanitation department employees, who collected trash and garbage. It is quite apparent from the testimony that those on each side of the dispute were maneuvering to make it appear that the opposite side was in the wrong. That is, the city wanted it to appear that the workers had quit their jobs, while the union wanted it to appear that some of its members had been discharged because of their union membership. On this issue of fact the chancellor upheld the union's position. We think the weight of the evidence supports that conclusion.

After the sanitation department meeting, at which about twenty employees were discharged, members of the union set up picket lines at several municipal facilities. A great many of the city's non-uniformed employees (the police and fire departments have not taken any part in the dispute) refused to cross the picket lines, so that some municipal services – especially garbage collection – were curtailed or discontinued entirely.

On June 20 the city filed this suit for an injunction against the picketing and other assertedly illegal acts. The union's answer and counterclaim asked that the city be required to bargain collectively with the union's representatives. Testimony was taken at several hearings.

The chancellor, eventually entered two temporary orders, a final order, and a supplemental to the final order, all of which are before us for review. The court found that the city's refusal to bargain with the union was contrary to law. The city was ordered to reinstate the discharged employees, and the employees were ordered to return to work. The city was enjoined from letting contracts to third persons for the performance of municipal services, such as garbage collection. The city was ordered to bargain collectively and in good faith with the union. To that end the court appointed three special masters in chancery, who were directed to assist the parties in their negotiations (in the manner of a mediation board) and to report progress to the court from time to time.

The court was in error in holding that the city was under a duty to bargain with the union's representatives. In the absence of a statute to the contrary the cases have held almost without exception that a municipality or other political subdivision is under no duty (which we take to mean a legally enforceable duty) to bargain collectively with its employees about wages, hours or working conditions.

Nutter v. City of Santa Monica, 74 Cal. App. (2d) 292, 168 P. 2d 741 (1946); Fellows v. Latronica, 151 Colo. 300, 377 P. 2d 547 (1962); Miami Water Works Local No. 654 v. City of Miami, 157 Fla. 445, 26 So. 2d 194, 165 A. L. R. 967 (1946); Local Union 283, International B. E. W. v. Robison, 91 Idaho 445, 423 P. 2d 999 (1967); Wichita Public Schools Employees v. Smith, 194 Kan. 2, 397 P. 2d 357 (1964); City of Springfield v. Clouse, 356 Mo. 1239, 206 S. W. 2d 539 (1947), distinguished but not overruled in State ex rel. Moore v. Julian, 359 Mo. 539, 222 S. W. 2d 720 (1949).

Basically, the reason for the rule is that the fixing of wages, hours, and the like is a legislative responsibility which cannot be delegated or bargained away. Several aspects of the matter were discussed in the Wichita case, supra, where the court said:

> The entire matter of qualifications, tenure, compensation and working conditions for any public employee involves the exercise of governmental powers which are exercised by or through legislative fiat. Under our form of government public office or public employment cannot become a matter of collective bargaining and contract.
> The objects of a political subdivision are governmental—not commercial. It is created for public purposes and has none of the peculiar characteristics of enterprises maintained for private gain. It has no authority to enter into negotiations with labor unions concerning wages and make such negotiations the basis for final appropriations. Strikes against a political subdivision to enforce collective bargaining would in effect amount to strikes against the government.

Some cases have held that a municipality or school district may voluntarily engage in collective bargaining. Norwalk Teachers' Assn. v. Board of Education, 138 Conn. 269, 83 A. 2d 482 (1951); Chicago Division of the Education Assn. v. Board of Education, 76 Ill. App. 2d 456, 222 N. E. 2d 243 (1966). Those cases do not assist the appellees, for here the city directors are unwilling to engage in such bargaining. In one case cited by the appellees, Local 266, International B. E. W. v. Salt River Project Agri. Imp. & Power Dist., 78 Ariz. 30, 275 P. 2d 393 (1954), the court did sustain the union's right to strike against an improvement district, but one of the reasons given was that the district was owned by private landholders; so the strike was not against the public.

We do not agree with the appellees' argument that the city is compelled by Ark. Stat. Ann. § 81-201 (Repl. 1960) to engage in collective bargaining. That section reads: "Freedom of organized labor to bargain collectively, and freedom of unorganized labor to bargain individually is declared to be the public policy of the State under Amendment 34 to the Constitution." That section is merely a preamble to Act 101 of 1947—the enabling act for Amendment 34. Except for that prefatory statement of policy the act, like the amendment, deals only with the dential of employment on the basis of the employee's membership or nonmembership in a labor union. We are unable to read into that preamble, which is merely a statement of policy expressed in the most general terms, a specific command that municipalities engage in collective bargaining when requested to do so. Had the General Assembly intended that change in the law it would certainly have used more explicit language to accomplish its purpose.

During the oral argument counsel for the appellees, envisaging the possibility that the city might not be compelled to bargain collectively, suggested that nevertheless the union's right to present its grievances to the city officials ought to be recognized. No doubt that right does exist. The Bill of Rights protects the right of the people to assemble and to petition the government by address or remonstrance. Ark. Const., Art. 2, § 4. The Colorado court in the Fellows case supra, made this pertinent observation, with which we agree:

> A proper exercise of the legislative function might well involve consultation and negotiation with spokesmen for public employees, but the ultimate responsibility rests with the legislative body and, under the record here presented, that responsibility cannot be contracted away.

We must decline the appellees' suggestion that we attempt to define precisely the extent to which the city officials are required to listen to the grievances of its employees, whether presented individually or collectively. There is no limit to the various fact situations in which the issue might arise. Experience has shown again and again that the courts' best course is to decide concrete cases as they are presented in adversary proceedings, rather than to speculate about theoretical or academic questions that may never arise in actual litigation.

We conclude that the court was in error in directing the city to bargain in good faith with the union, with the implication that a failure to do so might be punishable as a contempt of court. It follows from our decision upon the principal question that the court also erred in appointing what amounted to a mediation board and in enjoining the city from letting contracts for the performance of municipal services.

That part of the decree that directs the city to reinstate those employees who were wrongfully discharged is affirmed; in other respects the decree is reversed.

CONLEY BYRD, Justice, concurring. In concurring I place much more emphasis on the fact that Ark. Stat. Ann. § 81-201 (Repl. 1960), makes collective bargaining the public policy of this state and that the statute is also applicable to municipalities. It is true that Acts 1947, No. 101, of which § 81-201 is the first section, provides no sanction for an employer who refuses to recognize a union and does not attempt to change public policy prohibiting strikes against a municipality or other government agency.

However, I think the majority opinion is not exactly correct when it says the city has no duty to bargain collectively with its employees about wages, hours and working conditions. My understanding of the act is that the employees have no recourse to the courts for the enforcement of their right of collective bargaining where the city refuses their request.

This may be nothing more than the difference between accentuating the positive instead of the negative, but I certainly think that in view of the state's public policy, an employee of the city not only has the right to belong to a union, but has the correlative right to bargain over wages, hours and working conditions with the city through his union representative.

The lack of recourse to the courts or to the use of a strike may water down the effectiveness of the union's ability to represent him, but it does not prevent recourse to education of the public through publicity. It must be remembered that this phase of a union's activities has its effect upon community thinking. It is common knowledge that many people who work with their hands are incapable of expressing their grievances even after they have found the proper forum. Just as business finds it necessary to employ advertising agencies to sell its products or its message to the public, I think a man through his union dues should be entitled to the services of a union representative to settle or publish his grievances concerning the things most important to him, i.e., grievances concerning wages, hours and working conditions.

Concurring.

PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS BOARD OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

In the Matter of

UNION FREE SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 6,
TOWN OF BABYLON, SUFFOLK COUNTY, AND TOWN OF OYSTER BAY, NASSAU COUNTY,

Employer,

and

AMITYVILLE FEDERATION OF TEACHERS,

Petitioner,

and

AMITYVILLE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION,

Intervenor.

Case No. C-0037

Before: ROBERT D. HELSBY, Chairman;
JOSEPH R. CROWLEY, GEORGE H. FOWLER

After a representation proceeding, the Board certified, without an election, the Amityville Teachers Association, an employee organization, as negotiating representative of a specified unit of employees of Union Free School District No. 6, Towns of Babylon and Oyster Bay.

DECISION

On November 30, 1967, the Amityville Federation of Teachers (hereinafter referred to as the petitioner) filed, in accordance with the Rules of Procedure (hereinafter referred to as the Rules) of the New York State Public Employment Relations Board (hereinafter referred to as the Board) a petition for decertification of the Amityville Teachers Association (hereinafter referred to as the intervenor) as the exclusive negotiating agent for the classroom teachers, auxiliary personnel, guidance counsellors, nurse teachers, reading teachers, psychologists, department chairmen, librarians, speech therapists, dental hygienists, and A-V director, employed by the Union Free School District No. 6, Town of Babylon, Suffolk County, and Town of Oyster Bay, Nassau County (hereinafter referred to as the employer)[1]. The petition alleges that petitioner requested recognition as negotiating representative on November 8, 1967, and that the employer recognized the intervenor as the negotiating representative on October 16, 1967. These allegations are uncontested, and the petition is clearly timely[2].

On December 11, 1967, an informal conference was held in this matter. Present at the conference were a trial examiner of the Board and representatives of all parties. At this conference, the parties entered into a consent agreement which provides, inter alia, that the appropriate unit shall consist of 245 employees within the following job classifications: classroom teachers, home school visitor, department chairman, directors, guidance counsellors, librarians, nurses, and the psychologist.

The consent agreement further provides that an election will be held unless the employee organizations who are parties thereto submit to the Director of Representation (hereinafter called the Director) of the Board within seven days from the execution date of the agreement "dues deduction authorizations and other evidences" sufficient to satisfy the requirements of Section 201.6(h)(1) of the Rules for certification without an election. The significance and meaning of this Section was carefully explained to all parties by the trial examiner prior to their entering into the consent agreement.

On December 13, 1967, the petitioner submitted to the Board 83 "authorization and designation" cards. These cards contained the following information: the name of the employee, the date of signing, the school involved, the position of the employee, the school district, and the home address and telephone number of the employee. The following statement is also included above the signature of the employee:

> I hereby designate and authorize the American Federation of Teachers as my exclusive agent and representative for the purpose of collective negotiations with respect to the terms and conditions of employment, the negotiation of collective agreements, and the administration of grievances arising thereunder.

[1] An amended petition, seeking certification as exclusive negotiating representative, was filed on December 15, 1967.

[2] Rules §§ 201.3(6), 208.1.

On December 18, 1967, the Director approved the aforesaid consent agreement.

By letter dated December 20, 1967, the intervenor, pursuant to the consent agreement, submitted to the Director 155 "cards" containing the following information: the name of the individual employee and his position, the school involved, the date of execution, and the following statement:

> This is to certify that as a paid member of the Amityville Teachers Association, I hereby designate and authorize the ATA as my exclusive representative for collective negotiations under the New York Public Employees' Fair Employment Act.

The Rules elaborately detail the circumstances under which an employee organization may be certified without an election. If an employee organization can demonstrate by "dues deduction authorizations and other evidences" that a sufficient proportion of the employees in the appropriate unit have designated it as the negotiating agent, it will be certified as long as a substantial proportion of the employees in the unit have not authorized a competing employee organization to represent them by executing dues deduction authorizations and other evidences[3]. The Rules specifically define "dues deduction authorizations and other evidences" as membership in an employee organization in addition to proof that such membership is for purposes of representation in collective negotiations[4]. Further, the Rules specify (a) the minimum proportion of employees in the negotiating unit which must support an employee organization by dues deduction authorizations and other evidences for that organization to be certified without an election, and (b) the minimum proportion of employees in the negotiating unit which must support a competing organization by dues deduction authorizations and other evidences to prevent certification without an election[5]. The following illustration, taken from Section 201.6(h)(1) of the Rules is pertinent:

Column I (Percentage necessary to be certified without an election)	Column II (Percentage necessary to prevent certification without an election)
55	10
60	15
70	25

In the instant case, while petitioner's submission of cards is sufficient to constitute a showing of interest, and did indeed satisfy the applicable 10% showing of interest requirement[6]. It is clear from the above that they do not satisfy the requirements of certification without an election, nor do they block the certification of the intervenor without an election, since evidence of membership is lacking.

On the other hand, the cards submitted by the intervenor satisfy the requirements for certification without an election in that they specify the two necessary ingredients: (1) membership, and (2) proof that such membership is for purposes of representation in collective negotiations[7]. Since these cards were executed by 55% of the employees in the unit agreed to in the consent agreement (this percentage has been computed without taking into consideration the twenty employees who signed cards on behalf of both competing employee organizations) and since the petitioner has not submitted any "dues deduction authorizations and other evidences," the Board finds that the Amityville Teachers Association is entitled to be certified as the exclusive[8] negotiating agent for the employees in the unit specified in the consent agreement.

Certification of Representative and Order to Negotiate

A representation proceeding having been conducted in the above matter by the Public Employment Relations Board in accordance with the Public Employees' Fair Employment Act and the Rules of Procedure of the Board, and it appearing that a negotiating representative has been selected;

Pursuant to the authority vested in the Board by the Public Employees' Fair Employment Act,

IT IS HEREBY CERTIFIED that the Amityville Teachers Association has been designated and selected by a majority of the employees of the above-named public employer, in the unit described below, as their exclusive representative for the purpose of collective negotiations and the settlement of grievances.

UNIT:

Included: Classroom teachers, home school visitor, department chairmen, directors, guidance counsellors, librarians, nurses, and the psychologist.

Further, IT IS ORDERED that the above-named public employer shall negotiate collectively with the Amityville Teachers Association and enter into a written agreement with such employee organization with regard to terms and conditions of employment, and shall negotiate collectively with such employee organization in the determination of, and administration of, grievances.

Dated: January 10, 1968
Albany, New York

[3]Rules § 201.6(h)(1).

[4]Ibid.

[5]Ibid.

[6]Rules § 201.3(b).

[7]These ingredients might conveniently be referred to as "membership plus."

[8]The consent agreement provides that "if an employee organization is certified, it shall be certified as an 'exclusive' negotiating agent."

In the Matter of the Arbitration Between:

Chicopee Teachers Association

and

Chicopee School Committee

Case Number 2-68

Opinion

and

Award

The Issue

As stipulated by the parties at the commencement of the arbitration hearing, the issue presented to the Arbitrator for a decision is:

> Was Mrs. Frances A. Bigda properly denied a sabbatical leave for the academic year 1968-69 under the terms of Article XX of the Agreement, and if not what shall the proper remedy be?

The Hearing

A hearing for the presentation of the factual position of each of the parties on this matter was held on October 28, 1968 in the Administrative Offices of the School Committee in Chicopee, Massachusetts. Present and representing each of the parties at this hearing were:

For the Chicopee Teachers Association (C.T.A.):

Rudolph Kass, Esq., Counsel
Frances A. Bigda, Grievant
Joseph Perlik, President
Henry B. Fay, Representative
Stephen R. Jendrysik, Vice-President
Robert T. Hendry, Corresponding Secretary

For the Chicopee School Committee (C.S.C.):

Robert L. Nowak, Esq., City Solicitor
Donald R. Heroux, Committee Member
George E. Membrino, Superintendent
Paul E. Sullivan, Committee Member
Theodore W. Les, Chairman
Sophie J. Chmura, Assistant Superintendent
William E. Millbe, Coordinating Secretary
Stanley J. Ziemba, Principal

At this hearing full opportunity was permitted each of the parties to present witnesses, exhibits and argument in support of their respective positions. By joint agreement of the parties the practice of swearing of an oath by witnesses was waived. Subsequent to the hearing a request was made of and granted by the parties for a waiver of the time limits within which the Award in this case was to be submitted.

Background Facts of the Case

Mrs. Frances A. (La Ferriere) Bigda, the grievant in this case, initially was appointed a teacher in the instant school system effective with the commencement of the school year in September 1959. Each year thereafter and up to the present she has served annually as a teacher in the system. The record indicates Mrs. Bigda was provided tenure in the school system in September 1962 by virtue of appointment to her fourth year of service.

Throughout the period of her employment as a teacher Mrs. Bigda applied for and was granted two official leaves of absence for maternity reasons. The first such leave began on June 4, 1962, three weeks before the conclusion of the school year 1961-62, and continued into the following school year. After the birth of a child in September 1962, Mrs. Bigda resumed teaching as a substitute teacher in various buildings in the latter part of October 1962, substituting on a full-time basis daily following Thanksgiving 1962 and up to March 4, 1963, at which latter time she was reinstated to regular status as a full-time teacher.

A second maternity leave of absence was granted Mrs. Bigda effective December 31, 1964. She resumed substitute teaching on April 2, 1965 and continued on this basis for the balance of the school year. Initially her teaching assignments were intermittent. Later in the period, however, she did assume full-time responsibility for a class. Effective with the beginning of the school year in September 1965, Mrs. Bigda was restored to full-time regular status as a teacher.

On November 20, 1967 Mrs. Bigda applied for a sabbatical leave for the school year 1968-69 in the manner provided for under the terms of Article XX of the Agreement. This request was reviewed in an interview between the applicant and the Superintendent on March 21, 1968. On March 28, 1968 the Superintendent notified Mrs. Bigda by letter of his support of and intent to recommend to the School Committee approval of her request for leave, noting however the continued existance of an unresolved reservation relating to eligibility under Section C of Article XX of the Agreement. Subsequently, Mrs. Bigda was informed, first and orally by the Superintendent on May 23, 1968 and later officially by letter dated June 18, 1968, that her request for a sabbatical leave had been denied by the School Committee.

Relevant Contract Provisions and Rules and Regulations

Article XX – Sabbatical Leaves

Upon recommendation by the Superintendent of Schools, sabbatical leaves may be granted for study or travel to a member of the teaching staff by the Committee subject to the following conditions:

A. No more than three (3%) per cent of the eligible teaching staff will be absent on sabbatical leave at any one time.

B. Request for sabbatical leave must be received by the Superintendent of Schools in writing in such form as may be required by the Superintendent of Schools no later than April 1, of the school year preceding the school year for which the sabbatical leave is requested.

C. The teacher has completed at least seven (7) consecutive full school years of service in the Chicopee School System . . .

Chapter V – The Teachers (from Rules and Regulations)

a. Teachers with substitute experience of six months or more prior to their appointment as regular teachers will be given credit for this experience on the salary schedule.

Positions of the Parties

The Chicopee Teachers Association maintained that Mrs. Bigda, by virtue of the length and essential continuity of her service, qualified as eligible for a sabbatical leave under the terms of the Agreement between the parties and the Rules and Regulations of the School Committee. Said eligibility, it was claimed, was not invalidated by the leaves of absence that were granted her, especially in light of the relatively brief duration of time on each occasion that she was not actively involved in teaching in the school system. The Association therefore petitioned that the eligibility of Mrs. Bigda for a sabbatical leave be affirmed and that the situation be rectified by an award ordering that she be granted a sabbatical leave for the school year 1969-70 for the purpose of enrolling in a graduate degree program in History at the University of Massachusetts. To hold and rule otherwise, it was maintained, would frustrate and nullify the intent of the parties to the Agreement.

The position of the Chicopee School Committee is that the parties to the contract, by virtue of the several express limitations imposed on the eligibility of teachers for sabbatical leaves, clearly intended a strict and literal interpretation and application of the applicable contractual terms. On this basis, and particularly in light of the allegedly "substantial" duration of the absences from teaching on a regular and full-time status, Mrs. Bigda did not satisfy the ". . . seven (7) consecutive full school years of service . . ." required to qualify for eligibility for such a leave. Her appeal therefore, it was argued, should be denied as without merit under the provisions of the Agreement.

Discussion and Opinion

The intent of the parties as to the interpretation and application of the terms of the contract with respect to the matter in question is not patently clear from the language employed in the Agreement. Nor was there any evidence introduced in the hearing of a practice previously and consistently employed under similar circumstances which would reflect with a high degree of certainty the intent of the parties on the issue in dispute. Hence said intent will have to be imputed from the totality of the evidence at hand.

It was clearly established that the parties contemplated the possibility that maternity leaves might on occasion be necessary and would be made available. The letters of appointment to teaching positions expressly so provide. Nowhere, however, does the evidence indicate the precise effect of these on a teacher's eligibility for a sabbatical leave. In all probability, this omission was and is dictated as a matter of practicality in order that each case might be considered on its individual and unique merits. In some instances, it is conceivable, such a leave, particularly when involving principally a summer recess period, might involve no more than a few days or at most a few weeks of absence from regular full-time teaching. On other occasions, however, it is likewise possible that complications associated with birth, involving either the child or the mother or both, might require an extended absence of several month's duration. For the Agreement to provide for all such possible contingencies would be an unreasonable and impractical expectation. Hence it must be concluded that the parties intended a flexible interpretation and application of the relevant provisions of the Agreement according to the circumstances present in each individual case.

Similarly it also was established that the duration of Mrs. Bigda's formal absences from actual teaching in each of the three years involved were brief – of only a few weeks of time. In each of the years she taught a portion of the time on a full-time basis as a regular member of the faculty. With the exception of the periods of actual absence, she taught a portion of the remainder as a full-time substitute responsible for the administration of a class. In each of the periods of service as a substitute she was available for and requested reinstatement to regular status as a teacher. In each instance action on this request was delayed because of a technicality, that being a policy which prevented two teachers being assigned a classroom on a regular, full-time basis.

The effect of the periods of absence and of service as a substitute teacher during the years in question on the continuity of her employment record, and thereby on her eligibility for a sabbatical leave, is the heart of the issue in question. To the mind of the present Arbitrator, and consistent both with the evidence at hand relating to the grievant's actual service in the years in question and the spirit of the so-called Frye and Nester court cases introduced into the record by the parties, Mrs. Bigda satisfied the standard that her employment each year as a regular and as a substitute teacher was sufficiently "substantial" (e.g. in this case, well more than one-half of each year) to the degree that her employment reasonably is concluded to have been "continuous," and hence consecutive and full in nature.

In arriving at this interpretation and decision the Arbitrator recognizes that the aforementioned cases in law apply to tenure matters and not sabbatical leave questions. But the standard of reasonableness employed therein relating to the terms "continuous" and "substantial" have an appropriate analogy and thus an applicability to the interpretation of the words "consecutive" and "full" in the Agreement. Such a parallel and acceptability of the interchangeability of terms similarly was evidenced by the parties during the hearing. Whereas, however, these statutory terms thus have been and are accorded a reasonable application in the case at hand, the fact that Mrs. Bigda was at all times throughout the period regarded as a regular teacher in the system (albeit on leave part of the time) and served without a formal and abrupt break in that capacity, indicates to the Arbitrator that neither the provisions of Section 5 (a) of the Rules and Regulations nor the circumstances and decision relating to the second teacher in the Nester case have any reasonable relevance in this case.

On the basis of the foregoing therefore it is held that Mrs. Bigda was properly entitled to and, on the grounds advanced, improperly denied a sabbatical leave of absence for the school year 1968-69. The conviction with which this judgement is reached and held is substantially reinforced by a major procedural defect by the School Committee in the processing of her request for leave. The defect is a sufficient import that under other circumstances it alone could and might well have sufficed to warrant an award in favor of the instant or even another grievant. It relates to the inordinate delay in responding to her request for leave, which in turn constituted a clear violation of both the spirit and express provisions of the contract. The general tone of encouragement in the letter she received dated March 29, 1968 and in the alleged and indisputed conversations with responsible school authority thereafter, together with the passage of several weeks without official intimation or decision to the contrary, might reasonably be interpreted to have created a sufficiently reasonable expectation that approval would be forthcoming to constitute a waiver of the right of the Committee to deny the eligibility of Mrs. Bigda for leave. This possibility is advanced herein only as information to the parties as to the responsibilities to which they might likely be held under the Agreement. Because their relationship in collective bargaining is of recent origin, their experience is limited, and such information might well be of considerable educational value. In any event, however, the decision in this case is based upon the previously described interpretation of Section C of Article XX.

The Association in this case requests the remedy of an award granting Mrs. Bigda a sabbatical leave of absence for the school year 1969-70. Under the terms of the Agreement this is not possible. The granting of teacher sabbaticals is permissive, not mandatory, on the part of the Committee by virtue of the use of the word "may" in the introductory paragraph of Article XX. There may well be other reasonable conditions which must be satisfied other than those expressly stated in Article XX. However it is possible, and is so ruled, that the question of Mrs. Bigda's eligibility for a sabbatical leave under Section C therein may not be advanced as sufficient reason for denying her such a leave. Further, it also is held that, on the grounds of reasonableness and equity, the delay in the submission of this Award, due to the fault of the Instant Arbitrator but agreed to by the parties, does not suffice to serve as a waiver should there be no more than a reasonable delay beyond December 31, 1968 in the filing by Mrs. Bigda of a new request for a sabbatical leave for the next academic year.

Award

Mrs. Frances A. Bigda was improperly denied a sabbatical leave for the academic year 1968-69 under the terms of Article XX of the Agreement. All other things being equal, she should be viewed as eligible for a sabbatical leave for the school year 1969-70.

BOARD OF EDUCATION – YORKTOWN CENTRAL SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 2	:	ARBITRATION OPINION AND AWARD
AND	:	AAA CASE NO. 1330-0829-68
YORKTOWN FACULTY ASSOCIATION	:	DATE OF DECISION: DEC. 20, 1968

The undersigned Arbitrator, designated by the American Arbitration Association pursuant to the terms of the parties' currently effective Agreement, held a hearing in Yorktown, N. Y. on November 20, 1968, at which time the issue set forth below was submitted to arbitration. The Board was represented by Eric Rosenfeld, Esq. of Poletti, Freidin, Prashker, Feldman and Gartner, Counsel and the Association by R. J. Margles, Esq. of Kibbe, Laber and Margles, Counsel.

THE ISSUE:

The parties agreed upon the issue to be decided as follows:

"Did the Board of Education violate Article II of the parties' 1968-1969 Agreement by negotiating separately with the psychologists of the District? If so, what shall be the remedy?

THE FACTS:

For several years prior to the parties' first collective bargaining agreement dated September 1, 1968, salaries for most educational staff were determined by the Board of Education after consultation with representatives of the teaching personnel. In the case of school psychologists, the salaries were also set by the Board upon the basis of individual negotiations with the psychologists concerned.

When the Yorktown Faculty Association was recognized as the bargaining agent for school personnel by the Board of Education, the parties agreed to the following recognition provision:

"The Board of Education of Yorktown Central School District Number 2 hereby recognizes the Yorktown Faculty Association as the exclusive employee organization representing all certified personnel except the District Principal, Assistant District Principal, Director of Pupil Personnel, High School Principal, High School Vice-Principal, High School Administrative Assistant, Junior High School Principal, Junior High School Vice-Principal, Crompond Principal, Mohansic Principal, Brookside Principal, Director of Elementary School Curricula, Co-ordinator of Physical Education, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, Director of Communications, Assistant Director of Communications and Project Director, High School Department Co-ordinators and Elementary Science Co-ordinator for the purpose of negotiating collectively the determination of the terms and conditions of employment, negotiating collectively the determination of, and administration of grievances arising under, terms and conditions of employment and for the purpose of entering into written agreements in determining such terms and conditions of employment . . . "

In the negotiations which led to the parties' current, and initial Agreement, there was, apparently, no reference to salary negotiations for psychologists when salaries and stipends were negotiated for teachers, coaches, and guidance counselors.

Sometime following the signing of the current Agreement, the Board of Education entered into individual negotiations with the psychologists for their salaries without participation of the Yorktown Faculty Association.

The Association filed the instant grievance protesting this action as a violation of its exclusive bargaining rights on behalf of all certified personnel. The Agreement, in Article IV Section 2. 1, defines a grievance as ". . . any dispute or claim by either party to this agreement or by any person covered by this agreement arising out of or in connection with this agreement . . . A grievance, however, excludes any matter which involves (a) non-approval for tenure, (b) Board discretion or Board policy, (c) any matter as to which a method of review is prescribed by law or applicable by law, rule or regulation having the force and effect of law."

Article XXVII of the Agreement states in part as follows:

"A. This Agreement shall constitute the full and complete commitments between both parties and may be altered, changed, added to, deleted from or modified only through the voluntary, mutual consent of the parties in a written and signed amendment to this Agreement. Should the Board effect a change in wages, hours, or any other condition of employment which is not covered by the terms of this Agreement and which has not been proposed by the Association, the Board, or its designee, will consult with the Association upon the Association's request in writing.

"C. . . . If any individual arrangement, agreement or contract contains any language inconsistent with this Agreement, this Agreement during its duration, shall be controlling."

The Association contends that the psychologists employed by the Board of Education are certified personnel, that they are not exempted from representation by the Association under the exclusions of Article II of the parties' Agreement, and that they must be represented by the Association during their negotiation of terms and conditions of employment. Furthermore, it argues, that the psychologists were considered in the parties' negotiations (albeit no discussions were held regarding salaries); that they have a close community of interests with other represented personnel, and that the Public Employment Relations Board has consistently endorsed their inclusion in the same bargaining unit as teachers because of their community of interest.

The Board of Education contends that the Contract's recognition clause does not cover psychologists and that the whole contract really concerns "teachers." It argues that psychologists have never been grouped with teachers in salary discussions; that they have always negotiated their own rates which show no correlation to salaries of other educational personnel; and that since there was no discussion whatsoever of psychologists' salaries with the Association prior to the signing of the current Agreement, it is clear that the Association did not even intend to represent the psychologists at the time. Questions of inclusion in a bargaining unit are appropriately within the jurisdiction of the New York Public Employment Relations Board rather than within the jurisdiction of the Arbitrator, particularly in view of the language of Article IV Section II 2.1 (c) of the Agreement which excludes from the definition of a grievance any matter for which a procedure is already available under law. Finally, it argues that even if the psychologists be held to be included in the unit, it is clear under Article XXVII the Board is entitled to effectuate a change in psychologists' conditions of employment where, as here, it consulted with the Association upon its request. Since its arrangements with the psychologists are not inconsistent with the terms of the parties' Agreement, they should continue without interference.

DISCUSSION

Several questions are raised by this case. First, is this matter properly a grievance under the terms of Article IV Section II? If so, are psychologists included within the bargaining unit represented by the Association? If so, did the Board act improperly in negotiating separately with said psychologists? And, finally, if so, what shall the remedy be?

Initially, it is necessary to determine if this is properly a grievance under the terms of Article IV. Clearly it is a "dispute or claim by either party to this agreement . . . arising out of or in connection with this agreement," i.e., as to the application of this Agreement to the psychologists. Nor does this matter fall within the exclusions of that provision. A method of review is provided by law for disputes between rival organizations as to initial representation rights. But the Public Employment Relations Board, as well as the judiciary in innumerable cases, has respected the parties' Agreement to arbitrate issues such as this which concerns the interpretation and/or application of a parties' Agreement to a particular set of facts. Thus it must be considered that this has properly been submitted to arbitration as a grievance.

Turning to the question of whether psychologists are properly represented by the Association, we need go no further than Article II, the Recognition Clause of the Agreement, for an affirmative answer. Admittedly the psychologists are certified personnel. The parties agreed that the Association would be "the exclusive employee organization representing all certified personnel." Thus it must be concluded that the Board agreed to have such employees represented by the Association. The parties did agree to a list of positions which would not be represented by the Association, and included therein a number of administrative posts. Psychologists might well have been inserted into this list, but the parties failed to do so. If they failed to include psychologists on their exemption list, I am powerless to do so, particularly in light of the precise form of listing used in excluding positions from coverage of the Agreement. Despite the fact that the parties may have omitted discussions of psychologists' salaries during negotiations, there is no justification for excluding them from a unit which encompasses "all certified personnel." The language is clear and unambiguous, and it is beyond my authority to change it by adding psychologists to the list of exclusions. That type of change is reserved to the parties under the terms of Article XXVII of their Agreement.

In view of the inclusion of psychologists in the bargaining unit, it follows that the Association is the exclusive representative of such employees "for the purpose of negotiating collectively the determination of the terms and conditions of employment . . . and for the purpose of entering into written agreements in determining such terms and conditions of employment." Although psychologists' conditions need not be identical to those of employees included in this Agreement, the Board is obligated to negotiate thereupon with the Association. Unique conditions of employment for psychologists may result from such negotiations. This is permissible, as long as the negotiations are carried on between these two parties. This is authorized by, and is the real intent of Article XXVII A. and C.

Accordingly, I find that the Board should negotiate forthwith with the Association on the question of terms and conditions of employment for psychologists.

INTRODUCTION

On August 31, 1968, Mr. Jack B. Mundell, Chief Negotiator for Swartz Creek Teachers Association, hereinafter referred to as the Association, and Mr. Robert H. Brown, Assistant Superintendent for Swartz Creek Board of Education, hereinafter to be referred to as the Board, sent a joint letter to Mr. Hyman Parker, Chief Mediation Officer for the Labor Mediation Board, which stated that the parties were "unable to reach agreement" in certain areas and that they joined "in a joint request for Fact Finding."

On September 3, 1968, the Labor Mediation Board designated the undersigned ". . . as its Hearings Officer and Agent to conduct a fact-finding hearing pursuant to Section 25 of Act 176 of Public Acts of 1939, as amended, and the Board's Regulations and to issue a report with recommendations with respect to the matters in disagreement."

Hearings were held in Swartz Creek on September 9, 20 and 27, 1968, at which time both parties to this dispute were afforded full opportunity to present testimony, evidence and arguments. At the September 9 meeting both parties agreed that the following unresolved issues should be submitted to fact-finding inasmuch as failure to agree on them had constituted the main obstacle to a successful negotiation of a new contract.

1. AGENCY SHOP
2. CALENDAR
3. CLASS SIZE
4. SPECIAL SERVICES
5. RELEASED TIME FOR ASSOCIATION PRESIDENT
6. SALARY
7. DEFERRED PAYMENT
8. SUBSTITUTE PAY
9. PAY FOR COORDINATORS
10. SPECIAL COMMITTEES

DISCUSSION AND RECOMMENDATIONS

1. AGENCY SHOP

The Association takes the position that an "Agency Shop Professional Representation" clause should be incorporated in the parties' Agreement. While recognizing that some "teachers" will "object to joining any organization engaged in collective bargaining . . . because of personal reasons," the clause notes that the Association must represent all teachers under the Michigan Public Employment Relations Act and that "it is recognized" that all teachers – being beneficiaries of the collective agreement – ought to share the expenses involved in negotiation and administration of the Agreement. Thus, the Association proposes that in the event that a teacher[1] does not join the Association and does not execute a dues deduction authorization "such teacher shall cause to be paid to the respective Association, a sum equivalent to the dues and assessments of the NEA, MEA and SCTA [Swartz Creek Teachers Association]." The Association has stated that discharge is the contemplated sanction in the event that the teacher does not comply with the contract and pay the above-noted "sum equivalent."

While disavowing any philosophical objection to the agency shop principle, the Board's position is that the agency shop is illegal under both Attorney General Opinion No. 418 (July 16, 1947) and the Teachers' Tenure Act. The Attorney General Opinion holds that ". . . the Attorney General is of the opinion that it would be contrary to Michigan statutes for the company to deduct dues from the wages of its employees without first obtaining individual authorization from the respective employees." The Teachers' Tenure Act in Article IV states that "discharge or demotion of a teacher on continuing tenure may be made only for reasonable and just cause and only after such charges, notice, hearing and determination thereof . . . is hereafter provided." This statute also states that any contract between a teacher and board which makes "continuance of employment of such teacher contingent upon certain conditions which may be interpreted as contrary to the reasonable and just causes for dismissals provided by the Act such section or sections of a contract or agreement shall be invalid and have no affect in relation to a determination of continuance of employment of such teacher."

The short answer to the first of the Board's two legal arguments is that the Attorney General's opinion deals with the circumstances under which dues deduction can be made by an employer and that that problem is distinct from the issue in dispute. The right of the parties to enforce through discharge, if necessary, an agency shop clause which requires the teacher to pay a sum equivalent to dues and assessments of the NEA, MEA and SCTA presents problems separate and apart from the questions involved in valid dues deduction authorization. For, as the Association has stated, a teacher, under its proposal would be given thirty days to pay the sum equivalent and if he or she does not authorize a dues deduction or does not pay through other means, the discharge penalty is to be invoked at some point. Thus, the fact that dues deductions from a nonconsenting employee is unlawful in Michigan[2] does not invalidate the agency shop principle.

Reliance upon the Teachers' Tenure Act by the Board presents a slightly more formidable legal obstacle. Yet, here also, in the opinion of the Fact-Finder, the legality of the agency shop in Michigan is sustained. In my judgment the Public Employment Relations Act, under which public employees are obligated to bargain collectively concerning wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment, authorizes the agency shop proposal which the Association advocates. Indeed, the Michigan Labor Mediation Board, which is charged with jurisdiction for enforcing bargaining obligations under the Public Employment Relations Act has held that "union security" is a mandatory subject of bargaining under the Act and that therefore negotiation of the agency shop is valid in Michigan.[3]

The Board has held that the payment of a "sum equivalent" to defraying the costs of bargaining responsibilities; i.e., the agency shop, is neither "unlawful encouragement nor discouragement" within the meaning of the Act. With this ruling as precedent, I have stated that the agency shop cannot properly be regarded as "coercive" in the statutory sense.[4]

[1]The proposal excludes substitutes.

[2]Even if the Attorney General Opinion was relevant to the issue in dispute between the parties, Michigan does not have jurisdiction to rule on the validity of dues deductions authorizations made by private employers in interstate commerce as it did in this case. See San Diego Building Trades Council v. Garmon, 359 U.S. 236 (1959). The Attorney General asserted jurisdiction pursuant to a now discarded doctrine of pre-emption.

[3]See Oakland County Sherrif's Department and Oakland County Board of Supervisors, Case No. C66 F-63 (1968).

[4]See Board of Education of the Schools of the City of Inkster (Wayne County, Michigan), 263 Government Employee Relations Report F-1 (1968).

Moreover, I am of the view that there is nothing inconsistent between the union security concept and the objectives of the Tenure Act – the latter being the elimination of political and arbitrary infringements upon the employment rights of teachers. The protection which the Public Employment Relations Act affords a negotiated agency shop arrangement does not distract from the Tenure Act.

Of course, this is not to say that no case will arise in which the statutes under discussion may each argue for different results or where they may be at variance with one another. Certainly the potential for conflict is present where resolution of employee grievances may be placed in the hands of more than one forum. (Article III of the parties' contract permits grievances to be submitted to "arbitration before either the State Mediation Board or the State Tenure Commission, whichever holds legal jurisdiction.) But what is important here is the lack of any inherent conflict between the objectives of agency shop and the Tenure Act. Agency shop does not, in and of itself, magnify the potential for political and arbitrary interference with the employment status of teachers.

It should be noted that my conclusions with regard to the agency shop and the Tenure Act are buttressed by the opinion of the Michigan Circuit Court (Macomb County) in City of Warren v. International Association of Fire Fighters, Local No. 1383,[5] where it was held that the Public Employment Relations Act must prevail over the general language of civil service law where conflict appears.

I am aware of the fact that the tradition of collective bargaining in the private sector cannot be transferred in toto to the public sector. I should also point out that other jurisdictions with different statutory schemes insofar as both public employee labor relations and civil service are concerned may pose other considerations.[6] But, in Michigan, as the Labor Mediation Board has said, ". . . the legislature, by enactment of the Public Employment Relations Act, determined that the industrial type of employer-employee relations and collective bargaining should apply to the public sector." Without commenting upon the limits of that dictum, I am content to find that the employer's legal objections must fail.

I am of the view that the parties should incorporate the Association's proposal on agency shop in their contract.[7] I am persuaded that this is the proper answer for this aspect of the parties' dispute for two reasons.

The first is that evidence submitted by the Association indicates that agency shop is rapidly achieving acceptability to both sides of the bargaining table in Michigan. An increasing number of school boards are stifling whatever objections they previously entertained.

Secondly, and more importantly, is the fact that the Association is obligated to represent all teachers within the bargaining unit under Michigan law.[8] If all teachers benefit from the collective bargaining process it seems reasonable that all should assume their fair portion of the costs of the service. Otherwise, a premium is placed upon nonmember status, since the nonmember receives the benefits but, unlike the member, does not pay the dues which finance negotiation and administration of the contract. (It should be noted that the Board's representatives do not disagree with this proposition.)

In the circumstances of this case, therefore, I recommend that the parties include the agency shop in their collective bargaining agreement.

2. CALENDAR

The Association proposes that the school calendar be a subject of negotiation and that it be placed in the collective bargaining agreement. The Association contends that the calendar is a part of wages, hours and terms and conditions of employment and, therefore, constitutes a mandatory subject of bargaining under the Public Employment Relations Act. In this connection, the Association contends that negotiated calendars are an accepted practice in many of the other school districts with which the Association has a bargaining relationship.

The Board's position is that since Section 340.575 of the Michigan General School Laws states that the Board shall decide the "length of school term," the calendar is not a negotiable item under the Public Employment Relations Act. Moreover, the Board relies upon the opinion of the Michigan Circuit Court (Lapeer County) in Nickels v. Board of Education of the Imlay City[9] for the proposition that a school district cannot delegate away such statutory authority through a collective bargaining agreement.

[5] 68 LRRM 2977 (Michigan Circuit Court Macomb County 1968).

[6] See, however, the similar conclusion reached by the Supreme Court of New Hampshire in Tremblay v. Berlin Police Department, 237A 2d 668 (Supreme Court of New Hampshire, 1968) where a union security agreement was upheld despite civil service legislation which required that removal of personnel be for "sufficient cause."

[7] Of course the parties should place a separability clause in their contract which protects the validity of the entire contract if, for some unforeseen reason, the Michigan Supreme Court should declare the agency shop unlawful.

[8] See The United States Supreme Court's interpretation of the National Labor Relations Act in this respect. Vaca v. Sipes, 386 U.S. 171 (1967); Ford v. Huffman, 345 U.S. 330 (1953); Humphrey v. Moore, 375 U.S. 335 (1964).

[9] File No. 1546.

Secondly, the Board states that there is a practice of consultation concerning the establishment of the calendar between the teachers and the Board and that the Board offered to continue this practice while formulating the 1968-69 calendar. Although the Board holds the view that it cannot negotiate with the Association concerning the calendar it nevertheless states that it is "willing to accept" teacher recommendations.

Finally, the Board points out that the Association does not represent all the school district's employees and that, therefore, the views of non-Association personnel outside the bargaining unit will not be heard.

There is little difference in the respective proposals of the parties as to the calendar itself. The Board has adopted a calendar of 181 days and has stated that at the end of bad weather in the winter it will accept the teachers' recommendations concerning what day they wish to drop from the calendar. This will leave the District with 180 days, the amount required by Michigan law. The Association's position is substantially similar, the one difference consisting in its demand that all of Good Friday be a holiday; whereas the Board offers one-half day off.

In my judgment, negotiation of the calendar is a mandatory subject of bargaining within the meaning of the Public Employment Relations Act. Both the length of the calendar and the scheduling of holidays have a direct impact upon the teachers' working conditions. To some degree, such considerations may influence the position that teachers take on salary. Certainly, salary is not entirely meaningful until a teacher knows how long he or she will be at work during the year. And the question of what holidays are to be observed in the calendar are a matter of concern to any employee and part of his or her working conditions. I, therefore, view the calendar as a mandatory subject of bargaining under the Act.

I do not regard the general language of Section 340.545 as an obstacle to my conclusion. For the Board is not required to accept the Association's proposal on calendar or any other proposal concerning calendar. The Board must still meet its obligation to decide the length of the school term. But the effect of my recommendation is that the decision is to be the product of collective bargaining between the parties. I do not find in Section 340.545 any prohibition of the collective bargaining procedure as a means to arrive at a decision concerning calendar. Insofar as Nickels v. Board of Education of the Imlay City is concerned, that Michigan district court decision holds that a school district may not enter into a contract which requires it to take advantage of federal funds available for special and remedial programs. While there is dictum in the opinion which may be at variance with my conclusions, it is clear that the question of the negotiability of school calendars was not before that court. I, therefore, find that opinion inapposite.

I recommend that the parties include a calendar provision in the contract. I note that the Board has followed a practice of consulting with teachers and that it has stated that it is willing to accept teacher recommendations. There should, therefore, be little difficulty in implementing my recommendation. For the history on this subject presages an easy adjustment to collective bargaining.

I also recommend that the Association, in preparing its position on calendar, make every effort to take into account the views and wishes of school district employees outside the Association bargaining unit. While I express no firm opinion on this matter, the parties may find it desirable in the future to invite representatives of such employees to the bargaining table – or the Association may wish to invite them to their own meetings. Thus, the parties would be able to solicit the views and attitudes of other employees in a more structured form.

Finally, since the parties are not so far apart on the substantive calendar, I recommend that the salary differences noted above be resolved through the process of collective bargaining.

3. CLASS SIZE

The Association proposes that the "suggested maximum" class sizes in the contract[10] be converted into binding maximums. With the exception of physical education and study hall, the suggested maximum class sizes range from 25 to 32. The Association's concern with class size is reflected by data indicating that in kindergarten through sixth grade present class size exceeds the suggested class maximum on an average in any single grade. Moreover, present class size is far above the "recommended class size" in all grades and in the case of kindergarten the average class is 10.3 pupils over the recommended amount.

The Association also points out that a number of studies have indicated that class size has a profound impact upon educational achievement upon students as well as teacher moral at all levels in the school system. Further, the Association states that 123 of 333 Michigan school districts surveyed by the MEA have a specific class size limit and that 54.7% of Michigan elementary teachers have fewer than 30 students and 87.3% have fewer than 35 – whereas in Swartz Creek, 26.1% of the elementary teachers had fewer than 30 students and 76.8% had fewer than 35 pupils.

The Association therefore advocates a binding maximum and compensation for teachers assigned to classes which exceed the maximum in the amount of $300 per pupil annually in elementary sections (K-5) and $60 per pupil in secondary classes for each pupil in excess of the maximum. The Association also proposes that where student numbers within a particular building and grade level must exceed maximum numbers, students will be equally distributed among the teachers assigned to that grade level.

Finally, the Association contends that both parties should agree to make "continuing efforts" to eliminate any deviations from the maximums because any excess over that amount inhibits effective learning. The Board cites a research report, "Innovation in Education", issued by the Committee for Economic Development, which – according to a report in The New York Times (July 28, 1968) states that ". . . the money spent to reduce class size by a few students could be much better spent for research and development in educational technology and for buying new equipment that could make teaching more effective." (Unfortunately the parties have not supplied me with a copy of the report and, thus far, I have not been able to obtain one.)

However, the Board, in contending that the suggested maximum should not be changed to a binding maximum, argues that a number of factors make it impossible to give the type of commitment which the Association desires. The first of these is the very "rapid and irregular growth" which Swartz Creek has experienced during the past few years. According to the Board, this pattern has made it most difficult to engage in effective planning and thus, to keep class size within reasonable size. In this connection, it should be noted that one of the exaggerated areas of excess class size is to be found in kindergarten where growth is least predictable because these students are entering the system for the first time.

Secondly, the Board states that its efforts to deal with class size have been hampered by slow progress in construction of school facilities, a recent construction strike and the failure of the Legislature to give adequate state aid.

On the basis of the information supplied to the Fact-Finder, it is reasonable to conclude that class size is significant in terms of both educational achievement and teacher morale. I am concerned, however, with the fact that the Board is presented with unusual difficulties arising out of the community's rapid and irregular growth, and that, in light of this and other factors noted above, which the Board relies upon, conversion of suggested maxima into binding limitations, at this stage, would involve unforeseen and potentially astronomical costs to the community. I, therefore, recommend that the parties continue the past practice of suggested maximum class sizes in their current contract and that they jointly attempt to evaluate the problems involved in eventually establishing binding maximum class sizes. The parties ought to start working toward realization of this objective at the earliest possible time.

I am buttressed in my conclusions in respect to retaining the suggested maxima by data which indicates that Swartz Creek's average class sizes do not compare badly with the average for all schools in Genesee County. In 1967-68, Swartz Creek average was 25.4. Fourteen out of the twenty schools in Genesee County exceeded or equalled this average. (The Association has pointed out that this year the average is 26.3; but figures for the other districts were not yet available at the time of the hearings.)

The real problems with Swartz Creek class sizes are those instances of extreme discrepancy between the suggested maximum and the present class size. One kindergarten class has 36 students in a classroom of extremely small size. Fifth grade classrooms are even smaller and yet up to 37 students are to be found in these classrooms.

These are two of the worst examples. But I am persuaded that a binding limit beyond the maximum is needed to keep such obviously unsound practices from continuing. I, therefore, recommend that payments in the amount proposed by the Association be made to teachers assigned to any classroom other than physical education and study hall where the number of pupils exceeds 33. Moreover, in all instances of excess – both the suggested maximum and the extreme situation involving 33 pupils – the Board should make every effort to distribute the excess number of students among teachers equitably.

4. SPECIAL SERVICES

The Association proposes that the Board accept the following special services:

1. In remedial reading the Board should hire enough remedial reading teachers so that each teacher's load does not exceed 45 to 50 students;

2. In the area of libraries, there should be one 30-minute period per week with qualified librarians. There should be 10 books per student as recommended by the ALA, one librarian for each 500 students and a general improvement in physical facilities;

3. In physical education there should be two one-hour periods weekly for grades K-6 with qualified gym teachers;

4. In art there should be one hour period weekly with a qualified art teacher for grades K-6;

5. In music, in grades K-6, there should be a 30-minute period three times a week;

6. The Board should hire one counselor for each 600 students and improve the facilities;

7. There ought to be enough speech therapists so that each therapist's top load does not exceed 75 students;

8. The Board should establish an audio-visual center, properly staffed with one full time specialist and two semi-professional assistants.

9. The Board should hire two nurses for the elementary schools, one for the middle school and high school combined.

While submitting evidence indicating that much has been done in the past in the area of special services, the Board agrees that the Association's proposals are desirable objectives. However, the Board states that these objectives must be part of long-term planning and growth.

In view of the positions of the parties, I recommend that the Association's proposals should serve as the framework for improved special services during the next four-year period. The need for a period of time in which to completely realize the Association's objectives, is made clear by the Board's financial position, which is referred to below.

While this recommendation does not carry with it approval of every last aspect of the Association's proposals, I believe that those which are not effectuated as of the fall of 1972 should prove to be the extreme exception to the rule.

5. RELEASED TIME FOR ASSOCIATION PRESIDENT

The Association proposes that the Board ". . . provide time during working hours, without loss of time or pay, for the President of the Association to confer with the Board or its representatives or to promote the general welfare of the Swartz Creek school district." The Association states that in the case of a secondary teacher, the Board should assign one less class period per day. Under the Association's plan, preparation time and released time will be scheduled during consecutive periods. If the President is an elementary teacher, released time will be provided on the basis of one day per week "or any variation of this regular daily schedule mutually satisfactory to all parties."

The Board proposes that the Association President "use his conference hour, which is part of his regular working day, for Association business directly related to teacher problems." The Board's rationale for this is that the Association "has a responsibility also to assume part of the cost since the problems are directly related to their welfare." The Board has taken the same position at the bargaining table with the provision that where the administrator concerned with the problem "is not available during the conference period, the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel will provide an additional portion of the day off so that the Association President and the administrator can meet."

I recommend that the parties accept the Association proposal insofar as it permits the Association President to use the time for the investigation and processing of teacher grievances, the administration of the contract or amendments to the existing contract and preparation for negotiation for a new contract. I am not certain about what the Association contemplates when it proposes time off with pay to promote the general welfare of the Swartz Creek School District. But my recommendation is meant to establish a relationship between the parties which is quite common in private industry and which, in my opinion, will find increasing acceptance in public education.

It is in the interest of the Association, the Board and the community that the Association President have time to assist teachers and to confer with Board representatives in an attempt to make the employer-employee relationship a healthier one. For when the Association President is given the free time contemplated by this proposal, investigation of grievances at an early stage will reduce the potentially costly and time consuming issues which fester and become more exaggerated because they have been left unattended. I believe that my recommendation will assist both sides in turning their attention to the task of building a solid relationship for the future.

6. SALARY

The Association proposes a salary schedule containing a starting salary for a BA degree of $7,000 with a 4.5% vertical index and a 5.5% horizontal index. The current minimum salary is $6,050, the vertical index at 4% and the horizontal index at 5%. The parties calculate that the Association salary proposals would cost approximately $250,000.

The Board has made three salary proposals, the last of which would cost approximately $136,000. Although the Board's last proposal was a starting salary of $6,700, the schedule substituted an increment of $250 horizontally for the existing horizontal index of 5%. The Board contends that its ability to pay more than this offer is seriously limited by a deficit of $253,500.

The Association counters this with a number of arguments. The first of these is that there has been a "general historical decline" in the excess of assets over liabilities, or General Fund Equity, and that this should have prompted the Board to engage in "adequate planning to eliminate this trend before a sudden appearance of the deficiency." Moreover, the Association points out that while state aid has steadily increased from 1963-67, "local taxpayer participation has decreased steadily." There has been no increase in millage since 1963.

Further, the Association points out that current millage in Swartz Creek is inadequate in relation to the State median and as compared to districts "in the immediate area" which have "comparable State Equalized Valuation per pupil." Moreover, the Association points to the loss of purchasing power suffered by Swartz Creek teachers as the result of inflationary pressures reflected in the BLS consumer price index.

I am not convinced that the Association's proposals on index are warranted. In the first place, the present index appears to compare favorably with other districts in the County. I am unable to find one district in the immediate area with what can be regarded as a superior index. Secondly, an increase in the index poses special financial hazards to a growing and unpredictable district like Swartz Creek, hazards which cannot be fully measured at this juncture. I, therefore, recommend that the parties retain the current index of 4% and 5%.

On the basis of the evidence submitted it would appear that the average settlement in the County consists of a minimum salary in the range of $6,000 - $6,700. But Swartz Creek can afford to be a leader in the area. This is demonstrated by its S.E.V. (17,073) per pupil; which reflects, to some degree, a greater ability to pay than most communities in the area. For instance, the neighboring communities of Mount Morris and Grand Blanc have an inferior S.E.V. and yet are able to pay $6,675 and $6,700 with relatively comparable increment steps. This is to be compared with the Board's last offer of $6,757 with the present index.

If school districts with a poor property tax base can pay below average salaries,[11] those with the resources ought to pay salaries which are in excess of the average. Certainly Swartz Creek ought not pay less than communities with less money. Comparability is to be measured not only by what other districts in the area are paying but also in terms of tax resources which the districts in the area possess.

But despite Swartz Creek's strong S.E.V. it runs a deficit and thus claims an inability to pay. This "inability" is best explained by the reluctance of appropriate officials to risk a millage election since 1963. Such excessive caution will impair the reputation of Swartz Creek as a district which wants to pay teachers adequately. That caution is reflected not only by the absence of a millage election since 1963, but also by the fact that Swartz Creek is 17th out of 21 Genesee County school districts in utilizing available tax resources.

The Swartz Creek Board of Education must raise taxes to meet its obligations to its teachers – and to public education generally. At the same time I am aware of the fact that there is a current deficit and that adequate finances cannot be raised until the following year. I, therefore, recommend a two-year contract which would provide a starting salary of $6,675 in the first year, the existing index, and an additional $50 increment on the Master's degree side of the schedule at the last three steps.

In the second year, the starting salary should be $7,375. However, if the BLS consumer price index reflects an equivalent loss of purchasing power during the first nine months of 1969 as compared with the same period of time in 1968, the Association should have the right to reopen the contract and bargain for more than $7,375.

In my judgment these recommendations take into account both the Board's current deficit and the leadership position which Swartz Creek can assume once it raises necessary revenues through adequate taxation next year.

7. DEFERRED PAYMENT

The Association proposes that "teachers . . . be paid an amount upon retirement equal to the number of years taught at Swartz Creek multiplied by $100. The rationale for this proposal is that the cost is small, some school districts in Genesee and Lapeer Counties are offering deferred payment to their teachers and the Swartz Creek salary has been below the State Median during the past five years.

The Board states that while it recognizes "the efforts of people who have given long and faithful service to our school and the community" the cost is prohibitive at this time and longevity pay has already been negotiated.

I am of the view that longevity pay is a partial compensation for long service employees and that, therefore, the parties should review their positions on this matter during the summer of 1969. In short, the Association should have a right to reopen a contract on this subject at which time adequate revenues should be available for financing the Association's proposals. If the Fact-Finder's proposals regarding taxation are followed, I can see no reason why the Association's proposal cannot be implemented during the summer of 1969.

8. SUBSTITUTE PAY

The Association proposes that qualified teachers who are called to do substitute teaching on an emergency basis during their conference hour, teachers of summer school, and teachers of driver education should be paid 1/6 of the regular contractual salary or $6 per hour.

The Board has proposed a rate of $5.25 per hour for emergency substitutes and 1/7 of the regular contractual salary per hour for summer school teachers.

The Association's proposals should not be unduly burdensome to the Board and I recommend their acceptance by the parties. Certainly, the Board should be willing to pay for substitute teaching which is, in effect, overtime; and, certainly it should be willing to pay for the amount of time in calls and preparation during summer school which is approximately 1/6 of the regular school year. Since, in my opinion, the Association's proposals have a more rational basis I recommend their inclusion in the parties' agreement.

9. PAY FOR COORDINATORS and

10. SPECIAL COMMITTEES

I am advised that the parties are near agreement on both of these issues and I, therefore, recommend that remaining differences be resolved by means of collective bargaining.

Negotiation Agreements

AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE BOARD OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT #61, DECATUR, ILLINOIS

AND

THE DECATUR EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

FROM

AUGUST 29, 1968 to AUGUST 28, 1969

This Agreement, developed and agreed to by the Board of Education for School District #61, Decatur, Illinois, hereinafter referred to as the "Board", and the Decatur Education Association, hereinafter referred to as the "Association", shall be in force for the school year 1968-69. It is agreed that this instrument supercedes those sections in the official manual of policies and administrative procedures which are in conflict with policies stated herein. It is further agreed that any revision of the agreement shall be in accordance with Article I, "Memorandum of Intent", which is considered a part of this Agreement.

ARTICLE I

MEMORANDUM OF INTENT

THIS MEMORANDUM OF INTENT Expressed this 1st day of December, 1966, by the BOARD OF EDUCATION OF DECATUR SCHOOL DISTRICT No. 61 in MACON COUNTY, ILLINOIS, hereinafter referred to as the "Board" and THE DECATUR EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, hereinafter referred to as the "Association", WITNESSETH:

Whereas, the parties hereto are agreed that the welfare of the children of the school district is of paramount importance and will be promoted by both parties and

Whereas, both parties recognize that teaching is a profession, and Whereas, both parties are desirous of formulating an orderly procedure and policy concerning dealing between the Board and the Teachers or their representatives,

Now, therefore, IT IS MUTUALLY AGREED AS FOLLOWS:

I. RECOGNITION

On condition that the Association presents unto the Board satisfactory evidence that it represents a majority of the certificated personnel, except substitute and non-contract teachers, the Board will recognize the Association as the representative of such certificated personnel, from time to time employed by the Board for the purpose of negotiation upon certain matters as hereinafter set forth.

On November 15, 1967, and each year thereafter re-determination of such majority status shall be made. If, in the opinion of the Board, the evidence of such majority status is at that time not satisfactory to the Board or in event that any other organization may also present evidence that it also represents a majority of such certificated personnel, then the Board may call an election to be held at the time and in the manner to be determined by it, but not later than December 15 of said year. All certificated personnel except substitute and non-contract teachers shall be eligible to vote at such election and the Board will then recognize the organization which receives a plurality of the votes at such election as the organization with which it will thereafter negotiate in the manner herein set forth.

II. GENERAL PRINCIPLES

A. Attaining Objectives
It is agreed that attainment of objectives of the educational program of the District requires mutual understanding and cooperation between the Board and the professional teaching personnel.

B. Professional Teaching Personnel
It is agreed that teaching is a profession requiring specialized qualifications, and the success of the educational program in the District depends upon the maximum utilization of the abilities of teachers who are satisfied with the conditions under which they work.

C. Membership Not Required
It is agreed that it is the individual right of the teachers to join or not to join any organization for their professional or economic improvement, and membership in the Association or any other organization shall not be required as a condition of employment.

D. Representation and Meetings
The Association shall provide the Board and the Superintendent with the names of its duly authorized representatives and from time to time shall notify them of any changes.

The Board or the Board and the Superintendent or designated representatives of the Board and/or administrative staff will meet with the representatives of the Association for the purpose of discussion and reaching mutually satisfactory agreements on salary, welfare provisions, and physical working conditions, and such other matters of professional concern as may be mutually agreed upon.

Before any Board meeting the Secretary of the Board shall provide at least one of the designated representatives of the Association with the same written information that he provides the press on the night of the meeting.

Nothing herein shall preclude individuals or other organizations from presenting their views and recommendations to the Board at any time.

III. OPERATING PROCEDURES

A. Request for Meetings
Requests by the Association for a meeting will be made to the Superintendent or his Assistant if available. Request by the Superintendent or the Board will be made to the President of the Association or his Assistant or representative, if available. A meeting of representatives as set forth in Paragraph II-D shall be held within 21 days after the date of the request for a meeting, unless a mutually satisfactory later date is agreed upon. Any request for a meeting shall specify the subject matter to be discussed and shall be in writing.

Relevant data and supporting information, proposals, and counter proposals will be presented at the meeting.

B. Meetings

Meetings composed of members of the Association's negotiating committee, the Board or its authorized delegates, and the Superintendent shall be called at the written request of any one of the parties. Official minutes shall be kept by someone designated at the meeting and such minutes shall be subject to the approval of both parties. Such meetings shall be held in non-school hours, if possible, but in the event of a daytime meeting, teacher members shall be released from school to attend meetings.

C. Assistance

The parties may call upon competent professional and lay persons for information, advice, and suggestions. Such consultant's services will be used as deemed necessary by the parties retaining the consultant.

D. Study Committees

The parties may appoint special study committees for such purpose as they may desire in connection with any matters under consideration, and the committee shall report its findings to the parties.

E. Furnishing of Information

The Board agrees that the Superintendent's Office will, upon reasonable request, furnish the Association's negotiating committee all readily available pertinent information concerning the financial resources of the District including the tentative line budget at the time it is ready for the Board and preliminary budgetary proposals, requirements and allocations, and such other readily available and pertinent information as will assist the Association in developing intelligent, accurate, and constructive programs on behalf of the teachers, the students, and the education program. Nothing herein shall require the administrative staff to research and assemble information.

F. Sequence of Procedures

It is understood between the parties that the organization will first negotiate with the Superintendent or his representative. In the event of failure to reach agreement there shall be a meeting of organization representatives with representatives of the Board and the Superintendent. If agreement is not reached, the procedures in Section V shall be followed.

IV. FORM OF AGREEMENT

When agreement is reached, it shall be reduced to writing and, when approved by the Board, become a part of the official minutes of the Board. Subsequent changes shall also be incorporated in the official minutes of the Board. When necessary, provisions in the agreement shall be reflected in individual contracts. No agreement shall discriminate against any member of the staff based upon membership or non-membership in any organization.

V. MEDIATION AND APPEAL

A. Board of Education

If agreement is not reached and members of the Board have not participated directly in the deliberations, the Association's representative and the Superintendent or his representative may present separate reports to the Board and the procedure outlined in Section III-B, with the Board participating in the deliberations, shall then be followed.

B. Fact-finding Committee

1. In case of disagreement about the meaning or application of the agreement, or if an impasse is reached during negotiations, the matter will be presented to an advisory fact-finding committee within thirty (30) days after the request of either party to the other. The Board will name one member of this fact-finding committee, the Association will name another. A third member, who shall be chairman, shall be named by the first two named members.

2. The Fact-finding Committee will have authority to inquire into the issues and confer with any persons deemed advisable in seeking to effect a recommendation to resolve the issue.

3. The Fact-finding Committee may hold closed sessions and need not issue any news releases concerning its progress.

4. The Fact-finding Committee shall report its recommendations within fifteen (15) days. The recommendations shall be submitted to both parties and shall be made public by the Fact-finding Committee after this has been done.

5. Cost and expenses which may be incurred in securing and utilizing the services of members of the Fact-finding Committee shall be shared as follows:

(a) The expenses incurred by the Association shall be paid by the Association.
(b) The expenses incurred by the Board shall be paid by the Board.
(c) Expenses incurred in securing the third party shall be shared equally by the Board and the Association.

VI. LIMITATIONS

A. The Association shall agree not to strike.

B. The Association agrees that its members shall not picket in any manner which would tend to disrupt the operation of any public school in the District or the administrative offices of the Board.

C. The benefit of any and all decisions and conclusions the Board of Education may reach after having negotiated with the Association shall apply equally to all teachers and other educational personnel appointed by the Board.

D. The Association agrees that should negotiations fail to resolve differences, the decision of the Board of Education shall be final.

E. If any portion of this agreement is in violation of any law of the State of Illinois, that portion in disagreement shall be considered null and void.

VII. DURATION

This Memorandum of Intent shall be in force from year to year unless terminated by either party giving written notice to the other of such termination at least thirty days prior to December 1st of 1967 or any year thereafter, in which event such agreement shall terminate on December 1st of that year. Either party desiring changes in this agreement shall give written notice to the other party of such desired changes at least thirty days prior to December 1st of any year and if the other party disagrees with such changes, then the procedures herein enumerated shall be followed in seeking to resolve such differences and this Memorandum of Intent shall then be terminated when such procedures have been exhausted without agreement.

VIII. NO PERSONAL LIABILITY

This Memorandum of Intent shall create no personal or individual contractual obligation or liability on the part of any member or members of the Board of Education.

ARTICLE II

ELECTION PROCEDURES

1. Eligible Voters
All certificated personnel of Decatur School District #61, except substitute and non-contract teachers, who are employees listed on the payroll (final date of pay period, rather than date checks are distributed) immediately preceding the date of the election and who have not submitted a resignation to become effective on a date after the payroll or determination of eligibility shall be eligible to vote in recognition elections.

2. Polling Places
Voting space shall be provided at each junior high school.

3. Voting Hours
Voting hours shall be from 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on a school day.

4. Election Judges
Judges for the election shall be neutral persons selected by the Board of Education. There shall be no fewer than two (2) judges at each polling place.

5. Poll Watchers
No more than one representative from each group on the ballot shall be permitted to serve as poll watchers. They shall in no way disturb the judges.

6. Counting the Ballots
Ballot boxes shall be sealed at 5:00 p.m. and delivered immediately to the office of the Board of Education by one or more of the judges where the official count shall take place. The Board shall appoint three or more neutral persons as judges to conduct the count. Upon completion of the count, the judges shall certify to the results of the election and sumbit all the ballots and certification of the results to the Board of Education or its representative as soon as the count is completed. Such certification shall contain a record of all ballots distributed to the polls and returned to the office of the Board of Education. After the final tally, the ballots shall be placed in a vault at the Keil Building.

7. Contesting of Election
Contesting of the election must be done in writing and include the reasons for contest to the Superintendent of Schools and within seven (7) days from the actual election date. The Board shall review the reasons for contesting. If the election is judged to be fair or if it is not contested, the ballots shall be destroyed.

8. Canvass by Board
The Board shall within seven (7) days review the canvass and determine the representative organization to be recognized by the Board for the purpose of negotiating under terms of the Memorandum of Intent.

9. Form of Ballot
The ballot shall be in the following form:

Official Secret Ballot

This ballot is for an election among the eligible employees of Decatur School District #61 to determine which organization shall represent them in negotiations (concerning salaries and working conditions) with the Board of Education.
****

Mark an "X" on this ballot in one square only.
Make no other mark.

I desire to be represented by the D. E. A.	I desire not to be represented	I desire to be represented by the _____

This is a secret ballot and must not be signed.

10. Sample Ballots
Sample ballots (marked "Sample") may be circulated throughout the District prior to election day to help avoid confusion during balloting. The official ballot shall be a different color and shall be kept secret until election day.

11. Challenged Vote
If a voter's eligibility to vote is challenged, the following procedure shall be used:

(a) Voter shall be permitted to vote.
(b) The voter shall place the ballot in an unmarked envelope.
(c) The judges then shall seal this envelope in another envelope, on the outside of which they write the voter's name, the name of the challenger, and the reason for the challenge.
(d) Decisions on the challenged ballots shall be made by the judges appointed to count the ballots. They shall not be opened and counted until all other votes are counted. If they cannot alter the outcome of the election, they shall be destroyed without counting. If they can alter the outcome, a decision shall be made on each challenge. If it is decided that a ballot is eligible, the outer envelope is opened and destroyed; the inner envelope, still sealed, is mixed with other challenged ballots deemed eligible, later to be opened and included in the final count.

12. Declaration of Exclusive Representation
The organization receiving the plurality of those voting shall become the certificated employees' representative and negotiating party with the Board of Education under provisions stated in Memorandum of Intent.

ARTICLE III

RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

A. The Board

1. The Board will make every effort to provide the best possible facilities within the limits of prudent expenditures. It will also make every effort to assist staff members in the advancement of skills and techniques.

2. The Board shall be responsible for providing a quality educational program, seeking improvement in teaching methods, in instructional tools, in professional standards of excellence, in economy of operation, and in staff morale.

B. The Staff

1. The staff members shall be responsible for maintaining a continuous high level of professional service. The staff members, therefore, are responsible for discharging their assignments with professional proficiency.

2. The staff members shall have the right to have disciplinary interviews and reprimands held in private. An affected staff member will, however, have the right to request the presence of an Association Grievance Committee representative at said interview and, when such a request is made, the interview will not proceed until the representative is in attendance.

3. Staff members shall have the right to have annual membership dues for the Decatur Education Association, the Illinois Education Association, and/or the National Education Association deducted in nine (9) equal installments throughout the school year.

4. Staff members shall have the right to review the contents of their personal files as maintained by the Director of Personnel upon requesting in writing an appointment to be at the convenience of both parties. Privileged information, such as credentials and letters of reference, shall be specifically exempted from such a review. A representative of the Association may, at the staff member's request, accompany the staff member in such a review.

C. The Association

1. The Association shall have the right to post notices of its activities and matters of Association concern on school bulletin boards.

2. The Association shall have the right to use the District mail service and staff member mail boxes for communications to staff members.

3. The Association shall have the right to use school building facilities immediately at the close of school or at other times thereafter for business meetings, providing such facilities are available and providing prior permission has been granted.

4. Authorized Association representatives shall be granted time to attend state or national Association workshops, conferences, conventions, and other activities provided the total amount of time so taken does not exceed ten (10) days per school year. There shall be no deductions from salaries provided the Association pays for any necessary substitutes.

ARTICLE IV

GRIEVANCE PROCEDURES

A. Definition -- Any claim by the Association or by a staff member of a violation, misinterpretation, or misapplication of the terms of this agreement or of established policy thereunder shall be deemed a grievance when presented in writing.

B. Purpose -- The purpose of this procedure is to secure, at the lowest possible administrative level, equitable solutions to grievances which may arise from time to time. Both parties agree that proceedings, but not necessarily the grievance itself, will be confidential, and that the proceedings will be as informal as is mutually agreeable. Records shall be kept by both parties.

C. Grievance Representation -- Upon selection and certification by the Association, the Board shall recognize an Association Grievance Committee. The committee's composition shall be as follows: One elementary teacher, one junior high school teacher, one senior high school teacher, one administrator, and the Executive Director of the Association. The president of the Association shall notify the Director of Personnel of the persons appointed to the committee by May 31 of each year.

D. Procedure -- Since it is important that grievances be processed as rapidly as possible, the number of days indicated at each step shall be considered a maximum, and every effort will be made to expedite the process. Staff members having grievances must follow these steps:

Step 1: The parties acknowledge that it is usually most desirable for a staff member and his supervisor to resolve problems through informal oral discussions. Therefore, any claim shall first be presented orally to the immediate supervisor. The Association building representative shall be present to assist in the oral resolution of a difference. It shall be the responsibility of the staff member to see that the Association representative is present.

Step 2: If a settlement satisfactory to the staff member is not arrived at orally, he may file a written statement in quadruplicate on forms provided by the Board within four school attendance days of the oral discussion. In stating his grievance, the staff member must specify the document and the section which was allegedly violated, and must give tangible evidence in support of his grievance. This statement shall be signed by the staff member and presented to his principal or immediate supervisor who shall certify with his signature the date and the hour of its receipt. This certification shall be witnessed by the staff member. The principal or immediate supervisor shall, within four school attendance days, write his answer on this form, date it, and sign it. This answer shall be presented to the staff member who shall certify with his signature the date and the hour of its receipt. This certification shall be witnessed by the principal or immediate supervisor. The grievance will be regarded as settled and closed four school attendance days after receipt of the answer from the principal or immediate supervisor, providing the staff member has not signed the form for appeal of the grievance. Any decision accepted as satisfactory, or appealed to Step 3, shall be sent immediately to the Director of Personnel. At this time, the grievance will be numbered and two copies sent immediately to the Executive Director of the Association unless the staff member requests that the Association not be involved.

Step 3: If the staff member wishes to appeal the answer of the principal or immediate supervisor, the Association Grievance Committee will meet and render a decision within four school attendance days of receipt of the two copies from the Director of Personnel. If the Association Grievance Committee decides that the grievance is invalid, then the Association will consider the matter closed, and further appeal by the staff member shall be without participation by the Association. The Association Grievance Committee shall immediately send its decision to the Director of Personnel.

Step 4: If the staff member wishes to continue the appeal, he or a representative of the Association Grievance Committee, or both, must request, within four school attendance days of the receipt by the Director of Personnel of the decision of the Association Grievance Committee, a meeting with the Director of Personnel. The Director of Personnel will then schedule a meeting at a time convenient to both parties. The decision of the Director of Personnel shall be sent to the staff member within four school attendance days following the meeting.

Step 5: If the staff member wishes to continue the appeal, he or a representative of the Association Grievance Committee, or both, must request, within four school attendance days of receipt of the decision of the Director of Personnel, a meeting with the Board in personnel session. In addition to the staff member, this session may be attended by an Association representative. The session shall be held within a four-week period of receipt of the request. A decision shall be made within seven calendar days of the session, and copies of the written decision shall be sent immediately to the staff member, the chairman of the Association Grievance Committee, and the Director of Personnel.

ARTICLE V

STANDARDS FOR EMPLOYMENT

A. Every effort will be made by the Board to employ teachers having at least a bachelor's degree from an accredited institution of higher learning.

B. Only in times of emergency will teachers be employed who have provisional certificates.

ARTICLE VI

TEACHING DAYS AND HOURS

A. The teaching year shall consist of 185 days, of which 180 shall be made up of days with pupil attendance and/or institutes. The school calendar shall be in compliance with the Illinois School Code and subject to revisions therein.

B. The school calendar shall be prepared after conferring with the Association. After adoption the calendar shall be attached to this Agreement as Appendix #3.

C. The policy of establishing the hours in the school day for staff members shall be as follows:

1. The school day shall be determined within the building by cooperation between the principal and the faculty.

2. The teacher will assume the responsibility for a daily schedule that is commensurate with his professional obligation.

3. The principal will assume responsibility for scheduling that is necessary for the good educational planning and the legal safety of children.

D. Each staff member shall have a duty-free lunch period which complies with Section 24-9 of the Illinois School Code.

ARTICLE VII

TEACHING LOADS AND ASSIGNMENTS

A. Teaching loads shall be limited to no more than twenty-six (26) hours of assigned responsibilities per week. In addition, teachers will be expected to be on duty during scheduled passing time, including before and after school.

B. Staff member participation in extra-curricular activities for which no additonal compensation is paid shall be voluntary.

C. Staff members shall participate in building faculty meetings and department meetings as scheduled.

D. Travel time of staff members directly related to teacher duties shall be considered as a part of such teacher's teaching day.

E. Teachers shall be assigned only within their major and minor fields of study and only within the range of grade level as permitted under their certificate.

F. Reassignments of grade levels or subjects within a building may be made at any time with the mutual consent of the parties involved. Unilateral reassignments may be made when staff members are unavailable for consultation or when scheduling emergencies arise as long as such assignments do not create a vacancy which is filled by a person qualified to fill the original vacancy.

G. The Board through the principal will give written notice of assignments for the following school year by the end of the current school year.

H. Teachers shall:

1. Conduct the classes assigned in a way that will give the students the richest experiences the teacher is capable of providing for them.
2. Keep records as requested by the principal.
3. To the best of their ability, keep informed on the latest research findings in their field of teaching and in the area of the psychology of learning.
4. Prepare daily lesson plans and keep them in desk for use of substitutes in case of teacher's absence.

ARTICLE VIII

TEACHING CONDITIONS

A. As rapidly as it is possible to provide teachers and rooms, the size of classes shall be in accordance with the best known practice and in the interest of the greatest possible teacher efficiency. The Board will work toward these objectives: (1) Standard class size of 25 students, (2) Maximum class size of 30 students with exceptions made for music, physical education, and such other subjects. This shall not preclude the adoption of innovative patterns of classroom organizations.

B. The staff recognizes its responsibility to all students and shall agree to take that responsibility. However, at the secondary level no teacher shall be required to teach more than two (2) classes of students designated as individual or low ability classes without the consent of the teacher involved.

C. Staff members agree to assume responsibility to secondary students in vocational exploration in group work with children and to college students who are assigned for student teaching. However, no staff member shall be assigned one of these secondary students or a student teacher without first giving his consent.

ARTICLE IX

PROMOTIONS, VACANCIES, AND TRANSFERS

A. Information regarding positions which are to be available, either through creation or vacancy, shall be publicized to the staff by posting notices on all school bulletin boards with a copy to the Association office. Where specific training, experience, or other qualifications are prerequisites for any position that is to be available, such conditions shall be stated in the job description.

B. Staff members may apply for any vacancy. In filling vacancies, the Board agrees to give due weight to the professional background and attainments as well as other relevant factors of all applicants. The decision of the Board as to the filling of vacancies shall be final.

C. The responsibility for the selection of personnel to staff a building shall be vested in the principals or other personnel (such as department heads), designated by the superintendent, and the Director of Personnel.

D. The practice of employing married couples to teach in the same building shall be avoided when possible.

E. Any staff member presently employed in the district may apply for a transfer to another building.

F. All requests for transfer shall be submitted to the Director of Personnel on forms provided by the Board.

G. Any member of the staff who desires transfer from one building to another shall apply in writing to the Director of Personnel no later than April 1, if the transfer is to become effective the following September. If, in the judgment of the administrative personnel listed in paragraph C above, the transfer is in the best interest of the school system, the request will be granted. Notification of the decision will be made by the Director of Personnel.

H. Transfers may be made at any time with the mutual consent of parties involved. Unilateral transfers may be made when staff members are unavailable for consultation or when emergencies arise, as long as such transfers do not create a vacancy which is filled by a person qualified to fill the original vacancy.

ARTICLE X

SICK, EMERGENCY, AND PERSONAL LEAVE

A. Sick and emergency leave without loss of pay shall be credited annually to each full-time staff member on the first day of his employment year.

1. Ten (10) days for staff members on 39, 40, or 41 week contracts.
2. Eleven (11) days for staff members on 42 to 47 week contracts.
3. Thirteen (13) days for staff members on contracts of 48 weeks or longer.
4. Staff members under contract for less than full time but half time or more will be allowed one-half (1/2) the normal sick and emergency allowances provided full-time staff members.
5. Staff members who are hired after the opening date shall be credited with a proportionate number of sick and emergency leave days rounded off to the nearest one-half (1/2) day.

B. Emergency leave shall include quarantine, serious illness or death in the immediate family or household. (Immediate family shall include father, mother, brother, sister, spouse, or child of the staff member, and father, mother, brother, sister of spouse, or persons in loco-parentis)

C. Personal Leave

1. Staff members will be permitted a maximum of one day absence annually when necessary for personal reasons other than illness, with such absence to be charged against accrued sick leave. Substitute and staff members teaching less than one-half time will not be eligible for any personal leave days.
2. If possible, application for personal leave shall be made to the appropriate supervisor, at least one day in advance of taking the leave.
3. Except as provided below, the applicant need only state that he is taking personal leave under this paragraph.

   (a) Personal leave days may not be taken on the first day of school, on the first working day preceding or following a vacation day or holiday, or on days when final examinations are scheduled. Exceptions to this shall include a court appearance, graduation exercises, honors convocations honoring the staff member, or a religious holiday.

D. Staff members shall be permitted a maximum of one (1) day to attend their own college graduation exercises or that of their son, daughter, husband, or wife without a salary deduction, with such absence to be charged against accrued sick leave.

E. If the staff member does not use the full amount allowed for personal illness, emergency leave, personal leave, or graduation exercises leave, the amount unused shall accumulate to a total of 120 days, exclusive of the allowance for the current year.

F. The accumulated sick leave shall automatically terminate on the date that a staff member's resignation becomes effective.

ARTICLE XI

ABSENCES BEYOND ACCUMULATED SICK LEAVE

A. Deductions for absences for which leave is not granted shall be at the rate of 80% of the per diem salary rate according to the following three provisions:

1. For illness beyond accumulated sick leave time, the above provisions (80% deductions) shall extend until the teacher can qualify for temporary disability pension under the Illinois Teacher Retirement System, but not to exceed a total of thirty (30) days in any one year. For teachers not covered by the retirement system, the period of 80% deduction shall be limited to thirty (30) days illness beyond accumulated sick leave.

2. For illness or death in the immediate family, this provision shall be limited to ten (10) days beyond accumulated leave for this purpose.

3. The thirty (30) days and the ten (10) days referred to in 1 and 2 shall not be accumulated from year to year.

ARTICLE XII

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

A. Maternity Leave

1. Any married teacher on tenure who becomes an expectant mother shall give written notice of that fact to the Superintendent of Schools at least five (5) months before the expected confinement date.

2. The Board shall have power to determine in each case when the teacher concerned shall discontinue her school duties and shall go on leave of absence without pay, but in no case shall this be later than two (2) months prior to the expected confinement date. The maternity leave shall extend until such time as a written statement, indicating that the staff member is physically able to return to work, is provided by the attending physician, and providing there is a vacancy for which she may qualify.

3. Upon written request by the staff member, her maternity leave shall be extended to as much as two years beyond confinement.

4. If the absence from teaching of a teacher not on tenure would occur during the two-year probation period and would preclude the necessary observation of her work before being placed on tenure, the date on which she shall discontinue teaching as determined by the Board shall also be considered the date of resignation and termination of service by the teacher. If this date of termination should fall on or after April 1 of the second year of the probation period and she is recommended for tenure, the date of her possible return shall be determined by the same policy as governs the return of teachers on tenure.

5. Should a teacher who resigns under the above conditions wish to return to the staff, careful consideration will be given her application.

B. Military Leave

Staff members required to serve in the armed forces shall be granted a leave of absence without pay for the period in service. The time spent in the service shall be credited to them on the salary schedule upon their return to the school system. The staff member shall retain all accrued benefits while on leave.

C. Detached Service Leave

The Board may grant staff members detached service leave without pay to work for an educational institution, a foundation, or an official governmental agency, including the Peace Corps. A staff member who is on tenure and who is granted detached service leave shall not forfeit tenure status or other accrued benefits while on leave.

D. Study Leave

Upon application, the Board may grant leave of absence without pay for study not to exceed two years. A staff member who is on tenure and who is granted study leave shall not forfeit tenure status or other accrued benefits while on leave.

E. Extended Illness

Any staff member whose personal illness extends beyond the period compensated under Article XI will be granted a leave of absence without pay or increment until such time as a physician certifies the staff member is capable of returning to work. The Board may request an examination by a Board appointed physician. In no case shall extended illness leave extend beyond two (2) calendar years. The staff member shall retain all accrued benefits upon returning to work.

F. Extended Leaves

Staff members who are granted extended leaves of absences under Sections A through E above cannot be assured of placement in the same position when they return. The best possible assignment, however, shall be made within the existing vacancies.

G. Visiting Day

A staff member may be allowed one (1) visiting day each year with full pay.

1. Visitations may be within or outside the Decatur school system at such place or places as present the greatest opportunity for growth in the staff member's field or work, and must be mutually agreed upon by the staff member and the supervising principal.

2. Unused visitation days may accumulate to a maximum of three (3) days.

3. The plan and report of the visitation should be a cooperative enterprise between the staff member and the supervising principal.

4. On the approval of the supervising administrator, a staff member may use allowable visitation days for purposes of attending professional meetings.

H. Jury Duty and Court Subpoena

Any staff member summoned to jury duty or issued a court subpoena shall be paid his full salary for each working day of absence, provided that the staff member pays the district the jury fee or witness fee.

I. Accrued Benefits

Accrued benefits shall be defined to mean tenure status, accumulated sick leave, placement on the salary schedule (staff member retains full salary placement credit to which the staff member was entitled at the time the leave was granted), and accumulated visitation days.

ARTICLE XIII

INSURANCE PROTECTION

A. The Board will continue to provide for each certificated staff member the insurance plan presently in effect.

ARTICLE XIV

PROTECTION OF STAFF MEMBERS

A. The Board hereby declares its full support of student disciplinary procedures and policies which are presently in effect and those procedures and policies which may hereafter be adopted by the Board in the matter of student discipline. The Board, the administration, and the staff members recognize a mutual responsibility for the enforcement of such policies and procedures.

B. The Board hereby agrees to indemnify and protect staff members against death and bodily injury and property damage claims and suits, including defense thereof, when damages are sought for negligent or wrongful acts alleged to have been committed in the scope of employment or under the direction of the Board. This indemnity shall include judgments, interest, Court costs, reasonable attorney fees, and any costs necessarily expended in the defense of any suit heretofore described.

C. The Board does hereby agree to indemnify and protect staff members against the costs of defense of a criminal proceeding against any staff member by reason of any acts committed within the scope of employment by said staff member. The costs of defense shall include reasonable attorney fees and any other costs necessarily expended in the defense of such criminal action. The indemnity stated in this paragraph shall not apply in the event the staff member is found guilty by a jury or Court of the criminal charge brought against such staff member.

D. Any reasonable time, when a staff member would otherwise be attending to his teaching duties, spent in the preparation of the defense, or attendance at a judicial hearing, pertaining to a civil or criminal charge described in paragraphs B and C of Article XIV shall not result in a loss of salary or accrued benefits by such staff member.

E. In the event of an injury to a staff member while in the scope of his employment, the salary of such staff member shall continue in full, without reduction in accrued benefits, until

a. He is able to return to his full time teaching duties, or

b. The end of the contract of employment of the staff member with the Board, or

c. Such staff member qualifies for disability or pension benefits under the Illinois Teachers Retirement System, whichever event occurs first. In the event Workmen's Compensation is payable by reason of such injury, the salary of such injured staff member may be reduced by the amount of the temporary incapacity payments payable under Workmen's Compensation.

F. The general policy, subject to emergency exceptions, shall be that no action against a staff member may be taken on the basis of a complaint by a parent of a student, or student, unless such proposed action is first reported in writing to such staff member affected thereby and the staff member given an opportunity for a hearing before a representative of the Board concerning the complaint and action proposed to be taken thereon.

G. Any staff member absent from teaching duties by reason of any of the events set forth in Article XIV shall be considered on leave of absence, provided, however, that such period of absence shall not exceed the time limitations as set forth in subparagraphs D and E of this Article.

ARTICLE XV

SUMMER SCHOOL

A. The summer school at the senior high level shall consist of two (2) four-week sessions.

B. The summer school at the elementary and junior high level shall consist of one (1) six-week session.

C. The salary of the staff member for summer school shall be $6.70 per hour. A full load is defined as four (4) contact hours in a classroom situation; five (5) contact hours for behind-the-wheel driving.

D. Application for summer school teaching may be made by a qualified staff member on forms which may be obtained from the school principal or the personnel office. Application shall be filed with the Director of Summer School or the Director of Personnel on the date announced by the Superintendent. Summer school staff will be selected by the first day of May.

E. Summer school positions will be filled by staff members regularly employed by the Board, unless a qualified applicant from the Decatur School System is not available. Preference will be given to those who, for the past two (2) years, have been teaching in the field of their major preparation, and who meet North Central Association requirements. Those who have taught in this program for the past three (3) summers will not be selected if there are sufficient other candidates applying. The following criteria will be considered in making the selection:

1. The staff members who are best trained to meet the needs of the curriculum to be offered.

2. The staff members who are satisfactorily rated by their principals.

3. Tenure staff members will be selected unless a particular teaching need cannot be filled from the list of applicants.

F. All applicants will receive notification from the Personnel Office:

1. That they have been appointed to a position.

2. That there is a possibility for appointment at a later date.

3. That they will not be appointed this summer.

ARTICLE XVI

COMPENSATION

A. The salaries of all staff members covered by this Agreement are set forth in Schedules A and B of the Appendix which is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

B. The Board agrees to adopt the individual staff member contract forms attached hereto as in Appendix 4.

ARTICLE XVII

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

A. Where it is practical in existing buildings, the Board shall make available in each school at least one room appropriately furnished and vented which shall be reserved for use as a faculty lounge in which smoking is permitted. Provisions for such facilities will be made in all future buildings.

B. Copies of this Agreement shall be reproduced at the expense of the Board and be presented to all staff members now employed or hereafter employed by the Board.

C. The Board agrees to make every reasonable effort to provide qualified substitute teachers, and the teachers shall be informed of a telephone number they may call to report unavailability for work. Teachers shall report unavailability for work at the earliest possible time and shall make every effort to report no later than 7:00 a.m.

D. In schools where continuous cafeteria service is not available for teacher use, the teachers, with prior consent of the principal, may arrange for the installation of vending machines for beverages and confections. The installation, operation, control, and maintenance of these machines shall be the responsibility of the teachers in that building. All proceeds therefrom shall be used in such a manner as the teachers in that building determine.

E. In the event that it becomes necessary to reduce the number of staff personnel through the cutting of programs in the School District, the Board agrees to give due weight to the professional background and attainments of all staff members. These staff members who are fully qualified to staff the positions kept active shall be retained.

F. This agreement may not be modified in whole or in part by the parties except by an instrument in writing duly executed by both parties, and no departure from a provision of this Agreement by either party, or by their officers, agents, or representatives, or by members of the negotiating committee, shall be construed to constitute a continuing waiver of the right to enforce such provisions.

ARTICLE XVIII

DURATION OF AGREEMENT

The provisions of this agreement will be effective as of August 29, 1968, and will continue and remain in full force and effect until August 28, 1969.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereunto set their hands and seals this _____ day of _____, 1968.

The appropriate index shall be applied to the amount at the eleventh step of the master degree.

It will be the discretion of the Superintendent to place newly appointed administrators in columns 1, 2, 3, 4, or 5 of the administrators' salary index.

3. Salary Adjustments

Salaries of the certificated staff members shall be in accordance with the salary schedule adopted annually by the Board and the Association. Any change in salary shall be noted on new salary contracts at the time of change. Salaries shall be determined in accordance with a salary schedule based on training and experience. If a salary schedule adjustment is made during a school year, any staff member who is unable to complete that school year will receive an adjustment in proportion to that part of the school year that the staff member has been employed.

When a staff member earns a degree or earns sufficient semester hours to move from one salary sehedule step to another, adjustments on the salary schedule shall take place at the beginning of the ensuing semester. Full credit for teaching experience shall be given when adjustments are made. An official transcript of college credit and an application for adjustment must be filed with the Board to receive an adjustment.

4. Payroll Procedures

1. The first check received by the teaching staff will be the second Friday after the opening of school, and bi-weekly thereafter.

2. Contractual salaries will be multiplied by 10/200 to determine the gross bi-weekly amount. Staff members desiring to be paid on a twelve-months basis may request that a multiplier of 10/260 be applied. Any balance in the Board's contractual salary commitment to a staff member shall be paid on the last day of the school year.

3. Should a regular pay date fall during a period when school is not in session, staff members shall receive the pay due on that date on the last day prior to recess.

4. A deduction of 7% of each salary is made as the staff member's contribution to the Illinois Teacher's Retirement System. This is required by state law. There is a deduction for income tax on each salary payment to meet the terms of the Federal Withholding Tax. The amount of this deduction is determined by the salary and by the classification on the employee's Withholding Exemption Certificate.

5. All authorizations for payroll deductions will be made on one form.

6. Staff members required to drive personal automobiles in the course of their employment or otherwise using their automobiles in service to the District shall be reimbursed ten cents (10¢) per mile driven.

SCHEDULE B

THE "MASTER CONTRACT" IN PUBLIC EDUCATION

Erwin B. Ellmann

The following address was prepared for delivery November 15, 1968, before the annual meeting of the National Organization on Legal Problems of Education at San Diego, Calif. Mr. Ellmann has served for the past three years as counsel to the Michigan Education Association. He is a partner in the Detroit law firm of Levin, Levin, Garvett and Dill.

Former HEW Secretary John Gardner recently warned against the habit of educators "debating policy alternatives left behind five years ago." This is a particularly apt admonition in evaluating the so-called master contract as we know it at the present time in public education. When I first became involved with such problems in 1965 with the passage of Michigan's Public Employment Relations Act, the source book presented to me was a revised edition of an NEA pamphlet on professional negotiation, dated July 1965, collecting agreements then in force in different areas of the country. Those were the days when most teacher organizations mountainously labored with school boards to bring forth mice – pious declarations that teaching was a profession, that the teachers recognize and bow down before the board's legal powers, that everybody favors cooperation in principle so long as it doesn't disturb any existing practices, that the parties are anxious to talk to each other but that they can do so only after setting forth in fastidious detail how they are to begin to get started to commence the dialogue. These documents, which were usually only a few pages long, concentrated on how many chairs would be filled on each side of the table, who would call the meetings, and the procedures or instrumentalities for discussion. Rarely was there anything seriously said about substantive terms and conditions of employment of teachers.

Today such documents are as remote and outdistanced as medieval manuscripts. No one can take them seriously. They are curios of an age before teachers joined the revolution of our times. In a few years teachers have made a giant leap forward; they have passed from the stone age to the space age almost overnight. While in different states and communities there have been various rates of progress, the main body of the organized teachers of the country is, I think, moving from appalling naivete to high-geared sophistication. The collective bargaining agreement today in public education is no less detailed, comprehensive and imaginative than in the private sector.

In 1965 the Public Employment Relations Act of Michigan was given immediate effect. We had no "lead time," for both the statute and our competition were upon us. We had quickly to determine our bargaining objectives. There were few models. We borrowed liberally from pioneer contracts negotiated by the NEA in Newark and Rochester and New Haven and by the AFT in New York and Detroit. We appropriated ideas from industrial union agreements where applicable or suggestive. Mostly, we just went into an opium trance and improvised. Within a few weeks after the law became effective we distributed throughout the state a handbook on how to get recognition or certification, how to petition for an election, how to start negotiating, and a suggested model for what might be a first collective bargaining agreement.

Instead of a short memoranda in which boards and teachers promised to love the children, we suggested to our units a thirty-five page typewritten document, together with exhibits and attachments, as the bare bones of a contract between the parties. The proposal produced among teachers and administrators and MEA representatives a combination of vertigo, nausea and terror. It was too long. It was too complicated. It covered things no teacher had thought about or was interested in. It reiterated gobs of the statute and the rights of organization and negotiation which the Legislature had proclaimed.

Our first master contract may not have been a model of terse English prose but it provided the overnight means for educating everyone as to what the statute meant. It opened bargaining vistas. It suggested negotiable subject-matter. It showed the form and contour of a typical collective agreement. It let teachers see what was meant by negotiable terms and conditions of employment. And it outlined constructive, realistic solutions to some of the problems which teachers long had but did not know how to solve.

The importance of this basic contract can hardly be overemphasized. It was a written document which could be preserved and referred to later; it was a handy guide which saved creative thought at the local level.

It quickly helped get most teachers in most areas of the state thinking along somewhat parallel lines while at the same time encouraging reasonable diversity. For 1966-1967 we circulated a revised and expanded contract version with annotations—pointing out relevant decisions or statutory provisions supporting contract proposals, indicating similar provisions already in effect and giving incidental guidance to the negotiators. The following year the MEA put out a further revision and we are beginning work now on an edition for 1969-1970 with new proposals to keep pace with the rapidly changing scene and needs of public education.

We have eliminated some of the provisions which describe the statute and which were originally included mainly for missionary purposes. But we have not shrunk from seeking contractual commitments from school boards which parallel their statutory obligations, for this can provide us with a choice of remedies—that is, unfair labor practices or breach of contract. Some of the provisions have become more spare while others have been expanded.

These basic materials have since been sent throughout the country by the Michigan Education Association. We are flattered that they are now being widely imitated. Agreements in Arizona, Indiana and New Jersey, I have recently noticed, contain familiar language, even down to the typographical errors. It is gratifying to discover that persons unknown and maybe yet unborn will, in Justice Holmes' phrase, be "marching to the measure" of our thought. Acknowledging our debt to those who preceded us, we are pleased if we can be of help to those who are just getting into this interesting and protean area. If viticultural allusion in California is not currently amiss, I am sure that all of the toilers in the MEA vineyard are gratified if you can save yourselves work by building on what we have begun.

Current agreements in Michigan run at least 40 or 50 pages and some are twice that size. They contain detailed provisions for the governance of all aspects of the employment relation between teachers, administrators and the board of education. Our bargaining units are all-inclusive but exclude supervisory personnel because of the necessities of our statute. Our conception of bargainable issues embraces everything which can affect the teacher on the job, including design of buildings, parking, restroom, telephone and research facilities. Our master contracts cover all phases of compensation, whether in terms of annual salaries, allowances for extra-curricular assignments, leave provisions, terminal pay or study allowances. A recent MEA study based on 333 questionnaires actually returned, shows that in most of our districts individual teacher contracts are expressly made subject to the master agreement and that binding arbitration of grievances is provided in 133 contracts. Teacher aides or para-professional assistants are encouraged in 88 contracts, 20 explicitly authorize extension of the school year, and 121 provide for joint teacher-board consultations on the fiscal problems of the school district. Survey of Selected Data from 333 Education Association Agreements, 1967-1968 (1968). We provide for professional evaluation of both tenure and probationary teachers and seek to safeguard job security against frivolous and irrational board action. You may have noted a recent decision of an arbitrator holding that a high school football coach could not be removed from this special assignment without reasons which were substantial and fairly demonstrated. Board of Education, Warren Consolidated Schools, GERR-250 D-1, June 24, 1968. Our contracts cover problems of student discipline and teacher protection and methods for securing and expanding academic freedom within and outside the classroom. We negotiate a school calendar for the year and the length of the school day, including preliminary and postliminary activities. A recent study by a University of Michigan group suggests that while the average annual increase in teaching salaries in the years before negotiations was 3% at the B. A. minimum and 3.5% at the M. A. maximum, during the first two years the negotiation process has yielded average increases of 8% and 9% at the B. A. and 11% and 10% at the M. A. Rehmus and Wilner, "The Economic Results of Teacher Bargaining: Michigan's First Two Years" (1968). This last year the increase was 9% at the B. A. and 11% and 10% at the M. A. and our top salary range in Wayne County in the Detroit area is $7,500 at the B. A. minimum to $13,210 at the M. A. maximum in eleven years. Teachers who have increased their salaries some 30% in three years have little doubt as to the value of collective action.

Where bread and butter issues have been laid to rest, local associations are now devoting more time to renovating curricula, to implementing new techniques to cope with inner-city educational problems and are even taking the first cautious steps toward merit pay recognition for outstanding teacher performances. I have no doubt that in the months or years ahead there will be radical reexaminations of the classic teacher salary schedule which sets premiums upon the indiscriminate amassing of graduate credits in education courses that are often worse than worthless and which perpetually consigns the superior teacher to inferior pay if he will not play the school of education game. Indeed, the current indifference or hostility of schools of education to the aspirations of organized teachers may well produce the expected reaction; academic control over professional qualifications will be challenged and public education may yet see the introduction of the "union hiring hall." In the next few years there will also be revaluation of the blind faith reposed in tenure act procedures which, however well conceived, have now, like juvenile courts, become subject to constitutional infirmities. The persistent unwillingness of many school managements effectively to manage will no doubt be subject to corrective pressures at the bargaining table, just as alert managements will insist upon eliminating the dry rot from the ranks.

I will not pause to catalogue the provisions of a prototypical agreement. You can get that by consulting an index. But I would like to consider with you some provisions which seem worthy of the specialized attention of those who are concerned with the legal implications of the negotiation process.

Any workmanlike collective agreement should contain a recognition clause explicitly giving exclusive recognition to the designated organization as representative of all the employees in the bargaining unit for the term of the agreement. The specialized practices under the California Winton Act and the Minnesota statute are obviously peculiar – and in my judgment, wholly anomalous exceptions which need not long detain us. I understand that there is a movement to change Minnesota's law in the near future. The persistence with which our hosts defend a statutory monstrosity designed to paralyze action by perpetual competition and debate is, I should imagine, a product of the hot noonday California sun. Having one organization negotiating and administering a contract at one time is desirable from the standpoint of the employer and the employee organization. Under most statutes patterned after the federal law, the duty to bargain, as the Supreme Court has said, is an exclusive one and it "exacts the negative duty to treat with no other." Medo Photo Supply Corp. v. NLRB, 321 U.S. 678, 683, 684 (1944). This raises the question of the standing of the individual teacher, whether a member or non-member of an association representing all members of the bargaining unit, to make a personal complaint, or to invoke the grievance procedure. It likewise raises the question of the standing of the rejected rival organization to insist upon what it calls "equality of treatment" by the employer.

Our Michigan statute contains an explicit provision that an individual employee may present a complaint or grievance to his employer but assures the association a right to be present at any adjustment and provides that no disposition shall be inconsistent with the collective agreement. An overly cautious reading of this language induced us originally to give contractual confirmation to this individual right. School boards agreed with alacrity and often went out of their way to demand stronger assurances to permit the individual to negotiate quite independently of the bargaining representative. We soon realized that we had been unduly protective of the rights of dissident individuals. The federal law, containing similar statutory language, has been construed not to require an employer to entertain the complaint of an individual employee but only to permit it. Broniman v. Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, 353 F. (2d) 559 (6th Cir., 1965). And there seems little doubt that an employer may contract to confine grievance negotiations to the recognized bargaining representative. In several cases before our Labor Mediation Board we have established the principle that the Association may properly maintain control over its own grievance procedures, that a school board is not required to entertain a grievance submitted by an individual teacher through an outside attorney for a rival organization, Matter of Avondale School District, MLMB Case No. C66 F-71, 1968 Labor Operations 680, that dues deduction, access to mail facilities and bulletin boards and similar channels of communication may be properly confined to the authorized representative of the bargaining unit. A rejected organization representing a minority has no standing to demand privileges obtained through negotiations by the bargaining representative. Matter of Avondale School District, MLMB Case No. C66 K-131, July 15, 1968, Matter of Melvindale-Northern Allen Park School District, MLMB Case No. C66 F-57, 1967 Labor Opinions 167. Thus, the notion of equality of treatment has been subordinated to the indispensable need to distinguish between the successful organization and the one which has been outvoted. The right of the individual to petition for redress of grievances, in a constitutional sense, no doubt survives. But the constitutional right of petition does not give an individual teacher the right to complain under a contract which specifically confines the grievance procedure to the organization itself.

Whether you are comfortable with this result depends, of course, upon the theoretical preconceptions with which you view the collective bargaining agreement. If it is to be treated as a contract between the employer and the bargaining representative of which the employee is a third-party beneficiary, it is hard to deny the individual beneficiary the fruits of the agreement regardless of the position of the bargaining agent in the particular situation. On the other hand, if you accept Professor Cox's analogy to a trust, the trust beneficiary is not in a position to override the conscientious decisions of the trustee.[1] The unique aspects of the collective bargaining agreement which have defined easy analysis in the private sector are likely to persist when the government is the employer.

Of course, the problem of reconciling individual and group rights may well be aggravated in the public sector because the employer is not only bound by the provisions of the agreement but by the equal protection and due process clauses of the Federal Constitution. It can be argued, also, that employee associations or unions, given special status by a collective negotiation statute, are wielding a sufficient measure of governmental power to be subject to at least some constitutional limitations. In this context the developing "duty of fair representation" can take on special meaning. In a case arising from Warren, Michigan, the contract increased the allowance on the salary schedule for teaching experience performed in other school districts. The Board, when the contract became effective, began paying in accordance with such allowance all teachers newly hired, but refused to grant the same experience credit to teachers already in the system who had come to Warren when a less liberal credit had been accorded. We urged before the chairman of our Labor Mediation Board who was sitting as a private arbitrator, that it would be unconscionable and discriminatory to treat some members of the bargaining unit on a different basis from others, that this would offend the equal protection clause binding upon the board as well as the fundamental obligation of the association to represent fairly all members of the unit. The arbitrator agreed, finding the constitutional obligation overrode what he thought was a contrary provision of the agreement, and awarded approximately $50,000 additional salary to equalize treatment of all eligible teachers. Warren Consolidated Schools, 67-1 ARB § 8228 (Robert G. Howlett, 1967).

More recently it has been suggested that a "grandfather clause" which relieves existing personnel from burdens or requirements imposed upon others entering the bargaining unit may be subject to the same objection. In private industry it is commonplace for the parties to handle the problems of the old faithful employee by establishing a so-called "red circle rate" which affords special treatment to the individual so long as he is employed but which does not disrupt the general wage pattern in the plant. It is much more doubtful that this technique is available in public employment for a school board, the courts have said, may not pick and choose consistent with the Fourteenth Amendment. Aebli v. Board of Education, 62 Cal. App. (2d) 706, 145 P. (2d) 601, 625 (1944).

The relationship between the public employer and the dissident employee is also the subject of important litigation in our state arising out of the so-called "agency shop" or professional responsibility provisions which we have negotiated in many contracts. As you know, this means that if a teacher does not voluntarily join the association and agree to deduction of dues from his paycheck, he is required to pay an equivalent amount as a representation or service fee, upon pain of discharge from employment. Opposition to such provisions originally came from teachers themselves who rejected "union security" as immoral and unprofessional. After they realized that it took an annual budget of hundreds of thousands of dollars effectively to negotiate and administer master contracts in the State, they began to realize that it was more immoral and unprofessional for teachers to enjoy the vast benefits secured by such contracts without paying their fair share of the cost. Nowhere in the state have we encountered employees offering to work under a salary schedule in effect before a master contract was negotiated or who have disclaimed all the other benefits secured by such a contract. Accordingly, we have taken the position that one who receives the benefits should be willing to participate in the costs of the process which brings such benefits about. Parasitism is not a civil right.

In a landmark case in which the MEA participated, Matter of Oakland County Sheriff's Department, MLMB Case No. C66 F63 (Jan. 8, 1968), 1968 Labor Opinions 1, 227 GERR F-1 (Jan. 15, 1968), our Labor Mediation Board upheld the agency shop in public employment. Thereafter, the Michigan Federation of Teachers, which has about 20 or 25 units in the state compared to more than 500 districts where MEA units are the bargaining representative, sought to challenge the agency shop provision in public education, contending that it was inconsistent with the Tenure Act. So far all such efforts have been uniformly unsuccessful. City of Warren Local No. 1383, International Association of Fire Fighters (Macomb Co. Cir. Ct., No. S67-3311, 1968); Clampitt v. Board of Education of the Warren Consolidated Schools, 256 GERR E-1 (Macomb Co. Cir. Ct., 1968). See also Tremblay v. Berlin Police Union, 232 GERR D-1 (N. H. Sup. Ct. 1968). Our Tenure Commission is facing this problem this very morning in Lansing. We are confident that violation of the collective bargaining agreement by failing to pay a representation or service fee will be upheld as proper cause for termination in public employment just as in private employment.

Even in states which have no negotiation legislation, the right of employees to organize together, to express their views about terms of their employment, and to take cooperative action in their own self-interest is supported by constitutional guarantees. While a few courts are hostile to the whole notion of collective negotiation in the public service, most regard it as permissible even if not mandatory for the employer to deal with an employee representative. See, e. g. City of Fort Smith v. Arkansas State Council No. 38, 269 GERR F-1 (Ark. Sup. Ct., 1968). Where no statutory guidelines exist, there is no reason why the parties themselves may not establish procedures for obtaining recognition, negotiation, resolving impasses, and submitting disputes to third parties for resolution.

Some states, it is true, have no mediation agency or local officials are disinclined to intervene in school disputes. In Hammond, Indiana, recently where a dispute threatened and no state assistance was forthcoming, we invoked the aid of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. If, following Maryland v. Wirtz, _____ U. S. _____ 20 L. Ed (2d) 1020 (1968), employees of public school districts are engaged in interstate commerce or in the production of goods for interstate commerce within the meaning of the federal Fair Labor Standards Act, there is no reason why this national industry should not obtain federal mediation assistance when required. We took the position that the restricted definition of "employer" under the National Labor Relations Act, excluding governmental employers, had no application to the grant of authority to the mediation agency where the word "employer" does not appear.[2] Further, the mediation functions of the United States Conciliation Service which were transferred to the FMCS contained no restrictions disabling assistance to governmental employers and employees. The federal authorities indicated a willingness to intervene if state officials would not; in no time Indiana decided it could provide mediation help. Certainly, a contract provision in which both parties consent in advance to cooperate with the FMCS if its assistance is requested by either should provide effective mediation facilities even in states which have lagged in providing them.

There are virtually unlimited possibilities for imaginative and creative contract draftsmanship to fill the lacunae in the statutory scheme or to provide relief not otherwise available. This is true both in states with little or no legislation as well as in a state like Michigan. Indeed, it is important to emphasize that such progress as has been made by Michigan teachers has resulted from their own efforts and not from official gratuity or grace. The statute as it finally emerged was far from being congenial to the MEA but we have learned to live with it. Whenever he has occasion to issue opinions under this statute, our Attorney General acts as if there has been no change in labor-management relations since the last century. Some time ago he opined that it was illegal for public employers to contract to submit disputes concerning the interpretation or application of agreements to the binding judgment of an arbitrator. We ignored this nonsense and went about arbitrating cases. In the same Oakland County Sheriff's case, the Labor Mediation Board upheld such an arbitration procedure and the courts have followed suit.

More recently our Attorney General concluded that boards of education may not stipulate for terminal pay, for reimbursement of tuition for advanced courses in an "in service training" program or to redeem in cash unused personal sick or leave days. We have hundreds of these provisions presently in effect. While we face arguments from such opinions at the bargaining table, we will continue to negotiate these provisions and defend them if need be in the courts. Under a statute which specifically authorizes negotiation of all terms and conditions of employment of teachers, we see no reason for a grudging construction based upon school codes written long before public employment had to become competitive with private industry.

Our Labor Mediation Board, though competent and conscientious, is extremely conservative to the point where, in my judgment, employees are not receiving the protection which the Legislature contemplated they should have. For either ideological or fiscal reasons, or both, our Board, unlike the NLRB, has refused to investigate charges and to render any assistance in their prosecution. It merely provides a tribunal for adjudication, and the charging party has the burden of preparing his case and presenting it, and establishing that the public employer has committed an unfair labor practice. Pre-trial discovery depositions, suggested in the Board's recently announced procedural rules, are apparently unavailable. Accordingly, charging parties are placed under the heavy burden of having to stumble upon evidence in advance or at the hearing or to bear the consequences of dismissal. This problem has become acute in cases arising under the Michigan equivalent of Section 8(a)(3) where an employee is fired or not reappointed because of alleged organizational activities. In Matter of Bullock Creek Board of Education, MLMB Case No. C68 C-16 (July 15, 1968), the Board disclaimed any interest in determining whether there was just cause for the dismissal so long as it was not shown by a preponderance of the evidence that it was motivated by the employee's protected activities. The same conclusion was reiterated in Matter of Clare County Road Commission, MLMB Cases Nos. C67 K-149, C67 K-150 (1968) where arbitrary and capricious action was held in no way offensive to the PERA. 270 GERR B-1 (Nov. 11, 1968).

These cases uncritically import into public employment the traditional NLRB approach that a private employer can discharge for a poor reason or for no reason so long as it is not for union activity. But the Federal Constitution protects the tenured and non-tenured teacher alike from arbitrary, capricious or discriminatory discharge, regardless of the purported reason. Bomar v. Keyes, 162 F. (2d) 136 (2nd Cir., 1947); Johnson v. Branch, 364 F. (2d) 177 (4th Cir., 1966), cert. den. 385 U. S. 1003 (1967), Rosenfield v. Malcolm, 55 Cal. Rept. 505, 421 F. (2d) 697 (1967). We are thus faced with the anomaly that employees can achieve more sympathetic consideration of their grievances and more effective relief in a federal district court under the Civil Rights Act of 1871 than from the administrative agency specially set up and charged with the duty of protecting employees from anti-organizational reprisals. In the federal court extensive pre-trial discovery is of course permitted under the federal rules; the school board members can be required to answer interrogatories under oath, to produce relevant documents and to submit to pre-trial discovery depositions.

When a specialized labor relations agency such as the Michigan Labor Mediation Board, through a series of decisions ends up by practically excising 8(a)(3) from the statute, because it is unwilling to examine the implications of a rule for private employment in the public sector, it does no favor to either party. The employees, it is true, no longer have the advantage of a relatively prompt and relatively economical administrative remedy. They have to make a federal case of what could be a relatively routine proceeding. But the school boards are also faced with the expense of defending themselves in a federal courtroom which is less likely than state officials to be indulgent of state politicians. School board members are also subject to much more severe remedial consequences for not only may a federal judge issue an injunction or direct reinstatement of the employee with back pay, but under the Civil Rights Act there is personal liability for all damages occasioned by acts of defendants under color of law. In the recent case of McLaughlin v. Tilendis, 398 F. (2d) 287 (7th Cir., 1968) the two discharged probationary teachers are each suing for $100,000. It will be interesting to see what the recovery turns out to be. In two cases we have had in Michigan, in one of which suit was begun and in the other merely threatened, settlements provided for reinstatement with full back pay and an award of about 3/4 annual salary for a second year.

[2]Section 202 (d) of the Labor-Management Relations Act, 1947.

Whether the burden of such payments, occasioned by the misconduct of board members or their representatives, can be shifted back on the public taxpayers, is a nice question which I leave for future litigation.

We are seeking to have the Michigan Labor Mediation Board alter its exaltation of dry logic over practical realities, but meanwhile perhaps some help can be obtained from additional contract language provided by the parties themselves, such as:

> "In the event of the filing of any grievance under this Agreement or in the event the Association serves written notice on the Board that it intends to file a complaint in behalf of any employee under the Civil Rights Act of 1871, the Board agrees that its members, agents and employees may be subject, upon due notice from the Association, to pretrial discovery procedures enumerated in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and in accordance with the terms thereof.
> "It is further agreed that in any proceeding involving the discharge or non-appointment of employee for alleged organizational activities, the Board shall have the burden of establishing that its action did not violate the Public Employment Relations Act. Action against an employee which is arbitrary, discriminatory or capricious shall not be deemed to satisfy such burden of justification."

Such a clause may not be the conventional stuff of collective bargaining agreements, but an imaginative draftsman will not want to neglect cat-skinning alternatives.

Another troublesome area where the ingenuity of contract draftsmen is invited involves the failure of employees to report for work. The Holland decision[3] earlier this year marked, I believe, the first authoritative indication that courts will not regard all strikes by public employees as automatically enjoinable. Professor Russell Smith of the University of Michigan Law School, who was chairman of Governor Romney's advisory committee which reviewed possible statutory changes, and who originally was an unconditional adherent of the Taylor Act in New York, has recently joined Theodore Kheel and others in considering a limited right to strike, 268 GERR E-5 (Oct. 28, 1968). The unequal treatment of public and private employees in the same situation would seem to raise profound equal protection arguments under the Fourteenth Amendment. The current review by the U.S. Supreme Court of Mr. Shanker's demand for a jury trial may illuminate this issue. In Michigan we have a final judgment granting a permanent injunction against a strike pending review in our Supreme Court, which will be argued before a court whose personnel has changed in the last few months.

Perhaps before the courts put to rest the "Volstead Act psychology" which has so long afflicted this field, the parties can negotiate more realistic approaches. How could the following provision be regarded as contrary to public policy or subversive of good order?

> The parties agree that upon expiration of the effective date of this Agreement and until there is a new collective bargaining agreement executed by them, the Board will not directly or indirectly seek to compel any teacher to perform teaching duties against his will, will not interfere with the right of any teacher freely to contract or not to contract for his personal services, or to associate with his fellows or to discuss terms and conditions of employment or other matters of concern to them. The Board will not, directly or indirectly, apply for any injunction or court order to prevent or interfere with any failure of any teacher to report for work except to prevent irreparable injury. For purposes of this provision, irreparable injury shall include the consequences of mass violence but shall not include inconvenience or damage which can be measured or compensated for in money. The postponement in the opening of the school year, so long as 150 days of instruction can be scheduled prior to July 1st of any year, shall not constitute irreparable injury.

You may think that this goes too far. But that is the subject of another discussion—at the negotiating table.

Description and Analysis

UNION SHOP NEGOTIATED IN CONNECTICUT

Nonprofessional school employees in Hartford and school cafeteria workers in Newington have negotiated union shop agreements through locals of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

Union shop clauses provide that all employees of the unit must join the recognized organization within a specified period of time following employment. This differs from the agency shop which has gained increasing acceptance in Michigan schools. Under an agency shop agreement, all employees in the unit who are not members of the recognized organization are required to pay a representation fee equivalent to the dues of the organization, but are not required to join, as they are under the union shop.

CENTRAL OFFICE ADMINISTRATIVE AND SUPERVISORY UNIT FORMED

The New York Public Employment Relations Board found a fifth negotiating unit to be appropriate in Union Free School District No. 17, Town of Oyster Bay. The new unit is comprised of the business manager, assistant business manager, transportation supervisor, cafeteria director, superintendent of buildings and grounds, assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds, supervisor of buildings and grounds, data processing supervisor, attendance director, and recreation assistant. A representation election for this unit was ordered.

The four other units in the district are: one for certificated classroom teachers, one for administrative certificated employees, one for clerical employees, and one for all nonsupervisory custodial, maintenance, and food service employees. With the formation of the central office unit, all employees of the district are in negotiating units, with the exception of the superintendent and two assistant superintendents.

ISSUANCE OF INDIVIDUAL CONTRACTS PENDING COMPLETION OF NEGOTIATIONS IS UNFAIR LABOR PRACTICE

A Michigan Labor Mediation Board trial examiner found that the Edwardsburg Public Schools refused to bargain in good faith with the Edwardsburg Education Association by breaking off negotiations before an impasse had been reached, refusing to provide relevant personnel and economic data to the Association, and requiring the return of individual teacher contracts when no collective bargaining agreement had been reached.

In ruling on the legal requirement for individual teacher contracts, the trial examiner stated, "I conclude that the traditional teacher contract contemplated by section 569 of the School Code is merged into the collective bargaining process wherever teachers exercise their PERA right to designate a bargaining agent. On this basis alone I conclude that a board of education technically violates its PERA section 15 bargaining duty and commits a PERA section 10 (e) unfair labor practice by the very act of offering salary contracts to individual teachers while negotiations are pending with the negotiating agent."

The school system was ordered to cease and desist from its unfair labor practices and to bargain in good faith with the Association concerning wages and working conditions.

REASONS FOR TAKING PERSONAL LEAVE NEED NOT BE SPECIFIED; CONDITIONS IN TWO DISTRICTS CANNOT BE COMPARED ON ONE ISSUE ALONE.

The New York Public Employment Relations Board fact-finding board in the Island Trees School District No. 26 negotiations impasse recommended the elimination of the requirement that teachers specify reasons for taking personal leave. The board ruled, ". . . teachers who are entrusted with America's greatest asset, its children, and the molding of the minds of these future citizens, can be relied upon not to abuse the leave days provided for them." It was further recommended that such days which were unused should be added to the number of sick leave days allowed.

In the second issue at impasse, a request by the Island Trees Teachers Association for full pay for teachers on half-year sabbatical was denied. The Association cited other districts having a more liberal sabbatical leave policy, but the board found, ". . . the working condition in a district cannot be compared with the working condition in another district on one issue alone. The total picture must be measured and compared." The board concluded that the justification for the demand was insufficient.

$6800 SALARY BASE RECOMMENDED IN ANNE ARUNDEL COUNTY, MARYLAND

A negotiated agreement between the Board of Education and the Teachers Association of Anne Arundel County, Maryland, for the 1969-70 school year has been signed, following advisory arbitration proceedings.

The arbitration panel recommended a base salary of $6,800 and found that the 6 percent index agreed to by the parties prior to impasse, was not properly before the panel.

The 1968-69 agreement between the parties was modified following a cut in the school budget by the County Council (see Negotiation Research Digest, December 1968). The County Council has not yet approved the school budget for 1969-70.

COMMUNITY COLLEGE UNIT DETERMINED

The Michigan Labor Mediation Board found a Southwestern Michigan College unit of all full-time and regular part-time day faculty personnel to be appropriate for collective bargaining purposes. Included are classroom instructors, counselors, librarians, department chairmen, 12-month instructional personnel, and the director of nursing. Excluded are the president, vice-president, deans, director of continuing education, supervisors, and all other employees.

Justification for the exclusion of department chairmen and the director of nursing on the basis of their supervisory status was not found. Although they evaluate fellow employees and recommend their hire or retention, these recommendations are not automatically accepted, but are subject to further independent consideration by a higher authority.

The unit deemed appropriate was sought by the Southwestern Michigan College Education Association. An election was ordered whereby the eligible employees could indicate whether or not they wished to be represented by the Association.

Data and Statistics

TEACHER EVALUATION PROVISIONS IN NEGOTIATED AGREEMENTS

The procedures to be followed and the criteria to be used in the evaluation of teacher performance are being jointly determined through teacher-school board negotiations. The NEA Research Division's depository of negotiation agreements for the 1967-68 school year contains 603 comprehensive agreements. Of these, 379, or 62.85 percent, contain provisions on teacher evaluation.

Provisions on teacher evaluation are of several types. The most common includes a statement on procedures to be followed. Others include the actual criteria by which teachers are rated. Fourteen agreements establish a joint teacher-administrator committee to establish new procedures and/or criteria.

Evaluation Procedures

Although the content of the provisions differs widely among the agreements, the Marysville, Michigan, provision is comprehensive enough to represent most of the elements contained in the various provisions on evaluation procedures:

A. The work performance of all Teachers shall be evaluated in writing. Probationary Teachers shall be evaluated three times during the school year. It is recommended that probationary Teachers be evaluated twice within the first semester and once within the second semester. Tenure Teachers shall be evaluated at least once in every two years.

B. Evaluations shall be conducted by the Teacher's immediate supervisor or an administrator working in the same building or otherwise familiar with the Teacher's work, who shall be designated by the Board.

C. A minimum of thirty consecutive minutes is recommended for each observation. All monitoring or observation of the work of a Teacher shall be conducted openly and with full knowledge of the Teacher. The use of eavesdropping, closed circuit television, public address or audio systems and similar surveillance devices shall be strictly prohibited.

D. A copy of the written evaluation shall be submitted to the Teacher at the time of such personal interview or within a reasonable amount of time thereafter. The Teacher shall have the opportunity to review the evaluation report with the evaluator.

E. To assist the administration in formulating adequate and fair methods and criteria of evaluation, the Association may appoint one member on any group, committee, study, et cetera, whose concern shall be teacher evaluation.

F. A final written evaluation report will be furnished to the superintendent covering each probationary teacher and a copy shall be furnished to the teacher. In the event a probationary teacher is not continued in employment, he will be advised in writing of the reasons therefor.

Criteria for Evaluation

Provisions on criteria may indicate only the general categories to be observed, as in the following example from Capac, Michigan:

> Areas of concern are (a) command of subject matter, (b) effectiveness of instruction, (c) initiative, (d) cooperation, (e) participation, (f) reliability and personal responsibility, (g) leadership, (h) growth potential, (i) and participation in professional activities.

Other provisions include a rating scale to be applied to each category, superior, above average, average, etc. Still others further define each general category into specific observable subcategories. The Escanaba, Michigan, agreement contains the actual form to be used which divides four general categories into a number of subcategories, and includes a five level scale to be applied to each item:

Joint Committees

Fourteen of the 379 agreements containing teacher evaluation provisions do not include the actual negotiated wording, but provide for a joint committee of teachers and administrators to study this area and make recommendations. The following excerpt from the Flint, Michigan, agreement is an example of this type of provision:

A. The evaluation of the work of all teachers is a responsibility of the administration, but the development of an appropriate and fair instrument and procedure for evaluation is of proper concern of the teaching staff.

To this end, a professional study committee will be appointed as provided in Article XVII hereof.

ARTICLE XVII.

Professional Study Committee

A. There is hereby established a permanent "Professional Study Committee" (PSC) composed of six (6) members, three (3) of whom shall be teachers selected by the Association and three (3) of whom shall be appointed by the Board.

B. The PSC shall meet at least once each month to discuss and study subjects mutually agreed upon relating to the school system.

C. The PSC is empowered to appoint subcommittees composed of teachers and administrators to study and report upon any mutually agreed upon subjects.

D. All reports of the PSC or its subcommittees, including their recommendation, shall be submitted in writing to all members of the PSC.

E. Subject of study by subcommittees shall include but not be limited to:

1. Discipline policy

2. Evaluation of teachers

3. Development of curriculum

Upon completion of its study and report on the subject assigned to it, each subcommittee shall be considered dissolved, and once dissolved no subcommittee shall be reactivated except by mutual consent of the members to the PSC.

F. The parties agree that the PSC and its subcommittees serve in an advisory capacity only, and that the failure of the Board to place any of its recommendations in effect shall not constitute the basis for a grievance.

G. The clerical expenses of the PSC and its subcommittees shall be borne by the Board.

H. Association representatives on the PSC shall be released from school duties for one monthly meeting of the PSC without salary deduction. Any of its subcommittees may be excused from their regular work if authorized by the Board.

PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS BOARD OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

BOARD OF EDUCATION, UNION FREE SCHOOL DISTRICT
NO. 17, TOWN OF OYSTER BAY,

Employer,

and

NON-INSTRUCTIONAL ADMINISTRATIVE AND SUPERVISORY STAFF ASSOCIATION,

Petitioner.

Case No. C-0245

A negotiating unit may be composed of middle management personnel if there exists the requisite community of interest. The fact that some members of the unit exercise supervision over others in the unit does not necessarily give rise to such a conflict of interest as to overcome the community of interest.

Decision

On April 16, 1968, the Non-Instructional Administrative and Supervisory Staff Association (hereinafter referred to as the petitioner) filed, in accordance with the Rules of Procedure (hereinafter referred to as the Rules) of the New York State Public Employment Relations Board (hereinafter referred to as the Board), a timely petition for certification as the exclusive negotiating representative for a group of ten supervisory and administrative employees of the Board of Education, Union Free School District No. 17, Town of Oyster Bay (hereinafter referred to as the employer).[1]

On May 22, 1968, a formal hearing[2] was conducted before William Duggan, a trial examiner of the Board, with all parties present.

The employer had previously created four negotiating units within which it apparently placed its entire staff, excluding only the superintendent of schools, two assistant superintendents, and the ten employees in dispute.[3] The petitioner contends that the proposed unit includes employees who share a substantial community of interest with regard to their terms and conditions of employment and, due to their exclusion by the employer from any existing negotiating unit, are being denied the rights accorded to public employees under the Public Employees' Fair Employment Act (hereinafter referred to as the Act).

The employer, in claiming that the unit petitioned for is not appropriate, contends that it contains a heterogeneous mixture of "managerial" and "technical" employees who do not share a community of interest. Further, the employer contends that the proposed unit contains supervisory personnel together with their subordinates, which necessarily creates a conflict of interest.

The employer is a school district governed by a board of education. Its chief administrative officer is the superintendent, who has two assistants. All employees within the proposed unit except the assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds, the supervisor of buildings and grounds, the assistant business manager, and the recreation assistant report to one of the assistant superintendents.

The business manager exercises control over the entire fiscal and business operations of the employer. The assistant business manager is specifically concerned with the purchasing program of the employer and is, of course, responsible to the business manager. The superintendent of buildings and grounds exercises general control over the maintenance and custodial programs of the employer. He is assisted by the assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds. The supervisor of buildings and grounds is concerned with custodial care and is responsible to the assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds. The remaining employees within the unit petitioned for appear to be in charge of separate operational departments, to wit: transportation, food service, data processing, recreation, and attendance and census.

[1] The proposed unit consists of the following employees: business manager, assistant business manager, transportation supervisor, cafeteria director, superintendent of buildings and grounds, assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds, supervisor of buildings and grounds, data processing supervisor, attendance director, and recreation assistant.

[2] The rulings of the trial examiner at the hearing are affirmed, as no prejudicial error is apparent.

[3] These four units include one for certificated classroom teachers, one for administrative certificated employees, one for clerical employees, and one for all nonsupervisory custodial, maintenance, and food service employees.

Although many of the employees in the petitioned-for unit are in charge of or work in separate departments, there is a significant degree of consultation between them. Thus, the cafeteria director works closely with the superintendent of buildings and grounds in conveying food goods; the data processing supervisor works closely with the attendance director in establishing attendance registers and census programs; the transportation supervisor works closely with the business manager in preparing bids and requests for state aid; and the superintendent of buildings and grounds works closely with the business manager in preparing bids and payrolls.

The superintendent of buildings and grounds, the assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds, and the business manager all play a role in the "evaluation" of subordinates within the proposed unit. The record is devoid of evidence indicating the nature and extent of this "evaluation"; similarly, the record does not indicate the degree and nature of the supervision exercised.

All employees within the proposed unit are charged with the same mission, i.e., to efficiently administer the school district, and all are entitled to the same fringe benefits with the exception of minor variations in vacation benefits. With regard to wages, it appears that each of the employees within the proposed unit is paid according to a fixed minimum and maximum salary applicable to his job classification.

For the reasons discussed below, I find that the unit claimed by the petitioner in this matter is appropriate for the purpose of collective negotiations. The employees therein constitute a readily identifiable, homogeneous grouping of "middle management" personnel. All are responsible for the efficient administration of the business affairs of the employer; they all work closely together to fulfill their common mission; most of them have supervisory responsibilities over "rank-and-file" employees; and they all receive substantially the same fringe benefits. Further, the employer has treated them identically for purposes of collective negotiations by excluding them from any of the units designated by it. Thus, to uphold the employer's contention that the unit petitioned for is not appropriate would result in the disenfranchisement of these employees and would clearly not effectuate the purposes of the Act.

I realize that a few of the employees included within this unit are subject to "supervision" by others within the unit. However, as the Board has previously stated:

> [T]he mere existence of supervisory responsibilities does not require a conclusion that there is present such a conflict of interest as to overcome or outweigh other facts or circumstances giving rise to a community of interest. Rather, it is the degree and the nature of the supervision. Supervisory functions such as the imposition of discipline, effective initiation of disciplinary procedures, or the evaluation of a subordinate's performance may indicate a conflict of interest.[4]

The record in this case is devoid of sufficient evidence with regard to "the degree and the nature of the supervision" exercised. Therefore, and inasmuch as the employer has not introduced evidence to offset the community of interest that these employees have with all other employees within the proposed unit, I shall allow the superintendent of buildings and grounds, the assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds, and the business manager, subject to challenge,[5] to be included in the unit for purposes of ascertaining the majority status of the petitioner.[6]

THEREFORE, IT IS DETERMINED that there shall be a unit of employees of the employer as follows:

UNIT:

Included: Business manager, assistant business manager, transportation supervisor, cafeteria director, superintendent of buildings and grounds, assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds, supervisor of buildings and grounds, data processing supervisor, attendance director, and recreation assistant.

Excluded: All other employees.

FURTHER, IT IS ORDERED that an election, by secret ballot, shall be held under the supervision of the undersigned among the employees in the unit determined above to be appropriate who were employed by the employer on the payroll date immediately preceding the date of this decision, UNLESS the petitioner submits to the undersigned within seven days from the date of receipt of this decision dues deduction authorizations and other evidences sufficient to satisfy the requirements of Section 201.6(h)(1) of the Rules for certification without an election.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the employer shall submit to the undersigned within seven days from the date of receipt of this decision an alphabetized list of the employees within the negotiating unit set forth above who were employed on the payroll date immediately preceding the date of this decision.
